16,000 RUSSIAN TROOPS FACING ENCIRCLEMENT

Finnish Ski Patrols Cut Russian Lines And Attack Flanks

Finns Advance to Within 25 Miles of Petsamo and Recapture Would Provide Troops With Port for Outside Aid

MANY PRISONERS TAKEN

War Booty Seized and Successful Use of Land Mines Reported from Copenhagen—Russian Advance at Standstill

Copenhagen, Jan. 2 (AP)—Finnish ski patrols in the central Salla sector were reported today to be threatening a division of 16,000 Soviet Russian troops with encirclement, attacking its flanks after cutting off communications in the rear.

It was believed a major engagement was shaping up—similar to the virtual destruction of the 163rd division of 15,000 Soviet troops in an engagement near Suomussalmi, as reported Sunday by the Finnish high command.

On the Arctic front, reports reaching here said the Finns had advanced to within 25 miles of Petsamo, strategic port city.

Recapture of the city from the Russian invaders would provide the Finns with a port for outside aid in the northern campaign.

The Copenhagen newspaper Politiken said the Russian offensive on the Petsamo front was at a standstill, although the air force still was active.

The Berlingske Tidende, moreover, said thousands of Soviet troops had been taken prisoner and much war booty seized at Hoyhenjaervi, south of the nickel mine area of Salmijaervi. The newspaper said the Finns were successful in use of land mines in that area.

ON LAST LAP TO ANTARCTIC

Dunedin, New Zealand, Jan. 2—(CP — Reuters) — Rear - Admiral Richard E. Byrd sailed for the Antarctic from this port today aboard his motor ship North Star. The American explorer has a rendezvous with the other ship of his expedition, the schooner Bear, at the Bay of Whales, his Antarctic base.

Admiral Byrd's automobile! No matter how low the temperature may fall, man seems to be able to stand the cold if there is no wind. But winds are frequent in the South Pole region, and temperatures down to 78 degrees below were experienced in Byrd's two previous expeditions. The use, therefore, by Admiral Byrd of an enclosed automobile will permit him and his fellow explorers to continue to travel under all conditions of cold and wind provided the visibility does not get too bad. If blizzards arise, as they will, the explorers will simply wait; whereas if they travelled on foot, they would be obliged to dig in until the storm passed.

Navy Closes Harbor Of Hong Kong Today

Hong Kong, Jan. 2 (AP) — The British navy closed the Crown Colony harbor of Hong Kong today as a necessary defence precaution.

The order was the result of an alarm from an off-shore patrol. The cause of the alarm was being investigated.

Ships of all nationalities were prohibited from entering or leaving pending further British Admiralty orders.

BRITISH FIGHTERS CHASE FOE PLANE FROM SHETLANDS

Ministry Denies Berlin Story of British Plane Damaged Yesterday

RAIDER SHOT DOWN

London, Jan. 2 (CP) — British fighter planes took the air today to chase a German airplane reported over the Shetland Islands. No air alarm was sounded.

It was the second successive day German fliers attempted an air raid over the islands north of Scotland. The Air Ministry said one of two raiders yesterday was shot down, and an attempt to bomb a British warship failed to inflict damage.

The ministry also denied the assertion of the Berlin communique that during yesterday's encounter one British plane was "so heavily damaged that it was likely it failed to reach its home port." All British aircraft returned successfully, the ministry announced.

RUMANIA FIRM OVER PROVINCES

Premier Says Bessarabia and Bucovina Came to Rumania of Own Free Will

Constanza, Rumania, Jan. 2—(A.P.) — Rumania, in the words of Premier George Tatarescu, will defend "to the last man," if necessary, the provinces of Bessarabia and Bucovina bordering Soviet Russia.

Tatarescu addressed sailors of the Rumanian navy yesterday in the presence of King Carol, declaring the populations of the two provinces "chose to come to Rumania of their own free will" after the last war, and that "we will defend them to the last man."

Diplomats wondered if Rumania had grounds for believing that Bucovina, as well as Bessarabia, might be desired by Russia. Bucovina was part of former Imperial Austria and Bessarabia, part of Imperial Russia.

Tatarescu also repeated Rumanian determination to fight, if necessary, to bar any Hungarian recovery of Transylvania, another area which changed hands as a result of the last war.

CANADIAN TROOPS OVERJOYED AT RECEPTION GIVEN

A ROUGH VOYAGE

Christmas Dinner Held Aboard Ship—Enthusiastic Welcome Extended by Anthony Eden

Aldershot, Jan. 2 (CP)—In the waning hours of the old year Canada landed its second contingent on British soil and today they were "digging in" with their brothers-in-arms who preceded them by exactly a fortnight.

Unheralded, the camouflaged transports appeared out of the mists in Saturday's chill gray dawn to dock at a west coast port, and it was again Canada's day in the Mother country.

"Happy New Year", the boys shouted. Little more than a week had elapsed since they had turned their mist-dimmed eyes eastward after watching native shores hide in winter fog.

Amid the military formality of the landing there were informal notes as well. Dominions Secretary Anthony Eden stopped Corporal Earl Lee of the signal corps, Ottawa.

Corporal Lee didn't recognize Mr. Eden but he was glad to answer questions put by the welcoming Englishman.

"There seems to be a lot of big shots around here," the Corporal told Mr. Eden. "I wish we could get going."

Mr. Eden smiled. "Well, do just that," he said.

MRS. FEELEY, 70, KILLED AS AUTO IS HIT BY TRAIN

CRASH NEAR MARMORA

Marmora, Jan. 2 (Special)—The seventh member of her family to die violent death and the second to be killed in a train accident, Mrs. Kathleen Feeley, 70-year-old Peterborough resident, was instantly killed at 12:50 p.m. Monday when the car in which she was riding was struck by a northbound C.P.R. freight train. A daughter, Miss Bellesmore Feeley, 28, received a fractured skull and her condition is critical.

Four-year-old Margaret Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Payne of Peterborough, was hurt about the face and head, but not seriously injured. Geoffrey Feeley, driver of the car, was rushed to Peterborough General Hospital tonight after he had collapsed at his home. It is believed he is suffering from internal injuries.

Feeley, who was driving easterly on Highway No. 7, failed to notice the approach of the train until it was too late to avoid a collision.

The first indication he had of the approach of the train was hearing the whistle being blown. Slamming on his brakes, he was unable to bring his car to a stop because of the icy condition of the highway, and the car crashed into the engine. The car was demolished. The injured were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

The accident occurred on a crossing one mile east of Marmora, on No. 7 Highway. The party was en route to the home of Mrs. Feeley's sister in Tweed for a New Year's celebration.

Frost-coated windows of the automobile were believed to be partly responsible for the accident. The car was thrown 79 feet by the impact. The train crew consisted of

Balkans Are Uneasy Lest War Come With Springtime

By CHARLES NICHOLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Diplomatic moves in the Balkans today focussed world attention on that trouble-fretted peninsula.

The widespread, almost fatalistic expectation among southeastern European nations that war will come to their territory with the Spring was heightened by a Rumanian declaration that King Carol's army is preparing to defend its territory "to the last man."

The declaration came from Rumania's Poet-Premier, George Tatarescu. And specifically named the Provinces of Bessarabia and Bucovina as areas in which any incursion would be resisted bitterly.

Russia is Watched

Reference to Bucovina, not previously among the danger points mentioned by Rumanian leaders, brought speculation as to whether fears had arisen that the former Austrian territory was coveted by Russia. Russia's ambition to regain Bessarabia, lost after the last war, never has been doubted.

Meanwhile widespread suspicion that the Red Army might turn south when the 1940 Spring thaws the snowy barrier separating it from the Balkans was given support by the return of the Italian Ambassador from Moscow. While there was no official explanation for the return of Augusto Rosso to Rome, some observers saw in it a tacit warning that Italy would associate herself with any countermeasures if Red Army troops marched southward.

Italian Attitude

Italian support for Finland already has been made clear by officially-approved anti-Soviet demonstrations — demonstrations which led to the recall to Moscow of the Soviet Ambassador. Italian observers would not be surprised if neither envoy returns to his post.

While Italy assertedly has abandoned any hopes of establishing a "peace bloc" in southeastern Europe," she reportedly is doing her utmost through diplomatic channels to keep irredentist nations from taking advantage of any Russian invasion as an opportunity to grab territories on which they have a claim.

The outright declaration by Premier Tatarescu that Rumania was prepared to fight for Bessarabia coincided with reports that troops had been sent back to the province. Earlier the withdrawal of army units from the territory led to the belief that Rumania would not make any effort to hold back a Russian incursion until it reached the river Pruth.

Red Army Failure a Factor

Failure of the Red Army to make any impressive progress against the Finns is believed to have been a major factor in this change of attitude. Rumanians now are of the opinion that they could hold back a Russian attack providing they had some outside assistance—munitions from Italy, for instance.

But the Rumanians are not preparing only for Russian action. Germany still has troops at their western border and some feel that Berlin might make a stab toward Rumania's oil fields rather than risk their falling into Russian hands.

In spite of the Russo-German pact there is belief that mutual trust between the two nations is not sufficiently strong to permit either to embark alone in any adventure in the Balkan area. Germany, with a predominant economic position in that region, would risk losing a valuable part of "living space" if the Soviet should make a successful invasion.

Turkey also stepped up defence preparations as speedily as possible in the face of devastation of large Anatolian areas by floods and earth shocks. There were unconfirmed reports from Belgrade that the Kremlin had hinted Russia would like some border restriction.

According to this report, Turkey has sent six army corps to posts near the border.

CABINET MEETS ON WEDNESDAY

First Session of the New Year Will be Attended by Ralston and Euler

Ottawa, Jan. 2 (CP) — Cabinet ministers who took a brief vacation away from Ottawa in the holiday season were returning to the capital today for the first cabinet session of the year, called for tomorrow afternoon.

Finance Minister Ralston and Trade Minister Euler, among those who left the capital will be back for tomorrow's council. Col. Ralston was in his office this morning and Justice Minister Lapointe is expected later in the day.

Transport Minister Howe will return Thursday and Defence Minister Rogers will probably be back later in the week.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King remained in Ottawa throughout the holiday season but the majority of ministers were absent, some spending the holiday season in Florida.

German Planes Fail to Reach Region of Paris

Paris, Jan. 2 (AP)—A military summary of war operations today disclosed that German warplanes attempted to reach the Paris region during the first day of 1940.

A German patrol attacked a French outpost with hand grenades near the Vosges region but was driven off.

The army high command's morning communique today reported "some patrols on both sides at different points of the front."

CHEAPER CONTAINER, CHEAPER MILK

Chicago, Jan. 2 —(AP)— Two Chicago dairies announced today that starting Friday they would offer milk in two and four-quart containers instead of the conventional one-quart bottle in an effort to lower the price for home deliveries. The price will range from two to three and a half cents per quart lower than the present figure, dairy officials said.

AUSTRALIA SENDS 3,000 MORE FLIERS

Melbourne, Jan. 2—(CP-Reuters) —Discounting predictions of Germany's imminent collapse as a "lot of tripe," Air Minister J. V. Fairbairn today advised that 3,000 more Australian fliers will be sent overseas during 1940 to join the squadron which recently arrived in England.

Mr. Fairbairn who recently returned from Canada where he participated in empire air training conferences, said that Australian fliers on active service abroad would serve in squadrons under Australian officers. Members of the Royal Air Force will be sent to Australia under an exchange plan

Mr. Fairbairn appealed for volunteers and urged applicants not to be discouraged if they were not called immediately. "There is an awful lot of tripe about Germany cracking up," he said. "She will not until we exert full pressure."

Convoy Dodges U-Boat Ambush

By Sam Robertson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 2 (C.P. Cable) — (Delayed)— A destroyer scouting ahead of the second Canadian troop convoy detected a U-boat in the vicinity and dropped depth charges, it was disclosed reliably today.

Troops on the nearest transport were ordered to stand by with their lifebelts near lifeboats throughout the day, going below only for meals. Soldiers aboard other transports were unaware of the incident. It was not known whether the enemy craft was destroyed.

A report that the contingent, which arrived at a United Kingdom port during the week-end and is encamped at Aldershot, had "dodged a U-boat ambush" was published in The Daily Express on Monday.

However permission was previously refused by the censor to transmit either the Express report or the accurate Canadian Press account.

It was learned that another report to the effect the convoy was attacked by a U-boat and that a destroyer was hit is without foundation.

2,000,000 MEN CALLED TO COLORS IN GREAT BRITAIN

Royal Proclamation Will Give Britain Potential Army of 3,500,000

19 TO 27 REGISTER

Biggest Need of General Staff is Officers to Train the Recruits

London, Jan. 2—(CP)—A Royal proclamation calling about 2,000,000 more men to the colors gives Great Britain a potential army of at least 3,500,000 men.

It is expected all will be in service by the end of the year. The proclamation, signed by the King last night after his return from a holiday at Sandringham, requires that all male Britons between 19 and 27 years old, register for service.

Previous conscription orders affected only men 20, 21 and 22 years old—a total of 1,500,000 men under arms or technically mobilized.

Meanwhile, the Allied forces were swelled still further by arrival of the second contingent of the Canadian Active Service Force. The First Contingent arrived just a fortnight before.

(It was disclosed in Ottawa yesterday that 16,000 Canadians, making up the entire First Division, now are in England.

The rate at which new conscripts are to be called will depend on events. It is expected generally that action on the western front will intensify with the coming of spring.

RALPH C. DAY RE-ELECTED AS TORONTO'S MAYOR

COMMUNISTS LOSE

(By the Canadian Press)

Voters in Ontario municipalities looked forward expectantly today to presentation of details of the Ontario Government's proposed wartime election machinery.

Elections were held in many centres of the province yesterday and in the largest, Toronto, opposition was expressed to any change from annual municipal voting. By about four to one Toronto voters said they did not want municipal elections suspended for the duration of the war and by 72,433 to 29,072 they voted against the principle of elections every two years.

Hon. Eric Cross has said that the bill for keeping elected men in office for longer terms, in the interest of wartime economy, is ready for presentation to the legislature this month. No expression of the voters will make a difference, he has declared.

Ralph C. Day was re-elected Mayor of Toronto, but by a greatly reduced margin over that by which he beat the same opponent last year. He obtained 61,4800 votes to 58,011 for Lewis Duncan, K.C., who acted as post-war administrator of the German city of Bonn for the Allies.

Board of Control Returned

The entire 1939 Toronto Board of Control was re-elected and three Communist candidates were defeated. Stewart Smith, Secretary of the Ontario Communist party, ran sixth in the field for the four-man board of control, obtaining only slightly more than one-quarter as many votes as the leader. Controller Dr. F. J. Conboy, J. S Salsberg and Fred Collins, other

London, Jan. 2 (CP) — The diplomatic correspondent of the Yorkshire Post wrote today that Premier Mussolini has given up the German cause for lost and has even refused to try to negotiate a peace for Adolf Hitler.

"In view of the serious consequences which failure of Russia's help will ultimately have for Germany, if the war is allowed to proceed," the correspondent said, "Hitler requested Mussolini to take the initiative in promoting negotiations for peace with Great Britain and France.

Uncle Sam Protests British Seizure of Mail to Germany

Formal Protest by U. S. to British Government Made Today — Note Says U.S. Cannot Admit Right

State Department Cites Four Specific Cases of British Authorities Taking Mail From American or Neutral Ships

Washington, Jan. 2 (AP) — The United States formally protested to the British government today against seizure of mail from the United States destined to Germany.

The United States government, a note to Great Britain said, "cannot admit the right of the British authorities to interfere with American mails on American or other neutral ships on the high seas nor can it admit the right of the British government to censor mail on ships which have involuntarily entered British ports."

The state department cited four specific cases of British authorities taking around 1250 sacks of mail and parcel post from American or neutral ships.

FLOODS, STORMS SWEEP TURKEY, TAKE 1,200 LIVES

DAMS COLLAPSE

Ankara, Jan. 2 (AP)—Floodwaters and storms have taken at least 1200 lives in Turkey, still staggering from last week's earthquake catastrophe.

Officials estimated the following casualties within the past week:

Earthquake—45,000 dead, 100,000 injured and 500,000 homeless.

Storms and floods—1200 dead and 25,000 homeless.

Inhabitants of 20 villages in western Turkey fled from flooded areas, and hundreds of others were marooned.

Dams collapsed near Kamalpasha. Streams overflowed in the Symrna region near the Turkish naval base, in the Brusa region and the Adrianople area of European Turkey.

Storms along the Black Sea caused great shipping damage. The 700-ton Turkish freighter Turkian sank with her crew of twenty. It was feared other vessels had capsized.

Capital officials said the disasters were a severe blow to the national defence due chiefly to the disruption of communications.

Whole villages of the Brusa region in western Turkey were reported swept up by the torrents and carried into the sea of Marmora.

Some new quakes were felt in the northeastern region which suffered devastation last week, but because of shattered communication lines it was impossible to determine whether there had been new damage.

The most turbulent rivers were the Surlu, Sindshan and Adranos, which flow northward across a broad coastal plain into the Sea of Marmora. At some points the flooded rivers spread out for ten miles.

Some small river-bank hamlets and their inhabitants were reported to have been carried away in their entirety.

"The rivers are stretching out arms like an octopus, seizing victims," said a Turkish officer who

LATE REV. STANLEY E. MORTON, Rector of Trinity Anglican Church at Brockville, and Rural Dean of Leeds County.

REV. S. E. MORTON, BROCKVILLE, DIES

Well Known Anglican Rector Was Raised and Educated in Hastings County

RURAL DEAN OF LEEDS

Residents of this district in general and Church of England circles in particular were shocked today to hear of the passing of the Rev. Stanley E. Morton, Rural Dean of Leeds County who died in his home at Brockville, Ont., after a brief illness of a few days. The late Mr. Morton suffered a heart seizure a week ago and failed to rally. He was 55 years of age.

The late Rev. S. E. Morton was a popular figure in Anglican circles in this district for a number of years. Born in Thomasburg, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Morton, he received his early education in that village and at Madoc high school.

Graduating from that institution, he attended Trinity College and later the University of Toronto where he obtained his M.A. degree.

Ordained to the priesthood of the Church of England in 1908, the late Rural Dean received his first charge at Maynooth, Hastings County. Later he served the congregations at Rawdon, Lyndhurst, Bonarlaw and Carrying Place. For a period of six years he was the rector of St. Luke's Church in Kingston. His last move was to Trinity Anglican Church, Brockville, where he served faithfully for a period of eight years. Four years ago he was made Rural Dean of the County of Leeds.

The passing of the late Rural Dean Morton creates a vacancy in religious circles of this and Brockville districts that will be hard to fill. He was a loving father and took a great interest in the well-being of his fellow men. He took an active interest in things fraternal, and in addition to being a prominent Mason, was a member of other societies.

The funeral will take place at Brockville on Thursday at 2 o'clock. The body will be placed in the cemetery vault to await interment at Thomasburg Cemetery in the spring.

Wolf Shot by Farmer In Huntingdon Twp.

West Huntingdon (Special) — With the discovery of what is claimed by veteran backwoodsmen to be a den of timber wolves, farmers residing in the northern part of the township of Huntingdon believe they have uncovered the source of a number of marauding animals that have accounted for approximately $450 worth of sheep during the past year.

Walking in a field about a mile north of Fuller on Saturday, C. Chapelle and Albert Mitts saw what resembled wolves ambling across the countryside. A well-aimed shot brought one of the animals down. Later it was identified by a veteran of the north country named Palmateer as being a particularly fine specimen of timber wolf.

Later a hunting party of residents of the vicinity was organized and their efforts brought them within shooting distance of a pack of five or six of the animals. Shots were fired in the general direction of the pack, but they loped away uninjured.

The den of the animals is believed to be in the woods in the northern part of the township and efforts will be made in the near future to locate and destroy the animals.

PASSENGERS AND CREW TAKEN TO DAKAR AS LINER ABANDONED

Seville, Spain, Jan. 2 (AP) —Operators of the Spanish liner Cabo San Antonio, abandoned last week enroute from Buenos Aires to Cadiz when the ship caught fire, announced today 280 passengers and crewmen were landed at Dakar, French West Africa.

The French naval ministry disclosed yesterday that a French destroyer had picked up survivors about 300 miles off the African coast.

Owners of the 12,589-ton steamship, Ybarra and Company, said there were no casualties. The French announcement, however, said five persons were missing.

ENTIRE CREW SAVED

Trondheim, Norway, Jan. 2 (AP) —The Norwegian passenger liner Queen Maud rescued the entire crew of 36 from the 8,000 ton German steamship Johann Schulte last night.

The Johann Schulte lost her propeller Monday and sent an S.O.S. It was considered possible she was trying to reach a home harbor from Muransk, Soviet Russia's Arctic Ocean port.

The ship still was afloat early today, but was expected to be a total loss.

FIRE DAMAGES BEAN BUILDING

Cellar Gutted and Lower Floors Damaged in the Blaze

"Fireworks" of a different nature entertained a large number of New Year's Eve celebrants on Front Street on Sunday evening, when fire breaking out in the cellar of the Bean building on Front Street that houses a farm implement firm, caused considerable smoke damage to the upper parts before fire squads succeeded in reducing the blaze.

Thought to have originated from a chimney, in the cellar the fire was confined to that part of the building, but not before firemen were forced to smash their way through heavy flooring in order to localize the blaze. Dense clouds of smoke rolled out of the building giving potential New Year celebrants the idea that a general conflagration was imminent. Police officers were forced to keep the curious crowd at a safe distance in order to facilitate the firemen's efforts.

Damage was done in the most part to the flooring and cellar of the building.

A chimney blaze on St. Charles Street was the only other episode that spoiled an otherwise perfect New Year for the city fire department.

Destitute Couple Given Lodging at Police Station

That New Year's present in the form of a job in Toronto did not materialize for Mr. and Mrs. A. Laroque of Montreal, hitch-hikers who spent New Year's night in the comparative comfort of the transient cell blocks in the police station here.

"I am sick and cold and hungry" said attractive twenty-eight-year-old Mrs. Laroque to the sergeant on duty, as she and her husband applied for lodging at the police station last night.

They unfolded a story of blasted hopes that took them on the long journey from Montreal to Toronto in search of the elusive employment, they had been told awaited them. They started off in their little car, but the "pot of gold" in the form of a job, was not there when they reached the end of the long rainbow journey.

Disheartened and disgusted, they tried several places in an attempt to find work, then gave up hope. They sold the car and took to the broad highways in an effort to reach their native Montreal. A kind-hearted motorist gave them a lift from Toronto to Belleville where they sought the hospitality of police officials for the night. This morning they took their small parcel of belongings, and once again struck off down the highway in the hope that a generous traveller will Albert [illegible] on them and help them on their way.

The late Mr. Houston was in his fiftieth year.

The funeral was held at two o'clock today from the late residence where a large number of sorrowing friends, business associates and residents of the city in which tre deceased was held in the highest esteem, paid a last tribute to one who was regarded as a leader in his chosen vocation, a Christian gentleman and a man who ever had the interests of his fellow man at heart.

Honorary bearers were Messrs. J. B. Findlay, James Galloway, J. O. Herity, W. B. Deacon, William Leslie, John W. Cook. Active bearers were Messrs. H. W. Ackerman, Fred Deacon, Newton Thompson, P. C. McGuire, W. J. Morrison, Harold Martin.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. James Semple, minister of Bridge Street Church of whom the late Mr. Houston was a valued member. Dr. Semple was assisted by the Rev. L. S. Wight, while the Tweed Lodge A.F. and A.M. conducted the impressive Masonic rites. Beautiful floral tributes were colorful testimony to the high regard and esteem in which the deceased was held by a large circle of business associates and friends, and the city and district in general.

The late Mr. Houston was born in Tweed, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Houston, and received his early education in that village. He resided there until thirteen years ago when he came to Belleville where he had enjoyed well merited popularity to the time of his demise.

His activities however were not confined to his business alone. He took a wide interest in various spheres of life in the city of his adoption and his influence was felt in church, fraternal, Y.M.C.A. and many other circles.

Mr. Houston's business acumen was well-known to his associates the lumber industry, and his ability to study and discuss as well as solve many problems pertaining to the lumber business earned for him the presidency of the Ontario Lumber Dealers' Association.

His interest in the church was unfailing. He was, as has been said before, a valued member of Bridge Street United Church, was a member of the Board of Stewards and past Chairman of that Board. He was also a director of the local branch of the Y.M.C.A. and took an active interest in the work of that organization.

Mr. Houston was well-known in fraternal circles of the city and district being a Past-Master of Tweed Lodge A.F. & A.M., a member of Quinte Friendship Chapter, No. 227 R.A.M., and Eureka Lodge No. 283 Belleville. His interest in the welfare of others especially the underprivileged was exemplified in his activities with the Belleville Rotary Club, where his sterling work set an example that is worthy of emulation. He was also a member of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Health.

Havelock Resident Fined for Illegal Possession of Pelts

Marmora, Jan. 2 (Special)—Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Peterboro police court on Thursday registered a conviction against George Harrington, Havelock, on a charge of having been illegally in possession of six muskrat pelts in Methuen Township on December 11th. Harrington was fined $2 for each pelt, along with $2.50 costs, making a total penalty of $14.50 with the alternative of ten days in jail.

At a night session of the police court, Harrington's brother-in-law, Oscar Spinks, pleaded guilty to having had possession of a rifle in the vicinity of a lumber camp without a license, and was fined $10 and 75 cents costs. The charges followed a visit of Fish and Game Overseer I. J. Lyons of Peterboro, and Overseer J. A. Shannon of Marmora to Wood's lumber camp in Methuen Township on December 11th. Harrington and Spinks are working at that camp and when the officers discovered the muskrat pelts and rifle the two men were charged.

New Year is Celebrated With Fun and Frolic

Belleville shook celebration cobwebs from a somewhat hazy mind today, took generous doses of soda, took off its coat, rolled up its sleeves and straightened away for the first round with young Mr. 1940.

The cherubic youngster however was ushered in on a wave of whoopee and celebration that must have brought figurative tears of regret to the eyes of his bewhiskered predecessor. The somewhat ominous calm that was apparent all day Sunday was but a forerunner to a series of parties, dances and other forms of New Year celebrations that saw the dying year relegated to the limbo of other dead years, and the hopeful youngster of 1940, borne in on a wave of noisy demonstration, that lacked nothing of the color and general whoopee of former celebrations.

Scarcely had the twelve strokes of the clock marked the final passing of 1939, and the strains of Auld Lang Syne died away in private homes, clubs, hotels, restaurants and other entertainment rendezvous, than the restraint that was marked all day gave way to a rollicking mirthful demonstration.

Restaurants and hotels began to receive their quota of celebrants. Sounds of revelry became apparent so suddenly that it might have been the result of the wave of a mythical magic wand. Belleville celebrated in a style that was reminiscent of the halcyon days when war-clouds were but something in the remote distance.

Dancing proved the popular form of celebration although city theatres were transformed into noisy bedlams as patrons "cut loose" with all the effects at their command when the stroke of twelve raised high the curtain of entertainment.

Militia Officers Hosts to Friends

Officers of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) and the 34th Field Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery were hosts to a limited number of friends. The Trianon Ballroom, popular Front Street dance rendezvous, was the mecca for a large crowd of early morning celebrants. The Belleville Club on Pinnacle Street also proved a popular spot as one of the gayest parties in the history of the organization gave way to pent up New Year's feelings.

The Aajmaa Club rooms also rang with the merriment of a large number of celebrants. In the rural arears, Quinte Inn in Prince Edward County was the meeting place for a large crowd of New Year greeters, while Shannonville and other smaller centres provided parties where people gathered to usher in the 1940 child.

But underneath the stream of gaiety there ran a current of care and vigilance. Vehicular traffic was at a minimum due no doubt to the large number of private parties held in the city. Drivers maintained a watchful attitude which combined with safe and careful driving resulted in not a single accident in the city over the entire holiday period.

True there were the usual number of celebrants who gazed upon the wine when it was of a vivid hue, and while a few of the louder, found solace in the cell-block of the police station nothing of a serious nature occurred.

LONDON PAPERS RENEW WELCOME

Papers See in Arrival of Second Contingent of Canadians Fresh Evidence of Empire Unity

London, Jan. 2 —(CP)—London's newspapers Monday renewed the welcome extended a few days ago to the first Canadians on their arrival at Aldershot, as their brothers-in-arms completed a swift and well-planned crossing of the Atlantic.

The press saw in the arrival of the second contingent of Canadians fresh evidence of Empire unity.

The Daily Mail in a front page article said: "Canada's second great contingent of fighting men have arrived in England. They landed at a west coast port after a voyage that will make military history for the speed and secrecy with which it was carried out.

"Britain, France and Poland combined to achieve the tremendous task. Poland supplied several liners and manned them with Polish crews. Warships of Britain and France were the watchdogs that guarded the modern armada. It was made, too, without a single incident.

Had Own Pipe Band

"Off the boats came artillery from Winnipeg and Montreal, engineers from Toronto and Halifax, signal units, ambulance units and infantry including several kilted Scotch regiments accompanied by their own pipe band. Their cheers and shouts echoed across the water to the little west coast town and brought men, women and children running to the docks to welcome them.

"Just as they had sung their way across the ocean, the men from the prairies and backwoods sang as they marched ashore. The words of 'Roll Out the Barrel' and 'Tipperary' drowned the tramp of their feet."

French Navy Assists

The Times said: "French seamen must have felt a peculiar gratification in helping to convoy across the ocean Dominion troops on their way to fight side by side with the French soldiers on the western front.

"As to the Canadians, both English-speaking and French-speaking, the presence of French escorting ships in the escorting fleet must have been a welcome symbol of that Anglo-French solidarity upon which rests hope of victory and peace, and reconstruction when victory has been achieved.

"M. Daladier (French Premier) and M. Reynaud (French Finance Minister) during the past few days have emphasized the value of this solidarity for the success of the Allied cause and for the future of Europe."

Probe Disappearance Of Huron Martin

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 2—(CP) —Provincial Police are today probing the disappearance of Huron Martin of Brantford who has been staying on the Alderville Indian Reserve south of Rice Lake for some weeks.

In company with an Alderville Indian, Steve Smoke, Martin visited Sugar Island in Rice Lake on Friday. Smoke said he started to walk back to the mainland expecting Martin to follow after him on his skates. Martin is said to have been seen leaving the island but Smoke saw nothing of him after setting out. The channel between the island and the mainland was open in some places and it is feared Martin may have been drowned.

'WOMAN FASCIST' RETURNING HOME

Makes Carefully - Guarded Voyage on Stretcher from Germany to England

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—The whereabouts of Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford developed additional mystery today as the time of the expected arrival of the blond British friend of Adolf Hitler passed without a word of her movements.

She had been expected to land at a channel port on a stretcher at noon (7 a.m. EST) on her way home from Germany suffering a mysterious ailment.

No Definite Word

Officials were instructed to permit no one to talk to the girl until she had undergone "very considerable formalities" awaiting her. Lord Redesdale, her father, waited a second day at a channel port with an ambulance, but there was no definite word of her movements.

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, British "Woman Fascist" and friend of Adolf Hitler, neared home shortly today on a stretcher after a carefully-guarded voyage from Germany.

Some of Britain's leading surgeons awaited the mysteriously ailing daughter of Lord and Lady Redesdale. She was expected to be taken to a hospital from the south coast port where she was due to dock about noon after crossing the English Channel.

Miss Freeman-Mitford's family learned only Christmas eve of her journey home and also heard she had met with an accident in Munich August.

An ardent admirer of Hitler and several times his guest at Berchtesgaden, his Bavarian mountain chalet, Unity was in Germany when war broke out and had remained there until now.

The London News Chronicle reported that Hitler had given her every facility for her trip home, including a special ambulance-type railroad car.

Unity's sister, Diana, is the second wife of Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British union of Fascists, now known simply as "The British Union."

HITLER ABANDONS 'BLITZKREIG' PLAN

So Says Daily Herald Correspondent Adding That He Aims at Coalition of 'Young Nations'

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—The diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Herald today reported that Adolf Hitler had abandoned plans for a "blitzkrieg" in an effort to create a coalition of "young nations."

The new group would bring Italy, Japan and the Soviet Union into a bloc with the Reich against Great Britain and France, the correspondent said. He added that Hitler and his advisers were convinced that their most important problem at present was to conclude an effective alliance with Italy without losing the benefits of the new understanding with Russia.

Hitler has not lost hope of drawing Russia into new adventures such as an attack on Sweden or Rumania or an invasion of Turkey or Iran, the correspondent said. Such action by Russia would mean its entrance into the war on the side of Germany, he claimed.

Driving snow sweeping out of the west in the van of high winds drifted highways and sideroads full to the east and south of the city over the week end, but left Belleville and the districts to the north with but a slight covering.

Three and four feet of snow that rapidly filled the main arteries of Prince Edward near Wellington effectively halted traffic on Saturday and Sunday. County snowplows were in action all day Sunday in an effort to re-establish highway communication with the rest of the district. A number of New Year visitors to that section of the southern county were forced to stay overnight, until roads were cleared.

Traffic was held up for some time near Port Hope and Cobourg, when high winds swept roads full.

Reports from Bancroft and the north county this morning stated that little or no snow fell in that district. Highways are passable with approximately three inches of snow being in evidence.

BEAVER CLUB TO CATER TO NEEDS OF CANADIANS

Club Will be Located Near Admiralty Arch and Ready in Few Weeks

RECREATION CENTRE

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 2 (C.P. Cable) —A building brim-full of Canadian hospitality will be thrown open to the Canadian troops in a few weeks when the recreation centre is opened a few steps from Trafalgar Square. It will be known as the Beaver Club, commemorating the Beaver Hut located in the Strand during the last war.

Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, showed newspapermen today the five-storey building adjoining Admiralty Arch. Workmen were busy in the place and architects hope to have it completed by mid-February. The building has been leased by a committee which Mr. Massey formed from Canadians living in London.

Finest Dance Floor

The building contains what is claimed to be the world's finest dance floor and there are more than 100 rooms. It will contain a canteen specializing in Canadian dishes, a big information bureau, shower baths, rooms for checking kit, reading rooms, and plenty of heat.

Mr. Massey said he had cabled the head office of The Canadian Press asking that members of the news-gathering organization forward two copies of their papers. W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard and president of The Canadian Press, replied that the request was being met.

(At the head office of The Canadian Press it was announced that a majority of its member newspapers already had responded favorably to the request?)

Medical Officer Attached.

The recreation centre contains no bedrooms but the information bureau will furnish advice on billets. It is expected a medical officer will be attached to the centre. The club will be directed by an administrator who has not yet been named. Most of the work will be voluntary.

"I think it will be a most effective and useful institution," Mr. Massey said.

British Colony To Welcome Ajax In Montevideo

Montevideo, Jan. 2 (CP) — Uruguayan officials today worked out measures to make sure that the interned German freighter Tacoma would remain a captive here for the rest of the war and prepared for a visit from a British cruiser.

Authorities said H.M.S. Ajax, one of the three victors in the battle with the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee December 13, would arrive tomorrow for a 48-hour stay to refuel and provision.

The British colony arranged a welcome for the ship and crew. She will be under command of Rear Admiral Sir Henry Harwood, who directed the battle against the Graf Spee.

In the harbor Uruguay's miniature navy stood guard against a possible break for freedom by the 8,268-ton Tacoma, while officials prepared to intern her crew and dispose of the cargo of oranges, grapefruit and nuts. One possibility discussed was that freighter would be beached.

Burned to Death In House Fire

Midland, Ont., Jan. 2 (CP)—Lawrence Roberts, 37, sailor, was believed burned to death at an early morning fire here today which gutted a brick house. His burned body was discovered by firemen shortly after 10 a.m. The firemen were called to the scene two hours earlier. Positive identification has not been made.

Mrs. Priscilla Roberts, 65, ill with pneumonia, was taken from the house last night to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Banks, and thus escaped the tragedy.

Prejudicial Statements Bring 42 Days in Jail

Hamilton, Jan. 2 (CP)—John Cain, 47, of Toronto, convicted recently on a charge of making statements likely to prejudice the recruiting of His Majesty's forces, was given a term of 42 days in jail when he appeared before Magistrate H. A. Burbidge in court today for sentence. A concurrent sentence of 30 days was imposed on a begging charge.

"I am a British subject —1'0 per cent," said the accused to the magistrate. "I feel my position here keenly and I am willing to do my duty for my country. It is no excuse I know, but I had something to drink."

"Nevertheless we have to deter others from doing the same thing," replied Magistrate Burbidge as he passed sentence.

Gunman Holds up Hamburger Stand

Toronto, Jan. 2—(CP)—Firing a shot into the back of the restaurant to show he "meant business," a well-dressed gunman held up a midtown hamburger stand here early today and escaped with $7.

"Come on boys, its a holdup," the gunman said as he entered the restaurant, flourishing the revolver.

"So you think you're smart,' said the holdup man as he sent a bullet into the wall.

The gunman then scooped up $4 in bills and some silver out of the cash register and fled. A block away he jumped into a car left parked in front of a police station.

EUROPEAN STATES IN FEDERATION FRANCE'S SCHEME

PRESS ENTHUSIASTIC

Paris, Jan. 2—(AP)—The idea of a Federation of European States as an outgrowth of the war was set forth in authorized French circles today. This was a development of the subject broached by Premier Daladier in a speech to the Senate Dec. 29.

A campaign for such a system, which would be along the lines of the present wartime collaboration between Great Britain and France, has been started by the French press and radio.

The point was stressed that "political quarters" regarded present British-French relations as typical of those that should exist in peace between nations that would form the European Federation.

The present cooperation between Britain and France provides for:—

1. Interchange of products with understandings to ensure fuller manufacture and free flow between the countries of goods of which one or the other is short.

2. Removal or alteration of tariffs where they would interfere with such a free flow.

3. Direct exchanges of currency at a fixed relative value without involving gold operations.

4. In wartime, full cooperation with a single command for armies and for the navies.

It has been agreed that the British-French cooperation plan will continue for six months after the war ends. It also has been opened to other nations, and French spokesmen refer to the recent French-Belgian and British-Swedish commercial accords as "signs of evolution" toward the Federation system in Europe.

The system is described as "one of freely determined collaboration, leaving each country its complete independence and individual physiognomy."

Aid Given Finland by Britain Closely Watched by Germany

USED AS PAWN CLAIM

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Jan. 2 (AP)—Germany, according to authoritative sources, is keeping a close watch on what kind of aid Great Britain gives Finland.

Germany desires to stay out of the Russian-Finnish conflict, these sources indicated today, and understands that the Soviet Union wishes to settle scores with Finland alone.

If British soldiers were to appear on Finnish soil, however of is munitions deliveries from Britain were to reach decisive proportions, there seems little doubt Germany would support Russia actively.

(Britain yesterday informed the League of Nations that she would give Finland all assistance possible, as the League had suggested when expelling Russia from League membership.

(Prime Minister Chamberlain told parliament Dec. 15 that "in addition to air supplies to Finland, the government intend similarly to release other materials which will be of assistance to the Finnish government.")

German authorities profess belief that the western powers have no unselfish interest in Finland but want merely to use the little republic as a pawn in the game against Germany.

JAPAN'S LOSSES 1,464,000 MEN

Chinese Spokesman Says 40 Per Cent of Casualties Killed

Chungking, Jan. 2 (AP)—A Chinese army spokesman asserted today that Japan's losses in 2½ years of war totalled 1,464,400 men, but added that only 40 per cent—585,760—were killed or wounded.

The remainder, he said, had died of disease or been incapacitated by illness or other causes.

The best neutral estimates have put Japanese killed and wounded at not more than two thirds of the spokesman's figures.

According to Chinese army information, the spokesman said, Japan is maintaining an army of 1,680,000 officers and men, made up of 49 divisions, 14 mixed brigades and auxiliary units. He did not say what portion of this force — five times peace strength—is in China.

He declared that on account of the strict enforcement of conscription in Japan there had been a shortage in agricultural output, the 1939 yield being one third less than that of 1938. The rice shortage alone, he asserted, amounted to about 857,000 tons.

(Tokyo dispatches have reported that the Japanese government has a program for buying more than 1,000,000 tons of rice, the great staple of the Japanese diet. Normally Japan exports more rice than she imports.)

Daladier Speaks in Name of Allies

Paris, Jan. 2 (CP-Havas)—A telephone call from Prime Minister Chamberlain inspired Premier Daladier to speak in the name of the allies before the French senate last week when he referred to Franco-British friendship for Turkey, it was learned here today.

Mr. Chamberlain informed Premier Daladier that Great Britain, like France, was ready to give material aid to Turkey following the catastrophic earthquake and floods in Anatolia. He added a request that, since the British parliament was not in session, Daladier should also speak in the name of Great Britain.

Political circles said this incident was typical of the closeness of the collaboration of the two powers.

HERMAN GOERING SOON TO REPLACE HITLER IS REPORT

Paris, Jan 2—(CP-Havas)—The newspaper Le Petit Parisien in a dispatch from Rome today said Field Marshal Hermann Goering may soon replace Adolf Hitler in a German Government shake-up which would be the first move in a German peace program.

Hitler would move into the honorary post of President of the Reich according to this report, and left wing Nazi officials would be thrown overboard in favor of men acceptable to the western powers.

The reestablishment of small Polish and Czech nations would be allowed under arbitration by a "great personage," Germany would abandon autarchy and build up its commercial relations with France and Great Britain and Russia would be kept at a "certain distance.'

APPLICATION FOR PROBATE MADE

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—Application was made here today for probate of the estate of Thomas Bradshaw, President of the North American Assurance Company, who died Nov. 10. Valuation of the estate was set at $1,328,818.

FINNS CAPTURE RUSSIAN BASE

All - Day Tank - Supported Army Attack at Two Points Smashed

Helsingfors, Jan. 2—(AP)—The capture of a Russian army base and the smashing of an all-day tank-supported Red Army attack at two points on the Eastern front were reported today in a Finnish army communique.

The Russian base at Aittajoki "passed from hand to hand during the day" before the Finns finally took it, the communique said, adding that three machine guns, a field kitchen and 400 overcoats fell into their hands.

Near Lake Lavajaervi the Russians were said to have attacked the whole day with tanks supporting the infantry only to be repulsed with the loss of a tank destroyed.

Gains northeast of Lake Ladoga and in the Suomussalmi region in the north, scene of the week-end triumph over the Russian 163rd division, also were reported.

Russians Being Pursued.

The Russians, the communique said, were being pursued in the direction of Juntusranta, near the Finnish-Russian border.

The Finns reported seven Red army planes were shot down during raids yesterday in which the southwestern port of Abo (Turku) suffered heavily. Large sections lay in smoking ruins today. Unofficial reports said numerous Russian bombers had been forced down in Finnish territory by frigid weather and blizzards.

A bombardment of Koivisto on the south coast by the Russian battleship October Revolution "without results worth mentioning" was recorded in the communique.

On Jan 1, 1939, he was arrested for felonious assault.

On Jan. 1, 1940, he was charged again with felonious assault in the stabbing of his wife, in serious condition.

Ottawa, Jan. 2 (CP)—Revenue collected at the port of Ottawa during December totalled $628,290, an increase of $259,912 over December, 1938, it was announced today. It was the largest monthly revenue at the port for the last 15 years.

FINANCE MINISTER RALSTON ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Will Sit in Parliament as Liberal Member for Prince in P.E.I.

FORMER MEMBER

Ottawa, Jan. 2—(CP)—Finance Minister Ralston today gained a seat in the House of Commons when he was selected by acclamation as Liberal member for Prince electoral district in Prince Edward Island.

The by-election, necessitated by the death of A. E. MacLean, a Liberal member of parliament, was scheduled for Jan. 8 but Mr. Ralston received notice this afternoon from the returning officer at Prince of his election by acclamation.

Notification Received

The notification came from Charles R. Rogers, returning officer at Summerside, P.E.I., who sent the Finance Minister the following telegram—

"In my capacity as returning officer I have just now, at two o'clock declared you elected by acclamation in the current by-election in the electoral district of Prince."

Col. Ralston was called Sept. 6 last to take over the Finance Ministry from Hon. Charles Dunning whole health was failing. His first budget, presented at the special war session of parliament last September, was presented to the House by Revenue Minister Ilsley.

Election of Col. Ralston leaves the standing of the House at—Liberals, 176; Conservatives, 39; Social Credit, 15; C.C.F., 7; Independent, 2; U.F.O. Labor, 1; United Reform, 1; vacant, 4. Total 245.

Germany Builds 'Tadpole' Subs

Paris, Jan. 2 (CP-Havas)—Germany is building a fleet of "tadpole" submarines of 150 to 200 tons each, it was reported here today.

The Reich admiralty has decided to abandon construction of 1,000 and 1,500-ton U-boats in favor of a larger, faster fleet of these tiny undersea boats which can be built and replaced at a speedier rate than the larger vessels, it was said.

Disadvantages of the "tadpole" U-boat are its small radius of action—it could not cruise for longer than five days without requiring fuel and supplies—and the need for a far larger specialized personnel to handle the increased number of units in operation.

A submarine of 1,500 tons can be operated by a crew of 40 to 50 men. A tadpole U-boat one-tenth this size would still require at least 20 men, or nearly half as many as the larger U-boat.

Italy Will Maintain Principles and Practice of Economic Autarchy

Rome, Jan. 2 (CP-Havas)—Italy will not abandon the principles and practice of economic autachry, Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist spokesman, said today in the Giornale d'Italia.

Commenting on declarations in foreign papers that restoration of free trade is one of the conditions of the restoration of peace among peoples, Gayda wrote:

"Italy will defend its autarchic economic system and will not allow anyone to touch this internal order which shall henceforth be an integral part of its national life. Economic autarchy is the prime reason for its national life. Economic autarchy is the prime reason for its security against the political and economic predominance of other great powers. It is also the means of assuring work to a growing population."

SWEDISH STEAMER SUNK

Stockholm, Jan. 2 (AP)—It was learned today that the Swedish steamship Lars Magnus Trozelli, 1,955 tons, sank off the east coast of England several days ago. Most of the 22 crewmen were saved by a Norwegian ship. The fate of the rest was undetermined.

Finnish Woman Patriot of Toronto to Leave for Homeland to Fight in Her Country's Defence

Mrs. Danker Hopes to Fight in Trenches When She Arrives

14 FINNS LEAVE

Toronto, Jan. 2 — Mrs. Lemki Dankar is attractive, blonde and Finnish. She hopes to leave Toronto in a few days for her native land to serve in the front line trenches. That was her address when Finland fought for independence and that is where she received shrapnel wounds in both legs while carrying out the wounded. That is where she wants to be this time with the 14 stouthearted Finlanders, who left Toronto's Union Station last night.

Mrs. Dankar was a member of the Finnish Women's Auxiliary, the same outfit which has already lost three women in this war to Russian gunfire, and she was one of several hundred Finns who turned out for last night"s stirring farewell.

The start of the farewell was like any of the dozen big ones which take place in the station every year with nothing but a lot of people milling around. But suddenly a man appeared on a balcony high above the main concourse.

An organ, also on the balcony, began to play and there was a silence throughout the whole building as ticket sellers, station officials and waiting passengers dropped what they were doing to listen

Speaks Stirringly

The man on the balcony, Oskar Jarvela, Secretary of Toronto Finnish war veterans, spoke a few words in an impassioned tone of voice. Then the organ broke into Sibelius' "Finlandia" and every Finnish voice in the station took up the refrain

The passengers and station officials sensed the meaning of the unfamiliar strains and every hat came off and every man (10 bystanders to every Finn) stood at attention. The business of running railroads simply stopped.

After the Finnish anthem they played "God Save the King" and that ended the official part of it all.

The volunteers were mobbed by their well-wishers. The youngest, blonde, good-looking, curly-haired Iarvie Kouhia, 21, for instance, was boosted to friendly shoulders as women and men crowded around him.

In common with the others he was showered with presents and bank notes were pressed into his hands from all sides. The party was enroute to New York where it embarked.

BRITISH TOMMIES GO OVER THE TOP—IN PRACTICE

Getting acquainted with the heavy French mud is not the least important of a British Tommy's training. Here we see a squad going over the top under the covering fire of the soldier in the centre, during practice manoeuvres, immediately beyond their own front-line trenches.

ANZACS ARRIVE FOR TRAINING

Military training is going ahead full speed in Australia, as Aussie soldiers pour into training camps to brush up on their war tactics. These soldiers are shown waiting cheerfully for orders as to where to pitch their tents. They will ultimately reach the European battlefront, to fight side-by-side with the Tommies and poilus.

MEN OF THE M.T.V.R. ENJOY TURKEY DINNER SERVED BY THEIR SERGEANTS

Although a few days past the customary time for such a festive meal, the men of the 1st Mechani- [illegible] Vehicle Reception depot, nevertheless, did full justice to a Christmas dinner, with all the trimmings, which was served to them, much to their delight, by their sergeants. The meal looked so good that the officers also decided to dig in, and made Major P.M.E. Purcell act as their waiter.

PUBLIC HEALTH IN TIME OF EMERGENCY

National health is the chief bulwark of any state. If there is national health it means there are the other factors which make for health. National health itself is the result of many factors and a wise and sane policy by governments.

The Winter Number of "Health" deals with this very question under the heading of "Democracy and Morale." Using the oft-stated remark that Germany lost the last war through defeat on the home front, in which it is said there is some truth, "Health" reports "that the lessons which Canada should learn from this observation is that the keeping up of the civilian morale should be a major objective for the Allies—and hence for Canada in this war."

Civilian morale should always be the objective. "The keeping of morale at a high level depends upon the attention paid by the nation for maintaining the rights and privileges of the common citizen.

"Threatened by the dangers of war the average citizen is apt first of all to think of the threat of cannon and the might of the advancing armies of the foe. He rushes to do all that may be done to repel invasion and to make sure that no little thing is neglected which may make effective our efforts to defeat the enemy."

"Yet there is a danger that in the effort to do the obvious thing and in the very process he may forget and mistake the means for the end. This war, we Anglo-Saxons urge, is in defence of democracy and democracy and civilian morale are interdependent. Surely then the keeping up of civilian morale is part of our war task."

"Health" states that the maintainenance of happiness and contentment in the home of the average citizen, the sustaming of legislation which maintains the privileges of democracy, the continuance of efforts to maintain health and of all efforts to search out new means of lengthening life, are the very things which are striven for in democracy.

In the army health is one of the chief demands. The strictness of medical examinations indicates how important the health of the soldier is to the individual and to an army unit and to the army itself. The army is the fittest body of men in the country. It selects its men for without good health they would be ineffective under the strain of service and render the army ineffective.

At the war-time session of the Dominion Council of Health it was resolved that the highest level of good health must be maintained during emergency. The successful prosecution of war depends largely upon the maximum use of all the resources of the state. The people are the most important of resources and a healthy citizenry insures for the state the maximum advantage. The council made clear its attitude that it is imperative that all health services be maintained and where possible be expanded.

WINTER AND SNOW

The new year was fittingly heralded by a fall of snow which for the first time this winter gave the customary season's setting of white.

It was a pleasure to the young and to the youth and even to mature citizens who recognized it as the familiar accompaniment of the season and the assurance of healthier weather conditions.

Northern lands have an attraction in the snows of winter which are entirely missing to the southern lands. A change of atmosphere from the growth and color of summer to the rest and whiteness of winter is something which became a part of the nature of the people who live in northern countries.

Snow may have its drawbacks but they are few as compared with the advantages, particularly in agriculture for frost and snow are allies of agriculture.

Next summer and autumn Canadians will want large crops because of unprecedented demands upon this granary of the Empire. Nature with frost and snow will make possible the desired great crops.

EARTHQUAKES

Speaking of the coincidence of two earthquakes at the same time, the one in Turkey where many thousands lost their lives and where many more thousands live in terror and suffering and want, and the quake which shook California, the New York Times discusses some facts about earth tremors. It says that only seismologists can say whether there is any relation between the two or whether they are entirely unrelated and but mere coincidences of disturbances on this planet and that scientists will want time to have records before committing themselves.

The Times says:

"Coincidence or not, there is every reason why the earth should tremble both in the Mediterranean and Pacific regions. Wherever mountainous masses and deep water are juxtaposed there quakes are most likely to occur. The ranges that fringe the Pacific explain the destruction of life and property that has occurred all too frequently on the shores of Asia and the two Americas. Less obvious is the case of Turkey. Yet the mountains that run through it are regarded by many geologists as part of a formation which begins with the foothills of the Himalayas in the east and extends to the Maritime Alps in France. Whether this conception is right or not the Alps and the Himalayas are in themselves enough to account for any instability in Asia Minor and the adjacent regions.

"It is not likely that the new upheavals will teach the geologist anything new. They are evidence that nature has not yet finished with the earth. Mountains are still being pushed up, with the result that states of unstable equilibrium are being created which can be corrected only by earthquakes, more or less severe. So we must regard the destruction reported from two ends of the world as evidence that the earth is shaking down a crust which has not yet reache its final form and that when the final form is reached we shall have stagnation and death. A live planet is a shaky planet.

"All this will be small comfort to the thousands who have been driven from their homes in stricken Turkey and must now live in tents. They wan to know what science can do to protect them from similar catastrophies in the future. The answer, alas, must be unsatisfactory. Engineers can build structures that no ordinary earthquake can shake down, but at a cost that few can afford. And it is in crowded communities housed in flimsy buildings that lives are lost.

"What we urgently need is some method of predicting quakes and warning a threatened population. But will a city heed? Not every one in Japan flees to the open country when the tiltmeter gives its first warning. Major catastrophes are rere. Who knows but the heralded earthquakes may be only a slight quiver? Great cities which have been all but razed by upheavals have not profited by their experiences. Buildings are built in the time-honored way, men go about their business as they did before they were driven out of their homes by falling walls and by fires, life runs its course. For lack of a real science of seismology, a science that will indicate not only that an earthquake is impending but how strong it will be, there is some excuse for fatalism."

THE WAR LAST WEEK

(By Don Gilbert Canadian Press Cable Editor).

A Christmas lull made the 17th week of the war with Germany the quietest since hostilities began. But in Finland, the land associated with reindeer and sleighs and other incidentals of Christmas, the fighting went on with increasing fury.

The Bolshevists do not observe Christmas. The resourceful Finns, routing the invaders in some sectors and denying them gains in others, penetrated Russian territory with a foray by ski troops against the Leningrad-Murmansk railroad, which serves as a supply line for the Red forces.

The measure of success attending this 75-mile stab across the snow-covered lakes and forests of the enemy was not clear. But an indication of the way the Kremlin feels about the general progress of the invasion was given in reliable reports that the Russian high command had been changed and new troops from as far away as Siberia summoned to participate in the campaign.

Troops better experienced in winter warfare were said to have been requisitioned. Reports from Finland told of Russian formations advancing across the open spaces of frozen lakes, affording the concealed Finns the opportunity of shooting them down by the hundreds.

Name of Ship Withheld

In the west the principal event was the damaging of a British battleship by an enemy torpedo. Four men were killed. The name of the ship was withheld by the Admiralty and it was indicated the damage was not extensive. Elsewhere German raiders had little success, British sea losses totalling less than 3,500 tons for the week.

With the absence of fighting. Britons everywhere celebrated the holidays as joyfully as the circumstances of war permitted. The King in a Christmas Day broadcast, spoke of the unity of the peoples of the Empire and said "We feel in our hearts that we are fighting against wickedness."

Thousands of soldiers, sailors and airmen received home leave for the holidays. The Canadian Active Service Force, in camp at Aldershot, prepared for a period of intensive training to begin once the New Year holidays are over.

Glancing back 25 years: Christmas, 1914, was the occasion of an unofficial truce, with troops on both sides laying down their arms temporarily for the celebrations. Later in the week of Dec. 24-30 the Allied forces advanced along the Belgian coast. In South Africa the uprising of pro-German elements was ended.

This Business of Getting On With The War

"Why don't they get on with it?" is natural enough, perhaps, as a query concerning this strange war, even among people whose minds recoil from slaughter—one of the inevitable consequences of getting on with it.

War is a thing of action, and if a certain impatience about Anglo-French inaction is forming as an undercurrent in the national mind, already overwrought, nobody need wonder.

But he is a wise man who learns by the experience of others. There are two modern instances in which governments or generals in charge of the conduct of campaigns allowed their better judgment to be overruled by an impatient public or what was believed to be an impatient public.

Let us see what happened in each. We have not far to travel backwards along the historical corridor until we reach the first of these. The year was 1896.

In February of that year an Italian army of 25,000 men, 10,000 of whom were European and the rest native troops under white officers, lay in the Abyssinian highlands. Its commander was General Baratieri

x x x

A few miles to the west of them lay a black host whose numerical strength has never been known with accuracy, but which must have numbered at least 100,000 to 120,000 men—a host of fierce swordsmen, riflemen, and spearmen thrown up from the depths of Africa. At its head was King Menleck.

Now Baratieri knew that the "Big Fact" was food. Generals are practical men and have many things to think of besides bombs and bayonets. This Italian general knew that, hard as it was for him to feed his men, it was far harder for his opponents, with their rudimentary supply service, to subsist.

All he had to do was to sit tight. In a few weeks the Ethiopians must either break up, when he could attack them in detail, or they must advance and attack him, when all the advantage would be on his side because he was well entrenched.

But the Italian public was growing impatient. The Italian equivalent of "Why doesn't he get on with it?" arose in increasing volume. It reached the ears of the Government and they, timid men, fearing for their places, pressed the Premier, Crispi.

So Crispi telegraphed to Baratieri to get on with the war— to do something spectacular. The general replied, representing the position. But those at home set him down as unenterprising. Without telling him, they ordered General Baldissera to sail at once and take over the command.

Friends of Baratieri in Italy were not long in telling the general that he was to be superseded and that his successor was already on the way.

For a while the general wavered. Then, against his better judgment, he did some wishful thinking by lending an ear to a false rumor that the enemy army was dissolving. He broke up his fortified camp and advanced to attack King Meneleck, which was the very thing that dusky monarch wanted, for he was, in fact, on the point of breaking up his army.

The rest was tragedy. The Italians became separated in the mountain country and their three brigades were surrounded in turn by the Ethiopian hordes and cut to pieces. Of the 17,000 who marched to battle, over 10,000 were killed or captured. Baratieri himself survived, but practically all his higher officers perished.

No attempt was made at the time to reverse the grim verdict of that battle—the Battle of Adowa. But the desire to avenge it was one of the chief factors which, in our own time, led Mussolini to attack Abyssinia.

x x x

This affair of Adowa was forty odd years ago. Let us hark back another forty years and we come to an instance not so very different in character — one which, moreover, affects us more closely, since it was the British public that was directly concerned in it.

In 1854 the Russian Bear, as represented by his Imperial Majesty the Czar Nicholas 1., was laying its great paws upon Europe, or so it appeared to the people of England. A Russian army had advanced to the Danube and threatened Constantinople.

The Turks, always a doughty people, were putting up a splendid fight against the Czar's men. England and France decided to support the Turks; war was declared upon Russia, and a joint expeditionary force sent to Varna.

But when the Anglo - French army reached Varna, the show, so to speak, was over. The Turks had won the day, and the Russians, further threatened by Austria, had been hustled back to their own country.

The finest British army that had ever gone overseas lay inactive at Varna; cholera began among the men. The best course would have been to call the war off and distribute the army among its peace stations again.

But this did not suit the French Emperor, Napoleon 111, at all. He had his name to make, and would not entertain the idea of his French troops returning home without battle honors. Unhappily this attitude was helped by the outcry that arose in this country to "teach the Russians a lesson."

England had not been at war in Europe for forty years; the country was now keyed up to the idea, and a strong section of public opinion felt it would be "let down" if, after all the preparations and all the display of might, there was not a victory or two to round off the picture. A demand arose for the army to be sent on across the Black Sea to attack Sebastopol, in the Crimea. There was no need for this new adventure.

The disastrous war which followed is a matter of history. The four decades of peace had been four decades of neglect of the army: the supply system was chaotic, and thousands of brave men died needlessly from want of the simple necessities that would have saved them. The hospital services were a scandal, retrieved only by the heroic work of Florence Nightingale.

Had it not been for the fact that the Russian organization was even worse, the British and French armies must have perished to a man, or at least been grievously defeated. And it was all needless.—by S. J. P. in Belfast Daily Telegraph.

Canada Soon to Hear of Deeds Of Daredevil Sons in R. A. F.

First All-Canadian Squadron Now Undergoing Advanced Training in Rural England

ONLY ABLEST CHOSEN

(By Edwin S. Johnson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Jan. 2—(CP)—It won't be long before Canada hears about the exploits of her daredevil native sons selected to form the first all-Canadian squadron of the Royal Air Force.

In this unnamed spot, amid the quiet and beauty of rural England, these clean-cut, eager, efficient young men are now undergoing a course of advanced training before being launched upon their active service careers to pit their skill against the foe. Every member of the squadron is a qualified pilot already, but theirs will be a job for which only the ablest are chosen. And despite their impatience to come to grips with the enemy there are certain technical detail and aerial tricks they must learn and master.

On the day I visited the squadron I found the boys not in their flying kit but dressed in their Sunday best among the sleek machines which form part of their very existence. Yet it was not speed, duels or "dog fights" they discussed this day—but of all things, wedding bells.

Flying Officer Weds

In fact they were preparing to celebrate an event which one of the fliers waggishly described as "the nuptial nosedive" of their colleague, Flying Officer Richard Coe, of Winfield, B.C. with playful banter and good-natured leg-pulling they were busy applying the "works" or the bachelor's valedictory to their pal.

A few hours later the happy young airman strode down the aisle of the old-fashioned Greystoke village church with his bride—Pauline Hazel Browne, of Kelowna, B.C., on his arm.

Like every other member of the squadron, Coe came over at his own expense to enlist in the R.A.F. He is a full-fledged airman, a member of the First Canadian Active Service Troup and has settled down with his bride in a small cottage within easy reach of the airdrome and his flying mates

Canada to be Proud of Her Sons

In the eyes of the Commanding Officer, Squadron-Leader F. M. Gobell, of Ottawa, his boys are a grand aggregation made of the finest stuff.

"Just give them half a chance and they'll be doing things that will make Canada justly proud of them,' he said.

As adjutant, the squadron has a native Nova Scotian, P. D. Macdonald, present member of the British House of Commons for the Isle of Wight. A flying enthusiast before the war Macdonald was responsible for organizing the civil air guard in the island and has been an active member of the air committee of the House of Commons. He first stood as Conservative candidate for the Isle of Wight in 1923, against another Canadian, Major-General Jack Seeley, the present Lord Mottistone. He was defeated by 90 votes in that election but won the seat a year later by a majority of 4,500. He married Lady Jean Cochrane, daughter of the 12th Earl of Dundonald, who reorganized the Canadian Militia after the South African war.

Aim to Become Ace Aviators

The rest of the squadron is drawn from varied walks of life and from almost every province of the Dominion—all with one absorbing ambition, to become ace aviators, eager to add a further chapter to Canada's air achievements.

With unfeigned modesty, the boys would rather speak about anything else than themselves. They did "open up", however, about their popular "A" flight commander, Flight.-Lieut. Donald Miller of Saskatoon. So intent was this westerner to get into the air force that he gave up his job, hustled off to England and found himself in London with only £4 in his pockets. Defying superstition, he filled in his application papers at the 13th hour of the day on a Friday and waited patiently for the call. To conserve his slim resources he partook of only one meal a day for nearly two months and on the day before he was ordered to report for duty he walked the streets, hungry and cold without a penny to his name. He admitted the "sledding was pretty tough for a while," but that "everything is rosy now."

Some Members of Squadron

Flt.-Lieut. John Sullivan, "B" Flight Commander. Was born in Ottawa 24 years ago but his family now resides in Guelph. A former member of the R.C.M.P. and joined the R.A.F. in 1936.

P. O. Percival S. Turner, 26, Toronto. Worked as a lifeguard at a bathing beach. Joined the R.A.F. in 1938 and considers himself "plain lucky" getting into the Canadian squadron.

P. O. William A. Waterton, 23, Camrose, Alta. Former physical training instructor for Alberta in the Dominion Youth Training Scheme. Received early training at R.M.C. Kingston where he became middleweight boxing champion. Has been with the R.A.F. since April, 1939.

P. O. James F. Howitt, 25, of Guelph. Former employee in a dairy firm. Used his savings to get to England but had to wait until April, 1939, before his application was approved.

Describe Exploits Of Naval Heroes, Newspaper Urges

London, Jan. 2—(CP)— The Daily Express today criticized the Admiralty for failing to describe the exploits of naval heroes whose names have been officially cited for bravery.

"The Admiralty publish a stirring story about our naval heroes," it said editorially, "and they cross it all out except the names. They make an epic of the seas as dull as a telephone directory. Their honors list contains over 300 names, without a word about the exploits which won the honors.

"Sixteen men in the minelayer adventure are honored. The Admiralty have not told us of their deeds of 'undaunted courage, steadfastness, coolness and resource.' Donkeyman H. A. Harts was mentioned in dispatches. What for? What's the purpose of hushing up heroism?"

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

One of the few near-certainties emerging from the month-old Russo-Finnish war is that the Soviet authorities were badly advised as to the extent of Communistic sentiment in Finland. The strength of the Finnish forces and the tactics required to make an invasion of Finland successful.

It is possible that had they been correctly advised on these points they would not have ordered the invasion but having ordered it they can not stop it now without serious consequences.

Recent despatches indicate the Soviet authorities are taking steps to correct their early mistakes. New, fresh and more experienced troops are being assembled on the Finnish front. Aircraft are being used more extensively. The tendency appears to be a concentrate on the Karelian Isthmus front where the weather is more temperate than further north to adopt defensive tactics on the eastern border of Finland and in the far north where Russian armies were forced to retreat.

By concentrating on one area the Russians may be able to use their numerical superiority and their preponderance in guns, ammunition and tanks to greater advantage.

The Russians have everything to gain by forcing the war to an early issue. The longer they allow it to drag along the more help the Finns will receive from the Allies and from neutral countries.

If the Finns can be forced to use up their supplies and exhaust their troops before a steady flow of supplies and reinforcements begin arriving from outside Russia although expending great quantities of supplies and losing large numbers of men for a time, might save in the long run.

Sweet for a Season

by Joseph McCord

"My thanks to you. I'll begin, if I can, by not having seen you today. So don't tell me where you are going. That will make it easy for me. Oh, I believe we'll take Glada home today, if she's as well as she was yesterday. I haven't seen her yet."

"Gee, that's swell! She is going to be all right, isn't she?"

"The doctor tells us so. I've the feeling she will get along faster out of the hospital. You haven't changed your mind by any chance?"

"No. I..I couldn't."

INSTALMENT 28

Dr. Nebeker assured the worried Ed Lee that there was nothing in Glada's condition to cause uneasiness.

"She is regaining her strength nicely," the physician insisted. "With the cool weather coming on, she probably will gain even more rapidly. Get her out in the open as much as you can. And I would dismiss that nurse. Glada doesn't need any particular waiting on. It's best not to give her that idea."

"I know, Doc," Ed persisted, "But she isn't like herself. She's changed in so many ways."

"How so?"

"Well, she's too quiet for Glada. Seems to me she never has anything to say much, though she never complains. Worst of all, she displays very little interest in things or people. It isn't like her."

"Perhaps. But you must realize that her nervous system had a severe shock. That won't mend so quickly as her knee has. A little later, I would suggest you arrange for a trip. Let her see new places and faces. And above all, don't worry over her. She will react to over-attention instinctively and unfavorably."

"And the doctor is quite right," Mary Lee asserted positively when her husband mentioned the conversation. "You've been so used to seeing the poor girl hopping around like one of her chickens with its head off that it worries you to see her taking things quietly. I'm sure she seems to enjoy seeing her friends when they call, especially Mr. Stirling. That dear man surely is devoted to the child."

"Think he's getting anywhere with it?"

"Well, I make it a point to let them have their chats alone as much as possible. I'll miss my guess if he doesn't have his way. He'll always get what he wants in this life. At least, I hope so."

"That's a kindly wish. You're a born matchmaker, Mama. Too bad your field is narrowing down."

"Don't be silly. You'll be as glad as I am..when it happens."

"I'm not sure that I won't be even more glad."

"Well, then."

Lynn Stirling had felt obliged to limit his visits somewhat as Glada progressed toward recovery. However, he carried on steadfastly, resolutely forbearing any attempts at courtship under the circumstances, but clinging patiently to his hope. He was conscious that he was being abetted by Mrs. Lee and that made the situation easier, even if Glada gave him no particular encouragement. As her mother observed, she seemed always glad to see him; sometimes, Stirling fancied that she regretted his leaving when other duties shortened his stay. He realized that it would not be long before she would be moving around the house and that his calls would be curtailed rather completely.

Unless he forced the issue.

Perhaps Fate had done her worst. There never was any mention of the vanished Jones. Even the chicken farm was tacitly ignored in conversations at the Lees'. Glada was taking short rides now and, to her father's unbounded relief, seemed to have no fear of cars whatever. Stirling had been permitted to take her out once or twice, but he was careful to choose a route well away from the farm or the airport.

And so to a mellow afternoon in September when Glada found herself wandering slowly but restlessly around the lower rooms at home feeling deserted and distinctly lonely. Mrs. Lee had departed for a session of bridge and tea, gone early because she was assisting the hostess of the afternoon. She would not be back until dinner time. The nurse had been dismissed long since. Only Nora and a maid were in the house. The former was in the kitchen and she looked up with a pleased smile when she discovered Glada in the doorway.

"You sure are lookin' fine today, darlin'. You didn't ring your bell and I missed hearin' it, did I?"

"No, I didn't ring. Nora, did Bill come back with the car?"

"Sure and I don't think so. I've been here most every minute and I didn't see him pass the window."

"When he comes, tell him I want to go out for a little while. Please get my coat and hat."

"Of course, darlin'. It'll do you good. Hadn't you better have Eloise go with you?"

"No. I don't need any one."

Later, when the solicitous Nora helped her into the car and it was rolling easily down the drive, Glada gave instructions to her driver.

"Out to the farm, Bill. I want to see Mr. and Mrs. Peters."

"Yes; ma'am."

The order given, she leaned back against the soft upholstery. She had not stirred when the limousine came to a gentle stop at the farmhouse gate and Irma came lurching joyously down the porch steps when she saw whom the Lee chauffeur was assisting to alight.

"Oh, Miss Glada!" she kept repeating, tears streaming down her face.

"Now, Irma, what kind of greeting is this?" the girl scolded, trying to conceal how deeply she was touched. "You ought to be glad to see a fellow. Oh, hello, Cobb!" to the little man who was grinning at her from the porch.

"I'm silly," Irma choked. "But you don't know how good it seems to see you alive and well! Let me and Cobb help you in."

"Oh, I can manage, if I take my time. I've got a game leg the same as yours, Cobb. How are you?"

"Fine."

"Such a time as we had around here," Irma babbled on when her guest was seated. I had my hands full with my two men. And that poor Mr. Gern! We thought he'd have a sick spell or go crazy or something. He didn't eat or sleep for days, seemed like. Can I get you anything, darling?"

"Of course not. I've wondered so about you, too. I wanted to get out before this."

"Indeed and it's a pity you couldn't have before Mr. Gern left. I think he'd have been easier in his mind if he had seen you out and around like this. We're lost without him. He sure is one nice boy."

Glada ignored the eulogy and addressed herself to Cobb.

"I've been curious to know about things here—about who was looking after the place and everything. I suppose it was all right for me to come and see. I still feel as if I belonged here."

"Sure. Everything's fine, Miss Glada. Say, please excuse me just a minute. I'll be right back. Irma'll talk to you while I'm gone." And he hurried out without another word.

"Oh, yes. We're still sticking around the old place," Irma furnished uneasily. "Doing the best we can to look after things and.." She broke off uncertainly, reading the wonderment in Glada's face. Before the latter could break the sudden silence, she was conscious of a clicking sound coming from somewhere. She listened.

"Irma," came her abrupt query," who is using the typewriter?"

"Why....why, it's that Mr. Adams, Miss Glada. He came out this morning. It's only the second time he's been here."

"I think I'd like to see him," Glada decided, rising from her chair. "You don't need to help me. I'll be back in a minute or two."

Glada had a chance to view Mr. Adams before he saw her. His head was more bristly than ever, his nose even redder, and perched on the tip of the latter was a pair of spectacles with heavy black rims. His coat was off, hanging on the back of his chair.

"How do you do, Mr. Adams?" she called quietly from the doorway. He turned with a jerk, got to his feet and reached hastily for his coat.

"Bless my soul! If it isn't Miss Lee! My dear lady, I am more than delighted to see you getting about again. My congratulations!"

"Thank you. And please don't bother to put on your coat. I am staying only a minute."

"But of course I will! Here. Let me give you a chair." He seated her with a courtly air. "I suppose this place looks quite familiar to you."

"Yes." Seeing her former office was more of an ordeal than she anticipated. It all came back. That last day here. Gern seated there at the desk. John Quincy's rasping voice recalled her.

"I am fraid, Miss Lee, you are thinking....you must be thinking ....that I have treated this whole proposition rather cavalierly, I might say. All unintentional on my part, I assure you. It has seemed impossible to find any one to do the work here since....since your young Mr. Jones left."

"You couldn't induce him to stay?"

"No. That is....he looked after things well enough, but....I think I told you he wouldn't be very dependable. As a matter of fact, Miss Lee, we have about decided..quite decided, in fact....to close out the business here. For the present, I have arranged with Mr. Peters to stay on at a salary. Whatever he can make off the place is his. I intended to see you before I left town. We..that is, I wondered if you would care to take over the property management again on some satisfactory basis! It could be arranged very easily. You might find it interesting while you are recuperating."

"I hardly think so." Glada looked faintly amused. Then she decided on a bold stroke. Mr. Adam's uncertainty with his "I's" and "we's" was all that was needed to confirm growing suspicions that were very near certainties. "Don't you think," she asked quietly, "that the time has come to quit beating around the bush? You needn't keep on posing as the buyer any longer, so far as I am concerned. You see. I know a great deal more about your little plot than you give me credit for. In fact, it isn't necessary to carry it any farther."

"I confess I am mighty glad to hear you say so, Miss Lee!" John Quincy deposited his spectacles on the desk with a force that threatened to break them. "Of course it was my duty to carry out the business end as a trusted agent. I believe I did. But it was not in the agreement that I should be left holding the bag. Except for the financing, the young puppy seems to have washed his hands of the whole affair! Adams added with explosive indignation.

"I thought so." Glada nodded wisely, but she fairly was holding her breath. It was working much better than she had anticipated. "It must have been quite an imposition," she ventured sympathetically.

"Oh, not that exactly, although I am a busy man. You see, we all have pampered Scud since his unspeakable ordeal over on the other side and...."

"Scud?" The question slipped out unheedingly.

"Why, yes....Oh, I understand. I believe he called himself Gern while he was here. I was about to say that I would have done anything I could for Scud. And in this case particularly, because I was aware that the judge and your good father were close friends."

This information was coming almost too rapidly, but Glada managed to retain her composure as she inquired. "May I ask if you are a relative of....of Scud?"

"Dear, no. I am an attorney, though not in active practice. I think I may say that I am entirely in the confidence of the judge and of Mr. Scudder Jones. I perform many commissions for them. I have for years."

"And I imagine you handle them very capably," Glada told him sweetly. "But I must be starting home."

"And you wouldn't be interested in taking the place back, Miss Lee? I may be violating a confidence, but I am positive that Scud has been hoping you would."

"I am not interested."

"I see. I am sorry. Miss Lee....I have no intention of asking the source of your information about this little matter. But would it be asking too much if I....I think you understand."

"Perfectly, Mr. Adams. I will not mention our conversation to any one."

"I appreciate that." Adams rose with a courtly bow. "May I see you to your car?"

"Please don't bother, I want to talk to Mrs. Peters a moment before I go. It's nice to have seen you again."

That conversation with Mr. and Mrs. Peters was brief and casual. No embarrassing questions were asked and Glada started for home, laughingly dismissing Irma's solicitous fear that she was "running a temperature." She would come again soon.

"Wait here a minute, Bill," she directed when the car reached the Lee house. "I think my father is going to want you." In another moment, she was at the telephone.

"Why, I'm pretty busy, dear," came Ed's surprised voice.

"Please! I'm alone and I need you....badly."

Quick alarm in the father's voice now.

"Glada! You're not ill, are you? Do you feel worse?"

"Lots. Bill is starting down to get you."

She hung up before he could reply.

INSTALMENT 29

Ed Lee, bareheaded and breathless, dashed into the living-room and glanced about uncertainly. Bill had not been able to give him any satisfaction. He had driven Miss Glada out to the farm and back. She had seemed to be all right.

"In the library," came the convalescent's voice.

Glada was seated in her father's favorite chair, her hands folded in her lap. She did not smile as Ed entered hastily and he fancied that her face was flushed. There was a brightness in her eyes that alarmed him.

"What is it, dear? What is wrong with you? Do you want me to try to get the doctor for you?"

"You're the only one I want to see," she said gravely. "Sit down. I want to talk to you....Counsellor."

"Hah!" Ed dropped into a chair. There was more to this than met the eye. Something to do with that trip to the farm. "Well?" he offered cautiously.

"Why did you tell me that you didn't know Gern Jones?"

"Eh?" Ed had not expected an attack from that quarter and it's directness left him floundering for an instant.

"Yes. I asked you when I hired him. You said you never had heard of that name."

"And I hadn't. His father introduced him as Scud. I'm assuming you have found out who he is."

"I suppose that is what they call a legal technicality, but it's a pretty flimsy one. Was it your idea that he should pose as a down-and outer?"

"'Pon honor, it wasn't. He wanted to try it. If I had known how things were going to turn out.."

"Your conscience ought to hurt you. I know the background of all this mess, but you might oblige me with some of the details. Maybe I can give you one that you don't know. Gern bought the farm. How's that?"

"News to me. I won't say I didn't have my suspicions when your obliging buyer turned out to be an inhabitant of Columbia City. But I was burdended with too much inside information already. Say! Did you see Gern today?"

"Certainly not."

"Then you picked it up from Peters. I didn't know he was in on it."

"You might unburden yourself," Glada suggested, without confirming that last guess.

Trenton, Dec. 30—(Special) — Coach Ross Burtt sported a broad smile of satisfaction as Trenton's band of Junior O. H. A. prospects skated off the ice at the end of the practice period last night. Again the veteran handler remained mum but he promises to talk before the opening game next Friday. It as easy to see, that the forward line of Watson, Inglis and Reid was the best threesome thrown over the boards, while a new addition, Russ Weller seemed to be at home between Blake and Campbell......Inglis continued to burn up the ice with his tricky stickhandling displays and his right hand man, Charlie Watson ably assisted the smart little centre star, whenever the pair were in on the net. Young Hubbell was absent but he is expected to be on hand for Tuesday night's workout session......Bobbie Orser appears to be in line for a regular defence position and it's a toss-up between Vic Burtt and McColl for the other rear-guard berth......Acker and Anderson opposed each other in the nets and both gave a good exhibition of puck stopping......The goat of the practice was "Red" Frauts, who banged the biscuit passed Acker, when endeavouring to clear to the side of the pipes......

Keeping Your Hips in Line

By HELEN FOLLETT

TWO TROUBLES are hanging around waiting to catch Missus Hippy. Because of her width amidships she may develop a sway back and there is a possibility that, as the birthdays come galloping along, she will waddle. Excess breadth and excess weight mean less grace and agility. So get after the fat cells, if you happen to have them.

To reduce the size of the hips, lie flat on the back on the floor. Lift the right leg, roll to the left, stretch the leg its fullest length, touch the floor with the toes. The muscle exertion together with the pressure on the floor will crush adipose tissue. Ten times with the right leg, ten times with the left and repeat.

Place the toes under a heavy piece of furniture, lift the upper portion of the body to a sitting position without placing the hands on the floor. That's a tough one; the woman who is not accustomed to exercise will not attain the sitting position at first without help of the hands. As muscles grow strong she'll do better. Any exercise that causes exertion of the interlacing fibres between the waist and the thighs will slimmer down the hips.

Just as a bath is refreshing to the cutaneous covering of the body, so is water refreshing to the inner works. A large proportion of the body weight is water; we need plenty of it to keep the motors going. It reacts favorably upon the complexion, too, helping the skin to function normally.

Six glasses of water taken at regular intervals each day will prove a help to the girl who is marching along the road to good looks, especially if she is a victim of blackheads and horrid red pustules. If one drinks much tea and coffee, the water allowance can be lessened.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Write Your Christmas Thank-You Notes At Once

Let's get our thank-you notes for Christmas presents written promptly—this week, if humanly possible, so that we can greet the New Year with clear consciences.

Don't procrastinate. Don't make the excuse that you are too tired, too busy, that you "hate to write letters anyway".

Most of us are so prone to put off writing these thank-you notes that it would be wise perhaps to analyze ourselves and find out what may be holding us back. If it's that ol' debbil Procrastination, you'll have to wrestle with that yourself—perhaps a stern pre-New Year resolution would help.

If it's not being quite sure about the etiquette of thank-you notes, don't let even this hold you back. It's more important to get the notes written, and written promptly. So relax, be yourself, and write the notes as if you were chatting with the person about the gift, not writing about it. That's the best of rules for all kinds of letters.

If, as often happens, you put off writing these notes because you haven't the adequate materials to write them—the right letter-paper, a good pen, the right ink—step right out and supply yourself with these necessities.

If you're the kind of person that needs a grim warning, you may be able to spur yourself on now by contemplating the lame excuses that you'll have to write if you write your Christmas thank-you notes next April. Two sentences of thanks written now are far more welcome to your friend than four pages of excuses written months from now!

Think of note-writing as fun. You'll agree that it's fun to have a chat with your friends . . .think of your notes of thanks as if you were talking directly to the person. If you think of these notes in this way, you'll write them naturally, you'll say what you want to say. Make them warm with the touch of your personality.

Open House

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I am thinking seriously of having "Open House" on New Year's Day. Since we have recently moved into a new home, we would like to have our friends drop in to see it.

Please give me some suggestions as to what we should do.

K.

I'd emphasize the housewarming-motif, if I were you, and include that heart-warming word in your invitations.

You may plan for dancing, if there is room, or you may have a few tables for those whose idea of a party is a bridge party. Or you may arrange for some special music or hope for impromptu music by your friends.

Really, you need make no special plans for entertainment, for guests enjoy having the opportunity, at this kind of party, to chat "about old days and new" and this-and-that, and they will entertain themselves. Also, if you wish to stress the housewarming-idea, you will have your house in such perfect order that the guests can be shown the house from stem to stern.

You will probably want to give your party at the usual hours for this kind of party—four-to-seven, or five-to-seven. And you can serve the usual tea-menu—slim sandwiches of various kinds, small tea-cakes, or, especially appropriate for a New Year's Day party, slices of fruit cake.

Courtesy Tip

Never sign a letter "Hastily yours", or "Yours in haste". It isn't flattering to the recipient that your letter was scratched off in a hurry.

YOUR BODY
By McKEOWN'S Drug Store

People who make financial investments seldom do so without a consultation with a banker or financial counsellor. Likewise, they employ an attorney before making a legal move.

Unfortunately many do not use the same foresight when their bodies show signs of need of medical care. With incomplete understanding of the cause they attempt, usually through home fantastic treatment, to restore health.

Mastery of detailed ramifications of bodily ailments cannot be attained except through the long training period a doctor of medicine passes to enable him to help you to retain or regain your health.

For your present and future welfare be persistent in checking with your doctor at frequent intervals. Also check with him as to the pharmacist adequately equipped by experience and with drugs to compound prescriptions exactly as they should be.

63rd Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Eggleton, Stirling, Celebrated Monday

Stirling (Special)— Celebration with two-fold purpose was thoroughly enjoyed at the Mill St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleton, as relatives and friends joined with them in marking their sixty-third wedding anniversary.

Parents of ten children, five sons and five daughters, the happy couple still enjoying exceptionally good health were married on New Year's Day in 1878 by Rev. F. W. Fenn, circuit pastor of the Methodist Church of that day. Mr. Eggleton's father was one of the county's first settlers and descendants of this pioneer family gather annually for one of the district's largest family re-unions. Mrs. Eggleton is also of pioneer stock, before marriage she was Miss Violet Carr, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Carr.

Quite Active Man

After a brief wedding trip they resided for several years on their farm in Sidney Township. Later Mr. Eggleton turned to the carpenter trade. Many of the larger barns of the district are the products of his labours. Until only four years ago he worked at his trade, and tho' now past his eightieth year, he is still remarkably active.

Prominent Churchman

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, January 2

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

WHILE this may be a particularly lively and eventful day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects, there are signs that may be read as quite dubious and unpropitious. Surprising angles may develop which may signify fluctuating fortunes and adverse experiences. It will be difficult to predict where to place trust under certain treacherous circumstances, so in all be discreet and vigilant. Social, domestic and emotional matters may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of uncertain and fluctuating fortunes, with unpredictable events or adventures having doubtful bearing on the favorable trend of affairs. There are signs of intrigue and duplicity, so it might be wise to take all proffers of friendship with a "grain of salt." Circumspect and prudent conduct is admonished in affairs generally, although in social, domestic and sentimental relations there are signs of gratification and happiness.

A child born on this day may be many-sided, studious and resourceful, also impulsive, extravagant and crafty. It may be fond of society.

For Wednesday, January 3

JUDGING by the influence of the dominant planets, this may be a day of great agitation, turmoil and drastic action, probably directed toward the breaking up of old stagnations or the removal of tenacious obstacles. Much strenuous energy may be brought to bear on frustrating circumstances, in which intrigue of treachery may have a strong part.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a rather strenuous and confusing year, with much aggressive action brought to bear on static and difficult situations. It will be necessary to probe deep in order to get at the root of frustrating circumstances, fraught with duplicity and intrigue. Tact, even stratagem or compromise, accompanied by quick action and a grasp of tricky situations, may lead to a modicum of success in removing impediments and clearing the way for future constructive programs.

A child born on this day, although impetuous and high strung, with much desire for strenuous action, at the same time may be deep, critical, melancholy and easily discouraged.

Fashion Flashes

Quite the thing with evening dress this season is the long glove. A good model is in black suede with bands of silver and gilt kidskin in zig-zag design at the top.

Bands play an important role on some of the new dresses. A lovely evening gown of black moire, made with slim bodice and voluminous skirt, is banded in stripes of satin in orchidy pink and cerise pink. The bands are tied in bows on the bodice and the waist.

Going south are some handsome furs. One woman has a bolero of South American broadtail —a very light, supple fur—dyed in sapphire blue.

Dress up a fur-trimmed evening wrap with a little muff to match. The shops are showing tiny muffs in ermine, silver fox or mink tails.

Mild days bring out the cloth coat brigade in full force. A lovely model is in copper-colored heavy woollen with collar of nutria and nutria forming a deep band on the rippled skirt.

It looks like aquamarine as a major color for spring. Shops are showing dresses in aquamarine blue woollen for both home and southern wear and many of the new prints have that color as a background or a contributing color.

Surprise Party For George Britton On 81st Birthday

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. Geo. Brittion, College Street, when a number of his friends gathered for a surprise party, the occasion being his 81st birthday. The evening was spent in playing games and the singing of "Happy Birthday to You," after which dainty refreshments were served. The party left for home after singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and wishing Mr. Brittion many happy returns of the day.

AT THE CAPITOL

Friendly Enemies

After working in a long scene in Universal's "Charlie McCarthy, Detective," now at the Capitol theatre, Bergen was requested by Cameraman George Robison to stand before the cameras again for a light test.

"Make it snappy, will you George?" Bergen asked, "I'm tired of carrying Charlie."

"You're tired," Charlie yelped. "Listen to the man. I've been carrying you for seventeen years!"

The other members of the cast, which includes Robert Cummings, Constance Moore, Louis Calhern, John Sutton, Samuel S. Hinds, Warren Hymer, Ray Turner and Edgar Kennedy, burst into laughter as they heard Bergen himself impaled by one of the splintery shafts of McCarthy wit.

On the same program a fine group of short subjects including the latest war news.

AT THE BELLE

"SWANEE RIVER"

The beloved and famous melodies that are America's only real folk music, and the thrilling story of the man who wrote them, are now on the Belle screen in a magnificent Technicolor motion picture, 20th Century-Fox's "Swanee River" the story of Stephen C. Foster, the great American troubadour.

One leaves the theatre with ears ringing with the melodies that seem to express the very heart of America — "The Old Folks At Home" (Swanee River), "Old Black Joe", "My Old Kentucky Home", "De Camptown Races", "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair", "Ring, Ring de Banjo", and "Oh! Susanna!"

One leaves, too, with a sensation of having been thoroughly stirred and thrilled by the romantic drama of Foster's story-like life. From his early struggles, the introduction of his songs by Christy's Minstrels, his meeting and romance with Jane McDowell ("Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair") and his success, to his disillusionment and disappointment, his gradual disintegration and death in a shabby Bowery rooming house, the life of Stephen Foster is made for the screen, with every element that moviegoers have demanded in their entertainment.

Don Ameche plays Foster just as he was—sweet and tender, headstrong, inspired and emotionally unstable. As Jane, Andrea Leeds is a proper inspiration for some of our greatest music. Al Jolson puts over the role of Christy, the blackface minstrel man, with a humor and vigor unparalleled in his long career.

Filmed in Technicolor, "Swanee River", recalls those of colorful, romantic days of minstrels and river boats; the nostalgic touches are an added attraction to this picture that has everything else.

Featured in the supporting cast are Felix Bressart, Chick Chandler, Russell Hicks, George Reed and Hall Johnson Choir, whose renderings of the Foster songs are memorable indeed.

Sidney Lanfield directed with a sureness of touch and feeling for the story that makes it a genuine delight. Darryl F. Zanuck was in charge of production. John Taintor Foote and Philip Dunne wrote the screen play, for which few liberties on the facts of Foster's life had to be taken, so dramatic were the essential details.

Graf Spee Scenes

A special feature of the Belle News of the Day is the first Chapter of Graf Spee drama showing the cruiser coming in the port after battle; funeral barge, funeral of the German dead, and camera study of Captain Langsdorf, and subsequent suicide of the destroyer. A funny cartoon in color and an all new Fashion Forecast with the most beautiful girls in the world enhanced with technicolor will be exhibited on the same program. Performances start daily at 2.30; 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

Given up for Lost, Seamen Located In Internment Camp

London, Jan. 2 (CP) —For more than a month, Mrs. Edgar Oliver believed her seaman-husband dead, a victim of the war. So she was dressed in mourning when her little daughter came running and shouted, "here's a letter from daddy."

Oliver, one of, the crew of the British auxiliary cruiser Rawalpindi, sunk by the German pocket battleship Deutschland in a battle off the coast of Iceland November 23, had been given up for lost.

But today, his wife and daughter learned from his letter he had been saved and interned in a German prison camp, from which he wrote.

Finns' Stoicism Shown in Newspaper

New York, Jan. 2 (AP)— The stoicism of the Finns is revealed in the pages of Helsingfors' daily newspaper Hufvudstadsbladet, copies of which have arrived in New York.

For days after the Soviet bombers attacked Helsingfors on Nov. 30, the paper carried column after column of messages of bereavement—printed crosses, row on row. One speaks of the "accident" which befell a 15-year-old boy, and the reader might conclude it was an ordinary accident unless he read on another page the list of identified dead after a bombing raid.

None of the announcements of death contains any condemnation of the bombers, and few, in fact, mention the cause of death.

THE FINNS WELCOME A "COMRADE"

Hands aloft, in token of surrender, a Red army officer is shown being guarded by Finnish soldiers after his capture on the Karelian front. The Russian steamroller has been held to a standstill at this [illegible] of the Finnish-Russo war. The Finns are said to have taken a great many prisoners, most of them ill-clad, ill-fed and ignorant of what the war is all about.

ALL IS BRIGHT

By Eleanor Browne

Star smiled with satisfaction. At least she had made him admit that much. Gloria watched her shy little roommate with growing interest. So—Star remembered Kent, but Kent had forgotten Star! Well, there was no point in worrying about a romance as completely dead as that, she decided, turning with more interest to Coates.

"Uncle Ezra and I often thought of taking this trip together," Star went on, finding her story harder to tell than she had imagined it would be. "But," she sighed, "he wasn't well the last few years."

"Ezra? What a funny old-fashioned name," Gloria commented.

"I don't think so," Kent Barrett objected. 'As a matter of fact, it's been a familiar name in our family for many years."

"That's odd." Star's heart beat faster as she approached the climax of her story, "because Uncle Ezra's name was the same as yours—Barrett."

Kent's control was perfect. "Do you suppose we're related?"

"We couldn't be related in any case," she pointed out. "I wasn't really a niece, you know."

"I'm glad," Kent said simply and hurried on, "is your uncle with you?"

"He died just a month ago—calling for his son." Star's blue eyes burned into his and he did look confused.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," he stammered. "You must find it lonely without your uncle."

"He was a dear, sweet person," Star said warmly. If Kent intended to act as if he did not know what she meant, she would make him listen. "But he did have an old trait. He wanted to be thought poor and dependent. It wasn't until after his death that even I knew he was really tremendously wealthy."

She flushed a little as she told the falsehood, but her sense of guilt was immediately overcome by a feeling of triumph as she saw Kent Barrett's face. He looked as if he could scarcely beliece his ears, as if she had shocked him by mentioning money. Star hoped he was feeling sorry now that he had stayed away from home so long. Her remark might not have been in the best taste, but she had at least told John Kenneth Barrett what she wanted him to believe—that Ezra Barrett's son had lost a fortune by ignoring his father.

"Are you going to travel a bit now?" Jack Coates was leaning forward with sudden interest. "You must be tired of living quietly."

"I am," Star agreed. "I want to live gayly—happily—adventurously."

"That's right." Coates, as he spoke, had a vision of the private capital his museum needed falling into his lap in a most agreeable way. A lovely girl who had just inherited a fortune—he at his most attentive best..tropic nights when even the most conservative must fool the thrill of romance.... It was a perfect setup. Surely he need look no further for financial assistance.

"If you'll get your wrap," he suggested, "we can go out on deck for a while."

Gloria was amused at Coates' sudden interest in Star. Moreover, she felt rather pleased that her roommate had made such an impression; she needed to concentrate on Kent. She rose when Star and Coates had left and slipped her arm lightly but definitely through Kent's. She could have laughed aloud at his outraged expression as they walked toward the door.

"Pardon me, Doctor Barrott?"

Barton Underwood was standing at the head of the stairs as they came up. He nodded briefly to Gloria.

"This is Mr. Underwood, Kent," she introduced them. "He has a darling little boy, Stuart. You've probably seen him around."

Kent had not only seen him but had heard of him from the room steward. He raised an eyebrow at Gloria who had never before to his knowledge shown an interest in children.

"It's about Stuart," Barton explained. "He seemed upset when the stewardess put him to bed and he's feverish now. I imagine it's nothing more than the strange food—perhaps a touch of seasickness. But I'd like you to look him over, if you will."

He led the way and the little group proceeded to what was known as the "bridal chamber." It cost twice as much as the other staterooms, but Kent thought Underwood didn't care about that, even if he knew it. The name of Barton Underwood was synonymous with wealth and power. Kent went in first and Underwood stood aside to let Gloria pass.

brush his father had left on the bedside table. Kent pushed Gloria aside and took the weapon away.

"Catty-face! Catty-face!" Stuart screamed in a range.

"The child's delirious," Gloria said angrily.

"Stop that, son," Barton commanded. For answer Stuart kicked off all the bed-clothes and squirmed like an eel in the young doctor's grasp.

Stuart turned a deep red and opened his mouth for another scream. Kent turned to Gloria and nodded toward the door. When she had gone Stuart relaxed. With a child's instinctive knowledge he realized that the man who held him so gently and firmly was not so easily influenced as his father—now mopping his brow in one corner of the room.

"I—I hope it isn't serious," Underwood said apprehensively.

Kent laughed. "Nothing a good sleep won't cure," he said. "But I think Stuart has something on his mind. Now, young fellow, what's the trouble?"

Stuart settled himself comfortably. "Wanna story," he explained.

Barton, rumaging through the bureau drawer for pajamas, said apologetically, I think I know what he wants. Miss Snodringham."

A timid knock interrupted him. Star herself opened the door.

"Gloria said Stuart was ill," she said anxiously. "Is there anything I can do?" She had thrown a purple velvet cape over her shoulders and her eyes seemed almost the same color.

"Story? the boy asked eagerly.

Star nodded. "But while I'm telling it," she said firmly, "you must let Doctor Barrett put a little glass tube in your mouth. And if he wants to do anything else like putting out your tongue or staying quiet you must do exactly as he says. Is it a bargain?"

Stuart nodded indifferently, his eyes on Star's face as she settled herself in one of the chairs. Kent envied his opportunity to gaze at her with open adoration—and he envied her tender thoughtfulness, so different in its effect from the distrust he seemed to inspire. Barton, looking vastly relieved, found the small pajamas at last and tiptoed from the room.

CHAPTER VIII

Changing Stuart's pajamas, and reassured that his first diagnosis was correct, Kent found himself listening with the boy to Star's story that peopled the cabin with the glorious figures of fancy.

Kent fastened the last pajama button and then slipped his arm around the child, pillowing his head comfortably on one shoulder. Stuart's lids drooped. Star's voice became softer and deeper until finally, as she brought the story to a peaceful ending, it was only a whisper.

There was no protest from her audience, however. Stuart was sound asleep.

For a few minutes they sat on without moving. Star watching this man she thought so despicable. He was holding the child gently, as if he felt the same pity for him that she knew. Carefully he slipped off the bed and straightened Stuart so that he would sleep comfortably.

Kent, glancing up, caught Star's eye. "He's asleep, but—" he hesitated—"why don't you kiss him good night anyway? I think he'd sleep better for it."

She passed him lightly, like a fragrant breeze, and bent above the sleeping boy. Her lips brushed the child's cheek. Stuart did not waken, but he stirred and smiled.

As she stood with Kent in the passageway outside Star was smiling too but a little tremulously.

"He's so little and he's fighting so hard to be grown-up. I don't believe he's ever really been petted or loved, and children need that far more than a lot of modern nonsense."

Kent nodded. He could not trust himself to speak. He was still trying to calm the disturbing emotions that had overpowered him back there in the cabin. He could have sworn, even though he saw her bending over Stuart, that her warm lips had rested against his own cheek. The impulse to take her in his arms and hold her tightly was so strong that he had been bereft of all reason and logic.

Even now he did not know what to do. The girl did not even like him, Kent told himself grimly. The tenderness that made her lovelier than ever was for Stuart. Soon her sweetness and gentleness would be hidden under the mysterious probing manner she seemed to reserve especially for him.

There was no reason why she should like him, Kent thought humbly as they made their way forward toward the saloon. He had nothing to offer a gorgeous creature of wealth and charm and beauty. Yet there was no reasoning away this fever that had taken possession of him, because it did not seem founded on what she was or what she had or how she looked. It was as if her very presence generated a current he could not understand and whose power he was only beginning to realize.

"Don't go in there," he exclaimed impulsively. Through the door they could see the bridge tables and hear the laughing comments of the players. "Come outside instead."

For a brief moment he thought she would consent. But then, as he had expected, her manner changed. She shook her head.

"Mr. Coates is waiting for me."

"Oh, I'm sorry. I didn't mean to keep you apart." He had blurted it out before he thought.

She had every reason to resent his tone. But she said only, with a faint surprise, "Thank you, sir. With your permission then," and left him alone.

"Do they have to make a life belt so revoltingly ugly?" demanded Gloria. "For that matter, do they have to have a lifeboat drill? If the ship goes down I'd rather swim than appear in one of those."

Star laughed in spite of herself. Her roommate did look atrocious in the bulky thing and she had made it no better by tying the tapos the wrong way.

"They don't even have sizes in the darned things," Gloria continued to wail. "They give me the same size life belt as yours, and you're a good twin chestaller."

"Everyone looks just as bad," soothed Star. "And after all we only wear them a few minutes while they have the boat drill."

"The picture of what I look like in this will linger on—probably for a lifetime," Gloria said grimly.

To Star, it seemed a pity that Gloria should waste so much time worrying about how she looked. There was so much to see and do! It didn't really matter whether or not one looked perfectly turned out. She herself thrilled each time she put on one of the new outfits she had brought, but once on deck she never thought again of her appearance.

"What makes Miss Cattrell so unhappy, do you think?" she asked, to change the subject.

"Oh, I have heard all about that woman." Gloria's eyes sparkled with enjoyment of this tidbit of gossip. "Do you remember that terrible plane accident about a week before we left?"

Star remembered it vividly. It seemed like another life—that cold wintry day she had hurried back to the lonely little house and eaten some bread and cheese for supper. She had opened her newspaper to the photograph of a frightful monster of twisted steel that had crashed on some lonely countryside.

"I had the oddest feeling about that," she said now to Gloria. "It was horrible I know, yet it was rather beautiful in a way, too. To die—flying!"

"You can have it," Gloria said crisply. "It wasn't very beautiful for Elise Cattrell. The man she was going to marry was on that plane. He had just got a divorce and was flying to meet her."

"No wonder she wants to be alone."

"That's silly. No man is worth it," Gloria answered briskly; then hastily amended, "unless you're terribly in love with him, of course."

"As you are with Doctor Barrett?"

"As I am with Kent," Gloria raid softly. "There goes the whistle. We'd better get this over."

On deck passengers and sailors were lined up against the railing, some taking photographs, some laughing at their ridiculous attire; others waiting for the whole routine to be over.

When they had located their own lifeboat it was to find the large fussy Mrs. Jenkins and her small timid husband with a young couple Gloria had noticed only that morning, sitting passively in deck chairs. Star had commented on their apparent indifference to everyone else. The man had already adopted the casual sports attire he evidently considered proper for a cruise, his prominent Adam's apple was now exposed above a wine-colored sweater. The girl dressed with meticulous care in frocks that looked as if she had just removed the price tags. Both had a world-weary air that was at variance with their youth.

Gloria nipped Star's arm and drew her over to the railing. "I forgot to tell you," she whispered hurriedly. "That's the honeymoon couple who're supposed to sit at our table, only they've never been there. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone, I think the name is. She's been seasick all the way so far."

Mrs. Livingstone did indeed look like anything but a happy bride. She stood limply against the railing, her husband beside her, and gazed at the deck with a fixed stare. But nothing was proof against Mrs. Jenkins' insistent friendliness.

"I know just how you feel," she was assuring the bride now, "it's the same thing I get when I eat oysters. They don't seem to sit right, somehow—"

The bride turned a shade paler, and Star came forward quickly.

"I guess we're all in the same boat," she smiled at Mrs. Jenkins. "Who is the officer with us?"

Mrs. Jenkins bridled and looked at Star with an arch smile. Star returned her look with astonishment. She could not see what had been in the simple question to make Mrs. Jenkins act in such an extraordinary fashion. But the lady from Ohio had evidently found her query a source of amusement.

"Isn't she the one?" she said to Mr. Jenkins who smiled thinly in response. "As if she didn't know! The minute I set foot on this boat I said to Mr. Jenkins—didn't I, Willy?— those two were meant for each other. Those are exactly the words I used. Anybody with eyes in her head...."

"What in the world are you talking about?" demanded Gloria.

Mrs. Jenkins favored her with a disapproving stare. She drew herself up like a drum major.

"Miss Sandringham asked me what officer was to be in this boat," she retorted. "I was just having a little fun with her because she's pretending not to know. Of course it's your young man," she added to Star.

"My young man?" Star echoed blankly.

Gloria, quicker than her roommate, looked murderously at the buxon matron before her. "Do you by any chance mean that Doctor Barrett will be with us?" she asked.

"Yes, Doctor Barrett. Isn't that nice? It's so safe to have a doctor along if we do get shipwrecked, don't you...." Mrs. Jenkins had started off gushingly, but she ran down as she caught sight of Star's horrified expression and Gloria's obvious anger.

Blushing painfully Star tried to make the situation clear. "Doctor Barrett is engaged to Gloria. I am sure you must have made a mistake."

CHAPTER IX

Star glanced up to see Kent approaching. Her heart began to throb in that disconcerting way it had suddenly developed. It's the uniform, she told herself, gazing into the suds of water that ran in ribbons alongside the boat. It makes him look so clean and reliable and fine. And he isn't— he isn't!

Kent's voice broke in on her reverie. "Gloria, I wonder if you'd mind transferring to boat number six—it's just on the other side of the deck. I asked Mr. and Mrs. Livingston to come in this boat because I want to look after her. I know you won't care." Star turned, about to say that she would gladly make the change, but Gloria was already moving away.

"Of course, dear," she murmured graciously, although Star didn't think she sounded too pleased. "In this outfit I'd rather not see anyone I know."

"Oh, you won't be alone," Kent said quietly. "A friend of yours, Mr. Coates, is in that boat." Gloria seemed about to say she wouldn't go, but then thought better of it and hurried on.

"NERVES" SHE CALLED IT

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought—but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger.

She took Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, backache, lack of energy, disappeared. 117

We were eating supper and I said, I wonder if that dog is still there?

Still where, what dog? ma said, and pop said, O a little mutt followed us home and we came in the back way as a very pointed hint that we didn't consider him good enough for the nayborhood, and I suppose he's gone by now.

Well I sincerely hope so, the idea of encourraging an unknown dog to follow you home, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods that's a good one, we did everything to get rid of him except dropping him in a package box, wich would of been contrary to postal regulations.

Anyways, ma, he's not just a ordnerry dog, I said. He's exter smart, do you know what he did? He winked at pop when pop pretended to throw something for him to chase so we could get rid of him, didn't he, pop? I said, and pop said, Well, he appeared to, but I still think he had a little something wrong with one eye.

I'm going to look and see if he's still there, ma said. I think I'll enjoy my dinner more if I know there's no little dog sitting outside the back gate, she said, and pop said, Well for Peet sake be careful not to let him slip in, and I said, Just open the gate wide enough for a look and not wide enough for a dog.

Wich ma went out and did, and she came back saying, He's there, and he saw me and he really winked. That's more than I can resist, I'm going to slip a little food out to him. Maybe that's all he's waiting for and then maybe he'll go away, she said.

I think you're confusing dogs with tramps, pop said. Yee gods I hope tramps dont start winking at you, he said, and ma said, just a little meat and maybe a few vegetables.

Storekeeper Attacked, Will Probably Die

Pembroke, N. S., Jan. 2—(CP) — Doctors attending Eldon S. Millett, 65-year-old storekeeper who was attacked and robbed last Thursday, said last night they did not expect him to live more than 24 hours.

Slugged over the head in his store, the elderly merchant suffered four skull fractures. He has been unconscious four days.

Police have been unable to question Millett. No arrest has been made.

REDMEN LOSE TO QUEEN'S 10-2

Students Will Now Meet Fliers for Championship of Van Hirne Series

Unable to cope with the flying speed of the students in the final period after two sessions in which it was anybody's game, Eddie Thomas' local Redmen bowed out of the Van Horne series picture in Kingston last night to the starry Queen's University sextette. The score was 10-2.

The students by virtue of their win in the sudden death fixture to decide the finalists for the series will meet the Royal Canadian Air Force "Fliers" in a best two-out-of-three series for the Van Horne trophy. Should the airmen win, the trophy will become their permanent possession, they having annexed the mug on two previous occasions.

The scarlet clad Thomas men held the highly touted students to a two-all score in the first period, dropped a couple of markers in the second stanza and wilted before the consistent attacks of the Queensmen in the final chukker. The studes fired six goals in the Belleville twine in the sad last period that blasted forever a Belleville hope of reaching the finals.

The Thomas men officially pry the lid off the local hockey season here on Thursday night when they meet the fast-travelling "Toots" Holway-coached Fliers.

INTERNED TACOMA CLOSELY WATCHED

yesterdaw to internment of his ship yesterday to mterment of his ship at expiration of a Uruguayan ultimatum which had confronted the Tacoma with a choice of taking to sea in the face of British warships or becoming a prisoner for duration of the war.

The port tugboat La Valleja with 20 naval seamen aboard laid alongside the Tacoma through the night and a naval officer kept watch aboard to see that the Tacoma's engines remained silent. With him on the ship were the Captain and crew of 60.

The Tacoma was interned yesterday morning on the grounds that she acted as an auxiliary for the scuttled German pocket battleship Graf Spee during an "act of war."

Schriner-Kelly-Chamberlain Line Picks up 10 Scoring Points As Leafs Win 2 Over Holiday

Defeat Hawks 4-2 and Wings 3-2 Over the Weekend

RANGERS UNDEFEATED

Record Crowd Sees Patrick's Team Run String of Undefeated Games to Fourteen

By ROBERT CLARKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

This is the time of year when it is customary to extend the season's greetings but, be this as it may, it would take a fearless fellow to walk up to Pete Lepine or Jack Adams, stretch out the good right hand, and say......"Happy New Year."

It happens that Mr. Lepine is coach of Montreal's Canadiens while Mr. Adams is manager of Detroit Red Wings. To put it mildly, neither team head found Christmas merry or the New Year happy. Both undoubtedly would like to roll out a barrel...... or headache powders.

In the last 10 National Hockey League games Canadiens can show only one victory against nine losses. The Wings, pushed now into the league cellar, have a victory and two draws on the credit side in their last 13 games. Pacesetters in the early part of the season Canadiens are holding fifth place by only a point margin over New York Americans.

Continue Downward Trend

Both the Wings and Canadiens continued their downward tread during the long New Year's weekend. The Habitants dropped a 1-0 decision last night to Americans after absorbing a 6-1 drubbing from Boston Bruins Sunday night. The Wings, beaten 3-2 by Toronto Maple Leafs on New Year's Eve, lost 1-0 last night to Chicago Black Hawks.

Leafs had the best weekend, trimming the Hawks at Toronto 4-2 Saturday night to emerge with four points and a first-place tie in the standing with the Bruins. At the same time New York Rangers ran their unbeaten string of games to 14 Sunday night with a 5-2 victory over Americans that left them only two points behind the Leafs and Bruins.

The Hawks used their victory over the Wings, which was scored on a second period goal by Johnny Gottselig, to climb into fourth place a point ahead of Canadiens.

Bourque Slips Once

Only the great goal-tending of Claude Bourque kept Americans from running up a greater score against Canadiens. Bourque slipped up only once, with Buzz Boll getting the winner midway through the second session.

Featuring the two victories was the play of the Dave Schriner-Murph Chamberlain-Pep Kelly line. The trio picked up 10 scoring points, eight in the Leafs victory over Hawks when Kelly scored twice and aided in another. Schriner tallied once and helped in two and Chamberlain picked up two assists. Leafs other score went to Bob Davidson while the Chicago goals were scored by Bill Carse and George Allen.

Against the Wings, Gordie Drillon supplied the winning goal late in the third period after Leafs had batted home two scores in the second period to nullify a pair of Detroit first period counters by Syd Howe and Butch McDonald. In the second session Bucko McDonald and Schriner tallied for Leafs.

A record crowd of 16,526 turned out in New York to watch Rangers, led by Clint Smith and Lynn Patrick, triumph in a wild game over the Americans. Smith fired two goals and helped in two while Patrick scored one and had a hand in two others. Alf Pike and Bryan Hextall got the other Ranger goals while Harvey Jackson and Hooley Smith scored for Americans.

Young Red Hamill, who got a regular N. H. L. chance through a recent injury to Roy Conacher, turned in a fine effort against Canadiens. Hamill scored the first Boston goal and assisted in two others to emerge as high pointmaker of the game. Bill Cowley scored twice for the Bruins, whose other goals went to Art Jackson, Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt. Hector (Toe) Blake got the only Montreal goal between those of Dumart and Schmidt in the last period.

Individual Batting Features

National League fielding records for the 1939 season are divided into two groups, the first comprising players who served at one position in 10 or more games, and the other showing those in fewer than 10 games. Leadership at each position is based on participation in 100 games or more.

Frank A. McCormick, Cincinnati, leads the first basemen, with a percentage of .996. McCormick established a new record for double plays, with 153 in 156 games, displacing the former mark held by August R. Suhr, Pittsburgh, who made 150 in 145 games in 1938.

Suart McG. Martin, St. Louis, heads the second basemen, with .972. William J. Herman, Chicago, by taking part in 156 games at second base, tied a mark held by three players.

Merrill G. May, Philadelphia, in his first year, is the leader among the third basemen, with .9564. May gained the honor with a hairline decision over Stanley Hack of Chicago, whose percentage was .9558 for 156 games.

Terry B. Moore, St. Louis, is the leading outfielder, with .994, which ties the record held by Leonard Koenecke, Brooklyn, 1934, and John W. Cooney, Brooklyn, 1936.

Harry Danning, New York, leads the catchers, with .991. Ernest N. Lombardi, Cincinnati, for the fifth consecutive year, had the most passed balls, 15.

Thirty-two pitchers fielded for a 1000, the leadership going to Claude W. Passeau, Philadelphia-Chicago with 69 chances.

Burgess U. Whitehead, New York, by having 11 assists on April 23 against Boston, tied a record held by many second basemen.

Charles L. Hartnett, Chicago, by catching in 86 games, brought his lifetime catching mark to 1734 games.

TALES OF PIRATE WOE

Frankie Frisch, new manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, doesn't appear to be greatly interested as Pie Traynor, who was deposed in favor of the former Giant and Cardinal star, expounds a point or two. Maybe Pie was reciting the weak spots in the disappointing Pittsburgh team of last season. If nothing else, the Bucaneers will be colorful next season. Frisch has arranged for a new set of uniforms of a comparatively gaudy hue for major league diamond wear.

Southern California Defeats Tennessee Undefeated in 23 Contests

TEXAS A. and M. WINS

May Meet Southern California in Game for Finnish Relief

New York, Jan. 2 (CP)—More than 250,000 holiday fans turned out for football delicacies dished out in bowls in half a dozen United States centres yesterday.

Main course on the New Year's menu was served in Pasadena where Southern California du ginto Tennessee and emerged with a 14-0 victory in the 25th annual Rose Bowl classic.

Ambrose Schindler, high stepping quarterback, sparked the Californians offensive to keep intact a record of no defeats in Rose Bowl play. Tennessee's loss broke a string of 23 consecutive wins. Ninety-two thousand saw the game.

Possibility that U.S.C. might meet mighty Texas A. and M. in a post season game for the Finnish relief fund benefit was raised in New Orleans where the Texans were celebrating their 14-13 Sugar Bowl win over Tulane. The project was still in the talking stage today, however.

As rousing a game of football as ever graced the Sun Bowl saw Arizona State of Tempe and Catholic University play a scoreless tie in El Paso before 12,000.

Clemson won the Cotton Bowl trophy by beating Boston College's bruising Eagles 6-3 in a nerve-wracking game or long runs and sensational passes before 20,000 in Dallas.

Georgia Tech demeated Missouri, 21-7 before 36,500 in Miami's Orange Bowl.

A 28-11 west victory over the east went into the books today, and the boys who played in the 15th annual Shrine Charity football contest were still digging the mud out of their ears.

A downpour, starting midway in the second period, turned the San Francisco stadium gridiron into a sea of mud, and by the final quarter the New Year's Day crowd of 45,000 couldn't tell one player from another.

DAVE CASTILLOUX TO MEET RODAK

French - Canadian Holds Featherweight and Lightweight Crowns in Canada

Toronto, Jan 2—(CP)—The stage of better fights and bigger money has been reached by Dave Castilloux, the little French-Canadian boxer with the flicking left hand and hard right smash, five years after he stepped into a ring in Waterville, Maine and collected $10 for his first fight.

Holder of the Canadian featherweight and lightweight crowns, Castilloux meets Leo Rodak of Chicago here tonight in a 10-round bout that he hopes will bring him a shot at the world's leading contenders. It's the third meeting between Rodak, one of the foremost lightweights in the United States and the Canadian champion from Montreal.

Castilloux pounded out a decision in the first scrap here last July but last month Rodak evened the score in New Orleans, taking an unanimous decision despite a late fighters at his weight can equal. was his second in 588 fights. His only other licking came from Maxie Berger of Montreal who now is fighting as a welterweight around New York with much success.

Started at Seventeen

Only 17 when he first took up boxing, Castilloux learned easily and developed a left jab which few fighters at his weight can equa. A cool and calculating worker, he pecks away continually with his left at his opponent's face and then suddenly throws his right with enough power behind it for a knockout.

The only time he has been knocked down for a count game in a match in Waterville when he was fighting as a bantamweight. He managed to get up at the count of nine and in the fourth round knocked out his opponent.

As long as he is able to make the weight he is destined to hold his Canadian titles for some time. With the exception of Billy Marquart, brilliant Winnipeg lightweight, there's nobody in either class who comes near him. There has been talk of such a match but so far it hasn't gone past that stage.

WHO'S WHO IN THE RING

With 1939 just about ready to follow '38 and the rest of those preceding years into history, here's a listing of who's who in a championship sense in the world of fisticuffs, so that you can start the new year off with the names of the champs at your finger tips (or pasted in your hat).

Murph Chamberlain Has Charley-Horse

Toronto, Dec. 29—(CP)—Murph Chamberlain, clever centre who helped Toronto Maple Leafs whip the Canadiens 6-4 in Montreal last night, will be missing from the line-up when the Leafs face Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League game here Saturday night.

Chamberlain limped slightly after last night's contest but on arrival here today he experienced difficulty getting out of his train berth and examination showed he had suffered a charley-horse.

EAST DIVISION OUT TO SMOTHER WEST OPPOSITION

Springfield Indians Snap Out of Losing Streak to Beat Hornets

CAPITALS WIN TWO

Defeat Indians and Syracuse Over the Weekend to Increase Lead Margin

By the Canadian Press

If the first 1940 games of the International - American Hockey League are any indication, teams of the Eastern Division are out to smother their opponents in the Western Section during the new year.

Springfield and Philadelphia, both in the lower rungs of the eastern group, boast New Year's Day victories over Pittsburgh and Hershey. The Indians snapped out of a losing streak to drub Pittsburgh Hornets 4-2 before the smallest Springfield crowd of the season. At Philadelphia, Ramblers shellacked Hershey 3-0 to retaliate for a 5-0 setback by Bears Saturday night.

Pat Egan accounted for two goals in the Indian win. Frank Beisler and Jenkins got the other Springfield tallies. Pete Bessone and Sherf were the Hornet marksmen. The Rambler victory came on goals by Hugh Gustafson, Lude Wareing and Stan Smith. It was Smith's second goal of the year.

Capitals Win Two

Indianapolis Capitals, the powerful western group leaders, came through the long week-end unscathed. They whipped Springfield 7-3 Saturday and followed it up Sunday with a 3-2 triumph over Syracuse Stars. H. Kilrea, Hudson and Wilder produced the Capital counters, with Locking and Klein scoring for the Stars.

The Indians were taken to camp Sunday by New Haven Eagles who rallied to overcome a four-goal deficit and win 5-4. Freddie Thurrier scored twice and Max Kaminsky and Rusty Waldriff got the other Springfield goals. Alex Singbush got the winning goal after Eagles had tied it up on points by Bill Summerhill, Tony Hemmerling, Armand Mondou and Gus Mancuso.

In the other Sunday games, Providence Reds walloped Pittsburgh 6-1 and Hershey and Cleveland Barons played a scoreless draw. The Hershey-Cleveland tie gave Nick Damore, Bear goalie, his third straight shutout.

Babe Pratt

One of the handiest players Lester Patrick has in his band of youthful puck-chasers is Babe Pratt, christened Walter, who holds down a defence post beside Ott Heller. More than once, when one of his forwards has been forced out of the line-up, Patrick has pressed Babe into attacking service with satisfactory results. Like many of the present Rangers Pratt was a Winnipeg "training school" discovery, date of same being the fall of 1934, first year the school was held. However, Babe did not turn pro immediately, waiting until the next fall before joining Philadelphia Ramblers. At the end of that season he got in a few games with the Rangers and he's been with the team ever since. In five more days he will celebrate his 23rd birthday. Born at Kenora, Ont. Played for the Thistles of that hamlet before joining the moneyed ranks. Each year has seen improvement in his play, his scoring totals for this three complete seasons being 15, and then 19 and last year 21 points. Adding it all up until the beginning of the current campaign his record reads 16 goals, 41 assists for 57 points, plus 115 minutes spent rueing rule infractions with the penalty timekeepers. Last year he and his defence partner, Ott Heller, ran two-three behind Dit Clapper in accumulating points (mostly assists) for defencemen.

TOMORROW: Mud Bruneteau, Red Wings.

MERCY FLIGHT IS COMPLETED

1600-Mile Journey Made to Arctic Coast to Carry Ailing Eskimos to Hospital

Edmonton, Jan. 2 (CP)—Pilot Al Brown reached Edmonton in time to welcome the new year after completing a spectacular 1,600-mile mercy flight to Canada's Arctic coast to fly two ailing Eskimos to hospital, and incidentally, to play a belated Santa Claus for seven white residents of a northland outpost.

The Mackenzie Air Service pilot returned to his Edmonton home on Sunday from Fort Smith, N.W.T., 500 miles. He landed at Fort Smith Saturday, ending a five-day adventure that carried the pilot, his mechanic, Alf Taylor of Edmonton, and their plane from Port Radium to Cambridge Bay and back to Fort Smith.

At Cambridge Bay, on the northern shore of Coronation Gulf, Brown picked u pthe Eskimos, Habgoon and Miss Anne Kaglik, and flew them to Fort Smith where they were treated by Dr. J. A. Urquhart. Both were reported in good condition. Habgoon suffered hand and face burns when a gasoline lamp exploded in his igloo and the girl suffered from a stomach ailment.

Arrives Day After Christmas.

Brown left Port Radium last Tuesday and Completed the hop to Cambridge Bay, 550 miles to the northeast, that day, returning to [illegible]

NEW CONSCRIPTION MEASURE PRAISED

London Telegraph Says Yesterday's Proclamation is Notification Only

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—The Daily Telegraph said today that the new conscription proclamation signed last night by the King will avert "the waste and confusion which were so conspicuously associated with application of compulsory service in the last war."

"By Royal proclamation issued last night another 2,000,000 men are notified of their liability to be called up under the National Service Armed Forces Act of last year," the newspaper said. "Yesterday's proclamation was a notification only and not actual registration or calling up order. The dates for those consequential steps have not been appointed but no one will be required to register until the age of 20 has been reached, and the calling up will follow registration in successive classes at appropriate intervals of time.

Allocation of Man-Power

"By this methodical process it will be possibe to anayze the rolls and to exercise discrimination in the allocation of the manpower available. . . .

"The difference will be like that between a levy en masse and the orderly, unbelated marshalling of the nation's young manhood according to fitnes, the needs of national defence and facilities for training.

"This proclamation will also serve another purpose. It not only notifies 2,000,000 men of their liability to service—it also notifies the world how much in earnest the British government and people are in carrying to fulfillment of the task to which they have set their hand."

Street scene in the city of Ordu, on the Black Sea after the last earthquake that spread death and terror through Anatolia, Turkey. Today Ordu is again one of the sufferers in the 'quake that is reported to have killed or injured 60,000 people. Twelve cities, ranging in population from 12,000 to 40,000, besides many small villages, were reported in ruins. When this photo was made, children were lining up at a relief station. Similar stations are being set up as rapidly as possible in the stricken area today.

"HUNCHBACKS" OF FINLAND TERRIFY RUSSIAN TROOPS

Carrying their knapsacks under their white coveralls that make them almost indistinguishable from the surrounding snow, these hardy Finnish ski troops look like hunchbacks as they glide to their front-line posts on the Karelian front. These men have been the terror of the Soviet invaders, swooping down on isolated parties, pistoling, machine-gunning and knifing the bewildered invaders. Then fading away like wraiths, leaving confusion, terror and death in their wake.

Advised by Principal

By JANE OSBORNE

Mary Dawson went timidly into the principal's room to sign the time chart that first day of her career as teacher in Public School No. 78. As she approached the table a young man drew back to let her precede him.

"Thank you," said Mary, and as she looked at him all she noticed was that he had red hair.

"I didn't know there were any men teachers here," she observed at recess to one of the younger teachers whom she had met in the playground. "I saw one when I was signing in this morning—young—with red hair—what grade does he teach?"

"That's Dick Mendham—teaches eighth-grade boys. There are three of 'em—if you call 'em men—never seem like real men to me. But they have to have 'em to teach the big boys—they're such a rough crowd in a neighborhood like this."

Later Mary Dawson realized that this young woman's attitude toward the men teachers at No. 78 was characteristic of the attitude of the other women teachers there, who passed Mr. Mendham and the other two men in the corridors with amused or disdainful mien.

After Mary had been teaching for a month or more Miss Graham, the principal, asked her to stop in her office after school to see about report cards. It was a small matter soon arranged and then Miss Graham asked Mary to sit down and have a little chat. Miss Graham asked Mary how she liked her work. Mary said she liked to teach though she was doing it to make a living.

"I'll give you a piece of advice," said Miss Graham, who was 50. "Snap out of it as soon as you can. Once the system gets you it will be hard to get out. You'll put off the idea of marriage because every year you'll look forward to a little more money the next. Then, you'll begin to count the years to your retirement with a nice annuity the rest of your life. Now my advice to you is to marry your best young man soon—before you get obsessed with this idea of yearly increase and eventually retirement."

"But suppose I haven't a young man," said Mary smiling.

"Marry the first man that asks you—providing he's decent. Don't wait for a man who can guarantee a yearly increase and an annuity in your old age."

"I'll remember what you have said," said Mary with a little blush, and would have said more but Miss Graham interrupted.

"Don't go away," the principal was calling good naturedly—then in an aside to Mary—"There's poor Mr. Mendham—scored off because you're here. Somehow men teachers never seem like real men." Then raising her voice: "Come right in Mr. Mendham, I want to show you the new report cards."

Mary hurried out of the principal's room, tinging with a deep sort of resentment. It wasn't because of what Miss Graham had said about marriage. Undoubtedly she had given good advice. It was because of what she had said about Mr. Mendham. Mary herself liked Mr. Mendham and respected him.

One day she was leaving the school at the same time that Mr. Mendham passed out of the teachers' entrance, and because Miss Graham was standing by, Mary waited for him and asked him if he would walk with her—since they both went in the same direction. A few days later when he had walked home with her she asked him to come into tea at her boarding house. It was four o'clock and her boardinghouse k [illegible], who was an English woman, always had tea in the little parlor.

A month later Mary found herself one evening after dinner eagerly waiting for Dick Mendham who had invited her to go to the theatre with him. Mary wondered why she was so feverishly eager for the time of his arrival to come. Then as she walked beside him and later sat beside him in the subway going to the theatre she reflected to herself that he looked much more attractive away from school. And coming back after the theatre that night Richard Mendham asked Mary to be his wife. Mary accepted him at once.

"I never dreamed that you would have me—at least not right away." Dick told her, and Mary was wondering how much Miss Graham's advice had had to do with her quick decision. He was the first man who asked her, and she had accepted him. They planned to be married in the summer after school was over and Dick told Mary that he would never consent to her teaching after they were married. He himself was giving up teaching when the summer came. He had a position waiting for him in a school book publishing company and had been teaching for two years to fit himself for this work. His uncle was the president of the concern.

"Not Dick Mendham," said she, amazed. "What made you accept him?"

"You did," said Mary, her eyes glowing. "You told me to accept the first man that proposed. And I want to thank you for your very good advice."

2,000,000 MEN

750,000 Called at Once

Neutral military observers here believe that possibly as many as 750,000 men will be called before the end of this month to strengthen the British Expeditionary Force—an army of about 210,000 men now—and the vital middle east command which guards the Empire's lifeline to the east.

In three previous call-ups under the conscripition laws, about 750,000 men were registered. The last of these groups is expected to be absorbed by the army by the end of February. But with factories tuned to their highest pitch for turning out arms, munitions and equipment, the job may be done sooner.

The biggest need fronting the Imperial General Staff now is not manpower but officers to train recruits, many of whom have had no military experience.

Newspapers generally agreed on the necessity of the King's action, taken through the privy council, calling it evidence of the nation's "will to war.'

A dissenter, however, was Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express which asked editorially "What for? To please the French?'

"The Daily Express has very great admiration and esteem for the part played by the French nation in this war,' the paper said, "But we do not hesitate to oppose the creation of a vast British army. For many reasons—

"1. There is no need for such a big army. The Maginot line is already sufficiently armed and manned. Indeed, there are more troops in it than are required.

"2. At sea, and in the air, Britain is already taking her part in the war to an immense degree. We should concentrate on these two spheres. For Britain to imitate the big French army is as foolish as for the French to build as big a navy as Britain.

"3. Britains financial and economic strength is of the utmost value in the prosecution of the war. A large army will damage our manufacturers and general business irreparably.

"4. France is much better off than Britain, because she has a prosperous agriculture.

Need Land Recruits

"We are in desperate need of recruits for the land. What is to happen? All is not lost. The will of the public can prevail. Let the public show their determination to resist the proposal to build up this enormous army. Then registration may take place, but calling up will be postponed.'

"One of the more unfortunate lies of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, (German Propaganda Minister) is that Great Britain is willing to fight to the last Frenchman," said the Daily Mail.

"The Nazis, like their predecessors, are learning that when Britain goes to war there is no limit to her effort—and no end to the war until she secures victory.

"This may be a mechanical war, a war of economics and finance. But it can be won only by men. There will be no final victory until Germany has met with defeat in the field.

CANADIAN TROOPS

Eden Welcomes Troops

Corporal Lee scratched his head later when he discovered he had been chatting with the former Foreign Secretary. "What a fine break that was," he commented.

Mr. Eden's voice rang out as he spoke words of welcome to the troops:

"A nation of the new world is offering its help to challenge tyranny in the old your example is a guarantee of final victory, but it has been more than that. It is an inspiration to freedom-loving peoples everywhere."

Major General A. G. K. McNaughton, commander of Canada's troops, responded:

"We are happy to be serving with you again."

Of the boys' happiness there was evidence even before the ships, escorted across the Atlantic by British and French convoys, had docked. These same boys, who spent a Christmas touched with homesickness somewhere on the Atlantic, were now singing "We're Here Because We're Here," "Roll Out the Barrel," "Hail, Hail the Gang's all Here"—and then wave of sound mounting on wave, the strains of "O Canada."

Planes Add Welcome

Unseen planes droned an overhead salute. On the pier in addition to Mr. Eden and General McNaughton were Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, Sir John Gilmore, Minister of Shipping, and other dignitaries.

It was just 13 days after Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, startled his listeners during a broadcast with the news that Canada's first contingent had landed.

Canada's shoreline was just starting to melt after the sailing when machine guns were mounted on the transports. Everywhere precautions were taken against an enemy that never appeared.

It was a rolling rough voyage that contrasted with the smooth crossing the first contingent. Seasickness knocked out hundreds of the boys. To add to the lonely touch of being away from home for Christmas the first rough sea came up Christmas night.

Friendships Sealed

But there were many things to dispel sea gloom and homesickness. Decorated Christmas trees glowed within the comfortable liners. There was midnight Mass, and church services for all faiths. Christmas brought everyone closer together, and friendships that only began on sailing were firmly sealed that night.

Christmas Day the King's solemn words enjoining the men of the Empire to fight against "wickedness" were heard in every dining room as loudspeakers carried the Empire broadcast to the men.

The welcoming party went aboard one of the ships and inspected the quarters. In one ship Sir John Gilmour was introduced to Lieut. H. E. C. Price of the Royal Canadian Regiment, whose home is Quebec City. Sir John discovered that the lieutenant was a cousin he had never met before.

Rushed to Aldershot

Corporal Leonard Banks of Ottawa, was the first man of the second contingent to set foot on the soil of his Mother Country.

Trains rushed the men to Aldershot, where Sunday night they joined those of their fellow-Canadians on leave in celebrating the arrival of the New Year.

They greeted 1940 with songs and celebration and heard greetings from Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Defence Minister Rogers. Today, their trip behind them, the year's end festivities over, they were ready to get down to the grim business of preparing to fight what General McNaughton described to the troops in a New Year's speech as "the scourge of despotism."

FINNISH SKI

Helsingfors, Jan. 2 (AP)—Large sections of Turku, historic port of southwestern Finland, lay in smoking ruins today, levelled by yesterday's Soviet Russian aerial attack.

Turko Castle, dating from the 13th century and housing one of Finland's finest museums, still was in flames. Many objects of art were removed during the raid of more than twenty planes.

The waterfront district was reported devastated.

A government spokesman said the damage was "very great", but that only two persons were reported killed and four injured.

Finns "Tighten Belts".

With Soviet land forces reported stalled on the Mannerheim Line on the Karelian Isthmus, Red bombing raids were seen as reprisals for the reversals.

Turku (Abo), a city of 20,000, is the terminus for shipments of war materials from Scandinavian neighbors. Despite the bombings, the railway lines were reported undamaged.

Finns were 'tightening their belts' for a prolonged winter campaign. The Smorgasboard—table of delicacies—was banished from restaurants by official decree today and it was announced that hot water would be provided for baths in homes and apartments only twice a month.

Finns Need Anti-Aircraft Guns.

Government leaders emphasized the country was greatly in need of anti-aircraft guns and more fighting planes. They added that troop replacements also were needed.

The attack on Turku came as the Finnish army reported the destruction of a Russian motorized column of twelve cars in the Salla region just above the Arctic Circle.

The town of Jyvaskyla, another railway centre about 170 miles north of Helsingfors, was bombed and 17 civilians were killed by Red army raiders, at least three persons were killed and many wounded.

Mop-Up Activities Continue.

Mop-up activities continued against remnants of the 163rd Red army division, the communique said with more war prizes taken in the Suomussalmi region where 15,000 Soviet troops were reported virtually destroyed last week.

(Last night's Red army communique said "nothing important occurred" at the front. "Soviet aviation successfully bombed a number of places," the communique added. "Two enemy planes were brought down in an air battle.")

Assistance Asked.

President Kyosti Kallio, in a broadcast New Year's Day message, asked for "active assistance at the front, the only place where ruthless aggressors' schemes can definitely be put to naught."

(Great Britain yesterday notified Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, that she would give Finland all assistance possible in her fight against Russian invasion. Dispatches from Copenhagen reported a Swedish volunteer force of several thousand had gone to Finland under the command of former Swedish officers.)

400 OFFICERS ATTEND LEVEE

Defence Forces Given Honor of Being First Group to Greet His Excellency

Ottawa, Jan. 2 (CP)—The capital resumed its war-time routine today after a short holiday diversion and started preparing for a strenuous session of parliament opening three weeks from this Thursday.

The New Year's week-end was marked by the one official social function of the year-end holidays—the governor general's annual levee in the hall of fame at the parliament buildings.

The legation receptions and the prime minister's "at home" at Laurier House, usually a feature of New Year's Day, were cancelled due to the war but the levee was held as usual and 900 men shook hands with Lord Tweedsmuir.

About 400 members of the defence forces were given the honor of being the first group to greet His Excellency and officers of the army, navy and air force in uniform filed past. Then civilians moved along the reception line to shake the hand of Lord Tweedsmuir, dressed in morning clothes.

Business Suits Worn.

Emphasizing the democratic nature of this function, which had its origin in New France when the Governor stood on the street in Quebec and shook hands with all who came to meet him, silk hats were largely dispensed with. Many men paid their compliments to the King's representative dressed in their business suits.

Mr. Mackenzie King headed the list of visitors who shook the Governor General's hand and then the prime minister went to the railway committee room and greeted those who came to see him.

All the representatives of foreign governments attended the levee and members of the various war missions now in Ottawa also were present. The prime minister set a precedent after the levee by visiting various messes of units of the armed forces in the city. These included the Royal Canadian Air Force mess at Rockcliffe Airport.

VIOLENT DEATHS TOTAL SIXTEEN

Nine Occur in Ontario and Seven Others in Rest of Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Sixteen violent deaths were reported in Canada during the long New Year's week-end. Nine deaths occurred in Ontario where three persons were killed in one automobile accident. Three men lost their lives in a mining tragedy in Alberta and Nova Scotia and Quebec each reported two violent deaths.

The major Ontario fatality was the death of Joseph Laronde, 48-year-old member of a prominent Sudbury family, and his two sisters, Mrs. Jane Gregg, 55, of Sudbury, and Mrs. Thomas J. Lawlor, 50, of Timmins.

Manslaughter Charged

They were struck by an automobile driven by William Thompson of Sudbury as they stepped from their machine after it had skidded into a ditch 18 miles west of Sudbury early yesterday. Thompson was charged by Provincial Police with manslaughter.

A 70-year-old Peterborough woman, Mrs. Kathleen Feeley, was killed when her automobile was struck by a Canadian National Railways freight train near Marmora. Dasithee Castonguay, 54, was struck by an automobile that failed to stop as he crossed the highway near his home at Rockland. Dorcy Rancourt, 24-year-old Orleans farmer, was arrested later on a reckless driving charge.

Child Killed at Cornwall

Huguette Martin, six-year-old Cornwall child, was killed when struck by a truck at a street intersection, Kenneth C. Findlay, 28, Ottawa and District golf champion, was killed accidentally at Carleton Place. His revolver discharged when he slipped on a patch of ice.

The frozen body of Steve Majaru, 47-year-old Yugoslavian, was found in his shack at Erindale, near Toronto. His throat was cut and a razor was found near the body.

Gordon McRae, 34, member of the Canadian Army Service Corps, died in hospital at Hamilton from what police described as a self-inflicted razor wound in the throat.

Wave of Gas Kills 3 Miners

Three men were killed at Cadomin, an Alberta mining village 180 miles west of Edmonton, when a wave of gas trapped a group of miners in a panel of the Cadomin Coal Company's mine. One man was injured. The bodies of Jimmy Maddams, Jr., 28, John Brunside, 41, and Fr n Spinazzi, 48, were recovered.

Six fellow-miners escaped from the mine, and one of them, fire-boss Peter Nicholson, suffered back injuries and cuts when he fell down a 150-foot coal chute.

Price Phillips, 56-year-old Barrington, N.S., resident, died at Yarmouth after his automobile collided with a truck. Fred Marsh, 29, died at New Waterford, N.S., from injuries suffered when struck by a truck.

Automobile accidents claimed two lives in Quebec province. Emilienne Pellerin of Grand 'Mere in St. Maurice Valley was killed at Shawinigan Falls when the car in which she was a passenger overturned on a sharp curve. Nine-year-old Rolar. Roch was killed when his sleigh went under a moving truck.

Dr. Theophile D. Boulanger of Montreal was found dead in a lane. An autopsy revealed death was due to heart failure.

WILFRED RISTOW SERIOUSLY HURT

Car in Which He Was Riding Goes Out of Control on Slippery Road West of Brighton

Suffering from a fracture of the spine, brain injuries and other injuries, Wilfred C. Ristow, 332 Charles Street, is in Belleville General Hospital as a result of an automobile accident near Brighton on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ristow, who was driving the car escaped with minor injuries.

The accident occurred when the car skidded on the icy pavement about two miles west of Brighton. It went out of control and skidded into the ditch smashing a telephone pole before coming to a stop. The injured occupants were rushed to Belleville General Hospital after receiving first aid treatment at the scene of the accident. Traffic Officer Wilson of Colborne investigated.

Mr. Ristow's condition was said by hospital authorities today to be very serious. Mrs. Ristow who is also in hospital was said to be recovering from shock and minor injuries.

KING INSPECTS UNITS OF ARMY

Southern Command Pleased With Visit of His Majesty to Their Sector

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—The King today inspected units of the southern command of the British army.

Wearing the uniform of a field marshal, the King at one point walked for more than a mile along the road lined with troops in battle dress. He had an unofficial escort of villagers and children as he went past the cheering ranks.

WAR BRIEFS

Toronto, Jan. 2 (CP)—Relatives sang patriotic songs as a group of 14 Finnish residents of Canada left here by train last night to aid Finland in the fight against Russia.

"It is not hard to lead a group like this," said Johnani Kaiske, unanimously chosen leader of the volunteers. "We are going because we want to and feel it is our duty. No person summoned us."

Salzburg, Germany, Jan. 2 — (AP)—Walther Funk, President of the Reichsbank and Economics Minister, declared today that Great Britain "is fighting against the principle that the workers are to share as far as possible in life's comforts."

Addressing the Reichsbank's local branch, Funk charged that Britain already is buying up much greater quantities of raw materials than are needed in the expectation that with these reserves she will be able after the war to dictate world prices.

London, Jan. 2 (CP)—Motorcar sales in Great Britain have dropped two thirds since war began, figures published today by the Transport Ministry revealed. Only 10,070 new motor vehicles were licensed for the first time during last November, the Ministry's figures showed, compared to 33,833 in November, 1938.

Kirkenes, Norway, (near the Finnish Border)—Jan. 2 (AP) — Transporting of Russian troops southward along the Arctic highway from Finland's Petsamo region continued today, but there were no indications of fighting, apparently because of subzero temperatures.

A search failed to reveal any Russian bombs which yesterday's Helsingfors communique said had been dropped in Norway.

Berlin, Jan. 2 (AP)—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy headed a list published today of heads of state who sent Fuehrer Hitler New Year congratulations.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, Pope Pius XII, President Roosevelt were not included in the list supplied to the German press. Admits Certain Rights

The United States note, delivered to the British Foreign Office by the American Embassy in London, stated that with regard to mail to or from Great Britain "This Government readily admits the right of the British Government to censor private mails originating in or destined to the United Kingdom, or private mails which normally pass through the United Kingdom for transmission to their final destination."

But with regard to other mails the Hague convention was cited as recognizing "that postal correspondence of neutrals or belligerents is inviolable on the high seas." The State Department contended that "the same rule obtains regarding such correspondence on ships which have been required by British authorities to put into a British port."

Claims Violation of Agreement

The note concluded:

"The United States government regards as particularly objectionable the practice of taking mails from vessels which ply directly between American and neutral European ports and which through some form of duress are induced to call at designated British control bases. This is believed to be a clear violation of the immunity provided by the Hague convention.

"The United States government feels compelled to make a vigorous protest against the practices outlined above and to express the hope that it will receive early assurances that they are being discontinued."

The note was sent from the State Department, Dec. 22. No reply has been received yet.

The flood zone in European Turkey, near Adrianople, was still large but rains moderated and the rise was checked.

The address was signed on behalf of the choir by: Mrs. M. English, president; Mrs H. B. Herrington, leader; Mrs. J. Chappelle.

The Christmas Service held in Thomasburg United Church on Sunday evening took the form of a Silent Manger Scene. Two beautifully lighted Christmas trees, one on each side of the pulpit made a suitable setting. Quiet music was played, during which time Mr. and Mrs. Percy McTaggart, dressed in Eastern Costumes as Joseph and Mary took their places beside the manger-bed, where hay had been strewn about. The choir composed of seventeen voices, dressed in white, sang as a processional hymn "O Come Let Us Adore Him". After a short prayer by the pastor, Mrs Herrington read a poem entitled "Twas Nineteen Hundred Years Ago" followed by the singing of the hymn "Come and Worship Christ the newborn King." Rev. H. B. Herrington led in prayer and the Choir sang as an anthem "Infant Holy, Infant Lowly". During the singing of the hymn "While Shepherds Watched their Flocks by Night" three shepherds came up the centre isle and knelt at the Altar and the Angels appeared soon after in white flowing robes with wings attached and stood beside Joseph and Mary and the shepherds arose from kneeling taking their places. After the Scripture, announcements and offering the choir sang "The First Noel" and while singing this the Three Wise Men appeared bringing their boxes of gold, frankincense and myrrh laying them at the manger bed and later took their places in the manger scene. The pastor gave his Christmas message based on Peter, Chapter 1, verse 20. The service was brought to a close with the singing of the hymn "Joy to the World".

On Sunday afternoon in the primary Department of the United Church Sunday School the children with their teacher held a very interesting Christmas Service in their rooms which had been nicely decorated and a Christmas Tree laden with gifts. The superintendent of the department. Mrs Herrington opened the service with a Christmas hymn, followed by the Children's prayer. The Roll Call was answered with a Christmas verse. Master Harry Martin celebrated his ninth birthday. Donald, Harry, Jean and Vera Martin sang "Away in a Manger" with motions. Ronald Sherry told the Christmas story very nicely. A Bible questionnaire was given by Betty Burley, Gerald Bateman, Marion Jones and Ronald Sherry. "The First Noel" was sung by Joyce Morton, Betty Burley, Ruby Bateman and Marion Jones. The teachers then distributed the gifts from the tree and Mrs. Herrington closed the service with prayer.

Little Benny's Note Book

The little black dog was still sitting on our front steps when I came home for luntch, and as soon as he saw me he winked at me, looking as if he did it on purpose but maybe just doing it out of a nerviss habit, and I was eating luntch with ma and she said, I'll really have to do something drastic about that dog. Nora complains that he kept winking at her like a lost sole all the time she was scrubbing the front steps this morning, she said.

Well G, ma, cant we just kind of keep him? I said, and ma said, Keep a strange dog with a strange pedigree, most assurantly not.

Well jimminy, ma, cant we take him in till he finds his owner? I said, and ma said, If we take him in he'll of found his own owner.

Meening us, and ma said, There's only one thing to do, I'll telephone to the Four Footed Haven and tell them to come and get him. I've been a member of that sisiety for years and this may be my first and last chance to get any personel service for my dues.

Me trying to argue her out of it, but she telephoned just a same, and this afternoon when I got home from school The Foor Footed Haven truck was just driving away empty without the little black dog, and ma was standing at the front door, saying, I cant understand it, that dog has been around here faithfully for 3 days only to dissappear like thin air just as the man drove up to take him.

Wich just then who came out of the next door vestibule but the little black dog wagging his tale and winking at me, and I said, Holey smokes, ma, how's that for smart, where are you going to get a smarter dog than that?

I dont happen to be looking for smart dogs, ma said.

Sounding as if she was weakening a little.

Marriages Likely To Be Increased In Leap Year

By the Canadian Press

Cultivation by the male sex of that "demned elusive" art of wariness will need to be at a high pitch to keep marriage statistics within bounds the next 12 months.

Adequate protection against feminine leap year wiles is still a minus quantity judging from 1936 results, when marriages in Canada showed an increase of five-and-a-half per cent over 1935.

Next year gives even greater promise of soaring figures. With so many gallant lads leaving for the smoke and dine of battle on the other side of the Atlantic, resistance to the fair sex is likely to be at a lower-than-average ebb.

On the other hand, since the modern alternative to leap-year marriage is a gown of the lassie's choice, the unrespensive male will not get off scot-free. Some bits of feminine fluff may be destined to end the year with a decidedly large wardrobe.

First observed in Scotland in 1288, this custom of women openly usurping male prerogativesone year out of every four has a definite legal status.

The 700-year old Scottish decree reads: "for ilk yeare knowne and lepe yeare, ilk mayden ladye of both high and lowe estait shall hae liberte to bespeak ye man she likes, albeit he refuses to talk hir to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye su ane pundis or less, as his estait may be; except and awis gif he can make it appeare that he is betrothit ane ither woman he then shall be free."

France and Genoa passed a similar law a few years later, with Florence following suit in the 15th century.

Sir Edward Beatty Praises Strength Of This Dominion

Montreal, Dec. 30—(CP)—Canada in the present war is a vastly stronger and far more resourceful country than she was in 1914 and "its people have a stronger consciousness of their heritage and of their responsibilities", Sir Edward Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said in a year-end statement.

His annual review of Canada's economic position released here last night said there has been definite business improvement during 1939 and "it was, on the whole, a favorable situation in which Canada found herself when war broke out."

"The opening phase of the war also has progressed in an unexpectedly helpful way. Instead of being plunged at almost a moment's notice into the heights of violent battle effort, we this time have had opportunity to bring to bear on the whole matter of our national war action a calm deliberation together with constructive planning such as we had neither the wisdom nor opportunity to apply to a similar conflict 25 years ago.

Sir Edward said that no one can tell what will be the ultimate effect of the war upon Canadian life and economic development and it is perhaps hardly the time to consider that question.

"No sacrifice is too great for the winning of the war and we now have no knowledge as to the extent to which our resources will be called upon. Conservation for the war effort is a primary duty."

HERE AGAIN is the ubiquitous print frock. A new model is in pure dye silk crepe in black with beige leaf designs and white lines. The skirt is gathered in front beneath the deep-fitted corselet section of the snug bodice.

BRIGHT NIGHTS bring forth bright evening fashions. A lovely evening wrap is a full length, fitted wrap of heavy brocade in bright red and gold. Wide high lapels and pocket flaps at the hipline.

JUST LOOK AROUND and see how much costume jewelry is worn. A delightful necklace has large leaves fashioned of green sequins with gold-stippled grapes. There are matching clips to be worn in the hair or on long gloves.

ROOSEVELT URGES ARMY AND NAVY INCREASES

Major Offensive With Spearhead at Mannerheim Line

FINNS SET TRAP

Russian Division Trapped on Lake and Bombed by Artillery, Many Drowning in Water When Large Holes Blown in Ice

Helsingfors, Jan. 3 —(AP)—Irked by setbacks, Soviet Russia was reported to day to be massing seven army divisions — about 105,000 men —as the spearhead for a major offensive against the Finnish Mannerheim line on the Karelian Isthmus.

Under a new Soviet commander, the fresh troops were said by Finnish sources to be ready for a tremendous push against the Finnish fortifications which have been described by the Russians as comparable to Germany's Siegfried line.

(Previous estimates of Russia's manpower before the Mannerheim line were upwards of 300,000 men. Authoritative sources have said Finland has 190,000 combat troops opposing the invaders on all fronts.

(General G. M. Stern, hero of Russia's far eastern "vest pocket war" with Japanese Manchoukuoan forces in 1938, was reported on Dec. 29 to have succeeded General J. A. Meretskoff as chief of the Finnish campaign.)

Fighting in a sub-zero blizzard which checked enemy air attacks, the Finns said Soviet attacks near Lake Lavajaervi on the eastern front yesterday were converted into Finnish victories. A Russian front line base was reported seized.

Meanwhile, reports of how Finnish troops trapped the 163rd Red army division Dec. 29 and 30 in the greatest battle of the war, reached the capital for the first time.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

January weather! January temperatures are the most variable; that is, the average temperature of any day of this month is apt to either exceed or be less than that of the preceding day by amounts greater than in any other month. This is because the influences which bring about temperature changes are most intense in January. Cold waves, for instance, bring about greater temperature changes in winter than do warm waves in summer, because of the greater contrast in temperature between the tropical and polar regions.

ANOTHER CHARGE MAY BE PREFERRED

William Taylor, Kingston, Once Freed, May Have to Face Charge of Driving Recklessly

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—On recommendation of Crown Attorney T. J. Rigney at Kingston, Ontario, Attorney General Gordon Conant is considering laying a new bill charging driving in a dangerous and reckless manner against William Taylor. The Attorney General disclosed today he had the matter under consideration.

Taylor was charged in connection with the motor accident near the LaSalle Causeway at the eastern entrance of the city in which two young men and their wives were killed. A Grand jury recently found no Bill in the case and Taylor was freed. Mr. Rigney drew the case to the attention of Mr. Conant.

"This is unusual but it is not a precedent", said Mr. Conant. "The Crown can keep on laying new Bills before other Grand juries if a case is considered a miscarriage of justice".

SIR WM. SEEDS LEAVES MOSCOW

Departure of British Ambassador is Not Permanent According to Report

London, Jan. 3 (CP)—The departure of Sir William Seeds from his post as British Ambassador in Moscow is neither permanent nor connected with impending publication of a British white paper on Anglo-Russian relations, it was said today in well-informed diplomatic sources.

Sir William, it was said, has been on duty for more than a year without leave and he is returning to Britain only for a much-needed holiday. He left Moscow last night.

A spokesman at the foreign office emphasized there was no reason to believe that his leave would be prolonged indefinitely or that he was bearing a warning regarding British aid to Finland.

POPE RECEIVES PAPAL NUNCIO

WAR VETERAN DIES WHEN HOME BURNS

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 3 —(CP)—Trapped in his small home when an overheated stove set it on fire, Garfield Conroy, 65-year-old war veteran, was burned to death at Summerstone Station, 12 miles east of here yesterday. Conroy lived alone in a shack in the bush. Although neighbors who rushed to the scene at the sight of the smoke could see Conroy's body lying on a bed in the house, they were unable to enter the building.

Churchill Deals With Admiralty Documents in Businesslike Way

London, Jan. 3—(CP) — Along with the Admiralty documents which reach Winston Churchill, Britain's energetic first Lord, come three kinds of gummed label.

One says (in red ink) "Action this day." Another says "Report in three days." The third says "Report in one week."

The First Lord of the Admiralty, holding the same job he did at the start of the first Great War, likes to get things done and to get them done fast. He won't dictate either to a dictaphone or to a shorthand stenographer. He insists on dictating letters straight on to a typewriter and signing them at once.

Work comes to him in an official admiralty "box." It is of red leather, with a brass handle on top and one at the side. It is numbered in gold and self-locking. It is usually full of papers. On top is the agenda for the war cabinet meeting, followed by eight or ten different files and ending melodramatically with the "spy docket."

In making memoranda he saves time by using abbreviations. Sometimes he instructs: "Write civil reply F.M.S." The F.M.S. means "for my signature." He objects to documents fastened together with pins and insists that papers he sees are holed with a punching machine (he calls it a "clop") and tagged with tape.

He hates noise and his rooms are protected from the outer world by green baize doors. And he likes his flat kept at a temperature resembling that of an orchid-house..

He scarcely takes any time off now and his old hobby of bricklaying is neglected. He is far too busy with papers—most of them labelled "action this day."

QUAKE LEVELS TEN VILLAGES IN YOZGAD AREA

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Flooding of Populated Areas Likely to Increase Estimated 46,200 Dead

Ankara, Jan. 3 —(AP)—A new earthquake was reported today to have levelled 10 villages in the Yozgad area, adding to Turkey's quake damage of last week as the river Euphrates broke its banks, spreading terror in the region of southern Anatolia.

The Yozgad region, scene of widespread suffering from previous tremors, was thrown into a panic by the latest shocks. Hundreds of buildings collapsed. Nearly a thousand persons were made homeless.

The death toll, however, was expected to be slight, since the people had sufficient warning to flee to open spaces.

Villages Submerged

With scores of villages in western Anatolia still suberged, flooding of the thickly populated Euphrates Valley was expected to increase the estimated 46,200 dead in the combined disasters.

First reports from Birijik said it was impossible to estimate the damage or loss of life from the flood waters. The Euphrates still was rising, sweeping houses, cattle and whole settlements southward toward Syria.

Meanwhile the crippled nation battled bitter winter temperatures to get food, clothing and medicines to hundreds of thousands of survivors in the distressed regions, which now cover the major part of Asiatic Turkey.

FOURTEEN DIE IN HOTEL FIRE AT MINNEAPOLIS

Six More May Have Died When Trapped in Blazing Hallways of Three-Storey Brick Building

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Minneapolis, Jan. 3 — (CP)—At least fourteen and possibly twenty persons lost their lives today when an early morning fire ravaged the Marlborough Apartment Hotel.

Firemen, who fought the blaze in sub-zero weather, were still searching for bodies four hours after the alarm was sounded.

Four of the victims were killed as they jumped from top windows in the three-storey brick building. Others were trapped in blazing hallways, or dashed to death when the floors burned through and fell.

Nearly 25 Injured

The number of injured was tentatively set at upwards of 25.

No one knew how the fire started. Some residents said they were wakened shortly before 6 a.m., by the sound of an explosion, but its source was not immediately discovered. Most of the occupants awoke to find the 85-apartment building already an inferno, smoke and flames blocking halls and stairways.

Montevideo, Jan. 3 (CP-Havas)—A graphic description of the running sea battle in which three ships of the British South Atlantic squadron drove the German pocket battleship Graf Spee into Montevideo harbor Dec. 13 was given newspapermen here today by Rear-Admiral Sir Henry Harwood.

Admiral Harwood arrived at Montevideo this morning aboard his flagship the Ajax, which was granted special permission by the Uruguayan government to put in for a 48-hour visit.

"I knew a German raider, probably a pocket battleship, was out and had been in the South Atlantic since the beginning of December," Admiral Harwood told reporters.

"I thought she might next attack British trade off the South American coast, and so concentrated three cruisers—the Ajax, the Achilles and the Exeter—off the mouth of the Plata River on Dec. 12. Very valuable British trade comes from this area, and I thought it might prove irresistible bait for her.

"On the morning of Dec. 13 we were about 200 miles east of Punta Del Este. Smoke was sighted at 6:10, and turned out to come from a pocket battleship. She came towards us and opened fire at 6:18 one turret firing at the Exeter, the other at the Ajax and the Achilles.

"All our ships went on to full speed and attack at once, according to our prearranged plan, the Exeter on one flank and the Ajax and Achilles on the other..

Skepticism Expressed By the British Press

London, Jan. 3. — (CP) — The British Press today devoted a substantial portion of its editorial space to comment on Soviet-German relations. Skepticism was expressed concerning reports Russia had requested the loan of 200,000 German specialists to put Soviet industry in order.

The Daily Telegraph said: "Berlin has officially denied the report that Stalin has asked Hitler for 200,000 technicians. This does not prove it untrue, but there are other grounds for treating it with even more than diplomatic reserve — among them the obvious impossibility of Germany's being able to spare a tenth of that number of experts in any branch of industry and the reluctance we must assume in Stalin to reveal disorganization on such a colossal scale".

Hitler Feels He Is Now Senior

The Daily Herald said Hitler is beginning to feel that he is now the senior and Stalin the junior partner in the Nazi-Soviet line-up.

"Until a month ago," the paper said, "it was Stalin who dictated and Hitler who agreed: for Germany was afraid of Russia. Instead of being suppliant they can be arrogant. . . . . .

"It is not true that Stalin has asked for German help to reorganize Soviet industry and Soviet communications. He is not yet reduced to that.

"But what is true is that the Germans are beginning to think and talk of this as a possibility. They are beginning quietly to squeeze the Russians: To suggest that it is time the Bolshevists began to do more for their Nazi friends in return for East Poland and the Baltic States."

"From the Allied viewpoint", said the News Chronicle, "the relations between Germany and Russia may be of crucial importance. At present the economic assistance which Russia is giving Germany is nothing to worry about".

WOMAN FRIEND OF ADOLF HITLER NEARING ENGLAND

Miss Freeman - Mitford, Fascist, Suffering From Gunshot Wound Received in Germany

SURGEONS TO OPERATE

Folkestone, England, Jan. 3 (CP) —Soldiers guarded the return to England today of Unity Vakyrie Freeman-Mitford, the peer's daughter whose "Nordic beauty" is said to have charmed Adolf Hitler.

Lord Redesdale, her father, was waiting on the quayside with a car and ambulance when the channel steamer from Calais arrived shortly before 4 p.m. (11 a.m. E.S.T.)

His daughter had been carried aboard the ship on a stretcher at the French port and she was accompanied on her journey home by her mother, Lady Redesdale, and a sister, Deborah Vivien.

Miss Freeman-Mitford was reported to have been wounded strangely in Munich. The Evening News of London asserted surgeons would operate to remove a revolver bullet from her neck.

Calais, France, Jan. 3 (AP)—Miss Unity Valkyrie Freeman - Mitford, British "woman Fascist" and friend of Adolf Hitler, left for Folkestone today on a channel steamer to which she was carried on a stretcher.

She was accompanied by her mother, Lady Redesdale, a sister, Deborah Vivien, and a nurse on the final leg of a homecoming trip said to have been arranged for the pretty Englishwoman by the German Fuehrer himself.

Injury Not Divulged.

Miss Freeman-Mitford's family has not divulged the nature of her injury, or illness. It was learned, however, she was in such a weakened condition that she could walk only a few steps unassisted.

Since her family learned she had an accident Aug. 9 in Munich, British newspapers variously have reported her to be suffering from a gunshot wound, poison, or some unspecified illness that followed a quarrel with Adolf Hitler during which he assailed Great Britain.

Before the war, Hitler once said he considered her a model of "Nordic beauty". Of Hitler, she said, "I think he is wonderful"; and of herself, "I am a woman Fascist" She admired Nazilsm.

DEVALERA SEEKS SWEEPING POWERS TO COMBAT I. R. A.

NATIONWIDE HUNT

Dublin, Jan. 3 (CP)—A charge that the outlawed Irish Republican Army was financed with money from the United States was made in the Dail (parliament) today as legislators met in special session to draft drastic laws to combat any menace to public safety.

Justice Minister Gerald Boland, describing a raid on the Phoenix Park arsenal Dec. 23 when 18 tons of ammunition were stolen, declared the Eire government was sure that large sums of money had come from across the Atlantic to finance the I.R.A. extremists.

Capture Packages of Currency

Government agents have captured packages of United States currency, he told parliament, which met under heavy guard. Mr. Boland said persons connected with the illegal organization had "large sums of money, arms and explosives" and were engaged in hostile activities.

Prime Minister De Valera asked parliament for emergency powers by which the government could intern anyone "whose liberty may be a menace to the public safety."

Claiming that the measure was faulty, the opposition objected and suggested a "constitutional amendment" along the same lines.

Political observers expressed belief that the Dail Eireann would make the bill law by tonight and that its passage would be the signal for a nationwide hunt by the Irish Army and police for members of the I. R. A. Internment camps would be established for suspects detained.

Meeting Guarded

The Dail meeting, closely guarded by units of the Irish Army, was closed to all but a few members of the public. As a safeguard against an expected demonstration by I.R.A. sympathizers during the debate, troops were detailed to ring the Parliament Building.

Rumors that plans for violence were afoot have mentioned the Easter Sunday anniversary of the abortive 1916 rebellion as the possible day for an attempted coup.

Government Department Removed for a "Safer" Rural Area Despite Press Complaints

London, Jan. 3 (CP)—Another government department—Pensions and Insurance—was removed from London today for a "safer" rural area, despite press complaints that the practice was hurting trade and increasing unemployment.

At least 540 employees were involved in the transfer.

The Evening Standard said business and government "should pluck up their courage and emulate the audacity of little children who have come home."

Pointing out many families were broken up, the paper declared London no longer is the world's largest city as a result of the removals.

A total of 3,000 are scheduled to leave in the next five days. It was announced 16,000 civil service workers were transferred last month, and estimated that 3,500 business firms had removed their staffs since the start of the war.

107 FLIGHTS MADE BY FRENCH PLANES DURING ONE DAY

Contact One Squadron of Messerschmidts but Enemy Craft Turn Tail and Go Home

LEAFLETS DROPPED

(By Axel De Holstein)
(Havas Staff Writer)

Paris, Jan. 3.—(CP-Havas)—The capital learned today that an unseasonable shower of withered "leaves" which drifted down over the Paris area and eastern France yesterday was Germany's latest form of "camouflaged" propaganda.

The crisp, cold weather was not allowed to interfere with routine overland operations along the western front and come as a boon to both the French and German air forces, which had been grounded for several days by near-zero visibility.

French pursuit ships, convoying reconnaissance craft, went aloft on 107 flights, military reports showed. One flight came into contact with a squadron of German Messerschmidts and went into action, but the enemy craft turned tail after the first burst of machine-gun fire.

Drop Propaganda Leaflets

German reconnaissance ships out on long-distance flights over eastern France and the Paris region dropped propaganda leaflets which were highly "camouflaged". They were colored and cut to resemble dead leaves. While an innovation for "attack" behind the lines, a similar ruse had been resorted to by the Germans in previous operations along the front.

Despite snow and bitter cold, "No-Man's-Land" on the western front continued to see action. Yesterday's operations were featured by a German raid attempted against a French outpost in the Vosges sector, where the rugged and wooded terrain is particularly adapted to such adventures.

Dionne Quints Believe Der Fuehrer Should Emulate Ferdinand the Bull

Callander, Ont., Jan. 3—(CP)—Hitler should stop fighting and emulate Ferdinand the Bull, that eminent sniffer of flowers, the Dionne Quintuplets believe.

They have just learned there is a war on and promptly suggested Ferdinand's preference for buds over bullfights be brought to the attention of the top Nazi as an example of what he should do.

The girls heard whispers somewhere—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe doesn't know where or how—that their friend and guardian, King George, is fighting some "bad men" over in Europe. As the Quints have been taught that it is naughty to fight, the doctor had to explain why the King was at war.

"I just told them that there were some bad men across the sea who were hurting the poor people and wouldn't behave when asked to do so by the King." Dr. Dafoe said today.

Instantly into the minds of the five-year-olds popped thoughts of Ferdinand whom they had met recently in the pages of Munro Leaf's account of Ferdinand's life.

"And they wanted to know why somebody hadn't told Hitler and the other bad men about Ferdinand and how he would rather just sit and smell flowers than fight," Dr. Dafoe said.

He had tried to keep news of the war from them so as not to disturb the youngsters but now that they know they have insisted on Red Cross nurses' uniforms which they wear proudly.

President Sees U.S. Ultimately Leader For World Peace

Army and Navy Increases Based on Common Sense Not on Panic Says President Who Asks U. S. to be Ready to Take Care of Self if the World Cannot Attain Peace

NATIONAL UNITY AIM

Roosevelt Links Defence of Reciprocal Trade Treaty Program With International Issues — Trade Cooperation With Rest of World Does Not Violate Precept of 'No Entangling Foreign Alliances' — Best Defence is Promotion of General Welfare and Domestic Tranquillity

(Advance) Washington, Jan. 3—(AP)—President Roosevelt, addressing the United States Congress at the opening of a new session, declared today that the United States ultimately can become a leader for world peace but that "we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace."

Accordingly, he said he was asking this year in the light of continuing world uncertainty, for "army and navy increases which are based not on panic but on common sense."

Emergency Spending for Defence

The President proposed that sufficient additional taxes be levied to meet the cost of emergency spending for defence. He did not specify specific amounts or methods of taxation.

More than half the message, delivered by Mr. Roosevelt in person to Senators and Representatives assembled in joint session, was devoted to international affairs and problems. Into it, too, the President injected a strong appeal for national unity.

National unity, he asserted, "is in a very real and deep sense, the fundamental safeguard of all democracy."

The stress placed on problems created by a world at war, the President said, does not mean the Government is abandoning or overlooking the great significance of domestic policies. But for the most part he touched but briefly on those policies.

Trade Co-operation with World

Mr Roosevelt declared as he had in previous addresses that he hoped the United States would not become involved in those wars.

Yet, he asserted, "there is a vast difference between keeping out of war and pretending that this war is none of our business."

With his discussion of international problems, the President linked a defence of the reciprocal trade treaty program—a program which has given every indication of becoming one of the storm centres of the session.

CANDIDATE DIES ON ELECTION DAY

Baltimore, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—A. P. Bray, resident three miles north of the village near Cobourg for many years had aspired to a seat on township council. New Year's Day the 64-year-old retired farmer visited the polls late in the afternoon and found that his election was conceded. He went home to tell his wife the news that his ambition was to be realized for the first time. At home he became ill, sat down on a chair, collapsed and died.

Allowed Friend To Drive His Car, Goes to Jail

London, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP)—W. Peterson bought a car two months ago, the first he ever had, but when he asked a friend to drive it for the first time, he struck bad luck.

Today Peterson went to jail for 10 days and his car was impounded for three months, when he pleaded guilty to allowing his friend to operate the car while in an intoxicated condition. Ralph Gordon was given a similar term on a drunk driving charge.

They were arrested on No. 4 highway, near Elginfield while engaged in an argument with another motorist. There was no accident.

3 ENEMY ALIENS HELD BY POLICE

Arrest Follows Seizure of Correspondence Aimed at Sabotage of Smelters

Nelson, B.C., Jan. 3 — (CP)—Sergeant C. W. A. Barwis of the British Columbia police said Tuesday three enemy aliens, whose identity was not divulged, are held by West Kootenay authorities following seizure of correspondence aimed at sabotage of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company plants at nearby Trail.

The correspondence was seized some time ago and the sabotage was set for Dec. 25. An inspector of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police from Vancouver and two company officials have been working with Provincial Police on the case, and their efforts resulted in the arrest of two men at Trail and one at Paterson, a few miles from Trail, near the international boundary.

Police believe gas tanks at Warfield, one of the more recent parts of the Consolidated, was the particular part aimed at. Warfield is a short distance up the mountain from Tadanac where the main part of the smelter is situated, and where fertilizer is produced.

Both the Consolidated Smelters and the West Kootenay Power and Light Company whose plants are on Kootenay River 10 miles west of Nelson have been on the alert for saboteurs, surrounding their properties with guarded fences, and huge searchlights.

CZECHO-SLOVAK OFFICERS HELD

Suspected of Having Given Poland Information Respecting Movement of German Troops

Prague, Jan. 3 (AP)—Arrests of nearly 1,000 former Czecho-Slovak army officers, two journalists and several members of the Skoda Munitions Works' central office were disclosed today.

The arrests occurred during the week of Dec. 17-23, but were not made known at the time.

Most of those arrested were members of the Czech Legion. Authorities said they were suspected of having given Poland information on the movement of German troops during the Nazi invasion and of smuggling an unidentified former minister, aviators and others to Poland, France and Great Britain.

The Skoda employees were suspected of stealing plans for the manufacture of munitions, it was said.

DEPARTMENT ASKED TO AID IN COST

The Public Utilities Commission of the City of Kingston, asked the Department of National Defense and the Department of Highways for Ontario to share in the cost of installing electric lights from the eastern extremity of the city limits of Kingston to the Vimy Barracks at Barriefield, east of Kingston. The Utilities Commission of Kingston, made their request during their inaugural meeting yesterday. The Commission, in its requisition, pointed out that hundreds of soldiers, now stationed and training at Barriefield, are forced to walk on Highway No. 2 to and from Kingston. The request is to protect both the soldier boys and motorists, who use the highway.

EXCELLENT SKIING IN OAK HILLS

Recent snows have resulted in excellent skiing in the Oak Hill sector, ardent disciples of this thrilling winter recreation stated today. Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone, who enjoys skiing over the snow-clad slopes of Hastings County, stated today he had enjoyed a run over the Oak Hill slopes this week. "In the lower valleys there is an abundance of snow, but on the higher reaches one has to proceed with caution to avoid small boulders, that are barely covered with snow and make hazardous traps if struck", revealed Ex-Mayor Bone as he suggested local skiers would be well advised to club together and expend sufficient money to free the Oak Hill ski runs of treacherous large stones. "If such were done several fine ski runs would be available in and around the Oak Hill sector", assured Mr. Bone today.

4,370 TRANSIENTS GIVEN SHELTER DURING YEAR

City police officials today revealed that a total of 4,370 transients had been given shelter in the cell block at the city police station during the year 1939, an average of slightly less than 12 per night during the entire year. For the first two nights during 1940, however, the number of transients seeking shelter from the cold bleak winds has been considerably in decrease of last year's average. On Monday night only five sought shelter, while last night six were housed in the cell block. "The increasing cold weather doubtless put a halt to transients roaming up and down the countryside", suggested the authorities today.

ANNOUNCE RESULTS OF FALL TERM EXAMS

WORK ON FILL OF RACEWAY HALTED FOR LACK OF FUNDS

With funds for the purpose exhausted until new provisions for funds are made by the incoming City Council, work on filling the old Walker Foundry raceway that parallels the Moira River on its east bank has been temporarily postponed. The work, however, is sixty per cent completed, according to City Engineer Charles Mott, and only that part of the raceway to the rear of the Harry Hill property, remains to be filled.

Sufficient fill has been placed in other parts of the old ravine to offset any flood danger should the waters of the Moira overflow the bank in the Spring.

Approximately a dozen city workmen are now engaged in removing three feet of rock from the bottom of the Bay of Quinte off the Belleville Beaches, to make way for tile-beds.

These beds are being installed so that sewage disposal from adjacent manufacturing plants can be made into the far reaches of the bay during the swimming season, instead of in that part used by the swimming public of Belleville and district.

Bill Anderson Intalled Kiwanis Club President By G. M. Henry, Hamilton

Against a background of the beautiful gowns of the women present contrasted with the more sombre shades of the clothes of the men, the Kiwanis Club of Belleville inaugurated another year of service to the community with the installation of officers by George M. Henry, Lieutenant-Governor of district number two of Hamilton at the annual ladies' night of that organization. Bill Anderson assumed the gavel with George H. Griffin as secretary-treasurer for the eighteenth consecutive term and Jim Barclay, Bruce Lattimer, Jack McVeigh, Herb Muir, Ivan Scott Ross Stiver and Jack Trudeau as directors and past-president Dick Flynn as the vice-president. Mr. Henry delivered an excellent address, his subject being "New Wine from New Bottles." A delightful banquet was served by Mine Host, Mrs. Zita Ryan.

Many Stunts

The evening was devoted to stunts arranged by the program committee of Bruce Lattimer and Frank Domenico and they proved most enjoyable and entertaining. Bobbing apples with Eddie Shapiro, Albert Boynton, Jack McIntosh, George Lee and Cliff Baragar as contestants was very funny with George Lee getting the decision although he only secured one bite out of the apple. The leap year stunt in which Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Willing, Mrs. Forhan and Mrs. Muir proposed in turn to Jim Cowan brought down the house and so good were all the contestants that a separate prize was given to each. The quiz program found many of those quizzed at a loss for the answer but there was plenty of prompting and all the contestants were given prizes. Besides the stunts was the fine singing of Harold Barrett, who so very kindly responded to many encores. Leo B. Riggs provided his usual brilliant style for the accompaniment to the several numbers and also for the community singing so ably led by Harold Carruthers.

President Presides

Dr. R. A. "Dick" Flynn presided for the first part of the program with Bill Anderson concluding the evening after being installed as president for the ensuing year. To the president was given a beautiful Kiwanis plaque and to Mrs. Flynn a basket of roses. The retiring president was also given a past president's pin, one that has been worn by all the past presidents of the Belleville Club. The address of presentation was given by Cliff Baragar, with the plaque being presented by Jack McVeigh and the roses by Ross Stiver. To George Griffin for his faithful and long service to the club, he being one of the oldest active officials in point of service in Canada, there was presented a beautiful silver plate suitably inscribed. The address was delivered by the president, Dick Flynn, and although George was taken entirely by surprise, he made a most suitable reply and thanked most sincerely the past presidents for their kind gesture.

Tribute Paid

In closing out his year Dick Flynn paid particular tribute to his directors for their hearty co-operation during the past year and wished for the incoming president the same hearty loyalty. In accepting the gavel for the next year Bill Anderson wished for the continued success of the club and co-operation of all officers and members. Mr. J. O. Herity gave words of wisdom and advice to the youngest Kiwanian in the club, Fred Rawson and to Mr. and Mrs. Rawson as the youngest married couple in the organization. Mrs. Rawson was presented with a beautiful silver cup. The toast to the ladies was ably presented by Morley Wyman and suitably replied to by Mrs. James Cowan. The heartiest of wishes went with the gift presented to each lady present in remembrance of their fine work, especially in Red Cross endeavor since the beginning of the war.

Introduced by Secretary

The speaker of the evening was introduced by George Griffin and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by P. C. MacLaurin. Mr. Henry in opening his address thanked for the privilege afforded him in installing the officers of the Belleville Club and to be present for the inaugural meeting of the year. He explained the growth of Kiwanis from December, 1914 at Detroit till it now embraces over 2,000 clubs with a total membership of 105,000 scattered all over this continent. Mr. Henry asked, what had caused this phenomenal growth and answered it with the opinion that it was to be found in its appeal to the idealistic in man. He traced the changing of the name "We Trade" to "We Build" it being decided, that Kiwanis should emphasize human and spiritual rather than material values, that they should encourage the application of the Golden Rule to human relationships and that they would promote a more intelligent and aggressive citizenship. "Out of this has come a long list of worthwhile projects and good works," said the speaker.

Works Enumerated

Work with the boys and girls, leadership in Vocational Guidance, promotion of goodwill between rural and urban dwellers, the promotion of the world of all churches, the development of safety measures and especially the promotion of good will between the citizens of the United States and Canada and alertness to all political implications of the democracy in which we live, has been but a few of the projects of the Kiwanis Clubs of the continent, the speaker declared. Turning to current affairs, Mr. Henry stated that the Anglo-Saxon people had been battling for a thousand years for the things that are ours today and all are summed up in the one word Democracy, a word freely used but not so freely understood. "Out of the word," said the speaker, "can be coined the nuggets of free speech, a free press, free assembly, freedom to worship, freedom of action, freedom to be governed by the will of the majority. In other words we can think as we like, do as we like as long as we do not tread on other people's toes and we have developed self-reliance, initiative, courage and through these we have pushed back the boundaries and new continents have been opened up and along with this expansion has gone the love of freedom. Some mistakes have been made in the history of the English speaking people but it is generally true that as soon as the new countries could successfully absorb full freedom, that freedom has been granted them.

Examples Cited

The speaker quoted examples of Canada, New Zealand, South Africa, Australia as those countries, which have won freedom and showed that India would soon join the noble band. He pointed out that against that freedom was working the monsters of Europe, Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, who believed that man should be subjucated to their beliefs, their whims and their regimentation. The other danger to the democracy is that some democratic states are moving gradually towards a considerable degree of state socialism. "We confiscate through taxation a great part of the national income both of the individual and the corporation and from the proceeds we pay relief bills, old age pensions, mothers' allowances, compensation," said the speaker. "We own a great railway, a postal system, a hydro electric system, telephone systems, liquor vending systems and hospitals. This is the tendency to socialism and it will probably receive an impetus during the present war as it did in the last and it is conceivable that in the process democracy may undertake new businesses and assume rigid control of a great many more." The speaker was afraid, that events will so shape themselves in wartime and immediately afterwards, that either too much power will be concentrated in too few hands and thus make way for a strong man to assume too much power or that economic conditions will become so bad, that the masses of the people will turn to the first unprincipled demagogue that promises security and elect him to a seat of authority from which he will not willingly step down.

Help Kiwanis Can Give

The speaker explained there was only one way to protect our democracy and that was by Kiwanis helping to mould the lives of those coming up and to teach them the principles of democracy at every occasion. Mr. Henry stated that the people of Canada except those who had boys in uniforms hardly realized there was a war on but when taxes rise, casualty lists start to come in, war loans floated the whole ghastly business of war will break upon us like a hurricane. In closing he asked to make every sacrifice possible in order, that democracy might live and survive.

Residents of Marmora District Mourn Death Late Rev. S. E. Morton

Marmora, (Special) — Residents of the Marmora district were shocked on Tuesday to hear of the death of Rural Dean S. E. Morton, M.A., rector of Holy Trinity Church, Brockville. The deceased clergyman, a native of Thomasburg was for some years rector of the neighbouring parish of Rawdon and during that period, was frequently seen in Marmora. In recent years, he spent his summer holidays at his cottage at Crowe Lake and officiated at morning services at St. Paul's while Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell took his duties at Brockville. The congregation at St. Paul's joins with that of Trinity, Brockville, in mourning the death of one who took a kindly interest in the well being of his fellow men and whose inspiring messages from the pulpit will be long remembered.

Weekly Evening Intercession Service Replaces Noon Services

The Belleville Ministerial Association has decided to discontinue the noon-tide services of intercession which have been conducted since the outbreak of war, and to hold a weekly evening service instead.

The first of such services will be held this evening in Bridge Street United Church parlors from 7.30 until 8 o'clock, and will be conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright.

It is felt that perhaps the hour will be more convenient for a greater number of people who may wish to unite together and pray that God will comfort and assist in this day of trouble.

Announcement regarding the continuance of these services will be made each evening next week during the services of the Week of Prayer which will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in St. Andrew's Church, and Thursday and Friday in Christ Church, from 8 until 9 o'clock, and from the various church pulpits each Sunday.

Police Blotter

Activities in Belleville police circles have been exceedingly quiet and serene during the year 1940. No serious crimes or major motor accidents have been reported in Belleville during the first three days of the New Year.

Two bicycles, which were found abandoned in the city by the police while patrolling their beats, are being held at the police station and awaiting their rightful owners. Also in the custody of the authorities are two bicycle wheels, which are believed to have been abandoned after a stolen bicycle was dismantled, but no reports of such a bicycle being stolen in this city have been received by the authorities.

No arrests being necessary, the cell block was occupied by six transients, who enjoyed a warm nights lodgings last night.

CHILDREN RETURN TO SCHOOL; GOOD ATTENDANCE TODAY

With the glorious Christmas and New Year's holiday but memory, schoolchildren of the city and district trooped through the yawning doors of stately urban and little red rural schoolhouses today in preparation for the long term of the three "R's", that faces them before the Easter holiday in March bring further respite.

Christmas turkey and other holiday delicacies dear to the heart of a child, apparently had little aftereffects for the principals of all four city public schools reported an "excellent attendance, with very little sickness apparent." One principal went so far as to say the attendance today was the best post-Christmas attendance in years.

A few cases of chicken-pox were reported, but these were negligible and did not affect the attendance today to any extent.

USES OLD MUZZLE-LOADER FOR DUCK HUNTING; GETS LIMIT

Stuttgart, Ark., Jan. 3—(AP) — Lee Miller, going duck hunting, tried out an old musket used by his grandfather in the American Civil War. Each time he fired, the battered old muzzle-loader threw out so much smoke he had to stoop to see if he had hit anything. His bag was 10 ducks—the limit.

Motorcycle Patrol May be Absorbed Into Provincial Police

Provincial Police Inspectors from all parts of Ontario are in Toronto today in conference with Attorney-General Gordon Conant, relative to the complete absorption of the motorcycle patrol of Ontario. Inspector Frank Gardner, of District No. 8, O.P.P., left yesterday to attend the convention.

At the beginning of the year Attorney-General Conant announced that the Provincial Police Department would absorb the Ontario Motorcycle Patrol, which has been operated as a separate unit, although in connection with the O.P.P., for years past. Motorcycle Patrol sergeants and inspectors will operate out of District O.P.P. offices and under the direction of the District O.P.P. inspector now in charge, it was learned today.

Mr. Conant stated that the change will doubtless result in increased efficiency, a considerable savings to the province and better law enforcement from all departments of the service.

The Provincial Police office headquarters at Belleville will be the headquarters for motorcycle patrolmen from Cobourg to Kingston, it is expected.

Rome, Jan. 3 (AP)—Reports from Moscow that Augusto Rosso, Italian Ambassador to Soviet Russia, would leave for home tonight at the request of his government were viewed in diplomatic quarters here today as a probable consequence of the sudden departure of Nicolai Gorelchin, Soviet Ambassador to Rome.

Gorelchin left Rome three weeks ago on orders from his government, without having presented his credentials. It was considered likely that Premier Mussolini ordered his own Ambassador home when he learned Gorelchin was not likely to come back.

Lumberjacks On Skis Pursue Hungry Reds

Battle of Lake Kianta Greatest Victory of Finns in Present War

SCENE OF BATTLE

Thousands of Reds Wander Through Fir Forests in Five Feet of Snow

By THOMAS HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Finnish Forces near Lake Kianta, Jan. 2 (Delayed)—(AP)—An army of lumberjacks on skis today was pursuing the hungry, freezing remnants of a shattered Soviet army division into the wilderness of forests and snow near the central Finnish-Russian border.

The Finns have won the battle of Lake Kianta, leaving thousands of Soviet troops dead—the greatest single battle victory of the war in Finland.

Russian efforts to force their way across Finland's "waistline" and bisect the country have been halted here.

All that remain of the trapped 176th. Division—17,000 men at full strength—are stragglers who fled after the battle December 29-30. About 2,000 of them are wandering through thick fir forests over five feet of snow in temperatures of 20 degrees below zero, Finns said.

Shambles in Snow

A quarter of a mile from the headquarters farmhouse where this is written is a shambles of what was a Soviet supply column. For two miles wagons, trucks, armored cars and field kitchens stretch out. Beside them are the dead, horses fallen in their tracks and soldiers tumbled in the snow.

A hundred yards away in a school which Russians used for a field hospital the dead are still lying on the floor. In a nearby barn Red soldiers left untouched a meal of bread and cheese on a table amid boots, gasmasks and straw.

At a field prison I talked with prisoners through an interpreter. He said the Russians declared they had not been told against whom they were going to fight.

Russians Without Gloves

The prisoners wore regulation Winter uniforms, heavy enough perhaps for ordinary climates, but obviously not keeping them warm in the dry cold of the Arctic. They were without gloves, and some had knitted helmets under their caps. They appeared unusually slight and weak. Ages of the prisoners ranged from 20 to 35. All were married and had from two to five children.

A story has been told frequently in Finland that Russian officers machine-gunned their troops to force them into battle and so a question was put to these men about it.

While the others nodded, one shaking fellow answered excitedly with a pantomime description of a man with a machine gun.

"He says 'yes'," the interpreter declared. "He says that when his company went into battle they were told to line up without specific orders. When the company appeared confused they were ordered at machine-gun point. Some of his company, he says, were shot."

NEW U.S. NAVY HEAD

New United States secretary of the navy, succeeding the late Claude Swanson, is Charles Edison, son of the famed inventor. Mr. Edison served as under-secretary under Mr. Swanson, and as acting-secretary prior to his promotion by the United States President.

PRESIDENT

"The Trade Agreements Act," he said, "should be extended as an indispensable part of the foundation of any stable and durable peace." He added:

"The first President of the United States warned us against entangling foreign alliances. The present President of the United States subscribes to and follows that precept.

"But trade co-operation with the rest of the world does not violate that precept in any way."

Army and Navy Expenditures

At that point, Mr. Roosevelt made a transition to the defence portions of his speech:

"Even as through these trade agreements we prepare to co-operate in a world that wants peace, we must likewise be prepared to take care of ourselves if the world cannot attain peace," he said.

"For several years past we have been compelled to strengthen our own national defence. That has created a very large portion of our treasury deficits.

"This year in the light of continuing world uncertainty, I am asking the Congress for army and navy increases, which are based not on panic but on common sense. They are not as great as enthusiastic alarmists seek. They are not as small as unrealistic persons claiming superior private information would demand."

Reductions in All But Defence

"As will appear in the annual budget tomorrow," the President said, "the only important increase in any part of the budget is the estimate for national defence. Practically all other important items show a reduction.

"Therefore, in the hope that we can continue in these days of increasing economic prosperity to reduce the federal deficit, I am asking the Congress to levy sufficient additional taxes to meet the emergency spending for national defence."

The general welfare of the people, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, lies behind the army and navy as the ultimate line of defence. While production is back at 1929 level, he said, the unemployment of millions supplies a symptom of unadjusted difficulties in the economic system.

European Solution Rejected

"We refuse the European solution of using the unemployed to build up excessive armaments which eventually result in dictatorships.

"We encourage an American way—through an increase of national income which is the only way we can be sure will take up the slack. Much progress has been made; much remains to be done."

But he did not say how far the country had moved toward the goal he set a year ago in his message to Congress—a national income of $80,000,000,000.

At one point in his address Mr. Roosevelt said the time was long past when "any political party or any particular group can curry and capture public favor by labelling itself the "peace party" or the "peace bloc."

"That label," he said, "belongs to the whole United States and every right thinking man, woman and child within it." Out of all the military and diplomatic turmoil, propaganda and counter-propaganda of the present wars, Mr. Roosevelt went on, two facts, acknowledged by the world, stand out:

U.S. Good Neighbor Policy

1. Never before has the United States Government "done so much as in our recent past to establish and maintain the policy of the good neighbor with its sister nations."

2. In almost every country there is a true public belief that the United States has been, and will continue to be, "a potent and active factor in seeking the re-establishment of peace."

"In these recent years we have had a clean record of peace and good-will," he said. "It is an open book that cannot be twisted or defamed. It is a record that must be continued and enlarged."

No Guess as to Time of Peace

Although he emphasized at one point "the leadership which this nation can take when the time comes for a renewal of world peace," the President did not venture a guess on when the time might arrive.

He said he could understand the feeling of those who warn they would never consent again to the sending of American youth to fight on Europe's soil and added:

"But as I remember, nobody has asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking.

"The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Impact of Wars Abroad Felt.

Several times, however, the President observed that the United States could not help feel the impact of the wars abroad. That impact, he said at the start of his message, makes it natural to approach "the state of the union" through a discussion of foreign affairs.

We still believe with the framers of the constitution, he stressed, that "our best defence is the promotion of our general welfare and domestic tranquility."

"You are well aware," he said, "that dictatorships—and the philosophy of force which justifies and accompanies dictatorships—have originated in almost every case in the necessity for drastic action to improve internal conditions where democratic action for one reason or another has failed to respond to modern needs and modern demands."

Reference To Dictator.

That was one of several references to dictators. Near the conclusion of his address, touching on the same subject, the President said:

"This is the danger to which we in America must begin to be more alert. For the apologists for foreign aggressors, and equally those selfish and partisan groups at home who wrap themselves in a false mantle of Americanism to promote their own economic, financial or political advantage, are now trying European tricks upon us, seeking to muddy the stream of our national thinking, weakening us in the face of danger, by trying to set our own people to fighting among themselves.

"Such tactics are what have helped to plunge Europe into war. We must combat them, as we would the plague, if American integrity and security are to be preserved. We cannot afford to face the future as a disunited people.

"We must as a united people keep ablaze on this continent the flames of human liberty, of reason, of democracy and of fair play as living things to be preserved for the better world that is to come."

Canadian Skiers Offer to Form Unit

Toronto, Jan. 3—(CP)— Hundreds of Canadian skiers have offered their services to form a ski battalion in the Canadian Army similar to the units now inflicting reverses on invading Russian troops, it was announced today.

Fred A. Hall, President of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, said the facilities of the Association have been offered to the Department of National Defence. The Association has 30,000 members and hundreds already have volunteered for service in such a unit.

Expert ski instructors, who have served in European ski units, are members of the Canadian organization.

ROBT. SEITZINGER IS SENTENCED

Toronto, Jan. 3—(CP) — Robert Seitzinger, 21, a basketball star from Reading, Pa., today was sentenced to fifteen months definite and six months indefinite in the Ontario Reformatory for nine house-breakins.

Seitzinger came here about four months ago to play with a Toronto senior team. He was declared ineligible under the residence rule by the league governing body. He said he committed the burglaries to get money for clothes. He generally took jewellery, which he sold to second hand stores at cheap prices.

25-Year-Old Marine Record Is Broken

Port Dalhousie, Ont., Jan. 3 —(CP)—A 25-year-old marine record was broken here today when the Freighter Cadwell, of the Tees Transit Co., Hamilton, entered Port Dalhousie harbor from Toronto to tie-up for the winter season.

Veteran marine observers here said they were unable to recall any previous season for at least 25 years when a vessel resumed navigation at this port as late as January 3. They did recall marine activity as late as Christmas.

AUSTRALIA WILLING TO GIVE EVERYTHING IN WAR EFFORT

London, Jan. 3 (CP)—Australia will contribute all it can to the war effort in every way possible, High Commissioner Stanley Bruce said today in an Empire broadcast.

"I would tell you much about Australia's war effort," he said, "but I think I can best and most effectively summarize it in a few words by saying that it is and will be all that Australia can contribute, whether morally or materially, to the cause for which Great Britain and her gallant ally, France, are fighting.

"Australia has pledged her utmost to the endeavor because she knows that the Allies are fighting for all those things which Australians believe make life worth living, and in order to free the world from the domination of force and the constant fear of aggression."

OBITUARY

JOHN B. RATHBUN
(Toronto).

John Bell Rathbun, a former resident of Belleville, passed away suddenly as the result of a heart seizure this Wednesday morning at the family residence, 9 Lynwood Avenue, Toronto.

His father died some years ago and his mother later became Mrs. W. J. Gibson. His boyhood days were passed in Belleville and at college in Toronto. He was well liked and highly esteemed by many friends to whom the announcement of his sudden passing will bring sincere feelings of regret. In religion he was a member of the United Church and fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order.

Wounded Soldier's Chances Better Than in Last War

C.M.A. is Mobilized 8,500 Strong to Take Care of Their Needs

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—The wounded soldier's chances of recovery in this war are "infinitely greater" than in 1914-18, Dr. T. C. Routley, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said today.

The C.M.A. itself is mobilized, 8,500 strong, to keep death at a distance for Canadian troops on active service. Canadian medicine is providing the finest medical talent in the world and the Dominion government is providing the finest equipment.

All advances in medicine of the past 25 years are being utilized. According to Dr. Routley "marvellous improvements" in surgery, especially in post-operative care, will be practised at base hospitals and the methods of preventive medicine — weeding out the unfit before they go overseas—will save untold misery.

Thousands of Canadians lost limbs in the first Great War, but medical men believe amputations will be greatly reduced this time by prompt first-aid, blood transfusions and newly-developed anti-infection serums.

Thousands of others died of pneumonia and other lung diseases and these casualties will undoubtedly be reduced by the use of sulfapyradine, the new drug developed in the past few years and used with remarkable results.

Perhaps even more important have been the preventive measures taken by military authorities with C.M.A. cooperation. All ranks in the first division now in England were X-rayed for chest trouble before they left Canada and the unfit were weeded out.

On advice of medical experts, the defence department also stood aside all youths under 19, keeping them in training rather than sending them overseas for active service. Doctors advised that the health of such youths is more likely to break down than that of older men.

Blood banks, made possible through refrigeration of blood for transfusion purposes, have been prepared, gallons of the vital fluid being donated by young Canadians, many of them university students.

Montreal, Jan. 3 (CP)—The general regulation of Quebec's Fair Wage Board has been amended to embrace an additional 40,000 to 50,000 provincial workers and their employers, it was announced here today.

The announcement was made by Fernand Marrie, Private Secretary to Gustave Francq, Vice-Chairman of the Board, and a special officer of the Quebec Department of Labor.

Marrie disclosed also that Quebec's new Liberal government would propose at the next legislative session the changing of the Board's name to the "Quebec Minimum Wage Commission.'

Mayor Laing of St. Thomas to Take Increase Voted

St. Thomas, Ont., Jan. 3.—(CP) Mayor Laing, voted a $200 increase in his pay Monday evening despite his protests that the time for doing so was inopportune, will not refuse the extra cash. The Mayor admits the work he does as Mayor is worth all of the $850, plus $200 he receives as a member of the Public Utilities Commission and being a machinist in the Michigan Central Railway shops, he can stand it.

His objections were that the matter should not have been voted on at a meeting following so closely on re-election of the council. It would tend, he said to break down confidence in the council. Ald. Currah and Ald. Quinn, who voted against increasing the pay of alderman from $60 to $120 per year, will also take the extra money.

FAMILY ESCAPES IN NIGHT ATTIRE

Father and Mother Carry Two Children Half-Mile Over Frozen Ground

McGregor Bay, Ont., Jan. 3—(C.P.) — Barefooted and in flimsy nightclothes, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sears carried their two children more than a mile over frozen ground to the home of a neighbor after their own dwelling was destroyed by fire, it was learned today.

The weather was close to zero when the parents made the enforced journey early New Year's morning. Sears, a veteran of the first Great War, is a settler in the McGregor Bay District near Whitefish Falls in northern Ontario.

In the family is an eight-year-old daughter and a son 18 months old. They were awakened just in time to escape from their cabin. Friends are supplying them with temporary necessities and the men in the district are planning a building bee to provide them with a new cabin. A subscription list has been started to supply them with clothing and other necessities for the balance of the winter.

Capt. Von Rintelen Plotted Black and Tan Explosion According to Interview

New York, aJn. 3 (AP)—The New York Times said today in a special dispatch from London that Captain Franz Von Rintelen, former German secret agent, had declared in an interview that he plotted the Black Tom explosion that shook Jersey City shortly before the United States entered the first Great War.

Von Rintelen was quoted as saying that he planned in the spring of 1915 to blow up the Lehigh Valley railroad's docks in Jersey City, but that the destruction of the Kingsland plant was not part of his plan. The explosion occurred after Von Rintelen left the United States for Germany and was taken prisoner by the British.

(Millions of dollars worth of ammunition, property of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Montreal was destroyed in the Kingsland explosion. Germany recently was assessed damages for the Black Tom and Kingsland explosions and the Canadian company received a large award.)

Von Rintelen, who has foresworn allegiance to Germany, had offices here and belonged to the New York Yacht Club. All the time, Von Rintelen said in the interview, he was working as a saboteur.

The sabotage consisted of fomenting trouble on the waterfront to hold up shipments to the Allies, and of directing the laying of time fire bombs on ships leaving port with goods for the Allies.

But seeing that the flow of cargoes continued, the Times story said, Von Rintelen decided to blow up docks and warehouses from which war material was shipped.

"I wanted to destroy the source of supply but I issued orders that it be done without killing anyone," The Times quoted him as saying.

KIDNAP CHARGES ARE DISMISSED

Charges of Conspiracy and Fraud Against Three Will be Pressed

Whitby, Ont., Jan. 3 (CP)—With the Crown declining to offer further evidence, charges of kidnapping against Paul J. O'Neill and Hugh Watson, of Toronto, and Harry J. Gassien, of Manchester, were dismissed by Magistrate Ebbs today. Roy D. MacIntyre, of Toronto charged but not arrested, also was acquitted.

The charge was laid as a result of a week-long stay of James Foley, Uphill farmer, at Gassien's home at Manchester and a Toronto hotel in company of the accused last October. Foley, his brother and sister, testified one week ago.

Hearing is continuing on a charge of conspiracy to defraud Foley of five cheques to a total of $625 against Watson, O'Neill and Gassein, with Watson and Gassien also charged with forgery of a cheque for $110. Gassien also is facing a charge of theft of $100 and forgery of two cheques for $40 and $350.

MORE CANADIANS ARRIVE

Canadians of the Second Contingent have been given a mother's welcome to the Motherland.

Here is one of the marvels of the Empire, something that no Nazi can understand. They come because of the loyalty to the Empire and to the principles of liberty. Nazis know how to make the dweller of a state which Germany has overrun a soldier without thinking of changing his heart. German Nazis don't change the heart of an Austrian or Czech. But the British Empire is held together by the Crown and by principle and by the love of free institutions.

Canadians are like the people of other Dominions —loyal to the core.

Against this spontaneity and natural devotion is shown the dictatorial Nazi plan which can never develop liberty of mind or body because any Nazi empire would be represented by repression, and lack of every sense of democratic development which has been evolved. The world does go forward and Hitler is but a throwback.

The coming of the Canadians is the visible sign of the life of the British Empire at work in time of strife and turmoil. What is here demonstrated is what Hitler cannot understand and no Nazi can fathom. That has been the tragedy of the Nazis and the German people led by Hitler—that they have never been able to understand the British spirit. Hitler cannot understand the spirit in which the Dominions and the Motherland plan a great empire air scheme.

Whatever Hitler may have planned for 1940 he will find the might that the Allies have organized against him.

The whole Empire and the full force of France are in the 1940 program which will be demonstrated in every field of war effort.

HITLER IN SEPTEMBER 1939 AND NOW IN 1940

As the year opens the world sees Adolf Hitler in no better but a worse position than when he made the grave error of ravaging Poland and carving up that country with the Russians.

Before the war broke out Hitler was able to provoke the discussion and the thought of the world whenever he liked because of his wild notions and plans but when he went to war he faced an opponent who was to do things instead of talking them. Since Septem- is still his foe. Since September Hitler has occupied mainly the defence position without gaining accession to his cause or to his reputation. Rather his cause has steadily been losing.

Having made the gravest of errors in going to war and the second gravest in linking up with Russia, he has never been able to redeem himself. Clever as he thought himself and tricky as he has shown himself to be, when it comes to actual war he is a weaker foe in the opinion of many than the Imperial Germany of the Kaisers was.

Four months in 1939 won him nothing but a name for a 'blitzkrieg' and for barbarism in Poland. He goes into a twelvemonth with no brighter outlook.

The man who with his agile mind could give Europe an attack of nerves in Poland, in the Balkans, in Central Europe and in almost any quarter he would desire has now to try to stir up peace efforts through others. He has lost his reputation and his failure to show anything in Germany may tell in the long run. He is hemmed in by the walls of the Maginot line, by the pressure of his ally and by the presence of the running sore in Poland on his east side. On the south he has seemingly lost Italy and any possibility of Spanish sympathy.

Will Hitler who gambled in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland again make a huge gamble — a vast attempt westward against the line in France? Some think he will and thereby meet his fate.

THE ALLIES IN THE NEW YEAR

A new year has come in. Hitlerism has not crushed the last vestiges of human liberty and every land which loves freedom.

For that the world of the Allies and the neutrals must be grateful, no thanks to Hitler who prepared the worst, but to the great democratic states, Britain, France, heroic Poland and the staunch people of Finland by whose stand at the crossroads of the world civilization has been saved.

The world that seemed so shaky, so subject to 'nerves' for years has a greater grip of itself because Britain, France, Poland and Finland have dared to be their brothers' keeper. They are fighting the battle of civilization and breaking the evils of dictatorship and aggression, even if the cost is heavy.

The new year will move on. Allied courage will be maintained for there is no doubt that Britain and France will triumph and bring within this year or later peace back to earth.

One event is enough to prove the steadfastness of Britain, her general call of two million men to the colors so that there will be no loss, no maladjustments but efficiency. It is a sign that Britain has the will power to smash the destroyer of peace.

When Britain went to war Hitler made his one gigantic error. It is no wonder his hate for Britain is so great for she is one of the great factors which are to prevent his rulership of the world.

Hitler will not be lord of the earth and he will be able to thank Britain and France for putting him in the place to which he belongs. Their efforts this year will tell mightily.

FAMOUS AMERICANS' PORTRAITS ON STAMPS

The first five of the thirty-five famous American postage stamps will be issued in 1940 in honor of artists, authors, composers, educators, inventors, poets and scientists. The initial group will present portraits of Washington Irving on a one-cent green, James Fenimore Cooper, on the two-cent red, Ralph Waldo Emerson on the three-cent purple, Louisa May Alcott on the five-cent blue and Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain) on the ten-cent brown. First day sales of these stamps will be at places associated with the lives and work of these writers.

The series is one which will familiarize Americans and others with the names of writers who have created American literature. The other thirty of the series will present portraits of people in the American gallery of fame.

Difference Between Functional and Organic Diseases

You may consult your physician about some stomach or heart symptoms and are told that the symptoms are real, not imaginary, but are only functional, not organic.

What do functional and organic mean?

When there is a functional disturbance of stomach, heart, or other organ, it means that the disturbance is not caused by any change in the structure or tissues of the organ, but by some other cause—nervousness, some disturbance of a nearby or distant organ.

When an organic ailment is present, it means that there is a change in, or something wrong with, the tissues of the organ which causes the symptoms.

For instance, if the heart is beating rapidly, due to an overactive thyroid gland, it is a functional disturbance of the heart; if the heart has to beat rapidly because it has lost some of its muscular power, then it is organic heart disease.

It is, therefore, most important that patients understand the difference between functional and organic.

"To tell a person who has real heart disease that his heart is normal may not be so bad although it may prevent that person from taking proper care of himself and he may expose himself to risks he should not take; but to tell a person with a perfectly normal heart that he has heart disease may produce a neurosis (fear of a disease that is not really present) which, in many cases, may make him a semi-invalid. The difficulty is that so many of the symptoms of heart disease are also symptoms of other conditions. Pain in left breast suggests heart disease whereas if pain were in right breast it would be called neuralgia". I am quoting Dr. J. Murray Kinsman, Louisville, Ky., in Medical World.

Similarly, while breathlessness is a sign of failure of the heart muscle, breathlessness may be due to too much acid food or to blocked nose passages.

Try to remember the difference between functional and organic diseases. Functional disturbances are not serious but their cause should be sought.

Exacting Conditions Of North Sea Patrol

When Mr. Churchill reviewed the first few months of the war at sea he emphasized Britain's essential charge of maintaining her seaborne traffic in face of enemy opposition. Showing that we have always over 2000 ships at sea and between 100 and 150 ships moving every day in and out of our harbors in the United Kingdom alone, he referred to the action which was being taken to deal with U-boats, and added this commendation:

"In the last week they (the U-boats) have been active, and we are inclined to think that five certainly have met their fate, either from our flotillas or from the ardent, skilful, and invaluable co-operation, of the Royal Air Force, and particularly of the Coastal Command."

The Coastal Command deserve Mr. Churchill's honorable mention. From aerodromes and flying-boat bases scattered around the British Isles, the pilots and crew of the Coastal Command squadrons fly out every day to scour the seas and keep the Navy and Admiralty informed of the movements of every British, neutral or enemy vessel within hundreds of miles of our shores. The task is an immense one and probably involves more flying hours than the combined flying of all the other Commands.

It is essential, of course, that although these squadrons come within the immediate control of the Royal Air Force, there should be the closest co-operation between that Service and the Admiralty, and that liaison is of the highest order. There was a time when the Royal Navy was described as "the watchdog of the British Empire." Today, by force of circumstances, the Navy has become the hunter, while the aircraft of the Coastal Command (always ably assisted by those of the Fleet Air Arm) play the part of thoroughbred pointers.

Very naturally, much of their work is of a routine nature, but it is none the less valuable. Every sea approach to the British Isles, from the Icelandic waters to the English Channel and from the Norwegian coast to the storm-swept North Atlantic, is watched. And every suspicious movement is noted, charted, and communicated to the Navy.

The duties fall into two distinct sections—reconnaissance and convoy. Reconnaissance, which may be carried out over moderate distances by specially equipped aeroplanes operating from land aerodromes, or over longer courses by flying-boats, involves many subsidiary tasks. One of these is to watch for the appearance of German naval vessels, usually submarines, and to locate enemy minefields.

In at least one instance a Coastal Command squadron on reconnaissance went to the aid of a British convoy (although not part of the convoy) and saved it from disaster. The course chosen for the convoy had been reconnoitred by naval vessels and found to be mine-free; but a clever U-boat commander had succeeded in slipping in at the heels of the destroyers and laying his "eggs." Fortunately they were spotted from the air and the squadron was able to fly back, signal to the convoy, and divert it at the last minute.

On several occasions submarines have been observed from the air and destroyed with bombs by Coastal Command aircraft. This effective method of dealing with the U-boat is restricted at the moment by the long hours of darkness—particularly in the Northern waters — but in this same area the life of the submarines will become more hazardous as the hours of daylight increase.

The U-boat must rise to the surface each day to charge its batteries, and during mid-summer in the North the risk of doing so without being detected will become very great. Air reconnaissance in these regions will then involve about 20 hours' continuous flying every day, but there is no reason to doubt that the personnel of the Coastal Command, who have already demonstrated that zeal commended by Mr. Churchill, will accept these onerous duties with enthusiasm.

Another important aspect of reconnaissance carried out by the Coastal Command—one that has become increasingly important as a result of the decision to stop Germany's export trade—is the assistance given the Admiralty in operating the contraband control system. While about their duties, the air crews carefully locate the positions of all neutral vessels and communicate description and courses to the proper quarter.

Convoy work from the air is necessarily limited by the range of the aircraft and to some extent by the overlapping speed of the aerial "companions", but the system has undoubtedly proved of the greatest value since it went into operation, and there are indications that it may be extended in the future. Suggestions have been made, and no doubt have been considered, that dirigibles and autogiros should also be pressed into the convoy service. The airship would offer means of increasing the range of the air convoy, while the autogiro, it is believed, would allow easier contact to be maintained with the vessels.

The types of aircraft used by the Coastal Command range between long-distance flying boats and faster, but more restricted, land aircraft. Although their main purpose is reconnaissance these aircraft are well defended, and even capable of putting up a good show in combat. Their ability to operate as a striking force has already been demonstrated on several occasions when contact has been made with enemy aircraft, and, indeed, is encouraged by Air Marshal Sir Frederick W. Bowhill, Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief. To this end the Coastal Command has its own "battle squadrons" which can be called upon to assist in intercepting enemy raiders far out at sea.

In view of the fact that huge areas of water must continually be patrolled—flights extending up to and over 1,000 miles if the return course is included—it is necessary that the pilots and crews should excel in the duties of airmanship, and experience has shown that the Coastal Command personnel maintain a high degree of navigational skill. Operating over water and often flying without a landfall for three or four hours, the navigators must do their work with the greatest precision and attention to detail, and their task is made the more difficult by the reduction, so far as possible, of direction-finding wireless communication.

Endurance is another quality required of this Coastal Command crews. Flights up to eight hours are not unusual. In the large flying boats the crews are not entirely excommunicated from the pleasures of life ashore (it is possible to have a dish of fried fish or ham and eggs served while flying above the North Sea), but very often the weather conditions are of such an extreme nature that the greatest physical stress is placed upon the airmen.

Already, in the brief experience of war operations, a few of the Coastal Command aeroplanes and their crews have gone through trials of endurance, both mechanical and physical, which would never have been attempted in times of peace. For example, in one aerodrome on the East Coast of Scotland a few weeks ago, a squadron returned from a North Sea patrol under conditions which were described as "utterly impossible." A gale of 90-95 knots was blowing. One machine, having landed, was blown 30 feet into the air. The propellers of a group of heavy bombers parked on the fringe of the aerodrome were turning slowly by the force of the wind—although, owing to their high compressions, it was impossible to turn the blades by human effort.

But the patrol landed, and the reports were written. And another "routine page" was added to the log of the Coastal Command. —From the Glasgow Herald.

Phone Call Stops Invasion by Hours

I am now able to give details of the circumstances in which the German government decided at the last moment to abandon its plans for an attack, first on Holland and subsequently on Belgium.

The first phase of this attack—against Holland—was to have been launched on Saturday, November 11.

According to most reliable information, the decision to make two bites of the Low Countries was taken by the German government for two reasons.

First, it was considered better tactics to engage only one enemy at a time, instead of two.

Second, the Nazi leaders believed that any attempt by Britain and France to go to the help of Holland by attacking through Belgium would be resisted by the Belgian army.

Thus the Germans counted on a measure of protection by Belgium against Allied intervention, while they were completing the occupation of an isolated Holland.

Apparently it was not fully understood in Berlin that Dutch-Belgian relations, in the matter of mutual assistance against aggression had undergone important changes following the exchange of views between King Leopold and Queen Wilhelmina.

When information on the probable German intentions seemed to be confirmed by reports of German troop concentrations on the frontiers of the Low Countries, King Leopold summoned M. Pierlot, the Premier, and Lieut.-General Denis, Minister of National Defence, to the Palais de Bruxelles.

This was towards the end of the afternoon on Friday, November 10. The purpose was to determine the attitude which Belgium should adopt in the event of an isolated attack on Holland.

King Leopold and his Ministers were presumably guided in their decisions by knowledge of the views and wishes held by General van Overstraeten. These decisions were understood to have fallen under two headings:

If the German forces attacked Holland but did not come south of Nimegue and the Rhine, Belgium would not move.

If the German advance were directed south of Nimegue, and especially across Dutch Brabant, Belgium would order immediate general mobilization, declare that her own security was threatened, and appeal to France and Britain for support.

While these deliberations were in progress, under the presidency of King Leopold, the remainder of the Cabinet was meeting under the vice president of the council, M. Janson. There they were joined by M. Pieriot.

General Denis meanwhile proceeded direct to his department, where he set to work on the preparation of a proclamation of general mobilization, so that this should be ready instantly if required.

The Cabinet Council, which endorsed the provisional arrangements settled between the King and his Premier and Defence Minister, broke up towards midnight.

Later M. Pierlot and M. Spaak, the Foreign Minister, again met General Denis to settle final executive details.

While this last conference was proceeding, the German Ambassador in Brussels telephoned to Berlin, informing his government of the decisions, which he had been able to learn, taken an hour earlier by the Council of Ministers.

It is understood that the news came as a bombshell. Until that moment the German leaders had been firmly convinced that Belgium would maintain her absolute neutrality so long as her territory was not violated.

Indeed, it was believed in Berlin that Belgium would resist any British attempt to go to the help of Holland by the direct route across Belgium, even if the German plan to march through Dutch Brabant were employed.

The news from Brussels was received when General Keitel, Reichenau, and Blaskovitz were assembled in Berlin for a final conference to settle last details of the attack to be launched the following day. They immediately concluded that the plan on which they had decided would no longer be feasible.

At about the same time, von Ribbentrop received advice, from a source which could not be disregarded, indicating that a German attack on Holland might have repercussions in the United States, the outcome of which it was not possible to predict.

In this conjunction of circumstances, the German leaders decided that the offensive must be postponed indefinitely.—(By a diplomatic correspondent in The London Daily Telegraph and Morning Post.)

75,000 West Indians in Harlem Have Regard for British Traditions

New York, Jan. 3 (CP)—They don't stop for tea at four o'clock and most of them wouldn't know what to call a muffin if they saw it, but they do play cricket up there in Harlem and have high regard for British traditions and the Crown.

"They" are the 75,000 West Indians who form a large part of the 300,000 population of Harlem, the city within a city in midtown Manhattan. About half of them, admitted into the United States before the days of quotas and other immigration restrictions, still are British subjects.

It's hardly likely that a New York West Indian battalion will be formed to fight for Great Britain in the war, but the colony supports the British war aims. Already many West Indians have sought to enlist for war service preferably in the Canadian Active Service Force and the British Consulate daily handles many inquiries.

New York gave a vociferous welcome to King George and Queen Elizabeth last June and not the least vocal were the West Indians, some 30 of whom were in the official welcoming delegation of British subjects. The colony sorrowed with the Empire at the death of King George V and in Harlem's churches special services were held. The previous year, the colony crowded the churches to rejoice on the occasion of His Majesty's Jubilee.

The West Indians never forget "home" and news from the islands particularly Jamica is prominent in their newspaper, the New York Amsterdam News, of which one of the owners is Dr. P. M. H. Savory an honor graduate of McGill University Montreal. Among the colony's activities is a movement to obtain Dominion status for Jamaica.

Officials of the British Consulate keep in close touch with the colony and frequently are represented at social affairs conducted by the many benevolent organizations. The West Indians like to have the Consular officers on hand—the more medals they wear the better.

Sane, Careful Driving by Motorists Over Holiday Wins Police Approval

"One of the quietest best-behaved New Year celebrations we have seen in years," chorused the various police departments of the city yesterday.

"Not a single cracked fender," stated Highway Traffic Officer Sam Ervine, commenting on the fine way in which motorists co-operated with officials in observing safe driving during the holiday and especially on New Year's Eve.

Despite the fact that high winds and other atmospheric conditions made driving more or less of a hazard, motorists in general paid strict attention to warnings given, and drove carefully: "The driving public deserves commendation for the fine way in which all rules of safe driving was observed, and its general deportment over the holiday," Officer Ervine said.

Inspector Frank Gardner of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police was likewise loud in his praise of the general observance of driving and other hazards. "We did not have a single call," he said, "and the public should realize by the total lack of accidents in this district that it pays to drive safely at all times. We extend our appreciation of the safe way in which vehicles were driven in and about the city over the holiday."

Chief of police Kidd was also enthusiastic over the general behavior over the holiday. "There was a number of 'boys' who celebrated a little too well, but these were lesser in number than a year ago. Nothing of a serious nature happened over the weekend in the city. Drivers were careful and I am glad the motoring public in general heeded the warning. It would be a good idea if they used the same care and caution the year round as was used over the New Year holiday."

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Southeastern Europe attracts increasing attention as a possible arena for the decisive battles of the Second Great War.

The first few months of the conflict leave the armies facing one another along the border between France and Germany in a condition which makes mobile warfare impossible. Fortifications are so immense and so deep some experts believe an offensive would be nothing but useless slaughter.

On the other hand in the opposite corner of Europe conditions favor a war of movement such as the Germans waged in Poland. Such a war could not be waged, however, without some presently neutral countries, such as Turkey and Rumania becoming involved.

Russia's serious check in Finland removes some of the fears entertained about a Russian attack on Rumania or Turkey but the Turks are said to be strengthening their border defences.

In Syria a big French army stands ready to throw its weight into any conflict which develops in southeastern Europe.

In the First Great War the decisive factor was fighting in the west plus the Allied blockade of Germany. In the east German and Austrian arms were on the whole victorious. Imperial Russia was defeated in the field and destroyed by revolution from within. German and Austrian troops overran Serbia and Rumania.

Should deadlock continue in the west, however, the Second Great War may be decided in an area which permits of greater freedom of movement for the speedy, mechanized armies of 1940.

Sweet for a Season

by Joseph McCord

Her father's account was brief. He told as little as he might, even when confronted with searching questions. He knew very little of the details of Gern's experience except that it had left him in a condition from which he had recovered slowly. Too slowly.

"Why do you reckon he wanted to buy the farm?" Ed demanded in his turn.

"Oh, he saw my ad. Some sort of silly gesture, I guess."

"Umph. Maybe he knew more than I do about your reasons for selling. It would be rather to the point if I asked you about that. And I don't intend to. I'm staying in the clear from now on. All washed up. As long as you're right, I'm through worrying."

"Yes? That's what you think, darling. You're not quite through with your plotting. I shall have to see Gern. And you'll fix it up for me."

Ed slowly shook his head.

"Oh, it should be easy. He's probably at Columbia City. If he is, then tell him you must see him at once, important......you can frame it up nicely."

"I'd rather not bring him here, dear. And I'd rather not tell you my reasons."

"You mean on account of mama. I think perhaps you're right. Tell him you'll meet him out at his farm. That should sound logical."

"Me meet him!"

"That's what you'll tell him."

"I see." Ed studied his daughter's face attentively. It still was faintly flushed, her eyes bright. But the brightness in their clear gray depths didn't suggest illness or undue excitement. There was eagerness and......something else. It disturbed Ed Lee, gave him a sudden feeling of apprehension.

"Just a minute, Glada," he began slowly. "This seems to be a time for showing our hands. I suppose I can figure why you'd like to talk to Jones, after this. About the farm. If there's any other reason...... and interest in him...."

"Yes, sir?"

"Well, you've hardly forgotten that he never came to see you after you were hurt."

"No. And I haven't forgotten the elaborate defense you made for him."

"That was only on your account. I thought you were worried. After all, you don't know much about the chap. None of us do."

"So what are you leading up to?"

"Well, if you ask me, what about Stirling? He's a pretty fine chap, Glada. And he hasn't disguised his feelings toward you."

"Oh, dear. You're getting to be as bad as mama. Do I have to marry anybody? Can't I go on living my own life the way I want to?"

"I've sort of hoped you might care for Stirling. He's a prince. But if you don't feel that he's the man......"

"Listen, Daddy. This is just for you. I admire Mr. Stirling more than any man I know. In fact, I think he's rather wonderful. You'll never know how nice he has been to me. He's told me how he feels about me, but I couldn't give him much encouragement. I still can't. I did think maybe I could, while I was in the hospital. Maybe it was because I was lying down." A forced smile touched the corners of her mouth.

"I don't get you."

"You see, I told mama once that I never would marry a man I couldn't look up to, taller than I. Mr. Stirling looked that way when I was in bed. Since I've been up ...... it must have spoiled the illusion. I don't want to keep him dangling and I hate to hurt his feelings. You don't know how I hate to. But I can't give him the answer he wants. Not yet."

"Okay, Longfellow. I wish he were tall enough to meet specifications. But you trust to your heart and nothing else."

"Thanks, Daddy. Now you be a good boy and get Gern on the wire if you can. Before there is danger of mama's getting here. The poor dear."

It was nearly fifteen minutes later when Ed returned to the library.

"Well, I got him," he announced gumly. "I hope I've about finished with this perjury."

"You shouldn't have tried it in the first place," Glada reminded sweetly. "And what did Scud Jones have to say?"

"Oh, he's coming over. Said he would be at the farm not later than ten tomorrow morning."

"That's working beautifully. I'll take you to the office in the morning, counselor, then go for a drive. That's your last job. Help me get away with that, then I'll dismiss you."

x x x

It was a little after ten the following morning when Gern Jones, piloting a yellow roadster, appeared at the farm gate. He bounded up on the porch and into the kitchen where he amazed Irma by seizing her and kissing her before she could protest.

"Hija, old dear? Surprised? Me, too. I got a call from Mr. Lee to meet him here at ten sharp, but I don't see his car."

"Bill drove it up near the barn" Irma explained, with an air of nervousness that went unnoticed.

"Oh. Then he's waiting for me in the office."

"Yes. In the office."

Gern strode swiftly through the dining-room and opened the door without ceremony. "Well, here I ......" He stopped short. Stood in bewildered amazement. Staring.

"Oh. How are you, Gern?"

"Glada......"

"Are you surprised? I guess I am trespassing on your property. I didn't think......"

"Oh, damn the property! Excuse me, please. Oh, Glada!" He came close to the desk, leaned over and gripped its edges with the fingers of both hands, looked down hungrily into her eyes. "How are you?"

"I am feeling quite well, thank you. I believe that is the first time you have asked me, isn't it?"

"Don't rub it in!" he begged miserably. "I've known what you must think of me. I didn't have the nerve. I didn't think you'd care, after......"

"Why that's all right. I'm ever so glad that you weren't hurt worse than you were. I see that you still carry the marks of our spill." She was looking intently at the scar over his eye.

"That's nothing, compared to the marks you can't see," he declared grimly. "Cain, or whoever it it was, got off easy."

"I didn't understand things then as well as I do now", Glada was relenting at the sight of his misery. "It's all right. I'm not blaming you for what happened. Please forget it."

"That's awfully good of you." He straightened up. "Perhaps I should ask if Mr. Lee is here. He sent me a message—called me up, I mean. Said it was something important."

"Oh, I arranged that," Glada explained. "I didn't think that either of you gentlemen would object to subterfuge or so. I wanted to know something, if you were willing to tell me."

"And that was?"

"Exactly why did you buy this place? Just to save time, we both know that you did."

"All right, then. We both know it. And I knew how wrapped up in the place you were. All that line about wanting to give up business was the bunk .You were taking it on the chin because you had to have money. You wouldn't have borrowed from me, even if you believed I could raise it. It was the only way I could help, Glada. And I figured in some dumb way that maybe I could get the property back in your hands. I couldn't bear to tnink of a stranger having it."

"Don't you think it would have been simpler had you told me about yourself?"

"No. More dumbness, I guess. I loved you. If you could have cared at all, I'd rather it had been because I was what you thought I was. And when you couldn't care, there didn't seem to be any use. I was too late anyhow. And I stayed too long."

"Too late?"

"Well, you didn't admit it. But anybody with half an eye could tell he was something more than a friend of yours."

"Do you mind telling me whom you are talking about?"

"Sure. The preacher.... Stirling. And you can take it from me, he's one square guy. Though I've seen the day when I could have killed him pretty happily," Gern admitted with a wry smile. "Glada, I'm not going to ask you any questions. I just hope you know enough about me to believe that what happened wasn't all my fault. And that I've suffered plenty. Too much to ask?"

"No," Glada returned in a low tone. "Oh, no."

"Thanks. You'll never knew what that means to me. I don't change very easily. So we'll call everything mopped up."

"Mopped up," she echoed in a dull little voice.

Glada rose slowly from her chair, took a step to the end of the desk. There she leaned back, supporting herself with her two hands on its surface. She looked into Gern's face. But it told her nothing.

"Scud?"

He turned a little white at the naming, but all he said was, "Well?"

"What are you going to do, now? Where will you go?"

"I don't know. Why?"

"The last day we talked.... I asked you if....if there wasn't some special job you'd like...."

"I remember." The intense longing in his brown eyes brought Glada's hands out in a fumbling little gesture of appeal.

"Oh! Don't you still..want it?"

INSTALMENT 30

Gern Jones was holding Glada Lee closely in his arms. Her head was against his shoulder, his cheek against her hair.

"Don't move for another minute," he begged. "We can talk better like this. And maybe I can get used to it. I'm still afraid I'm going to wake up and go on wanting you. I don't believe it....your wanting

"I didn't know it," Glada murmured. "Truly, I didn't. It came to me all at once that you were going away again, that you'd never be coming back. I endured that once. If it happened again, I'd die. I suppose I love you."

"That sounds like the symptoms," he assured her soberly. "I know I love you....you funny little man-hater!" He spoke the words dreamily, caressing her hair with his lips.

"Well....it was nice while it lasted." She managed a broken little laugh. "I admit I flung myself at your head. I don't suppose you'll ever forget it."

"Can't tell. I'm pretty forgetful, or I wouldn't have kept you on your feet like this. Sit down a minute and we'll get organized."

"Just a second...." Glada stood erect, a hand on either of Gern's shoulders. She tipped back her head a trifle, looked up into his face. "It's all right," she smiled. "I was just checking up to make sure."

"Make sure of what? A kiss?"

"No. Don't get the idea that I'm entirely brazen."

"Well, I am." He drew her close and kissed her. "You sure are nice kissin'," he sighed. "You may sit down now. What do you think we ought to do first about things in general?"

"I don't know. I feel just now that I'd like to stay here with you and run a chicken farm forever and ever. But I guess that ain't practical. I imagine poor daddy is probably walking the floor about now. We'll have to let him know."

"Oh, I'm not worried about him" Gern observed cheerfully. "He knows I love you. I told him so."

"Oh, yes. Told him you turned me down nicely. I thought I knew why, then."

"It seems to me you have some quaint ideas about managing a love affair. Perhaps not, I've not had much experience."

"Neither have I, if that's a dig. Your dad is tops. I'm worried about the rest of your family. I've a hunch that your mother doesn't think too well of me. And a rose by the name of Scud Jones probably won't smell any sweeter."

"Mama may prove a little difficult, just at first."

"Disappointed because you didn't take the preacher?"

"Perhaps." A shadow crossed Glada's face. She had very nearly forgotten Mr. Stirling in the experience, the amazing revelation of this hour. "I still think we'd better go and see daddy first," she decided slowly.

"Do you feel up to it, dear? I'm afraid you've had a rather strenuous morning, even if you do look very well and very beautiful."

"Oh, yes."

"Okay. Will you trust yourself in the car of your future husband-man, if he promises to drive soberly? Bill can take your car home. Or would you feel safer with him?" as he saw her hesitate. "I won't feel hurt. For that matter, I could leave my car here for the present."

"It isn't that, Gern. But would you mind if I went on ahead, alone? There's something..I have to do." She tried to keep her voice steady, but her lip quivered in spite of her.

"Sure darling. Anything you like. Always."

"You're sweet, Gern. I'll meet you at daddy's office about twelve. He doesn't go to lunch until half past."

"You may find me sitting at the bottom of the steps nursing a black eye."

"I don't believe so. You can stay here a while and practice the story on Irma if you like. Will you call Bill down to the gate?"

Glada never forgot that ride back to Dale City, fighting down the dread of what was to come. But she had to do it; it was the only fair thing and the longer it was put off, the more difficult it would be. Her newly found happiness would have no real sweetness until this final obligation was discharged.

This time, she did not care who saw her going into Mr. Stirling's house. She sent up a little prayer that he might be at home. He was. But she had very nearly missed him. He came to the door, carrying his hat in his hand.

"Well!" he exclaimed in pleased surprise. "This is an unexpected treat. Come in."

"Thank you. May I speak to you just a moment, Mr. Stirling?"

"Of course. Walk into the sanctum. You know," he added with a laugh, "this is proof that dawdling is a virtue. If I had not been loitering here aimlessly for the past quarter of an hour, I would have missed this."

Something he saw in Glada's face, as he placed a chair for her, caused him to step over and close the door quietly before taking his own seat at the desk.

"It surely is a pleasure to see you out and around like this, Glada. Are you beginning to feel quite like yourself again?"

"I....I think so. Mr. Stirling, I came on an errand this morning." Unconsciously she used the same words she had when she sat in this room that other time. The day she brought the thousand dollars. That had seemed a dreadful ordeal, but this was so much more difficult. It came to her now that Mr. Stirling always had a way somehow of knowing what was in her mind, of helping her. But he wouldn't guess, this time. And he wasn't trying to help. He just sat there looking at her.

"You have been kind to me, Mr. Stirling.....in so many ways," was her blundering start. "I have felt that I ought to be able to....to do anything in the world I could to repay you...."

"Glada! What....?"

"No, no! Please let me tell you. I want to be fair and honest because you have been." Her words were tumbling out impetuously. "I had to come this morning and tell you that I never can..can do what you want me to! I wish I could.."

"Stop, Glada my dear! Please! I understand what you want to tell me. You are being very fine and honest, but I won't let you punish yourself like this."

"But you don't know that.."

"But I do, my dear. And I won't take credit for having had any revelation. I thought I knew. Then, this morning, I chanced to see a Young Lochinvar speeding by with a yellow courser. That verified my first conclusion. Am I right?"

He finished with a crooked little smile that caught at Glada's heart.

"Yes," she answered in a low voice. "I didn't know..until this morning. Please believe me."

"Why, of course I believe you. Hearts are unaccountable things. They must have their way. Not so long ago, you were good enough to tell me that you trusted my sincerity. I am glad about that, for I want to wish you happiness."

Sudden tears sprang to Glada's eyes, but she winked them away resolutely.

"You are good," she said simply.

"Oh, no," Stirling smiled. "I merely try to be. It is part of my job. May I ask if Mr. Jones will be in Dale City for a time? I hope I may have an opportunity to offer my congratulations. I consider him quite an unusual young man. Perhaps you do, too."

"Oh, yes, I do." Glada colored in confusion. "I guess he must be ....after what happened this morning."

Stirling's amused laugh served to clear the atmosphere. He asked a familiar question:

"Still good friends, aren't we?"

"Oh, yes! Of course we are!"

"Then it's all right."

"I must be going," Glada announced hurriedly.

"Glada," he said musingly, "I hate to be wrong about things. That is, if I can help it. I believe, in one of my overconfident moods, I ventured to tell you that some day I was going to marry you. I did, didn't I?"

"Yes. Yes you did." Her gray eyes widened.

"Then, when the time comes, I hope you will let me. Officiate, I mean." The blue eyes were smiling.

"Why, yes! Yes! If I have anything to say about it."

x x x

"No, I haven't been upstairs," Gern told Glada when Bill helped her from the car at the bank. "As a matter of fact, I gossiped with Cobb and Irma longer than I intended. Just got here a minute ago."

"Fraidy cat! All right, I'll protect you."

"Well, here we are, Counselor."

"None of that," Ed remonstrated, rising to his feet. "I'm your dad and an innocent bystander, after this. Hello, Scud Jones. How are you?"

"Particularly fine, I'd say, Mr. Lee."

"I'll tell you why he says that, Daddy." Glada helped herself to a seat on the arm of Ed's chair. "It's because I proposed to him this morning. Please be nice about it. He's accepted me."

Ed Lee's response was to lean back far enough to look up steadily into his daughter's eyes. Something he saw in their gray depths seemed to satisfy him.

"Okay, Longfellow," he said with a little catch in his voice. "I can take it if you can."

Glada gave him a little hug with the arm that rested across his stout shoulders.

"What's mama going to say?" she questioned doubtfully.

"Well...." Ed squirmed uneasily. "I thought I was through with all this undercover stuff. But I got to figuring about what was going to happen at the farm. So I made an excuse to go home and sort of hinted it to mama....just in case, you know. I didn't think it was quite fair not to prepare her."

"Oh, you didn't, Daddy! That's marvelous! Was she..was she.."

"Yes, she was. But that Scudder Algernon stuff seemed to soothe her quite a bit. Said something about ice cream for lunch.... just in case."

AT THE BELLE

"The Flying Deuces", Funny.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy always provide genuine entertainment. Their latest effort, "The Flying Deuces", a feature comedy which opens next at the Belle Theatre proves no exception. In it the comedians are funnier than ever; in fact, the picture is probably one of the best of their comedies to date.

The story concerns a couple of American tourists in Paris. One is hopelessly in love with an innkeeper's daughter. His suit spurned, he and his companion turn to the French Foreign Legion for solace. In Morocco, they get into all kinds of trouble, eventually foiling a sentence of death by escaping in an endurance airplane.

As can be imagined there is no end to the opportunities for amusing situations. The comedy team takes full advantage of these, and caps the picture with a laugh sequence that is best left unrevealed.

A. Edward Sutherland, as director of the RKO Radio release, again asserts his ability with comedy. Boris Morros, the producer, has provided lavish settings and a splendid supporting cast.

The musical score is deserving of particular comment. Music is often used to speak louder than words, and pantomimic action, at which Laurel and Hardy excel, is excellently augmented by the unique score.

Jean Parker appears to excellent advantage as the inn-keeper's pert daughter. Reginald Gardiner, as her jealous husband and officer of the Legion, proves a worthy foil for the comics. Others contributing neat characterizations include Clem Wilen-Check, James Finlayson and Michael Visaroff.

"Doctor Christian" on Screen.

The trials of a small town physician and the difficulties he encounters in trying to take care of the medical needs of the community without adequate equipment form a background to the warmly human story.

In his fight to bring a hospital to the town of River's End, Doctor Christian faces the problems typical of numerous country doctors throughout the country. The situations in the film are said to parallel many of those in real life.

Dorothy Lovett, Robert Baldwin, Enid Bennett, Paul Harvey and Marcia Mae Jones support Hersholt in this picture, an RKO Radio release.

An all-new edition of the March of Time will be exhibited on the same program.

"Swanee River" Leaving.

The best loved songs of Stephen C. Foster, the great American troubadour, are heard in "Swanee River", the 20th Century-Fox Technicolor production, featuring Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds and Al Jolson at the Belle Theatre tonight, for the last times.

Ameche, who plays the composer, and Jolson, who plays E. P. Christy, minstrel king of that colorful day, sing several of the songs, and other melodies are rendered by the famous Hall Johnson Choir.

Among the numbers sung are "The Old Folks At Home", (Swanee River), "Old Black Joe", "My Old Kentucky Home", "Oh! Susanna!", "De Camptown Races", "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" and "Ring, Ring De Banjo". Also heard in the film are Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer" and "Soiree Polka".

A special extra attraction on the same program are the special film "The Suicide of the Graf Spee", showing the actual destruction of the battleship, also intimate camera studies of Captain Langsdorff, and other interesting events. The most beautiful girls in the world are seen in the technicolor film, "Fashion Forecast for Spring". A funny cartoon concludes the program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Real Glory."

Fast-moving action, suspenseful drama and red-blooded romance blended into screen entertainment that can be called great, is presented now at the McCarthy Theatre in the Samuel Goldwyn production of "The Real Glory" which co-stars Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds and David Niven.

Cooper plays the type of outdoor role which has made him one of the screen's top-notch stars, portraying a doctor who has joined the army and come to work in the Philippines to sharpen his experience.

Opposite Cooper, Miss Leeds and David Niven turn in capital performances, the brunette beauty as a visiting American, and Niven as one of Cooper's buddies. Other, first-rate portrayals are handled by such outstanding players as Reginald Owen, Broderick Crawford, Kay Johnson, Vladimir Sokoloff, Russell Hicks and Henry Kolker. Brilliant sets and excellent photography mark the production throughout, and special words of praise are due Paul Widlicska and James Basevi for the authentic settings and special effects.

Directed with fine tempo and pace by He y Hathaway, "The Real Glory" unfolds the story of the Philippine Scouts, the unsung heroes who restored law and order in the Philippines back in 1906 when the Moro tribesmen went on the rampage and the native constabulary led by American officers, put down the uprising.

"The Real Glory" was filmed from the screen play written by Jo Swerling, who turned in a story packed with thrills, drama, action, color and romance from the first shot to the final fadeout. Samuel Goldwyn gave the production his usual lavish and expensive treatment, so that the picture throughout is beautifully mounted, exhibiting brilliant shots of a native tropic village, a typical army post, the wild jungles of the Sulu Kingdom where the Moros practiced their weird religious rites, and Fort Mysang where most of the shooting took place and where the picture reaches its smash climax.

The romantic scenes between Cooper and Miss Leeds are played with verve and sincerity, and the sequences showing the barbaric ritual of the Moros in their jungle retreat are guaranteed to give audiences thrills and chills.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

House of Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1—What do you say when you wish to express your sympathy to some one who has had a death in the family?

2—If you wish to go to the home to view the body of the deceased, is it proper to walk into the house without ringing the doorbell? That is, if no one is at the door to attend to the visitors.

A Reader

1—If you meet the bereaved friend on the street or in a store or office or in any other public place, it is kinder not to mention the friend's loss or sorrow unless the friend mentions it first and thereby gives you the privilege of mentioning it. We have no right to intrude on this holy ground. In our greeting and in our warm-hearted handshake we can express our sympathy and understanding. Then, if the friend mentions the loss, we can say, "You have [illegible] so much in my thoughts, Ma[illegible]r, and you have my deepest sy[illegible]thy".

The point is that we should give the privilege of first mentioning the loss to the person most concerned. We must remember that to some people it is agony to mention a loss or sorrow so near the heart, while other people find relief in their friends' words of understanding and sympathy.

If, by your question, you mean what should we say when we go to see a friend, much of what I have said above applies also to this visit to the home. Again a warm-hearted handshake and an understanding manner as we say, "Please know, Mary, dear, what deep sympathy I have for you, and how much you are in my heart. I do wish that there were something you would let me do for you . . . is there?" The friend's reply gives you the cue as to whether he wishes to talk with you about the loss, or prefers to speak of it as little as possible.

2—We should not, especially under these circumstances, walk into the house of mourning without ringing the bell, or without knocking on the door, if the bell has been silenced. Unless, of course, you have been told that you may do so, or unless there is a sign over the bell giving this permission.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How About Adopting a Baby?

If you have no children and are a normal person, your life would be brightened a hundred per cent by having one of these little miracles of delight—a baby—pattering about your home. He would love you as only a baby can, trust you, plant kisses on your cheek (moist perhaps) because that's a baby's short cut to saying "I love you better than anything in the world".

It was heartening to read in the paper the other day that Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Mellon, nepoew of the former Secretary of the Treasury, had adopted a six months old boy of poverty-stricken parents. The baby was obtained from "The Cradle" placed there because his mother and father could not support him. Mr. Mellon is president of the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh. Mrs. Mellon was Constance Prosser McCauley, daughter of Seward Prosser, Chairman of the Banker's Trust Company of New York.

After one has adopted a baby, it's a known fact that the adoption is entirely forgotten in a few weeks, and that the baby really belongs, and is as deeply loved as if it were one's very own. And another curious fact borne out by the medical profession is that after one has adopted a baby, the stork is very likely to confer one on the adoptive parents. This has happened time and time again. The medical profession admits it, but is at a loss for the answer.

If it isn't possible to adopt a baby outright, why not become a Big Sister, Big Brother, Godmother, Godfather or whatever it may be called, to some child in an institution?

All that is necessary is to visit the child occasionally present him or her with some little gift from time to time, and perhaps take the youngster for a little outing some Saturday or holiday. In an institution with which I am well acquainted this is done, and it brings untold happiness to abandoned or parentless children.

This column published a week or two ago a letter from a correspondent who wanted to make up for some ill-spent years by bringing a little happiness into the lives of institutional children. The following letter is in answer to the one published—

"Dear Beatrice Fairfax—

"Your correspondent should pay a visit to the poor little unfortunates in —— Hospital. Some of them never have visitors. They seem to have been forgotten completely by their own flesh and blood. And just a smile from a stranger makes them happy.

"I often wish I were in a position to bring a little joy into the lives of these helpless little creatures, there through no fault of their own.

"Because they had no one to really love them or give them proper home influence, some of these children may perhaps have to spend much of their lives behinds bars and locked doors. But now, just the touch of a kindly hand brings joy to their little hearts. I hope your correspondent lives in this part of the country and will be able to pay them a visit.

Watch-Night Service In Tweed Church

Tweed—A watch-night and candle lighting service, an innovation in Tweed United Church was held on Sunday evening at 11 o'clock. A large congregation gathered to witness the passing of the old year and to welcome the new year. The service opened with carol singing by the congregation and choir with Miss Enid Connor at the organ in the absence of Miss Lois Richardson, the organist. Rev. H. L. Morrison concluded his New Year's message with the words used by the King at the conclusion of his Christmas message to the Empire, "I said to a man who stood at the gate of the year, give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown," and he replied, "Go out into the darkness and put your hand into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light and safer than the known way."

To the accompaniment of the pealing bells from the bell tower, the minister read Tennyson's famous poem, "Ring out, wild bells," as the New Year was ushered in.

This was followed by a candle-lighting service, the pastor preceding the congregation passing down the aisle as the choir sang as a recessional hymn "Saviour again to Thy dear name we raise."

Assisting in this concluding service were the leaders of the various departments of the church: Session, Mr. A. M. McGuire; Stewards, Mr. T. C. Graham; Sunday School, Mr. W. S. Gordon; Women's Bible Class, Miss Mary Logan; Men's Bible Class, Mr. A. Francis; Home Department, Mrs. M. Drinkwater; Crade Roll, Mrs. C. E. Way; Y.P.U., Miss Marion Tummon; C. G. I. Little Benny's Note Book

The little winking dog was still on our front steps when pop came in with his doorkey, and he said to ma, What are we going to do about that mutt, that's what I want to know? Are we going to live in a haunted house the rest of our lives? he said.

Now Willyum I've been doing my best, so please dont heap coals on Newcastle, ma said. I notified the Four Footed Haven and they sent their truck, but the dog must of reckonized it or something, because he hid behind the umbreella stand in the next door vestibule until it had gone again, she said.

How about that for smart, pop? I said, G wizzickers, ma, maybe he's a lost dog and maybe there's a reward out for him, how do we know? I said, and ma said, That's out of the question.

Well why, why is it, ma? I said, and she said, Because in the first place he hasn't even a collar.

Well holey smokes, ma, suppose I got lost and happened to lose my collar at the same time, how would you feel if people didn't bother to send me back just on that account? I said, and ma said, Dont be rediculous, there's no comparison.

Well I tell you what, ma, you're always talking about all the poor refugees all over the world and how wonderful it would be if you were rich enough to take some in, I said. Well that dog is a refugee, isn't he? I said, and ma said, Such an idea, certainly not.

Well why isn't he, ma? I said. He has no place to go, and what elts is a refugee? I said, and pop said, He's got you there, mother, let your conscience be your guide.

O deer, bring him in and give him a bath, Benny, and we'll see what happens, ma said.

Wich I hurry up went and did, feeling lucky.

Good Taste on Beauty's Menu

RITA HAYWORTH . . .practises the fine art of good taste in dressing

By HELEN FOLLETT

GOOD TASTE is the best gift of the fairy godmother. If she hasn't given it to you, you can cultivate it by making a study of line and color, observing well-dressed women, developing an appreciation of beautiful fabrics studying your figure, finding out what modes are most becoming.

If a woman has good taste, she will make no mistake either in dress or make-up. She will keep to simple effects, thereby avoiding the danger of over-dressing. She will be wary of ornaments, realizing that each decoration should have a meaning serve a purpose. She'll go slow on hair ornaments that are having a rage. Many times a lovely coiffure is spoiled by some do-dad that cheapens the ensemble.

With good taste supporting her, a woman will dress according to her age. Not that we expect the ancients and honorables to tag around in sombre draperies, but that they should not try to look like their granddaughters. Endeavouring to look too young adds to the appearance of the years.

Pretty young girls who affect the high coiffure are not showing good taste. They look their best with glistening, flowing locks instead of stiff rolls and severe undulations. Too much make-up deprives them of the sweet freshness of youth.

After growth has been attained nothing can be done about bowed legs. Little children who suffer from this trouble should have especially-made shoes that help to straighten the bones.

Fatted calves are an affliction. If the diet is of the kind that builds adipose tissue, no exercise will do much good. Cut down on fats, sweets and starches, make it a practice to jump rope for five minutes night and morning.

Heavy massage may deplete the cushions, but it takes a long time to reduce even half an inch. Oil the palms of the hands with cocoa-butter, pummel the calves, treat them with heavy strokes, lift the flesh, pinch and roll it. Follow with an ice friction.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Superstitions Affecting Childhood

Some of the superstitions we physicians encounter in the most backward parts of northern Ontario are extremely strange, although I feel sure that there are many parts of the United States where similar beliefs are held.

One of the superstitions I came up against many years ago gave me a start that I have never been able to forget. I was fresh from college, and my experience didn't amount to much. I was called to a little settlement nearly forty miles from Callander. I didn't know the family, and they lived in very lonely spot in the woods.

When I reached the side of the patient, a woman, I saw a huge broad axe standing right at the foot of the bed. There was no doubt it had been placed there purposely. The husband and some others were in the house and I had to admit to myself that they didn't look like the most hospitable men in the world. I knew that some of these frontier people held some queer notions about doctors.

However, I proceeded with my work and in a little while brought a fine lusty boy into the world. After I had cleaned up and was preparing to leave, I thought I'd find out about that axe. I asked a neighbour woman who had come in to help me. She looked at me with surprise.

"Why, didn't you know? That's to help bring away the afterbirth".

Later, I discovered that it is quite common in the region for a piece of iron to be placed under the bed at childbirth because it is supposed to help evacuate the placenta Many time I have attended a birth to find a hunk of iron in the room always for the same reason. But I have never been confronted with an axe since.

Another similar belief I encountered for the first time a couple of years ago when I though I already knew them all. I attended a mother who had had a good many babies before. After the birth, the placenta didn't come at once. I noticed the woman chewing on a braid of her hair. Naturally, I asked her why she was doing that.

"Why to hurry the afterbirth", she explained. Later I asked her about this belief, and she told me it had come to her from her mother. I found that she believed in it implicitly and not only that, she had told around the community that when I had failed to find the placenta, she had brought it along immediately by chewing her hair.

Frankly, one might understand the reasoning behind the piece of iron in the room, because iron has always been connected with human strength, good strong blood and all that sort of thing. But the basis of the belief in hair chewing is beyond me.

Another simple and harmless belief in this part of the country is that an egg hurries the birth of a baby. I first ran across it when I attended a woman who was having her first child. The labor was long and occasionally neighbor women dropped in to help. One of them when she found that the baby had not come yet asked me if I had given the mother an egg. She was much surprised that I hadn't. "Give her an egg that'll hurry her", the neighbor said

Well, I gave the egg because I knew it was a harmless superstition, and it might make the mother feel better The baby wasn't born until two hours afterward, but I have no doubt that the neighbour told all the women in the community how her remedy had brought on the birth when everything I was doing failed.

ALL IS BRIGHT

By Eleanor Browne

Mrs. Jenkins moved over closer and whispered, "Say, I'm awful sorry I made that mistake about you and the doctor."

"Oh, that's all right." Star wished her companion would not refer to it again, especially with Kent looking on.

"But it does seem sort of funny" Mrs. Jenkins persisted, "that a nice looking man like him would be taken in by a bedizened fly-by-night with her yella hair and painted finger nails."

"She's really a very nice girl," said Star uncomfortably.

Star could feel Kent's eyes on her. She knew exactly when he had turned from adjusting the bride's life belt and stood watching her. It was as if he were compelling her to look up at him. Unwillingly she raised her eyes. The dimple was showing in his cheek although he sternly repressed the smile. He had probably overheard Mrs. Jenkins' remark, Star thought, and found herself smiling up at him. It was the last thing in the world she had intended to do.

"You haven't your belt tied tightly enough," he said authoritatively.

"Is mine all right?" asked Mrs. Jenkins.

"We've done this so often," she told them, "that Mr. Jenkins keeps a life belt in our attic just so I'll feel at home in a storm."

Kent's lean face was so close to Star's she could see the little pulse throbbing in his temple. What a nice nose he had! Not at all the usual Barrett nose, but thin and highly arched. His fingers fumbled. As she watched, he pulled the loop through too far and undid the whole fastening again.

"Oh—here, let me do that." Mrs. Jenkins' plump fingers worked swiftly at the tapes. "Men are all thumbs about things like this, especially when they're doing it for a pretty girl," she added.

Star grew hot with embarrassment. But Kent, his telltale hands locked behind him, was more at ease. She wore confusion like a talisman, he decided. It was caught in the tossing curls of her hair, veiled by her downcast lashes. He bowed gravely to Mrs. Jenkins.

"Thank you," He said earnestly. "She is beautiful to me, but I thought perhaps I was prejudiced."

x x x

Gloria's life belt was tossed carelessly onto the bunk, but she was nowhere in sight. Wearily Star took hers off and pushed her hair back from her forehead. The day was so muggy! Like a spring day with the sap slowly rising in the trees and buds on the maples. It was hard to imagine that the house in Milford was buried in snow, its path unbroken, its windows shuttered in forlorn.

Her head ached with the whirl of her thoughts. Why didn't Kent acknowledge he knew her? Why did he pretend this silly interest in her when he was engaged to Gloria? Was each one in the world one sort of person and pretending to be another?

There was a sudden commotion outside—the sound of footsteps pounding along deck—a shrill scream. The boat grumbled and groaned as if a modern dragon had found its way into the engine room and was clawing at the very vitals of the ship. Star was thrown against the wash basin with a sickening lurch and at almost the same minute heard Mrs. Jenkins crying shrilly:

"Man overboard! My LAND!"

Star almost collided with the steward as she opened the door and ran out. Without bothering to apologize, he steadied her and dashed on. Star was only a short distance behind him stepping onto the slippery deck.

A crowd had gathered aft, most of them leaning over the rail and talking excitedly. The water was coated with a shifting cloud of steam so that it was impossible to see more than a few feet beyond the boat.

Star stood uncertainly. It seemed foolish to crowd around the rail, surely the sailors should be allowed to have all the room they needed. Then she caught sight of a small figure pressed against the outer wall of the cabin. Star went up and touched the bright head glinting in the sun.

"Stuart!"

He looked up at her. She was startled by the intense excitement in his face. "They's a man overboard."

"Yes. I heard that. But they haven't found him yet."

"Why don't they put down one of the little boats?" Stuart demanded. "D'you think they'd let me get in and look? Do you?"

"Perhaps, darling." She appeared to be watching the crowd as it milled around only a few feet away, but her arm at Stuart's waist was alert to the pounding of his small heart, the tenseness of his muscles. "But I'm so sorry this happened."

"Why're you sorry?" he questioned without much interest.

"Because now maybe we'll miss the pirate," Star answered mournfully. "You know there's a place just outside of Haiti—it used to be called Port Royal and all the pirates lived there. It was such a wicked, wicked city that one day an earth quake shook it until it sank right beneath the waves. But there was one pirate who climbed into the steeple as the waves got higher and higher—a big, bad pirate with gold earrings and a great scar across his cheek.

"He climbed up the steeple and rang the bell. He rang it over and over again. But no one ever saved him and he's down there ringing away yet! That's why I hoped we wouldn't be late. Because if you want to hear the pirate ring the bell, and maybe see him, you've got to be there right on the minute."

"Do the boat people know that?" Stuart asked thoughtfully.

"Oh, yes. But if there's a man overboard they'll be too late. They have to stop and look around. Maybe one hour, or two, or three—"

"No—NO! There ain't no man overboard. Tell them to go on or we'll miss the pirates."

"Stuart! Think of what you're saying. There is a man overboard."

"NO—NO!" Stuart was hopping excitedly up and down on one foot. "I said that. I wanted them to put the little boat down in the water and take me with them. I just said it—and a sailor heard me, and then he started shouting."

Star stood up, her hand firmly around Stuart's. "I think we'd better find the Captain right away," she said. "He may be angry, because he wants to see the pirates as much as you do. But you've done something wrong and you must take your punishment like a man."

They made their way to Captain Porter who looked as if he were boiling so hard inwardly that in a moment the steam would come rushing out. He glared impatiently at Star and turned again to the worried young second mate who stood with a long list in his hand.

"No one missing!" roared the Captain. "What is this, a joke? Is someone trying to be funny?"

"Captain Porter!" Star stood her ground firmly. "Stuart has just told me that he—he repeated the expression 'man overboard'. Someone heard him and thought he meant it...." She stopped at the fury that shook the little man until he actually trembled."

With a supreme effort the Captain growled to the second mate, "Full steam ahead."

"Yes, sir." The second mate saluted and darted away. Impassively the sailors started raising the boat back to its davits, Stuart watching them with interest.

Star braced herself for the explosion, but none came. Instead, with a disgusted grunt, the Captain wheeled and marched away. She leaned weakly against the railing for a minute, unable to move. One of the sailors picked up the weatherproof cover and started lashing it to the boat.

"If I was you, Miss," he advised, "I'd take the young squirt and go down to your cabin. I don't think the Captain wants to see anyone any more today."

CHAPTER X

Gloria petulantly pushed away her salad.

"Off your feed?" Kent inquired.

"Darling, you know I never eat salad. All I want is another cup of coffee."

Kent attacked his own salad with ferocity. He must speak to Gloria about this habit of scattering impartial "dears" and "darlings" throughout all conversations directed to him. If they were going to be married, it would be different. But that was all over and he didn't like the possessive strings in which Gloria still managed to entangle him. Besides, there was another complication. He stole a guilty look at Star, fragile in white net with a crisp ruffle standing up around her shoulders like the inverted petals of a flower.

Just before dinner Kent had been summoned to the Captain's quarters for a bewildering fifteen minutes of explanations that didn't explain and messages of apology that he was to convey through it all the phrase, "That girl you're going to marry," had run like maddening refrain. Kent had heard, of course, about Stuart's misadventure, but the sequel as explained by the Captain was far from clear.

"Probably scared the girl," Captain Porter chuckled. "But I didn't scare the kid—he's a hellion, that one. Anyway, tell your girl I'm sorry. She's smart, Kent. Pretty as a picture, too. You have good taste. Don't wonder she turned you down a couple of times. Plenty of spirit in that chin. But no fun if there aren't a few rocks in the channel, eh?"

"Yes, sir." Kent was trying unsuccessfully to link Gloria with Stuart in a situation that was amusing to the Captain and yet required an apology to her.

"You certainly have the table this trip." The Captain was determined to be friendly. "That little blonde is something to look at, too. Well, there's the dinner bell. We'd better get going."

Star glanced up and found Kent's eyes fastened on her with an unwilling fascination. Tonight, she was determined, he would not embarrass her again.

"Did you say something?"

"I didn't," Kent answered, "but I'm about to. Were you the one who discovered Stuart's bright idea and made him confess?" As Star nodded Kent drew a deep breath.

So. The Captain had concluded that Star was his reluctant fiance. Kent could explain that Gloria was the girl—no, hang it!—she wasn't. He was going to speak to her tonight and definitely end it all. But if he told the Captain that after what the old man had said just before they sailed..No, he couldn't do that either. Captains didn't like to be told they were mistaken about anything. Better let it ride and then—when they got back to New York—explain that the lady was still unwilling.

"I'm to bring you Captain Porter's apologies," Kent went on. "He's afraid he frightened you this afternoon."

Star glanced at the Captain's table. His ruddy face was beaming at her. "The Captain's a lamb," she declared. "No one could blame him for being put out. Stuart was just thoughtless."

"Stuart is just a brat," said Gloria with conviction. Coates came in at that moment and with a murmured apology sank into the seat beside Star.

"Sorry I'm late."

Gloria's eyes narrowed. "Aren't you on the wrong side of the table?"

Coates smiled at Star.

"Am I?"

"If you want to eat."

"I want only a feast for the eyes."

Kent's disgusted grunt made Star more eager to keep Coates beside her. "A bit smooth for an opening remark," she commented.

"You prefer the cavemen type?"

LIONEL CONACHER MENTIONED AS CABINET TIMBER

Liberal Member for Bracondale as Chairman of O.A.C. Has Put Boxing on Its Feet

AMATEURS PROTECTED

Aims to Stage Annual Tourneys to Decide Best Amateur Boxer in Province

Toronto, Jan. 3—(CP) — Lionel Conacher, the Big Train of Canadian sport, is still going places but it's not on the playing field. It's in provincial politics and after two years as a legislator he is mentioned as cabinet timber.

Conacher made the jump from professional hockey into the political world in the same faultless style in which he ran a broken field in rugby or broke through for a shot on goal in lacrosse or hockey.

His first move in the Ontario Legislature, to which he was elected in 1937 as member for Toronto Bracondale, was directed to wiping out "bootleg" boxing in the province. The Legislature approved his bill bringing all boxing, amateur and professional, under the control of the Ontario Athletic Commission.

In submitting his bill Conacher told how unprincipled promoters gained control of promising amateurs and entered them in small town scraps, sometimes as often as three times weekly. The boys, he said, were being ruined in health and hi-jacked out of money promised them.

Put Legislation to Work

Recently appointed chairman of the O.A.C. after serving as vice-chairman, Conacher immediately began to put his legislation to work. Regional representatives were appointed and through these men, the O.A.C. will have constant supervision in all areas.

Conacher said his aim is to stage annual tournaments such as the Golden Gloves competitions across the border. Elimination shows will be staged in various centres, the winners fighting in Toronto for Ontario honors.

The boxers will be handled by clubs and once a boy joins a club he will remain with it until formally released. In this way the O.A.C. keeps tab on the lad until he turns pro. Managers among the amateurs are taboo.

Conacher played with two world championship hockey teams—Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Maroons and it was with the Maroons that he last played in 1935-36. He has played on Canadian championship teams in rugby and hockey and once held a national boxing title But, he says, regretfully, he never was on a championship lacrosse team and lacrosse was his favorite sport.

Rangers Approaching Record As They Defeat the Bruins 6-4 For 15th Game Without a Loss

Record of 18 Games Without a Loss is Held by the Canadiens

ROOKIE STARS

Kilby MacDonald of Rangers Scores Two Goals That Were Important

Boston, Jan. 3—(CP) — New York Rangers, apparently as good as Manager Lester Patrick says they are, approached the National Hockey League record for a sequence of games without a defeat today and no tremendous obstacle stood in their way.

The Rangers ran their string to 15 starts without a loss when they swarmed over Boston Bruins 6-4 before a capacity attendance of 15,000 in the Garden last night. They climbed into a first-place tie in the league standing with the Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The record for a sequence of victories and ties is held by Montreal Canadiens, who set it at 18 in 1927-28.

Patrick has called this Ranger Club his greatest because of the way his lesser lines have become close to the equal of the great combination of Neil and Mac Colville and Alex Shibicky.

Rookie Has Scoring Honors

The Colville brothers and Shibicky figured in only one goal as a unit last night and scoring honors went to rookie Kilby MacDonald. He scored twice within just more than a minute in the second period to put the visitors ahead to stay.

Three times the Rangers took advantage of penalties to tie the score and on the third occasion MacDonald poked in his goals.

A penalty to Art Coulter of the Rangers allowed an opening for the first Boston goal, scored by Red Hamill, but a sentence to Hamill let the New York team strike right back through Neil Colville. Flash Hollett sent Boston ahead 2-1.

Scoring seemed to put a jinx on the Bruins, for Hollett was penalized for tripping early in the second and Wilbur Hiller tied the score on a relay from Lynn Patrick.

Scores as He Falls

The next Boston penalty, to Jack Crawford, backfired in the Bruins' favor, Milt Schmidt breaking through the Ranger defence and scoring as he fell.

MacDonald's first goal came with the aid of defenceman Johnny Shewchuck, who failed to clear a rolling puck while Jack Portland of the Bruins was serving time. With Portland still off, MacDonald sank the goal that put his team ahead to stay on a pass from Neil Colvilel. Ott Heller made the score 5-3 when less than a minute remained in the second period, beating Goalie Frank Brimsek easily after breaking with Phil Watson.

Bryan Hextall sent the count up to 6-3 early in the third and, though the Bruins struck repeatedly for the rest of the game, the only score they could get came when Captain Dit Clapper drove a back-hand shot past Dave Kerr.

Local Basketball Team to Organize

Prior to the opening of the Eastern Ontario Basketball Association in Belleville next week, the Belleville "Y" entry will hold its initial practice and election of officers at the Campbell Street Association buildings this evening, Manager Joe Shortt announced this morning. The Belleville "Y" squad is grouped in the Ontario Basketball Association along with the Kingston 'Signals', R.C.A.F. "Flyers", Queens University and the Kingston Y.M.C.A. team.

Manager Shortt stated today that the strongest cage squad in many years was being hoped for in Belleville, as several of last year's Belleville juniors have graduated to the Intermediate "A" ranks and will supplement the goodly number of veteran hoopsters, who have carried Belleville basketball torch high and well in past years. All young men interested in playing basketball are urged to attend this evening's practice at the Y.M.C.A., following which officers will be elected and a coach named for the team.

MUD BRUNETEAU

Detroit Red Wings.

Mud Bruneteau

One Stanley Cup game that will long have a prominent place in hockey annals began at Montreal on the night of March 24, 1936. Maroons were facing the Detroit Red Wings and the boys were still plugging away into the small hours of the next morning before Hec Kilrea shot a pass to Mud Bruneteau, who rapped it home to end the longest game in the records, a game that went 116 minutes and 30 seconds over the regulation hour's play. The hero was christened Modere, but somewhere along the way had picked up Mud as a more serviceable tag. Born at St. Boniface, Man., 27 years ago. In his fifth year with the Red Wings, but like a lot of other Detroit players, has seen his share of major-to-minor shuffling. The year he scored his famous overtime goal, he had just been brought up to the National League for the first time near the end of the season. Moved from Manitoba amateur ranks to Detroit Olympics in what was the International League and from there to the Motor City's major league club. Plays right wing. Broke an arm two years ago and last year torn knee ligaments made it doubtful if he would play again. Statistical data to beginning of present season: 17 goals, 20 assists, 37 points and 36 minutes in penalties.

JOCKEY MEADE LEADING RIDER

Had 1,284 Mounts and Booted Home 255 Winners During the Year

New York, Jan. 3—(CP)—Don Meade has made good use of his time since the August day in 1938 when he went before the Florida Racing Commission to be reinstated after a two-year suspension. Figures made public here showed today he was the leading jockey in the United States in 1939.

Meade displaced little Johnny Longden of Taber, Alta., who was the leading money-winner and jockey of 1938. Hardest working jock of the year with 1,284 mounts, Don booted in 255 winners. This was 46 more than Longden who finished second with 29 winners while Basil James, leader in 1936, was third with 189 firsts.

Meade got off to a fast start in the fall of 1938 at Tropical Park and, keeping up his "hot riding" on the Florida tracks in 1939, built up an early lead.

45 Winners in 23 Days

During the 23 days in Florida, from Jan. 11 to Feb. 6, Meade rode 45 winners, twice booting home four firsts in one day at Hialeah Park. On six occasions he rode three winners in one day.

Meade, born in Plankington, S.D., in 1913, spent most of his vacations during his early years on a ranch herding cattle at $10 a month and his board. There he developed his strong hands and muscular physique. He rides at 108 pounds.

Meade made his first start in the big time at Lansdowne Park in 1930 and during his eight years of riding had a total of 978 winners out of 5,749 mounts and earned a total of $1,255,400 for the various owners for whom he served. His purse totalled $343,427 in 1939.

DAVE CASTILLOUX OUTPOINTS RODAK IN CLEVER BOUT

Brilliant French - Canadian Boxer Eyeing Lightweight Crown of Lou Ambers

RODAK TAGGED

Frankie Genovese Takes Decision From Tommy Bland in Eight Rounds

Toronto, Jan. 3—(CP) — Dave Castilloux thinks he can lick Leo Rodak any day in the week and now he's looking for bigger game. The handsome young Montrealer who holds the Canadian featherweight and lightweight boxing titles, took a clearcut decision from Rodak before a crowd of 5,375 in Maple Leaf Gardens here and he'd like to call an end to the series with that. In their first meeting here he also was victorious but Rodak took a decision in New Orleans a month ago and that started the thing all over again.

Castilloux hit top form last night against Rodak. Boxing carefully in the opening rounds he caught Rodak with three hard rights in the sixth and from there on had little trouble with the Chicagoan. Rodak scored his only success with a looping left hook to the body which bothered the Montrealer little. Castilloux flicked away with his left until he saw his opening and then his dynamite right came over with a flash.

He tagged Rodak with the haymaker in all but a few rounds but the Chicagoan kept on the move and was never caught with a second right until the sixth when Castilloux knocked him rubber-kneed. The Montrealer was over-anxious and missed the kill. Castilloux weighed 132, Rodak 133.

In the eight-round semi-final Frankie Genovese, 158, of Toronto, took the decision from the veteran Tommy Bland, 150. Bland fought gamely all the way and bothered Genovese in the last two rounds but his younger opponent was too far ahead.

REDMEN, FLYERS OPEN THE O. H. A. SEASON HERE

Many New Faces to be Seen at Hume Arena on Friday

Hockey, the fastest sport in the world, will be ushered in at the Hume Arena on Friday night when those two old enemies of the ice lanes, the Belleville Redmen and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers", will cross sticks in the opening Intermediate "A" game in the O.H.A. Once previous this season these two squads met in a pre-season game at Kingston when the "birdmen" eked out a 2-1 win over the brilliant scarlet-clad Belleville sextette, but only after sixty full minutes of fast and gruelling hockey.

The Air Force, coached by a native of Belleville, Toots Holway, have added several star pucksters to their roster for this season's campaign, including "Mush" Higgins, former London senior, Dunning, a former professional and "Stewie" Irwin, who played for the Ottawa Senators two seasons ago, "Toots" Day, starry forward, who played with the Wembley Lions, Gathercoll and Lemieux, who hails from Edmonton are some additions the "birdmen" have gained since last season.

Eddie Thomas' Redmen lost their initial game of the current O.H.A. season to Peterboro, but are today confident they can move back into the group race with a win over their ancient Flyer rivals on Friday night at the Hume Arena. Extensive opening ceremonies are to precede the game while the Belleville Municipal and Air Force bands have been invited to participate in the pre-game program. In addition to his last year's complete squad the Thomasites have added George Filion, defenceman, who teams with Harry McCreary and Speedy St. Louis. Herb Windsor, formerly with Prescott and Les Yates of Brockville and Jack Cournyea of Tweed are other new players to line-up with the Jackson brothers this season. Joe Smith of Kingston will referee.

BATA SHOE CO. TEAM VICTORIOUS

Cobblers Defeat Stirling 3-2 in Opening Game of Northern Loop

Stirling, January 3—(Special) — Stirling hockey fans turned out in good numbers to see the first performance of the new entry in the Trent Valley Hockey League a team bearing the name of the Bata Shoe Co. of Frankford, as they won their first game over Stirling by a score 3-2. Working on the experience of previous years, Stirling selected Saturday night for the opener and proved once again that Saturday night is hockey night in Stirling. In addition to a good exhibition of hockey the fans were treated to free skating after the game.

The Game

After only a few short practices the Stirling squad looked exceptionally good in the early stages of the game holding the "Shoemakers" scoreless until the final period. Then in a last period flurry the Southerners overtook the locals and scored the winning goal in the dying moments of the game. Scorers for the local squad were G. Dainard and D. Martin with Long and Ingram assisting on the Dainard counter. In a last period rally V. Guay notched two counters for the "Cobblers" and they moved to the front for a win when Foster beat Fox.

Stirling—goal—Fox; defence — Walker and Jones; centre—Richardson; wings—Armstrong and Fraser; subs—W. Long, D. Martin, D. May, H. Ingram, Bob Hatton.

CANADA'S BEST BETS FOR HONORS IN FISTIANA

Three most prominent Canadian boxers during 1939 were those shown here: Billy Marquart, LEFT, of Winnipeg; Dave Castilloux, CENTRE, and Maxie Berger, RIGHT, the latter two from Montreal. All three have campaigned in United States, where the trail to fistic gold lies, with considerable success, as well as performing occasionally in Canada. Marquart and Castilloux do their fighting in the lightweight ranks (ruled by Lou Ambers), although the Montreal boxer claims he can make the featherwegiht limit and is on the trail of that championship. Berger is a welterweight (Henry Armstrong's division). All three made progress during the past year and expect to go further as 1940 unfolds.

Belleville Juveniles Open Hockey

With Belleville youths in clean Canadian sports competition, the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association will open its 1940 schedule at the Hume Arena with a dual bill of teen aged hockey on Thursday night, all four clubs composing the Association parading before the public for their initial appearance as hopeful Belleville hockey players. The entire evening will be devoted to Juvenile hockey with the 'Americans' clashing with the 'Canadiens' in the curtain-raiser while the 'Black Hawks' battle the 'Maple Leafs' in the second tussle.

Regulation Games

Regulation O.H.A. rules will be enforced and each team is being supervised by coaches and managers. Exact duplications of National Hockey League club uniforms which the Association has purchased, will be seen and worn by the personnel of each contesting club. Frank Follwell and Bill Cook are guiding the destinies of the Black Hawks in the league, while the Americans are headed by Bill Dennis and Fred Reid with Frank Cunningham coaching the Maple Leafs and Frankie Collins, former Toronto and Peterboro senior puckster guiding Les Canadiens. The first game will see the puck faced at 8.00 p.m.

All Belleville Boys

The players composing the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association clubs are all Belleville boys of 17 years of age and under and who are anxious to learn the fundamentals of hockey and following which an all-star team will be selected to compete in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association playdowns. Every player in the league is a native son of Belleville and the sport public is urged to take an evening off, attend the Juvenile games at the Hume Arena on Thursday night to encourage Belleville sons in playing clean competitive sports. The league is composed of upwards of 80 teen-aged Belleville boys, who are looking to the citizens for moral support in their efforts. Who knows but that another Howie Morenz, Syl Apps or George Vezina may rise from Belleville's initial attempt at the sponsorship of this phase of sports. The teams are sponsored by Belleville Creameries, Kinsmen Club, Kiwanis Club and Reid's Dairy.

RURAL HOCKEY LOOP ORGANIZED

Central Hastings League to Operate With H. L. Fair as President

Stirling, January 3—(Special) — Over twenty enthusiastic hockey players representing clubs from Ivanhoe, Foxboro, Zions and Glen Ross were present at a meeting held on Tuesday evening in the office of Mr. H. L. Fair for the purpose of re-organization and general business. Under the Chairmanship of H. L. Fair it was decided to continue the activities of the league as in former years and the election of officers resulted in the following being chosen for executive duties. President—Mr. H.L. Fair; Secretary— Art Duncan; Treasurer—Roy Juby. As an executive committee to work with the above mentioned officers and the following representatives of the competing teams were appointed: Noley Guay, Foxboro; Jack Armstrong, Glen Ross; Dulmage, Roslin, Norris, Zions, Thomlison, Ivanhoe.

Last Year's Rules to Stand

In the matter of rules and regulations the secretary presented the rules drafted and adhered to during the last playing season and these with only a few minor changes were adopted for the present season. It was further suggested that each team provide an entry fee of five dollars to be in the hands of the Treasurer on the evening of the first game. The managers of each team then presented their lists of prospective players which were endorsed by the meeting after a few minor changes. It was pointed out that according to rules no players having O.H.A. cards would be admitted and any player having played three or more games in any other league with exception to shop or school leagues would be disqualified. Thus keeping the league open only to rural boys who had no other chance to take part in the pastime.

During the past few years this league which has served as a minor to the Trent Valley Hockey League has played all its games in Stirling and a committee was appointed to interview the Stirling Rink Committee with regard to continue this arrangement. The Secretary was then authorized to form a schedule as soon as the available nights were made known and this schedule be published as soon as prepared.

It was thought earlier in the season that the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League would not function this year. But with coming of winter and the reflection of a successful year last year under the able direction of "Linn" Fair, the boys turned out in large numbers and matched the enthusiasm of their president who since coming to the district has made a name for himself in the promotion of hockey "For the Farm lads." The schedule will be presented for publication as soon as an agreement has been reached between the League delegation and the Stirling Rink Committee.

ADMIRAL HARWOOD

"The Exeter was hit early, the bridge being wrecked and some guns put out of action, but she went to closing range, the captain conning the ship from aft through a chain of messengers to the steering position.

The German Flees.

"We must have done the Graf Spee serious damage, as after 16 minutes' firing she turned around under a smoke-screen and made off towards the Plata at high speed. We closed on her at full speed.

"The Exeter was gradually dropping astern, but very gallantly remained in action, firing what guns she had left at the enemy. The Ajax and Achilles closed in for miles, frequently hitting the Graf Spee. Fires were seen to break out on board her.

"Both ships got slightly damaged, two turrets on the Ajax being put out of action, but they still continued the battle.

"After 80 minutes' firing, we broke off action and opened out to long range so as to shadow her wherever she went.

"The Graf Spee made no attempt to close, but went due west for the Plata. The Ajax and Achilles followed, one on each quarter at about 14 miles' range. It was an easy matter to see her owing to her massive control tower.

"The Spee occasionally turned and fired one or two salvos at one ship or another that got a bit too close. She did very accurate shooting but got no hits. This went on all day.

Inside the Plata By Evening.

"In the evening the Graf Spee went right inside the Plata. At 9:10 p.m., when well inside Lobos (an island off the mouth of the river), she suddenly turned and fired three salvos at the Achilles. They again fell close.

"The Achilles replied in self defence, then opened out to longer range to avoid provoking more shots. The Graf Spee again fired three times at the Achilles between 9:30 and 9:40, but it was almost dark and she must have fired wildly just to try to scare the Achilles away.

"The Achilles followed her right up to see where she was going. She saw her anchor off Montevideo, and went back to the mouth of the Plata.

"Both small cruisers, though damaged, remained at sea off the mouth of the Plata for the next four days, being joined by the Cumberland the night of Dec. 14. These ships waited for the Graf Spee to come out, and were ready to engage her should she do so. Repairs were carried out while at sea.

"When the Graf Spee blew herself up the British cruisers resumed their normal patrol."

The Stars Say

For Thursday, January 4

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

ANOTHER strenuous day, in which sudden and surprising events may prove disconcerting if not devastating, is indicated by the lunar and mutual figures. Unpredictable situations which may arise call for decisive action; lightning change in plans, associations or surroundings may be required. When conditions seem confused and baffling, seek the wise counsel of "higher ups" and do not reject assistance or advice from an elderly woman. Shun extravagance, strife and impetuosity, as well as fickleness in private relations.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of upheaval, with sudden and unpredictable developments of radical effect and possibly breath-taking experience. Change of plans, objectives and associates are imminent. When overwhelmed by surprise, confusion and indecision, confer with those in high places or with friendly women of advanced years. Avoid extravagance, rash and impulsive conduct and fickle affections.

Those whose birthday it is may be capable and enterprising, but may have sudden and peculiar vicissitudes in life. Superiors or elders may be of benefit in helping adjustments or clarifying suspicious circumstances.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg — The Christmas meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary was held on Friday evening at the home of the President, Miss Emma Porter, with a good attendance. The rooms were tastefully decorated for the Christmas season. The Christmas story was taken by Mrs. Wesley Morton.

Mrs. Ernest coulter was appointed to act as secretary pro-tem in the absence of Mrs. C. Mouck. The treasurer, Miss Isobel Beatty, reported having sent twenty dollars for dorcas work and also the proceeds from the bazaar. Several items of business were discussed after which the officers had charge of the program. The roll call was answered with a message for Christmas. Readings were given by Mrs. W. Sherry, Miss E. Porter, Mrs. Wesley Morton and Miss D. Porter while Miss Katherine Coulter sang two solos. Rev. F. C. Beazer gave a very appropriate talk.

Rev. F. C. Beazer took charge of the election of officers which resulted as follows: Honorary President, Mrs. F. C. Beazer; President, Miss Emma Porter; Secretary, Mrs. Clarence Mouck; Treasurer, Miss Isobel Beatty, Dorcas Sec., Mrs. T. H. Mouck; Organist, Mrs. A. Porter; Social Committee, Mrs. Chas. Jeffrey and Mrs. Edward Carter; Refreshment Committee, Mrs. Clarence Jeffrey and Mrs. Lewis Morton. The treasurer gave a financial statement of the past year's work, showing a good balance on hand.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rector, after which a dainty lunch was served.

The C.G.I.T. group of Thomasburg United Church held their meeting at the home of Ana Morton on Thursday evening, Dec. 28th with seven members and one visitor present. The meeting opened with a sing song. The Scripture reading was given by Irene Walker. Evelyn Bateman gave a reading entitled 'The Angel's Song.' The offering was taken by Myrtle Walker, followed by the offertory prayer.

Lucille Herrington gave a reading entitled "Christmas 95 in the shade." The roll call was answered by giving the title and relating some interesting part of a book that was read. Ana Morton gave a temperance reading entitled "Why be a total abstainer." The secretary's report was read and adopted and the treasurer's report given. Business was discussed. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction. A game was played, after which a delicious lunch of ice cream and cake was served.

Canadian Farmers to be Asked To Undertake Specialty Jobs

Will be Asked to Grow More Fibre Seed, Sugar Beet Seed and Produce More Pork, Cheese and Flax Seed

PLANS MOVE AHEAD

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 3—(CP)—Canadian farmers will be asked to undertake specialty jobs this year because of the war and grow fibre seed, sugar beet seed and soy beans as well as producing more pork, cheese and producing flax seed for making linseed oil.

Reports from the provinces reaching Agriculture Minister Gardiner in the past few days concerning the work of co-ordinating the war effort on the farms, indicate that plans are moving ahead satisfactorily, it was learned here today. By springtime the entire situation should be pretty well in hand.

Soon after war was declared the Agricultural Supplies Committee was appointed by the Dominion Government to join with the provincial agricultural departments to direct farm industry into channels which would do most good.

Justice Department officials since have found that it should not have been called a committee but a board and a new order-in-council is to be passed soon making it the Agricultural Supply Board but the personnel with A. M. Shaw as chairman will remain unchanged.

One of the problems that the board is working out with the provincial farm experts is to guarantee that the farmers have plenty of high-quality seed. Much of the seed used in Canada normally came from parts of Europe now involved in the war. The practice of the Canadian trade to keep from one to two years supplies of seed on hand has proved fortunate because it will give this country time to grow its own.

Seed Comes From Germany.

In a normal year about 90 per cent of Canada's supply of sugar beet seed came from Germany and Poland but the two districts where sugar beets are grown on a large scale — Chatham, Ont., and Raymond, Alta. — have sufficient supplies for this year and three quarters of what will be required under normal conditions in 1941, according to seed experts here.

However, as more land than usual will be planted to beets to guard against a sugar shortage, seed requirements will be above the normal.

Seed men expect about 300 acres in Western Ontario district will be planted with full-grown beets saved over from last year to provide seed for 1941 and another 150 acres will be planted in Alberta. It takes two years to produce seed from seed.

As a further precaution, sugar beets entirely for seed production are to be grown on Vancouver Island and on the British Columbia mainland. Some seed also is to be sent to the United States to be grown there for the Canadian sugar beet industry.

With all these precautions seed authorities expect the industry will be well protected and production of beet sugar will continue to increase.

Canada uses about 190,000 pounds of mangel seed annually and while most of this comes from the United Kingdom where growers have guaranteed supplies for future years, Canada will endeavor to grow 32,000 pounds as a protection in the Maritimes and at Dominion Experimental Farms in several provinces.

Rely on Same Source

Most of the 160,000 pounds of Swede turnip seed sown in Canada comes from the United Kingdom and Canadian farmers will continue to rely on that source, the view being that with Great Britain buying so much from Canada any product the United Kingdom can supply Canada should be brought from that source. Some turnip seed will be grown here but only as a protection against shortage.

Last year Canada had about 8,000 acres in fibre flax, used to make linen, and present plans call for this acreage to be doubled. A section of 3,000 acres will be planted to fibre flax in the Ottawa Valley and the remainder of the increased acreage in those parts of Ontario and Quebec where it is already being grown.

A. Fyfe of the British Fibre Control Board has been in Canada assisting in the arrangements. Considerable [illegible] year's [illegible] seeds grown in Canada will go to nor[illegible] supply the needs there normally met by European countries.

Canada will need considerable quantities of soy beans particularly to supply feed for livestock and efforts will be made to grow them in western Ontario. Corn lands may be shifted to the bean crop.

Western Canada farmers will be urged to grow more flax of the type used in making linseed. The 2,500,000 bushels grown last year fell about 500,000 bushels short of the needs of Canada for paint oils and oil cakes which are fed to livestock.

In Great Demand.

These products will be in greater demand this year under stress of war, agriculture officials here forecast, and with prices ranging around $2 a bushel on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange the acreage under flax should receive about twice as much for a bushel of flax as for a bushel of wheat.

Canada has undertaken to supply the United Kingdom with 4,480,000 pounds of bacon and ham weekly and Mr. Gardiner held a conference with the Bacon Control Board yesterday.

Reports received by the board indicate adequate supplies of pork will be marketed during the present year to meet the terms of the undertaking without curtailing the domestic market which it is estimated consumes almost 75 per cent of all the pork produced in Canada although mostly in forms other than bacon.

Emphasis will be laid on keeping the quality of Canadian Bacon up to the standard which has made it so popular in Great Britain — a bacon with plenty of lean streaks in it.

Cheese prices have been holding good at around 17 cents at the cheese boards and should they continue around that next spring it is expected Canadian cheese production will be considerably increased.

Gets Navy Promotion

Rescuer of the crew of the U.S.S. Panay, United States gunboat bombed by Japanese airmen on the Yangtse river, Rear Admiral Richard V. Holt, ABOVE, has been promoted to the rank of vice-admiral in the British navy. Admiral Holt was decorated with the American Distinguished Service medal for his exploit in speeding the gunboat H.M.S. Bee, despite Japanese warnings, to the aid of the Panay.

90 Finns Leave N. Y. For Homeland Paying Part of Own Expenses

New York, Jan. 3—(AP)—Ninety Finns bound for home and war—one of them a Canadian miner who used a dog sled to get here—are on the passenger list of the Norwegian liner Bergensfjord, sailing today.

About half are reservists or veterans of Finland's last war, but all are volunteers paying at least part of their expenses across the sea.

Herman Nykanen, the miner, fought with Baron Mannerheim, 20 years ago, and had been working at the Eldorado Radium mines near Great Bear Lake in northwestern Canada.

When his mother wrote that Finland was at war, he packed up and in three days covered 100 miles by dog sled to Yellowknife. From there he flew to Edmonton. He arrived here Saturday.

French Troops May Be Sent To Finland's Aid

Berlin, Jan. 3 (AP)—Authoritative Nazi sources said today Germany would be "forced" to take an active part in the Russo-Finnish war, if France sends Alpine troops to Finland's aid.

They declared this would be a military matter, but did not say what form the assistance might take.

Landing of French or British troops, they argued, would mean the Allies were establishing a foothold in Finland, "thus spreading the war."

An authoritative Nazi source said yesterday there would be little doubt of German support for Russia if British soldiers appeared on Finnish soil or if munitions deliveries from Britain were to reach decisive proportions.

(Great Britain has informed the League of Nations that she would give Finland all assistance possible).

Ready to Co-operate

Paris Jan. 3 (AP)—Premier Daladier today advised Joseph Avenol, Secretary General of the League of Nations, that France is ready to co-operate with all other powers, whether or not members of the League, in giving aid to Finland.

Daladier asserted that France already was helping the Finns "in the fullest possible measure."

His message was in answer to a letter from Avenol calling attention to the League's resolution of Dec. 14 authorizing the Secretary General's office to lend its technical services for the organization of assistance to Finland.

THIS, the last photograph taken in Canada of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, Commandant of the Canadian Forces now overseas, was made in Halifax just before the First Division embarked. General McNaughton is now with his boys "somewhere in England."

Seeing him off is Alistair Fraser, K.C., Traffic Vice-President of the Canadian National Railways. They talked of the new European war but they had more to say about the old one, remembering experiences overseas when General McNaughton was in command of the Canadian Corps' heavy artillery and Mr. Fraser was serving with the 48th Highlanders of Toronto and later as A.D.C. to Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps.

WAR BRIEFS

Buenos Aires, Jan. 3 (AP)—One hundred and eight Chinese crewmen of the German freighters Anatolia and Nienburg who threatened to jump overboard if forced to return home on a Japanese boat appeared today to have won their point.

Agents for the two freighters in harbor here said the Chinese would sail homeward tomorrow, by way of Genoa, aboard an Italian ship. The mass suicide threat had caused Argentine authorities to reconsider.

With the British Expeditionary Forces in France, Jan. 3 (CP-Reuters)—Major Clement Attlee, leader of the labor opposition in the House of Commons, arrived at Viscount Gort's General Headquarters last night and will be the guest of British Commander-in-Chief in his chateau during a brief visit to the British Expeditionary Force.

Montevideo, Jan. 3 (AP)— The cruiser Ajax, flagship of the British south Atlantic squadron, arrived here today with Uruguyan permission to stay 48 hours to refuel and obtain provisions.

The Ajax, one of the victors in the naval battle with the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee, entered the harbor after sailing past the hulk of the destroyed German warship, lying in the mud of the River Plate off shore.

Brussels, Jan. 3 (CP-Havas) — A British plane attacked by a German patrol over German territory fell in flames today on Belgian soil near the town of Raeren, close to the frontier. One of the British crew landed safely in a parachute. The two others were rescued from the wreck suffering only from superficial wounds.

Tokyo, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Japanese Foreign Office announced today Soviet Russia had agreed in establishment of two commissions to mark all mutual borders of Manchoukuo, outer Mongolia and Russia, and to prevent future disputes.

Ankara, Jan. 3 (CP-Havas) —A fresh Soviet effort to re-open Soviet-Turkish negotiations was reported here today.

A. V. Terentieff, the Soviet Ambassador, was said to have made tentative approaches to resume the talks that ended last Oct. 18 after three weeks of fruitless negotiations.

Sam Had No Future

By OSCAR JONES

"There are several things I don't like about him, since you ask me!" declared Hazel, with her best air of haughty superiority. "In the first place I don't care for his frayed collars, or that old shinny suit he wears. Then again, he's simply bourgeois! I haven't any time to spend with men who are not interesting. I have never heard Sam Lester say one original thing."

Sissy Anne, smaller, and usually meeker than Hazel, flared up with sudden indignation:

"Interesting people don't usually waste themselves and their ideas on persons whose mental level is lower than their own."

"I suppose you mean me! And Charles Hutchins, and mother, for that matter. Well, I don't care what you say, Charles Hutchins has a future. He's in Hollywood right now, and he's going to have a try-out! You can't claim anything like that for your friend Sammy."

"Children! Children." Mrs. Turner's distressed voice interrupted. "I'm tired of all this arguing." Hazel, I don't like to hear you criticize Mr. Lester because your sister is right, Sissy Anne, when she insists that he's hardly good enough for you. Hereafter, I must request you not to spend so much time with him. Just because he takes his meals here is no reason why he should expect to be received into the family circle."

Sissy Anne was very young, and she had never been in love, that is, never before, and she wasn't quite sure why her heart ached so during the next few days. Only Sam Lester did seem so sort of friendless, when he took his seat at their table with the rest of their boarders.

Letters came from Charles Hutchins, who lingered in Hollywood, awaiting his tryout. Often Hazel read excerpts to the other boarders with much gusto. As, for instance, when Charles wrote:

"The advantage I seem to have aside from my personality, is my training in oratory. I guess those days I spent coaching for the state scholastic contest will mean a good deal to me now."

"A character, that fellow!" Sam Lester murmured once, then subsided into a yet deeper quiet under the influence of the pained, surprised glances that were suddenly turned upon him. Charles Hutchins was the most promising young man in town, and folks had always expected much of him. They didn't think it behooved a shabby soda fountain boy to criticize him.

That was the night Sissy Anne defied her mother and sister and strolled to the front gate with Sam Lester. In the gathering dusk he suddenly placed a hand on Sissy Anne's, where it rested on the gate post, and began tremulously:

"I've been wanting to tell you something, Sissy Anne, but you haven't given me a chance lately. I've been wanting to say—"

"Sissy Anne!" It was a very flustered, indignant Mrs. Turner who bore down belligerently upon them, just in time to see the timid handclasp. "You will come in the house this instant! Mr. Lester, you will please take your meals elsewhere after this. I haven't room for you!"

Sissy Anne cried a lot after that. During the week that followed the episode her cheeks actually paled and she, with all her lack of experience, could no doubt the truth. She was sick at heart, and it was all because she was missing Sam Lester. Dutiful daughter though she was, yet love will have its way, and there came an evening when Sissy Anne boldly slipped out of the house and [illegible] along the street and she knew Sam Lester wa[illegible] at that hour. And when she met him, as though by accident, they turned aside and sought a still quiter street, and Sam was late to work that night.

The next morning Sissy Anne was not at the breakfast table, and Hazel, sent to waken her, came running back with a tear-stained letter, found on her sister's pillow.

"I'm sorry but I love Sam Lester and we are getting married today. I'll write you from Hollywood.

And at the luncheon table, where Mrs. Hutchins and her mother sat in dismal silence, wondering how best to disclose their shameful secret, the second bomb exploded, when the young woman who was assistant to the postmaster exclaimed.

"Well, isn't that just simply astonishing about Sam Lester. All this time he's been working evenings at Ward's soda fountain, and sitting here so quiet and shabby and all the time he was working on a book! Sold it too and this morning he went to Hollywood to see some director who wrote him he wanted to buy the movie rights! They say he's just as good as made a fortune! Did you folks know anything about it?"

One dazed moment for Hazel and Mrs. Hutchins! A swift realization that, with a little self-possession now, the family reputation was saved.

"Well, we ought to know! Sissy Anne married him this morning and went to Hollywood with him! He's a fine young man and all that, but of course we didn't want Sissy Anne to marry so young."

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP) — Barrie dressedweights, last reported Dec. 29, showed widest advance—up 35 cents — on reporting bacon-hog markets today. Stratford quotations were up 25 cents and a 10-cent rise was recorded at Brantford. Other markets were unchanged.

Liveweights — Brantford $8.60, Chatham $8.50.

Dressedweithts — Barrie $11.85, Brantford $11.60, Chatham $11.60, Hamilton $11.25 plus transportation, Hull 11.60, London 11.25 plus transportation, Stratford $11.50 plus transportation, Peterborough 11.50 plus transportation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 3 —(CP)— The market advanced from the opening and by noon the golds, base metals and industrials were showing index gains of .70 to .80 while the western oils had a run in the early afternoon that gave them a corresponding index advance. Volume was heavy and turnover in the first three hours totalled 633,000 shares.

Action in the golds bulked in the cheaper issues and strong gains were posted by Chesterville, Uchi and O'Brien. Nickel advanced about a point and Noranda, Sherritt and Pend Oreille shared in the advance.

Steels, utilities and papers were strong industrial groups and the foods and building issues slipped narrowly.

Home Oil was the big trader in the Turner Valley group and the price was showing a gain of 12 cents at early afternoon. Calgary and Edmonton, Foothills and Anglo-Canadian added 5 to 10 cents.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 3. — (AP)— A little concentrated buying lifted stock market prices today and leaders pushed up fractions to more than a point.

Business picked up after a slow opening to permit fair volume. Near the fourth hour most shares were around their best.

No particular news development could be singled out, brokers said, to account for the continuation of yesterday's rise. Bargain hunting undoubtedly had an effect, as did the release of cash from last week's tax adjustment selling. There was reported to be some short selling at times.

Foreign markets were irregularly higher. Bonds rallied a bit and leading commodities tended upward.

Improved Canadian Issues included McIntyre and Distillers Seagram. Lake Shore Mines inched back while Canadian Pacific, Dome Mines, and, in the Bond Market Canada 4s held unchanged.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Jan. 3 (CP)—Cattle were slow in early trading on Montreal Livestock Markets today while other classes were unchanged, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Receipts: Cattle 159; sheep and lambs 6; hogs 275; calves 125.

Fresh receipts were made up of mostly cows of common to medium quality. Medium quality cows made $4.25-$5 with common butchers from $3.50-$4. Canners and cutters brought $3. Common bulls made $4-$4.50 with fleshy bulls up to $6.

Produce Trading Remains Quiet

Toronto, Jan. 3.—First trading day of 1940 found eggs and butter steady on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Receipts were light, demand was slow, and few price changes occurred.

Buying suffered from the holiday's after-effects on the butter market. With buyers showing no interest in offerings, trading was very slow. First grade Ontario creamery solids remained unchanged at 28 cents a pound.

Egg receipts were sufficient for buyers' requirements. A-medium and A-pullet eggs cleared well, but A-large stock continued to move slowly and consequently took a slight downturn in price. In the graded section A-large eggs eased to 24c, while in the quotations to retailers they were down to a range of 26c to 28c.

WATER SCARCITY BECOMES SEVERE

Township Near Hamilton Makes Arrangement With City to Secure Water

Hamilton, Jan. 3—(CP)—Water scarcity in parts of the country adjacent to Hamilton has become so severe that one township has made arrangements with the city to cart water to drought-stricken farmers. Milk trucks which haul milk to the city have been returning to country areas loaded with cans of drinking water.

The situation has become gradually worse for some days with the drying up of wells. A thaw is necessary before moisture from snow or rain can sink into the ground and give relief to dry wells. Some farmers in the Jerseyville area have had to haul water for several miles.

Today the Barton township office was deluged with telephone calls from farmers back over the mountain who have felt the water scarcity badly. They asked that township officials take immediate steps to remedy the situation. Some were unable to water their stock.

MAJOR OFFENSIVE

Four thousand of the 15,000 men making up the 163rd infantry division were drawn up on ice-covered Lake Kianta when the Finns surrounded them, it was said. The lake is in the "waistline" sector of the eastern frontier. More than 1,000 were killed before a tight ring was drawn around the remainder, according to the Finns.

After opening up the trap to allow Russian reinforcements to enter, the Finns closed in again and set up machine-gun nests along the shore, it was said. Land forces attacked the bottled up enemy by night and the air force by day.

Soviet troops, trucks and cannon dropped into the water when bombs blasted great holes in the ice.

Reporting new successes, a Finnish communique yesterday said seven Soviet planes were shot down.

Seized Russian Base.

In a day-long attack by the Russians at Aittajoki, about 60 miles north of Lake Ladoga, the Finns reported they seized and held the Russian base. Aittajoki, about 13 miles from the Russian border, was presumed to be one of the Russian operations bases.

The communique said the Russian battleship October Revolution bombarded the island fortress of Koivisto south of Viborg (Viipuri) "without results worth mentioning"

(The newspaper National Tidende at Copenhagen said rumors persisted that the wreck of a troop train on the Murmansk Railroad had added to the confusion of Russian forces on the northern front. The reports could not be confirmed.)

SESSION PROMISES TO BE LIVELY ONE

Opposition Likely to Offer Severe Criticism of Government's War Effort

Ottawa, Jan. 3—(CP) — Three weeks from tomorrow, Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir will stand on the red carpet of the Senate chamber and read the speech from the throne opening the first regular parliamentary session of the second Great War — a session that is shaping up as one of the most significant in two decades.

On Parliament Hill most observers predict it will be a session filled with acrimonious debate and inquiry and might last until May or June when it is expected the House will be dissolved and a general election called.

Discussion of war finance will probably bulk large in both houses. Finance Minister Ralston, who will outline the government's financial policy, yesterday was elected to the Commons by acclamation in the Prince, P.E.I., riding. He was appointed to the Cabinet last September, succeeding Hon. Charles Dunning, who resigned due to ill health.

Defence Minister on Holiday

Defence Minister Rogers left yesterday for a holiday after three busy months handling one of the government's main portfolios. With the First Division of the Canadian Active Service Force now safe in England, the minister felt he could take some time off to shake a cold which has been bothering him.

Conservative Leader Manion is expected to begin some of his criticism of the administration when he speaks in the throne speech debate and he has given notice that he plans to protest alleged patronage in war contracts and appointments.

As the session proceeds, Prime Minister Mackenzie King likely will provide some information what transpired at the Empire War Conferences which Hon. I. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines and Resources, attended as Canadian delegate.

The whole question of war contracts and the work of the War Supply Board will come under review and some parliamentary authorities believe that the conscription issue will provide a feature debate.

The St. Lawrence waterways project of debate while the report of the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial affairs is to be tabled and possibly discussed.

BRITISH BOMBERS

No Press Comment

There was no press comment on a United States protest against British seizure and censorship of American mail to Germany and European neutrals disclosed yesterday in Washington.

However, The Times said editorially that most of the United States shares President Roosevelt's "sympathies" for the Anglo-French Allies.

"The great bulk of the nation shares the President's sympathies and supports his policy," The Times said in commenting on today's opening of the United States Congress.

Fight at Heligoland Bight

Britons also read accounts of a battle yesterday over Heligoland Bight in which three raiding British bombers were engaged by 12 German pursuit planes.

The Air Ministry acknowledged that one of the British planes was down and another missing, but said the third was safe. The Ministry added that one of the German planes was "shot down in flames," and two others were "likely to have been lost."

Aviation experts found the Heligoland fight an illustration of the efficacy of the power-driven gun turret of the British Vickers-Wellington bombers against the faster-moving German Messerschmitt planes. The turret permits firing in almost any direction.

WOMAN FRIEND

Surgeons To Operate.

London, Jan. 3 (CP)—The Evening News said today that surgeons would operate to remove a revolver bullet from the neck of Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford, the English friend of Adolf Hitler.

Miss Freeman-Mitford was expected to reach Folkestone late today, and precautions were taken to assure that no one except her family speaks to her when she arrives.

Lord Redesdale has been waiting at Folkestone for three days with an ambulance in readiness to take his 25-year-old daughter to hospital.

"I am not ashamed of anything my daughter has done in Germany," he said. "I know that all she has done has been done because she thought it would encourage friendship between the two countries.

"Many untrue stories have been circulated. I have even been called a Fascist."

FOURTEEN DIE

How the blaze spread so quickly through the 45-year-old structure puzzled firemen. The building is in three sections, and firemen said the fire appeared to start simultaneously in all three.

The fire raged through the interior and left only the red brick walls standing.

The water pouring from fire hoses froze nearly as soon as it hit the walls, and hoses froze to the ground.

Witnesses said the fire appeared to spurt simultaneously from all nine entrances to the three sections of the apartment.

As firemen searched the wreckage of the upper floors, they found so many bodies that ambulances were pressed into service to take them to the morgue.

One fireman suffered a possible broken back when he fell through the roof of the building.

Morgue Keeper John Anderson said at 10 a.m., four hours after the fire was discovered, that 17 bodies had been brought to the morgue, and that he had just had a call to send the morgue ambulance to the apartment for at least one more.

One victim, identified as Mrs. Mabel Brown, 34, died in hospital of a fractured skull. She had jumped from a third-floor window with her husband, who was in poor condition.

Anderson said three victims had been identified as Otto Franke, about 25; his sister, 16, and his mother, about 50.

Passersby, attracted by the fire on their way to work, helped numerous residents out of windows on the lower floor.

Only one of the victims could be identified immediately, even tentatively. She was Florence Hessing, 30, who was seen to jump from a window of the third storey.

A caretaker said 100 to 125 persons lived in the building.

One woman, hysterical from fright, was seriously injured when she writhed out of a fireman's grasp as he carried her down an ice-coated ladder from the third floor.

The fire was the most disastrous here since the Pillsbury Mill fire of 1878, when 18 persons died.

Edward Holm, 20, who lives nearby and was one of the first to arrive at the Marlborough after the fire broke out, described a scene of terror and confusion as occupants groped blindly through smoke-filled hallways.

"I ran to the second and third floors knocking on doors and shouting warnings. There seemed to be no response on the third floor and flames were raging. When I returned to the second floor, at least six or eight people in night clothes were screaming and trying to find their way out.

"I grabbed some and led them to the front doorway. Two policemen came in then and led some more out.

"A man whose feet were burned so badly they were bleeding fell at my feet. I carried him across the street, and when I returned a moment later, the doorway was blocked by flames and entrance was impossible.

Air Force Won't Win Present War Alone

Toronto, Jan. 3—(CP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, member of the British air mission to Canada, said here today that the air force won't win the war alone. It stands now exactly where it stood in 1918. A victory must be gained by a combination of forces, military, naval, aeronautical and economic, he said.

Sir Robert said he believes Great Britain has superiority over Germany in the air. Nazi bombers are clumsy to handle and stall at high speed, he said.

U-BOATS SINK SWEDISH BOATS

One Issues Call for Assistance and Other Sinks Swiftly With Loss of 20 Lives

New York, Jan. 3—(AP)— The Swedish freighter Kiruna, carrying iron ore from Narvik to Baltimore, wirelessed at 7:30 a.m. EST today, saying she had been attacked by a U-boat and was sinking about 500 miles north of the Azores.

Her radio became silent then and four hours later nothing more had been heard from her.

Mackay Radio picked up this message from the 5,484-ton craft: "Position 45.20 North, 25.10 West, have been fired at by U-boat. Sinking slowly. Require assistance."

Cutting Own Throats

American agents for the neutral vessel expressed amazement that the Germans would attack the ship, since she is owned by the same firm which controls the Swedish ore mines, the main source of Germany's iron ore supply.

"The Germans are cutting their own throats," one agent said.

The owners, Trafik AB Grangesberg-Oxelosund of Stockholm, lost another ship today when a submarine torpedoed the 2,475-ton coastal freighter Svarton off the northeast coast of Scotland. Twenty men were missing.

DE VALERA SEEKS

The Irish Republican Army, descended from the Irish Volunteers of 1916, aims at union of Eire and the six northern counties.

This aim is shared by De Valera, but he wants it done peaceably, by agreement with Great Britain.

I. R. A. Has 50,000 Enrolled

Although the I. R. A. has been outlawed by the Governments of Eire, Northern Ireland and Great Britain, its secret enrollment is estimated at from 10,000 to 50,000 men.

Search continued for munitions still missing from the Phoenix Arsenal. Raiders on Dec. 23 disarmed the arsenal guard of 12 men and hauled away 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition. Of 700 cases taken, 217 have not been recovered. Authorities blamed the I. R. A. for the seizure.

GIRL SMOKES PIPE, CIGARS

Seven Years Ago on New Year's Eve She Smoked Cigar and Liked It

Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—December 31 may mean only the end of the year to most people, but to a 22-year-old east Toronto girl the date marks an unforgettable event in her life.

Seven years ago New Year's Eve, as a girl of 15, she took the dare of a male companion and smoked a cigar to become immediately and inseparately attached to that form of smoking.

Since that party a day hasn't gone by when she has not bit the end off a cigar and smoked it with enjoyment, she said.

"I smoked one through that night and I liked it so well I started another. I have never stopped" she says.

The first reaction of people on seeing her stolidly puffing on a large cigar, she said, was to start back in utter amazement. When that is gone, she declares, they become quite tolerant and do not object in the least to the sight. The staff of the office in which she works, she said, has become quite accustomed to the sight of her smoking.

She is not quite certain how her parents would react, because, she said, to this day they are unaware of her passion for the leaf.

She also smokes a pipe. She started that, she stated, while yet a girl in high school.

MURPHY MAY GO TO SUPREME COURT

Attorney General for U. S. Will Take Place of Late Justice Butler

Washington, Jan. 3.—(AP) — Frank Murphy will be appointed to the United States Supreme Court and Solicitor General Robert Jackson will succeed him as Attorney General, it was learned today on high authority.

This shift in the Justice department has been widely predicted since the death of Justice Pierce Butler last November 16.

Murphy became Attorney General January 2, 1939, succeeding Homer Cummings. He had served two years as Governor of Michigan and prior to that was High Commissioner to the Philippines.

Jackson has been with the Justice Department since 1936. After heading the Anti-Trust Division, he became Solicitor General in 1938 when Stanley Reed was appointed to the Supreme Court.

British Are Touched by Gifts Of Belleville School Children

Letters of Appreciation Received From Mrs. Vincent Massey and the Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner to London

Mrs. Neate, 50 Cedar Street, has received from Mrs. Alice Vincent Massey, wife of the Canadian High Commissioner in London, England, a letter of thanks for the gift by the Queen Mary school children who raised the amount of 2 pounds, 6 shillings and one penny which was forwarded by Mrs. Neate.

Canada House, Trafalgar Square,
London, S. W. 1,
16th December, 1939.

Dear Mrs. Neate;

I cannot tell you how grateful both my husband and I were for the gift sent by the children of Queen Mary public school. The fact that it was raised through the children blacking one another's shoes and selling candy is most touching, especially as they had already contributed to the large amount that was sent through the I.O.D.E.

Do tell them how grateful we are over here. They will be interested to know that this last cheque is being spent on boots and shoes for the children, since there are very few of these in the parcels of clothing that have come from Canada.

I am enclosing a card which we sent out with all the parcels to the children. We are anxious that all these things should go out as a Christmas greeting to them for they feel that a new dres or a new pair of shoes is as much a Christmas present as a toy or something of that kind. New clothes gives them a real thrill.

With warmest thanks for all the interest you yourself, must have taken in this matter,

Yours sincerely,

Alice Vincent Massey.

Following is a copy of the card sent out to the evacuated children with the gifts from Canada—

"Here with all the good wishes in the world, is a little gift from Canada. It may help to add to the happiness of your Christmas.

"Will you also regard it, please, as a sign that the women of Canada are thinking of all in the Old Country in these difficult days and are eager and anxious to do what they can to help you and yours, however humbly.

"Please look, then, not on what value or usefulness there may be in this box, but on the great load of kindly thought which is in it as well."

Mrs. Neate, who is regent of St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., has also received from the Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner at London, a letter of thanks for the gift of a cheque of $115 from the Belleville school children to the children of Great Britain This was sent through the I.O.D.E. provincial headquarters at Toronto.

DRIVES BURNING CAR TO FIRE STATION

Rock Island, Ill., Jan. 3 (AP)—Motorists may have driven their burning cars to the fire station before, but R. L. Elledge did it with an extra flourish. Racing for the firehouse, Elledge was forced out of his automobile by the flames and drove the last three blocks standing on the running board.

Deaf, Mute Parents And Family Escape From Burning Home

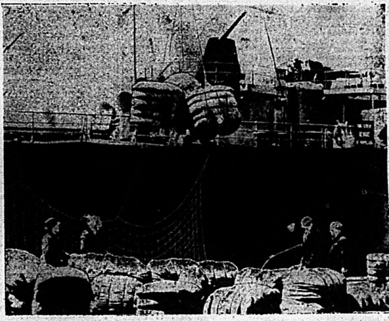
Toronto, Jan. 3 (CP)—While flames they could not hear crackled from an overheated stove through their tiny roughcast cottage early today, Leslie Robinson and his wife and three children slept. Leslie Robinson is deaf and mute. So is Mrs. Robinson.

Some how—perhaps one of the children wakened and tugged its parents' cover — the Robinsons wakened and found their little home an inferno of flame.

Helping Mrs. Robinson to get the children from the cottage Leslie Robinson ran for help to a restaurant a block away, where he made quick signs to the man at the counter. After some difficulty, the restaurant man understood his gestured appeal, and telephoned the fire department.

In the meantime Mrs. Robinson had carried her two-months-old baby, Leslie, Jr., and led seven-year-old Jeannette and five-year-old Bobbie to a neighbor's home. There, strained by the excitement which was surging behind her speechless tongue, Mrs. Robinson fainted.

AUSTRALIA'S WOOL CROP STARTS ON ITS WAY TO ENGLAND



With the flag of Britain at her masthead, and guns on her decks to protect her against enemy raiders, this freighter is pictured at an Australian port, being loaded with part of the Southern Dominion's wool crop. While blockading Germany so that no essential commodities can reach her, the British navy keeps the sea lanes open for Allied commerce. The British government has contracted for the entire output of wool from Australia as a war measure. [illegible] and anti-submarine guns can be seen on the freighter's deck as the bales of wool are slung aboard. —Phonephoto.

WILL REPORT ACTIVITIES OF CANADA'S FIGHTING FORCES

To chronicle the exploits of Canada's soldiers in England and later in the front lines, these four Canadian newspapermen have crossed the Atlantic and are now in Britain. Their dispatches will give Canadian newspaper readers first-hand accounts of the activities of the Dominion's soldiers from the viewpoint of Canadians. LEFT to RIGHT they are: Gregory Clark (Toronto Star); A. E. H. Coo (Winnipeg Free Press); A. W. O'Brien (Montreal Star), and S. S. Robertson (the Canadian Press).

SOVIET DEAD TESTIFY TO FINLAND'S GRIM COURAGE

The twisted bodies of these slain Russian troops graphically tell the story of Finland's resistance to the Soviet invader. This picture was made on the Karelian Isthmus front. Lying where they fell, cut down by Finnish fire and the bitter winter weather that has proved the brave little nation's stoutest ally to date, the Red army soldiers are part of the thousands annihilated in vain attempts to smash through the Mannerheim line of defences. Neutral estimates place Russian casualties as high as 33,000 on all fronts in Finland.

CANADA'S SECO D CONTINGENT LEAVES FOR ENGLAND

Pictured as they boarded troop transports at their eastern Canada embarkation point are the troops of the second contingent of Canada's first division. In two contingents, all the men making up the first division, under the command of Maj.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, were safely transported to England, under convoy of British and French warships. At TOP LEFT men of the contingent are waiting at ship-side with their kit piled ready for loading. BELOW one of the Canucks lights a match for a soldier pal as they prepare to turn their faces eastward. TOP RIGHT shows the men lining the bridge and rail of one of the transports just before it nosed out into the Atlantic.

KILLS HER MOTHER WITH A SCARF

University Librarian Then Attempts to Take Her Own Life but Fails

Pittsburg, Jan. 3.—(AP)— Police reported a 34-year-old woman university librarian strangled her mother with a scarf during the night, then leaped from a hotel window early today in a suicide attempt that failed.

Detectives identified the daughter as Agnes West, an assistant student librarian at West Virginia University at Morgantown, W.Va., and her mother as Mrs. Helen West, about 58.

The slaying was not discovered until shortly before 3 a.m. (E.S.T.) when police investigated the daughter's plunge from the hotel window to a tin roofing over an areaway. They found the mother's body, fully clothed, on the floor of the room.

Detectives quoted the daughter as saying later "I was selfish and unstable. I did not want mother to go through life alone and decided I would take her with me."

Miss West was in a hospital suffering back and internal injuries.

PAPER CHARGES REDS ILL-TREATED

States Workers and Patriots Dying Like Flies in Finnish Prisons

Moscow, Jan. 3 (AP)—The newspaper Trud alleged today that the "Finnish White Government" (the Helsingfors government) had arrested thousands of workers and honest patriots "who do not want to fight for the Mannerheim gang".

The newspaper asserted that "arrested people are dying like flies in prisons" and reported many executions.

The Russians, however, received no news of the conflict with Finland as a communique on yesterday's events reported: "Nothing important occurred on the front. Owing to unfavorable weather Soviet aviation made only reconnoitring flights."

A proclamation by Paavo Prokkonen, "Minister for Karelian Affairs" of the "Finnish Peoples Democratic government," sponsored by the Soviet at Terijoki, said the workers of Finland and the people of Soviet Karelia soon would be joined "in a happy new government".

Prokkonen's proclamation, printed in the newspaper "Red Karelia", declared the Helsingfors government had sent "spies and terrorists into Soviet territory".

Freighter City Of Flint Leaves For U. S. Waters

Bergen, Norway, Jan. 3 (AP)—The United States freighter City of Flint, central figure in two dramas of the sea last fall, is expected to resume her adventures tonight or tomorrow, when she leaves the Norwegian port of Narvik for the United States.

The same American crew which was aboard during her wanderings in northern waters in October—after she had brought survivors of the torpedoed liner Athenia to Halifax—will be in charge when she leaves for home. The Flint left in Norway a cargo of apples originally intended for England and is loaded with iron ore for the return trip.

While en route to British ports from the United States in October the City of Flint was seized by the German raider Deutschland and was taken to the Russian port of Murmansk by a German prize crew. Within a few days the German crew sailed for a German port.

En route, the City of Flint put in at the Norwegian port of Haugesund, allegedly to obtain medical aid for a sick seaman. Norwegian officials declared the seaman was not ill and promptly interned the German prize crew. The City of Flint then was taken to Bergen by her own crew and his been in Norwegian waters since.

Rome Surprised By British Edict

Rome, Jan. 3 (CP-Havas)—The Royal proclamation notifying all Britons between 19 and 28 to be ready for military duty caused a sensation in Italy today.

Newspapers reported the story from London under banner headlines, and said the measure was evidence of Great Britain's determination to achieve maximum military power. Italian correspondents in London emphasized that the proclamation would permit Britain to have nearly 3,500,000 men under arms during the present war.

The proclamation also was viewed here as Britain's reply to reports of forthcoming peace proposals from either Germany or the neutrals. Italian observers said a new German peace offensive would have little chance of success because of the attitude prevailing in France and Great Britain.

Assembled in the free trade zone at Staten Island, N.Y., more than $18,000,000 worth of war equipment purchased in the United States for the war requirements of England and France, awaits the freighters and the loading facilities that will start it on its way to Europe. Here are some of the shipments piling up on the wharves, proof positive that the Allies are well able to secure the war essentials available under the cash-and-carry provisions of the revised Neutrality Act. At LEFT, equipment for both air and ground fighters can be seen—tractors on the dock and anti-aircraft on the freighter's deck. CENTRE shows part of the fleet of trucks, numbering into the thousands, already bought for overseas use, and at RIGHT, one of the giant trench-diggers part of a $3,000,000 order which should make life easier for the Tommies and Poilus on the western front.

"Suicide Patrols" Dynamite Railroad To Hamper Reds

One Patrol Operating Near Juolajaervi Reported Menacing Murmansk Railway at Kandalaska, Russia

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 4—(AP)—Finnish troops chasing the remnants of Russia's crushed 163rd division were reported today to have pushed 10 miles into Soviet territory and to have surrounded a second Red army division which had been sent to assist the beaten 163rd.

The reports on the encirclement of the relief division, which were not confirmed immediately by military authorities in Helsingfors, said the Finns surrounded them between Lake Kianta and the Russian border. The Red troops were said to be in desperate plight, with food and ammunition supplies cut off.

Bases Destroyed

Copenhagen press dispatches said Finnish Bombers raided and partly destroyed new Russian air bases on the Islands of Dago and Oesel, off the coast of Estonia near the southern end of the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. Russia won from Estonia the right to fortify these islands last fall. The newspaper Aftenavis speculated that the Finns used new British and Italian planes for the raids.

The Finns who were reported to have pushed into Soviet territory were those who last week-end defeated the Russian 163rd division on Lake Kianta.

This was the fourth point on the eastern front at which Finnish counter-offensives have carried into Russia.

Unconfirmed reports placed the Finns in the latest penetration as far as the western shores of Lake Kokki, which is about 10 miles in-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climatic fluctuations! The great climatic fluctuations of the past which brought about the ice ages and intervening warm periods were attributed to either astronomical causes or to changes in those factors which we know control climate today. Among the astronomical causes were change in the distances between the earth and sun, change in the slant of the earth's axis and change in amount of the sun's radiation. These are now considered invalid, and now the causes are supposed to be purely terrestrial; that is, for instance, changes in land elevation, distributions of land and water, in the circulations of atmosphere and oceans, and in different compositions of the air.

BODY OF GIRL FOUND ON TRACK EARLY TODAY

Ruth Shore, 19, of 63 Alexander Street, Victim of Fatality

FOUND BY WORKMAN

Ruth Shore, 19, deaf and almost mute, resident at 63 Alexander St., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shore, was found dead on the C.P.R. railway bridge shortly before seven o'clock this morning, by C. Wilton, 98 Pinnacle Street, while on his way to work at the Corbin Lock Company. The victim was a former pupil at the O.S.D. and graduated in June last. The body apparently had been there for some time for it was badly frozen due to the frigid temperature that prevailed during the night and the head was severed from the body, the head being at the scene of the fatality, while the main part of the body was bome five yards to the east. Mr. Wilton immediately telphoned the police and Sergeant Arthur Harman and Constable Arnott hurried to the scene and Constable Arnott stayed until the body was removed to the Martin Funeral Home, where an inquest was called under the direction of Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Three Trains Passed Scene

There were three trains passing over the C.P.R. tracks after the midnight hour, one being the eastbound passenger train at 2.20 a.m., a westbound freight at 3.00 a.m. and a westbound passenger train at 4.40 a.m. After the body was found it was some time before the police were able to identify the victim. The mother of the girl called into the police station shortly after the body was found stating that her daughter was missing as she had not been home all night, and from this lead the police were able to establish identification through Mr. Joseph Tilley, who resides next door to the family.

Neither the police nor the family have any knowledge of her movements from eight o'clock last evening and would be very pleased to receive information on this point. From the position in which the body was found it was presumed she was walking in an easterly direction and it is further presumed she was struck by the passenger train passing through the city at 2.20 a.m.

J.H.R. Cromwell U. S. Minister To Dominion

Washington, Jan. 4 —(CP) — James H. R. Cromwell of New Jersey, economist and husband of the former Doris Duke, tobacco fortune heiress, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be United States Minister to Canada.

The post has been vacant for nearly two years with the exception of a short time when Daniel C. Roper, former United States Secretary of Commerce, filled in during the visit of the King and Queen to Canada last summer.

President Roosevelt sent the nomination, along with five others in the diplomatic corps and state department, to the Senate which must confirm it.

ROOSEVELT ASKS $2,248,126,509 FOR U. S. DEFENCE

WARSHIP BUILDING

Increase Far Less Than Experts Think is Necessary but President Thinks it Ample for 1940

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked the United States Congress today to vote National Defence appropriations totalling $2,248,126,509, the highest in two decades, and proposed special taxes to meet part of the burden.

The aggregate asked in the budget message and in emergency proposals represented an increase of $466,532,903 from the last session.

The increase, Mr. Roosevelt advised, "is far less than many experts on National Defence think should be spent, though it is in my judgment a sufficient amount for the coming year."

There was no hint of supplemental requests to come later to speed warship building and for other military purposes, such as have been forecast in some official quarters.

In various routine and emergency funds, the President asked:

Military Expenditures

1. For military purposes of the War Department, $1,007,356,596 compared with $961,293,102 voted last year for army, air and land forces. Further increases in the air corps, and bolstering of seacoast defences and the Panama Canal were specified. Further army expansion was deferred, however, beyond the recently-ordered enlisted strength of 227,000 for the regular army and 235,000 for the National Guard.

2. For the navy, a "regular" budget of $904,540,037, up $183,750,575 from last year's, and additional "emergency" and public works funds to raise the navy's net to $1,224,521,833.

Warship Building

Much of the increase would go to warship building. Besides continuing work on the 120 naval craft of all sizes and types already on the ways, Mr. Roosevelt asked funds to start construction in the year beginning next July 1 of 24 more ships.

New ships projected are two battleships, one aircraft carrier, two cruisers, eight destroyers, six submarines, one submarine tender, one seaplane tender, two small seaplane tenders, and one minesweeper.

The battleships would be the ninth and tenth to be undertaken in the last five years. Initial funds were provided last year for two of 45,000 tons each. The navy is preparing requested information for Congress on record-size craft of 65,000 tons, but the budget did not specify the size of the latest projected pair.

Panama Canal Safety

Regular and emergency budgets proposed 145,000 enlisted men for the navy and 25,000 for the marine corps, the same augmented totals which Mr. Roosevelt directed in September.

The new estimates stressed the administration's concern over the safety of the Panama Canal, vital passageway for the fleet between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The emergency budget for the next fiscal year calls for $19,000,000 for "necessary protection" and $15,000,000 to start work on a third and larger set of locks "primarily in the interest of national defence." The locks, authorized at the last session, are epected to require five years to build and to cost $277,000,000 altogether.

Pigeon That Saved Officer's Life Buried With Military Honors

Johannesburg, Jan. 4 (CP)— A pigeon that saved the life of Major J. J. O. Venter, General Staff Officer, of the Voortrekkerhoogte and Transvaal command, has been buried here with military honors.

When he was a young Lieutenant in the South African air force, Venter flew over the bushveld in the northern Transvaal. He was to release three carrier pigeons so as to test their homing ability.

After releasing two of them, Venter realized that he was lost. His compass was out of commission and for as far as he could see the country was covered with small dry bushes without any definite landmark by which he might be able to fix his whereabouts.

"Being young and inexperienced at the time, I became panicky," he said. "Then I remembered that I had one pigeon left.

"Would he know his way home? It was my only chance. I let him go, and he began to fly in what I thought was the wrong direction. But after hesitating for a few seconds I decided to follow him. We flew on and on, and just when I had begun to lose all faith in my guide I saw the Pienaar's River. From there on I knew my way.

"After that experience I looked after the bird as a mother would an only child. He had as much food as he liked—in fact, he was so spoilt that he became useless as a carrier pigeon."

New Clear Channels For Radio Stations In About 6 Months

Toronto, Jan. 4 (CP)—At least six months will be needed to make effective the new North American regional agreement which gives new clear channels to Canadian radio stations, officials of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said here today.

The agreement, made at Havana two years ago, was ratified last Friday by Mexico, the last country to approve it. Under its terms Canada, the United States, Cuba, Mexico, Haiti and the CBC officials said new wavelengths will be allocated to nearly all stations on this continent. In the United States alone hundreds of stations will be affected.

A definite deadline will be set for the swing-over so that all stations will change to the new wavelengths at the same time. Necessary technical adjustments in transmitters and antennae systems will have to be made during the six months interval.

CBL, the 50,000-watt Ontario key station of the CBC in Toronto, has been the principal Canadian sufferer from interference. It also has been a matter for concern with the CBC's French and English key stations at Montreal, CBF and CBM.

British, German Seamen Who Fought Off Montevideo Drink Beer Together

Buenos Aires, Jan. 4 —(AP) — With glasses of beer, German and British seamen who engaged in the running naval battle off Montevideo Dec. 13 washed away ill feelings last night.

In bars and clubs, the one-time rivals in the greatest sea fight in the war drank toasts and told each other they harbored no ill will.

The British sailors were off the cruiser Achilles, one of three British warships which put the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee to flight. The aftermath of the encounter was scuttling of the pocket battleship after Uruguay ordered it either to leave its Montevideo refuge or be interned.

As surprised Argentines looked on, the erstwhile combatants raised their glasses in friendship. It was a strange spectacle—the mixed groups of men whose headbands bore the words, "Panzerschiff Admiral Graff Spee" and "H. M. S. Achilles."

The arrival of the Achilles yesterday at Buenos Aires followed that of the cruiser Ajax, flagship of the British South Atlantic squadron, at Montevideo.

"I'd gladly drink with them anytime," commented one young Briton, referring to the Graf Spee crew men, who have been interned here for the duration of the war. They are to be transferred to the interior by the Argentine Government.

DEBATE BILL ON NON-PARTY LINES SAY OBSERBERS

Bill Relating to Lengthening of Terms of Municipal Officials Discussed in Legislature

BILL OPPOSED

Toronto, Jan. 4.— (CP)— The much-discussed Bill relating to lengthening of terms of municipal officials during wartime as an economy measure may be debated on non-party lines in the Ontario Legislature this month, according to reports at Queen's Park.

Proposed changes in the Ontario Municipal Act were submitted for Cabinet approval at a meeting yesterday. Following the session Premier Mitchell Hepburn would give no hint as to what decision, if any, was reached, although talk remained that the government will stand behind the Bill in the House.

Several Ontario municipalities have opposed the suggestion that terms of municipal officials be extended. Last Monday Toronto citizens voted two to one against the suggestion that the tenure of office be lengthened from one year to two. By four to one they expressed opinion against a moratorium on municipal elections during the war.

Will Ask Council to Resign

Conjecture over the fate of the Bill, details of which have not been made public, was aroused further last night when Ald. Ernest C. Bogart of Toronto announced he will ask the entire Toronto council to resign as a protest measure at the end of this year if the provincial government insists upon enacting legislation forcing municipalities to remain in office for more than a one-year period.

Mr. Bogart, who headed the aldermanic poll, said the government plan should be opposed by every municipality in the province and that Toronto should take the lead and force another election next year.

He termed the government's plan an "alarming encroachment" on municipal rights.

Discusses Taxes

The cabinet, during a three-hour session, yesterday, was understood also to have discussed proposed renewal of the abandoned provincial income tax and also an amendment to the Succession Duties Act which would cover faults discovered since a special session last September.

GOERING BECOMES SUPREME HEAD OF WAR INDUSTRY

No. 2 Nazi Is Now 'Supreme War - Economics Authority'

COORDINATION AIM

Berlin, Jan. 4—(AP)—Field Marshal Hermann Goering has decided to take the supreme direction of the entire war industry into his own hands, it was announced today.

The avowed purpose is to bring about the greatest concentration and unification of everything that concerns Germany's economic policy during the war.

All chief offices of the nation having to do with war-economic policy are united in a general council under Goering's presidency. By this measure, it was stated, the "absolutely essential cooperation is to be ensured."

Koerner Named Deputy.

Goering' right hand man, State Secretary Paul Koerner of the Prussian State Ministry, has been appointed his deputy.

Writing in "The Four Year Plan", Koerner said transition of the highly developed German economy from peace to war was accomplished without friction. To meet the British blockade, German economic policy must be adapted to new possibilities, Koerner wrote.

Three pre-conditions must be fulfilled, Koerner held:

"First, clear authority to give orders and the most rigid authority for the direction of the entire war economy.

"Second, closest cooperation of all officers having to do with questioning of war economy.

"Third, dicipline and undertsanding cooperation by the entire people."

Koerner said Goering would utilize existing ministries as well as tried institutions of the four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency. Under the scheme envisaged, Germany, according to Koerner, will be able to meet fully all economic tasks arising even if the war lasts a long time.

RUSSIANS BLAME VERSIONS OF WAR ON SCANDINAVIA

Italian Ambassador Leaves Moscow One Day After Departure of British Ambassador

DIPLOMATIC MOVES

Hungarian Foreign Minister Travels to Italy for Important Talks

London, Jan. 4—(CP)—A Soviet Russian charge that "fantastic" versions of war with Finland were originating in Scandinavian capitals as well as Helsingfors provided an argumentative accompaniment today for a series of diplomatic manoevures pivoting on Moscow.

A statement by the press bureau of Russia's London Embassy cautioned against "hasty conclusions based on doubtful evidence" on the Red campaign against Finland.

The statement was issued about the time the Italian Ambassador to Soviet Russia left Moscow last night, a day after departure of the British Ambassador, and while the Hungarian Foregin Minister, Count Csaky, travelled to Italy with important diplomatic talks in prospect.

Possible Balkan Move

Budapest diplomatic circles said Count Csaky's visit would include talks with Italian leaders on a possible Balkan move by Russia, probably centring on what would transpire if Russia marched into Rumanian Bessarabia.

Hungarians declared Italy would support a Hungarian advance into Rumanian Transylvania to secure the Carpathian Mountain barrier against Russia if the Reds invad-

PRIME MINISTER MACKENZIE KING IN GOOD HEALTH

Announces Walter Thompson, Director of Public Information, Will Take Long Rest

CANADA WILL AID

Ottawa, Jan. 4—(CP)— The heavy burden of leading the Dominion through four months of war seems to rest lightly on Prime Minister Mackenzie King who appears in better health today than any time since the conflict started.

In his east block office yesterday, he genially received 30 parliamentary correspondents at his second press conference of the war, greeted them all with a warm smile and then underwent the newsmen's verbal cross-fire covering half a dozen topics.

The Prime Minister announced with regret that ill health has forced Walter Thompson to take a long rest from his post as Director of Public Information, which he recently assumed after being chief censor. Herbert Lash, an assistant of Mr. Thompson's, will act in the Director's absence.

Will Help Finland

Asked about Canadian aid to Finland in the fight against Russia, Mr. Mackenzie King said the methods by which the Dominion could give economic assistance to the little Baltic country were under consideration by the Government and might possibly take the form of contributions through the Red Cross Society.

Another correspondent questioned the Government head about the St. Lawrence waterways and the Prime Minister gave official assurance that negotiations are again underway between Canada and the United States looking toward agreement on the project and "informal" discussions have been opened.

Warns Britain Against Dangers Of Nazism and Bolshevism

London, Jan. 4—(CP)—Warning that a determined effort is being made to drive Britain "into the same abyss of servitude and lawlessness in which the peoples of the Third Reich now lie entrapped" is sounded by Lord Queenborough, President of the Royal Society of St. George.

In the Society's monthly message its President declares Bolshevism and Nazism now stand in uneasy partnership and Britain must guard against dangers arising from this circumstance.

"It is imperative that we should strain every nerve to bring home to all our people the nature of the dangers which confront them, and help them to realize how absolutely vital to their future progress and happiness are the institutions, customs and traditions which we are struggling to preserve," he contends.

Nazi Detachments Trapped by French And Suffer Heavily

French Group Returns to Base Without Losing Single Man — Another Patrol Penetrates Enemy Lines

PATROLS IN DAYTIME

Improved Weather Conditions Make Possible Increased Activity in Air— French Planes Carry Out Four Missions

By AXEL DE HOLSTEIN
(Havas Staff Writer.)

Paris, Jan. 4 (CP-Havas)—Heavy losses by two German detachments of about 100 men each ambushed by a small French patrol on the Western Front were reported by military authorities today. The French group returned to its base without losing a single man.

The French unit in the Vosges mountains, realizing it was too small to attack the Germans, was skilfully arranged in such a way as to be able to sweep the enemy detachment with machine-gun fire.

West of the Saar River a French patrol penetrated German lines to a depth of about 1 1-2 miles. In the same region French soldiers took prisoners by ambushing an enemy patrol.

Patrol in Daytime

For the past two days the usual patrol activities have occurred in the daytime, instead of at night, as had been the case for several days previous. Yesterday, particularly in the morning, patrol activity was notably intense, extending to almost all sectors of the front from the Rhine to the Moselle.

Improved weather conditions made possible increased activity in the air. French reconnaissance planes carried out four missions, penetrating inside Germany as far as 250 miles.

German planes flew over the eastern region of France, approaching close to the Paris district. Northern France also was flown over. The German planes passed over Belgium on the way back to Germany.

Both Air Forces Busy

Over the front the air forces of both sides were busy on observation and photographing missions. In encounters of pursuit planes, the French brought down two German machines, a Dornier and a Messerschmitt.

Meanwhile, General Wladyslaw Sikorski, Premier of Poland's government in exile, charged members of the former government with "irreparable negligence" during the German invasion.

The Premier, in a message to his Ministers, said the previous "regimes of favor" failed "both in the domain of military preparations and in the purely political and economic domain."

Guilty to be Judged

Apparently referring to Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, former Polish Commander-in-Chief, Sikorski said, "the guilty will be judged by history and by the nation."

The French Blockade Ministry announced that 10 German ships were seized by naval patrols during the week ending Dec. 31 and that 27,000 tons of merchandise had been intercepted. This made a total of 429,000 tons intercepted since the outbreak of the war, the Ministry said.

MEAT IMPORTS INTO BRITAIN HANDLED BY NEW ORGANIZATION

London Jan. 4—(CP)—Meat imports into Great Britain are handled by one of the many new organizations created under the war conditions. It is called the Meat Importers' National Defence Association, Ltd., "Mindal" for short.

Mindal has three purposes:

To end selling of "pirate" meat at high prices; to level up distribution of meat in all areas; to eliminate competition between importers.

BULLET PIERCES POLICE BADGE

Metal Badge, Pinned Over Heart, Deflects Bullet Through Coat

Montreal, Jan. 4—(CP)— Constable Lucien Bouchard's police badge saved him from serious injury or possible death last night when a bullet fired by an unknown motorist pierced the metal badge, pinned over his heart, and was deflected through his coat.

A second shot, fired as the constable tried to wrench a revolver from the motorist's hands, went through the top of his right glove. Uninjured, Constable Bouchard fired five shots at the rear of the machine as it sped away but he was unable to say whether any of them took effect.

The shooting occurred in the north-east end of the city when the policeman went to question the driver of the automobile parked at the intersection of two lanes. The first shot was fired as he approached the car and the second when he was within an arm's length of the driver.

PRAISE ROOSEVELT ON PLEA OF PEACE AND ECONOMY

Parties Laud Statement But Some Think Discussion on Foreign Matters Indefinite

TAXATION ISSUE

Washington, Jan. 4.— (AP) — Amid general applause for President Roosevelt pleas for peace and economy, sharp disputes broke out among members of the United States Congress today over his recommendations for special defence taxes and continuance of the reciprocal trade program.

While awaiting presentation of the 1940-41 budget, party leaders scanned the President's annual message for issues to be fought out in the coming Presidential campaign.

Democrats were warm in their praise of the tone of the address, especially its re-declaration that the United States must stay out of war while trying to promote peace. Many Republicans joined in lauding this statement, although some termed the entire discussion of foreign and domestic policies too indefinite.

Emergency Defence Taxes

Just as both parties are split over extending the reciprocal trade program beyond next June 12, so are they divided over the President's advocacy of sufficient additional taxes to pay for emergency defence spending. One or two Congressmen privately predicted that no special tax would be passed at this session.

Both tax and tariff bills originate in the House of Representatives. Chairman Robert Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee said a measure to extend the Reciprocal Trade Act, under which the Canada-United States Trade agreement was negotiated, would be introduced in a week. A Defence Tax Bill, he said, will come up after the trade measure is debated.

Reciprocal Trade Act

While a few Democrats and most Republicans want to amend the Reciprocal Trade Act to require Senate ratification of each tariff-lowering pact with other nations, Senator Barkley joined House Democratic leaders in asserting that there should be no compromise.

That meant they favored letting the State Department continue to make the agreements without Senate approval, which under actual treaty-making practice requires a two-thirds vote.

The President told Congress that an extension of the Act was needed to promote both trade and peace. He said it was not correct to infer that legislative powers have been transferred to the executive branch under the trade program.

36 PIGS LOST WHEN PEN BURNS

Foxboro, January 4 (Special) —A piggery and 36 pigs, the property of Percy Demille, resident two and one-half miles west of Foxboro on the 6th concession of Sidney was destroyed by fire late Tuesday night. The blaze is believed to have been caused from a cooker used to head food for the animals. Fortunately the wind was blowing in the right direction to take the flames away from the barn and by heroic efforts of the volunteer fire brigade this building was saved. The loss will be quite heavy to Mr. Demille as the pigs were about ready for market.

TWO MISS OUT AS NAMES CALLED

Two district residents missed out on gifts of large sums of money last evening when their names were called at the Capitol theatre's Foto-Nite and the patrons were not in attendance. Mr. William Brown of Rednersville would have been the richer today by two hundred dollars, for his was the first name called after the contest which decided the lucky numbers. The name of Miss Rosaleen Cole, 157 Station Street, was announced as being eligible for the prize of $35, but Miss Cole was not present at the theatre last evening.

POLICE COURT

Cornelius Hamilton, Thurlow, pleaded not guilty to a charge of harboring a dog and failing to procure a township dog license, when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's County Police Court. Hamilton stated the dog in question was not his property, but had returned to his home and the animal's owner had moved away. His Worship reserved judgment in the matter. G. H. Stoliker, Thurlow, who was charged with the same offence, failed to answer to his name.

"This man was in the Court House yesterday and may have settled his case before a Justice of the Peace," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., after Stoliker's name had been called twice without response.

Several young men were in the court to face charges of the theft of poultry and also of receiving stolen goods. Mr. Chas. Cameron, K.C., was to have appeared for three of the youths, but was unavoidably detained, Allan Sprague, local barrister, appearing and requesting a remand on behalf of Mr. Cameron's clients.

EIRE'S SENATE TO TAKE SPEEDY ACTION ON BILL

Gives Power to Intern Without Trial Persons Menacing the Public Safety

DETECTIVE SHOT

Dublin, Jan. 4—(AP)— Eire's Parliament convened today for speedy final action on an emergency powers bill giving authority for a nation-wide roundup of members of the illegal Irish Republican Army.

The bill, which gives the Eire Government power to intern without trial persons menacing the safety of the state, was passed, 82 to 9, in the Dail Eireann (Lower House) last night and sent to the Senate.

Amid predictions that legislators were marked for assassination and rumors of an I.R.A. "School for bomb throwers," the Dail voted in a special session.

While the measure was debated, Detective John Roche was shot to death in Cork when he and another detective challenged a group of men, police arrested the group, which included Thomas MacCurtain, son of the late Lord Mayor of Cork who was shot during the Irish Rebellion in 1921.

Urges Enactment

Justice Minister Gerald Boland, urging enactment of the legislation, said several packets of "American dollars" destined for the I.R.A. had been seized by authorities.

Mr. Boland said "officers" of the army possessed large sums of money and quantities of arms and ammunition to carry out a rebellion for the union of Northern Ireland with Ireland.

Mr. Boland said authorities had disclosed that 150 I.R.A. men took part in the Dec. 23 raid on the Phoenix Park Arsenal in which 1,084,000 rounds of ammuntion were stolen.

The outlawed band conducted classes in a school at Drogheda on how to make explosives and bombs, he said.

When asked who sent the United States funds for the army the Justice Minister replied:

Shrewd Idea

"We have a shrewd idea but we don't want to mention names."

(Sean Russell self-termed Commander-in-Chief of the I.R.A. was on a fund raising tour of the United States when arrested in Detroit just before the arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth last summer. He was released.)

James Dillon member of parliament told members of the Dail:—"I believe the ultimate end of the activities of these gentlemen must be assassination. God knows how many of us may be the victims."

Prime Minister De Valera who long has campaigned for the Union of the six northern counties with Eire but opposes violence spoke vigorously for the measure in reply to opposition charges that it would deprive citizens of their liberties.

"The illegal organization apparently was prepared to use arms against the state," he declared. "There will be only one government functioning in this part of the country, that one freely elected by the people."

Dynamiter Denies Drunk Charge, Says He Ate Explosive

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 4 (AP) —A grizzled 49-year-old dynamiter, denying he was drunk as charged, told Judge John Draper he had eaten bits of explosive to stop a headache. "Them pills," he explained, "is the onliest thing that'll make my head stop hurtin' after a hard day of blastin'. But it makes me stagger." The Judge freed him.

WALTER DEACON (Marmora)

Marmora (Special)—The passing of Walter Deacon of Marmora, in the early hours of Wednesday morning means not only that the village is bereaved of possibly its oldest resident but also that his passing will be mourned by scores of old shanty men over a wide area to whom his name was a household word.

The late Mr. Deacon was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Deacon who came into Marmora township almost a century ago as pioneer settlers. His mother was born on the same day as Queen Victoria. The late Mr. Deacon was born eighty-eight years ago on what was formerly known as the Solomon Johns property of sturdy Devon ancestry, he was destined to live a long industrious life marked with integrity of purpose. At the age of fourteen he went to work in the lumbering camp of the late Sanford Baker whose mill was on Baker's Island, Trenton. In the course of a year, Sanford Baker had sold out to Page and Thompson, who after sold out to the Rathburn Company. At the age of seventeen while still employed by Page and Thompson, Walter Deacon did his first river driving. At that time, to quote from his reminiscences a journey to Belleville with a load of potash meant an absence of four days from the village and a part of the road between Stirling and Harold was planked.

After a lengthy period of service with the Rathburn Company the late Mr. Deacon spent a quarter of a century in the employ of the Pearce Company.

His wife predeceased him on April 15th, 1933, He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. G. B. Airhart, Belleville, Mrs. Gordon Jarvis, Marmora and Violet at home. The funeral will leave his late residence on McGill Street, Marmora, on Friday, January 5th proceeding to St. Andrew's United Church for service at 2 p.m. Interment will follow in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

U.S. LOAN TO FINNS IS FORECAST

Other Practical Aid is Expected by Chairman Key Pittman

Washington, Jan. 4 —(AP)— Immediate financial aid and other practical aid to Finland was forecast today by Chairman Key Pittman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee's first meeting next Wednesday.

Among proposals under discussion in Senate corridors are bills providing for loans for Finland ranging from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, remission of Finland's war debt payments, and removal of all restrictions on $10,000,000 credits already granted Finland. The latter action would allow the money to be used to buy war and other materials.

In the House of Representatives, Frank Hook, Michigan Democrat, proposed a $60,000,000 loan to Finland and suggested also that interest paid by Finland on her debt to the United States be refunded.

Questions at Issue

Pittman said a question "worthy of consideration by our statesmen" was to what extent the United States might be justified in going beyond technical neutrality in assisting victimss of aggression "as a matter of self defence—a self defence which superseded the requirements of neutrality."

He added that another question which he expected would be considered soon by the Foreign Relations Committee was his resolution authorizing the President to forbid export of munitions, iron, steel, oil, scrap iron and other metals to Japan "in view of the conduct of Japan in China toward our citizens."

Pittman Resolution

The Pittman resolution is slated to be considered after Jan. 26, the expiration date of the U.S.-Japanese commercial treaty.

Other bills awaiting action of the Foreign Relations Committee include:

Proposals for acquisition by the United States of Cocos Island (from Costa Rica) Curacao and Netherlands Guiana, Greenland and other islands from Mexico, Ecuador, Colombia and Panama.

Provisions for the liquidation and settlement of war debts.

Investigation of conditions in Mexico affecting property rights of Americans.

Miss Dubeau Considered for Post As Quints' Nurse

Toronto, Jan. 4—(CP)— An official of the Ontario Government said today that Miss Leona Dubeau, 22-year-old graduate of St. Michael's Hospital here, is under consideration for the post of nurse to the Dionne quintuplets.

The report of her appointment is premature, he said, since the approval of the Quints' Board of Guardians remains to be given and the endorsation of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, parents of the Quints, also is needed.

Miss Dubeau is a French-Canadian girl who speaks both English and French fluently. Her parents live in Penetanguishene, Ont.

A nurse is required to replace the former Mollie O'Shaughnessy, who was married recently.

LADY DICKENS DIES

Roosevelt Praised in London For Words of Sanity, Hope

Underlying Tone of Address 'Lincolnian' Says London Daily Mail

NAZIS RESERVED

London, Jan. 4—(CP)—President Roosevelt's message to Congress yesterday brought favorable comment in the London Press.

The News Chronicle said: "President Roosevelt stands head and shoulders above all other men in the authority and power with which he speaks for democracy and freedom. His great speech to Congress yesterday made that clearer than ever. His words come to all people of good will in Europe as a breath of sanity, of sense and of hope."

The Daily Telegraph said: "The world is learning to find its oracle in the voice of the president of that great neutral republic of the west into whose hands has passed the keeping of the neutral democracy's conscience and whose potent influence may determine in the last resort a hovering balance between human freedom and totalitarian despotism. The underlying tone of this notable address might be called Lincolnian."

The Daily Mail said the address indicated that while the United States "wisely prepares to defend herself she will do her best to keep out of war."

Nazi Reaction Reserved

Berlin, Jan. 4—(AP) — Official German reaction to President Roosevelt's message to the United States Congress was reserved today.

Authorized Nazi said the message was "addressed to the American people and it is for them to decide whether the speech is compatible with congressional expressions of neutrality."

They declared President Roosevel's references to the threatened existence of small nations was interpreted by Germany as meaning for example "Greece in 1916-17 which was forced into fighting for the Allies and small countries today which the British likewise are oppressing."

"Whether that is the side the President sees," they continued, "we don't know, but that's what we see."

British Attitude On Mail Censorship 'Logical Enough' Says New York Times

New York, Jan. 4—(CP) — The New York Times conceded today that the position of Great Britain in regard to censorship of mails from neutral countries to Germany is "logical enough" but said editorially the British violate The Hague Convention by so doing.

Discussing the United States note of protest against the British action, the newspaper said:—

"The British Government has maintained that in a totalitarian war every loophole of trade and economic intercourse with the enemy must be closed, that money as well as high-value merchandise (diamonds are mentioned as an example) may be sent through the mails, and that the mails themselves must therefore be no less subject to inspection than other cargoes.

"Such a stand is doubtless logical enough. Yet, carried to its logical ultimate conclusion, censorship could be held by the British to require even the inspection of purely United States mail passing through Canada en route between Chicago and New York and other United States points.

"The state department's position seems unassailable when it asserts that the British action violates the article of the 11th Hague Convention. Entirely apart from the legal aspects of the matter, however, it may be asked if the British are not risking more than they possibly stand to gain."

BULGARIA EXPECTS INCREASED TRADE

Foreign Observers at Sofia Doubt Whether Russia Will Not Want Concessions

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 4 (AP) — Prospects of increasing trade with Soviet Russia were expected hopefully here today in confidence that negotiations in progress in Moscow would be successful.

Although opinion in Sofia was certain that Russia would make no demands detrimental to this country, foreign observers questioned whether the Soviet would expand her trade with Bulgaria without concessions.

There were rumors that Moscow might make military demands.

(A Bulgarian trade delegation has been conferring for three days with A. I. Mikoyan, Commissar of foreign trade, in Moscow.

Besides increased trade, Bulgaria looks to the Moscow talks to extricate her from concentration of her commerce in Germany and to draw up a trade and navigation treaty resuming Bulgarian-Russian Black Sea traffic.

It was pointed out that the almost non-existent state of trade relations between Moscow and Sofia made a substantial increase possible. In 1938 the Soviet Union bought less than $200 worth of Bulgarian exports.

Batchelor fittingly replied and stressed the necessity of all members to uphold their loyalty as residents of Canada, subjects of the British Empire and members of the Sons of England. Two very pleasing events took place on this occasion. Bro. W. Watts having been a member of Oxford Lodge for fifty years was presented by the District Deputy with a veterans' jewel.

Past Pres. Bro. Revell was also presented by the D.D.S.P. with a Past Pres. jewel and a Past Pres. certificate. Both members thanked the D.D.S.P. and the lodge for their kindness.

Several members of Lodge Lydford were present and expressed pleasure at being able to join with Oxford Lodge on such an auspicious occasion. When the meeting was over a delicious lunch was served and a social time spent until the midnight hour.

RUSSIANS BLAME

ed the Balkans.

'Merely Leaves'

Vladimir Barkoff, Chief of Protocol in the Soviet Commissariat of Foreign Affairs, said goodbye to the German, Dr. Karl Ritter, who had conducted German-Russian trade talks.

The Italian diplomat left almost as unobtrusively as the Russian ambassador to Rome, Nicolai Gorelchinwn went home three weeks ago. Diplomatic quarters in Rome viewed Rosso's home-going as a consequence of Gorelchin's leave-taking.

In the British and Italian diplomatic moves there was no outright indication of diplomatic strain. Officially they were merely "leaves."

British Ambassador's Vacation

The departure from Moscow of the British Ambassador, Sir William Seeds, 24 hours earlier was termed a "vacation" and London officials insisted it had no connection with the forthcoming publication of a white paper on last summer's fruitless talks toward Russian participation in the Anglo-French anti-aggression bloc.

The Russian embassy press bureau declared in its statement that Russian air raid had been described in "urid terms." It referred to reports of civilian casualties and said:

"After all, reports of a leading news agency Dec. 29 estimate civilian casualties at only 100 killed and 100 wounded. The absurdity of accusations against the Red air force are seen in a comparison with the 72 killed and 3,637 wounded in a Japanese air raid on Chungking."

At Geneva last night League of Nations officials released texts of British and French notes to the effect that the Allies were giving Finland as much war aid as their own war with Germany would permit.

The notes gave no further indication of the extent of Allied aid. Italian sources in Berne said 2,000 Italian technicians were "in or on their way to Finland."

The German press was reported to have informed its public for the first time that a general conflict over Finland was possible.

An editorial from the Soviet Russian military organ, Krasnaja Swesta, was generally reprinted with approving German comment to accuse Great Britain and France of trying to widen the scope of the war with Germany by encouraging Finland to resist Russia.

Authoritative Germans already were declaring that actual transport of Allied troops to Finland would force Germany to "take an active hand" in the Finnish-Russian conflict.

HITLER LOSES POWER TO INTEREST

"Hitler's threats have at least for the present lost their power to make the world's flesh creep. Though his lies are as brazen as ever, they are losing their power to convince." That is the New York Times' expression.

That is the fate of the man who in times of peace used "nerves" to frighten humanity. He threatened too long however. Poland faced the issue and Britain and France faced it. With them came on the scene defenders of the right and of justice, and the world has learned at least something of the worst that Germany can do.

Nazi No. 2, Marshal Hermann Goering, says only a word from Hitler is needed to launch a terrific bombardment of Britain by the German air planes. The Times notes, "If, as Goering implies, such a bombardment would end the war in a German victory, the failure of the Fuehrer thus far to give the word is a little puzzling. Can it be that there is something wrong in the Field Marshal's promises?"

Summarizing the situation the Times says:

"After commenting on the warning to Germans that "new sacrifices are inevitable" the Times says "None of this means that the British and French can afford to feel secure and overconfident. They still face the gravest of problems. But no one can fail to notice how much less alarming the outlook seems at the beginning of the new year, after four months of war, than it seemed three or four months ago."

In the four months Hitler has not acted. The Maginot Line is unscathed, there had been fears of aerial bombardments of cities but they have not come. Allied resources of material and man power, their defences on land, sea and in the air have been strengthened. Germany has attempted to break the grip of the sea blockade by ineffective submarine warfare and the use of mines but the blockade is succeeding. Then the Russian invasion has shattered the myth of Russia's military might and lowered any German hopes of a full Russo-German alliance. If anything were required to show a spirit of defeatism it was the wretched end of the Graf Spee and the scuttling of the Columbus. These dire events to the Nazis and the numerous train wrecks in Germany have revealed errors and inefficiency.

The Times comments: 'Evidently the Nazi military machine is not as smoothly functioning and as irresistable as the Polish campaign made it seem."

Threats do not make armies victorious. It was all right from the Nazi angle in peace days for Hitler to bluff and browbeat and under cover of these tactics to ravage states but war is a hard fact in which the stern realities of power, efficiency and spirit count. Hitler needs more than magic and wizardry, even his voice which once made the air fairly curl and smoke when he spoke on numerous occasions now fails to alarm.

FINNS AND RESOURCEFULNESS

Clad in white, Finnish soldiers escape the eye of Soviet troops.

This resourcefulness of the Finns is one of the revelations of the war. They have hurled mountains on top of the Russian invaders, blown the tops off hills so that with the fall of rocks in the bays below the Russians have been swamped. They lead the Russians to the ice and then turn their artillery on them and cause thousands of casualties as the ice breaks under the shell fire.

Russia went into the war late in the season and Finland has seized the opportunity to use the winter's cold, ice and snow and her natural barriers to advantage.

Such resourcefulness is the natural accompaniment of a people living in a land of such natural advantages as the Finns possess. Similar resourcefulness is to be met in Switzerland but the Finns are using their advantages given by nature in the most spectacular demonstrations in history.

MERCHANT MARINE

The British flag flies over 21,000,000 tons of shipping at sea. Losses due to war are steadily replaced. The neutral tonnage is far greater today than in 1914. The German U-boat campaign has been a failure, the loss to British shipping is very small.

The complete armory of economic warfare, says the review of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has been taken up as it was laid down in 1918 and merchant shipping occupies the centre of the picture for it is at once the chief object of enemy attacks and the most important weapon against economic defeat. It shows that the world's steam and motor merchant shipping was at the beginning of the war last September 23,000,000 tons greater than in 1914. The number of ships was only 5,300 higher, larger vessels accounting for the chief increase in tonnage. The review says:

British tonnage in 1939 was slightly smaller than it was 25 years ago and Britain's share of the world total was down from 42 per cent. to 26 per cent. as compared with 1914. This decrease, however, was more than offset by the increase in the fleets of the Dominions and colonies, and France; hence the 21,000,000 tons of shipping flying the British flag, a total of 500,000 tons greater than in 1914, while French tonnage is up 1,000,000. The Allies command 35 per cent. of the world total while the German total has been reduced substantially.

Neutral tonnage is much greater now than it was in 1914 and as the Montreal Gazette quotes the bank review, "if necessary and feasible, may be called upon to carry Allied goods." If Japan is excluded and if United States tonnage is also left out in consequence of the Neutrality Act, the comparison between 1914 and 1939 is declared to be still valid. American vessels it is pointed out, may well replace shipping on routes outside the war zone, thus releasing ships of other nations for European trade. Then there is the question of efficiency, and of the distribution of efficient ocean-going tonnage, and here it is found that Britain has a considerably larger proportion now, 33 per cent. as compared with 26 per cent., while as compared with 1914 Britain's ships are much larger and more efficient carriers. The principal reduction in tonnage and in number as well since 1914 has been in the smaller-size vessels, whereas of the larger ships Britain now has 400 more, representing an increased gross tonnage of 4,000,000.

The present shipping outlook is discussed in optimistic terms, the world's shipping supply being much larger than in 1914, somewhat in excess of peacetime requirements, and shipbuilding resources, if unimpaired, are more than sufficient to replace losses at the current rate. Their capacity may even be enlarged.

Mr. J. Harold Davis has returned to Toronto, after spending the holidays at his home on Albert Street.

Mr. William Embury has returned to Queen's University, Kingston, after spending the holidays at his home here on Cedar Street.

Capt. D. Thomas McManus and family have arrived from St. Catharines and will take up residence in Belleville. Capt. McManus is the newly appointed adjutant of the 15th Battalion, A.L.I.

30 YEARS AGO

A good and efficient officer leaves the Belleville Police force in the person of Sergt. P. Hayes. He takes with him the good wishes of many friends.

In a hockey match here between the local intermediates and the Kingston Intermediates neither team scored. It was an interesting game and pleased the many spectators. The following composed the teams—Belleville —L. Spangenberg Pepper, Bedborough, Ford, Allen, Reeves and Burke. Kingston — Marchand, Haslett, McCamon, Reid, Grattan, Moran, and Nicholson. Dr. Gilbert was a satisfactory referee.

Little interest was taken in the civic elections yesterday as there was no contest for the mayoralty, Mayor Lorne Marsh having been re-elected by acclamation, and for aldermen there was a contest only in Murney Ward. The candidates were Messrs. Canning, Vermilyea, Woodley and Lang. The first three mentioned were elected in the order named. A by-law to take over the Corby Public Library and provide for the management of the same, and a bylaw granting a five-year provisional franchise to the Trenton Electric and Water Company for lighting the streets, were both carried by substantial majorities. The following will compose the city council for the year 1910—Mayor L. W. Marsh, Aldermen Ackerman, Bogle, Canning, Chown, Carlaw, Fairfield, Green Knox, Lott, Parks, Robinson, Sills, Thomas, Thompson, Vermilyea, Wallbridge and Woodley.

40 YEARS AGO

In a hockey match at the rink here last night between Belleville and Peterboro, the former team won, the score being 13 to 6. There was some excellent individual play, but not a great deal of combination work. The play for the most part was fast and exciting. One very agreeable feature of the match was the good feeling which marked the contest. The following composed the teams—Belleville— Winchester, Wallace, Brown, Lang, McGuire, Dubois and Emory. Peterboro—Comstock, Glover, Davidson, L. King, H. King, Graham and Watt. The officials were: Dr. Perry Goldsmith, referee; J. McCabe, goal umpire for Peterboro, and E. W. Holton, goal umpire for Belleville.

Mr. T. P. J. Power was in Brockville, yesterday.

Mr. John Snell entertained a few friends last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Woodley of Cleveland, Ohio, who are visiting friends here.

Lion Farm in California

Editor's note: In a letter in the Napanee Beaver. Don. A. Scott writes of a visit to the famous Gay's Lion Farm in California.

North Hollywood, Calif, Jan. 4.—At the last baseball game of the season, played in the Gibbard Memorial Park in Napanee, I had the pleasure of meeting a Mr. J. M. Goold, who lives in El Monte, Calif. Mr. Goold is a member of the Lions Club of El Monte and he asked me to be sure to look him up when I came to California.

Last week-end I once again had the pleasure of meeting the Goold family in their lovely home in El Monte.

One of the first places of interest which Mr. Goold showed me was the world famous Gay's Lion Farm. This most unique farm at El Monte is one of the really outstanding tourist interests in Southern California. The owner, Mr. Gay, is a member of El Monte Lions Club and each year the Club holds its annual banquet in the largest cage or arena on the farm. Of course, the Lions are all cleared out first and the tables for the banquet are set up for the less ferocious Lions. At one banquet the place of honor was occupied by "Numa", a real live lion. This was Mr. Gay's prize lion and was used in nearly every picture where a lion and jungle scene was called for, and it is quite possible that most of us have seen this particular lion at one time or another, in a movie.

Mr. Gay said that "Numa's" presence at the head table made many of the guests uneasy, so this practice was discontinued. If the members of the Napanee Lions Club would like to 'Hear Those Lions Roar' they should be here at feeding time.

The Lion Farm covers five acres of ground and contains 100,000 sq. feet of arenas and nine lion houses. Here you will see lions in all stages of growth from the tiniest cubs to full grown adults and it is indeed a treat to see these gorgeous animals in their arenas where they bask in the California sunshine amid beautiful trees, shrubs and flowers which surround them on all sides.

There are now over two hundred African lions on Mr. Gay's farm. The lions bred and raised at this farm are far superior to those imported from Africa, having greater strength, larger bodies and more magnificent manes. Some will doubt this fact, but Mr. Gay explains that he and his wife have made a study of the lion business and they are able to feed the animals properly. In the jungle the lion has to fight for what he gets to eat. Sometimes he gets too much and other times not enough but in his years of experience Mr. Gay has been able to work out the correct diet for his pets in captivity.

Each lion gets eighteen pounds of horse meat a day and it keeps a man busy in the farm butcher shop, preparing meals for some 200 hungry lions. One ton of meat is fed to the lions daily, except Mondays, and this is fast day. The horses which are fed to the lions are all inspected and must be in perfect health, or Mr. Gay will not buy them.

Mr. Gay and his assistants train the lions and three times daily you can see a very interesting lion performance. He sells lions to zoos and circuses in all parts of the world and supplies lions with trainers to motion picture studios.

Someone said, "When you have seen Gay's Lion Farm and 'Aimee McPherson' you have seen Southern California." Just as soon as I have seen the other half I will write and tell you about it. At present everything is "Santa Claus Lane" and they really go in for decorating and parades in a big way.

Sleep Habits for Children

A great deal is being said and written about sleep these days, because rest— unbroken sleep— is a great builder in children and a great restorer of energy in adults. The fact that infants sleep nearly all the time is Nature's method of preserving the energy for growth and development. The kicking and squirming of infants for the short time they are awake seems to give them all the 'exercise' they need.

Just how long should children sleep? The Ontario Department of Health in one of their series for mental health clinics give these figures—

Birth to 6 months—18 to 20 hours.
6 months to 2 years—16 hours.
2 years to 6 years—12 hours
6 years to 10 years—11 hours.
10 years to 14 years—10 1-2 hours.
14 years to 1[illegible] years—10 hours.

Regarding the first two years of life, the most important rule in developing healthy sleeping habits is to leave the child alone. Make sure the baby's needs in regard to nourishment, waste from bowels and bladder, and clothing are looked after at regular hours. Then, if the baby cries, be satisfied that he is comfortable and do not interfere. A definite routine for sleeping, waking, food and toilet should be established from the beginning. This should be changed only to suit the needs of the growing child".

As children grow older, a definite hour for going to bed is advisable and he should go to bed the same hour every night. This is habit-building.

In regard to exercise, the youngster should be allowed, at regular hours if possible, to roll, squirm, kick, and stretch without too much clothing to hamper these exercises. Daytime rest or naps are advisable up to the fifth year, right after the noon meal if possible.

The period before actual bedtime is extremely important in influencing sleeping habits. There should be a quiet unexciting bed-time hour. Romping and running, vigorous play and exciting stories should be avoided. Taking off clothes, going to the toilet, getting bathed, taking a drink (if this is allowed, as no drinking is permitted if child wets the bed), should be looked after before getting into bed.

Room should be well ventilated bed-clothing light, soft and warm. Lights and sounds should be avoided as much as possible if they attract his attention.

Snake-Bite Healers A Mystery of India

New Delhi — An eleven-foot cobra, after chasing half a dozen people in a village near Calcutta, was run to earth and killed last week. The reptile's head measured 7 inches across, and when cut open the stomach was found to contain another six-foot snake of the same species. The snake referred to is a hamadryad, because the ordinary cobra usually does not attack unprovoked. Many snakes of this variety are to be found in the Bengal marshes.

As one travels about India one hears of many strange happenings which have a mysterious element in them, things which are unbelievable but nevertheless true.

A young man of Bihar was attacked by a cobra, and, as is generally the cae, was taken to a village where lives a fisherman who is noted for his supernatural powers. To the surprise of the onlookers, the aged fisherman approached the patient and squatted by his side. Then he read a few lines from a book and meditated silently for a long time. After an hour or so, the snake-bitten young man opened his eyes, stood up and appeared to be as hale and hearty as before. Nobody, except the fisherman, knows about the secret cure he administered. After his death his heir will take up the profession, and so it will continue till the disappearance of the last male member of the family, when the secret will die with him. Women are not allowed to practice the family art.

In many parts of South India there are erudite "magicians" who possess powers which really appear supernatural in curing snake bites. In Malabar (west coast of South India) lives a particular class of persons and select families to whom the power of curing snake bites is handed down from generation to generation. They inspire unbounded faith.—N. Y. Times.

Wheat Outlook Much Brighter

A few months ago Canada appeared to be caught in a serious wheat dilemma. The west had produced the large crop of 452,000,000 bushels. The rest of the Dominion had harvested about 27,000,000 bushels which brought the grand total to 479,000,000 bushels. The carryover from the previous crop year was about 90,000,000 bushels, so that a huge surplus was in sight.

The western crop was harvested in good shape and delivery into commercial channels proceeded at a record pace. It soon was manifest that exports were not developing fast enough to clear out the terminal storage space and wheat piled up in the country.

At that time Great Britain was buying comparatively little Canadian wheat. Good crops were in prospect in Argentina and Australia, and a fair condition was indicated in the United States, although a drouth had set in in the winter wheat region of the midwest. It seemed that an overwhelming supply of wheat was in sight and Canada would have difficulty in marketing her surplus.

Within a space of two months there has been a remarkable change. Unfavorable weather has made serious inroads on Argentina's crop, and the drouth has persisted in the United States, indications being that a small winter wheat crop may be looked for next year. Then the British have been making extensive purchases of Canadian wheat, and the delayed freeze-up on the Great Lakes has made possible a very heavy movement of wheat eastward.

This combination of factors has resulted in an upswing of prices on the grain exchanges and a much better feeling is being exhibited toward the market. It now seems likely that a substantial portion of Canada's surplus stocks will find a market before the next harvest comes along.

Possibly the price will not soar to the extent that some of the most ardent speculators hope for, but if Canada can make extensive sales at reasonable prices, the country may well heave a sigh of relief. The whole nation will be happy indeed if the wheat board is able to market its large holdings from the 1939 crop even at a reasonable price and all losses avoided.—Calgary Herald.

(Experimental Farms News)

Under favourable growing conditions red clover will slightly outyield alsike as a hay crop, but the latter possesses certain valuable characteristics that make its inclusion in a hay or pasture mixture advistable. Alsike thrives better than red clover on soils that incline to acidity or soils that are low and wet. Alsike is more winter-hardy than red clover and has a stronger tendency towards perennialism, and therefore persists longer than red clover, states J. M. Armstrong, Division of Forage Plants, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Alsike and red clover hay contain about equal quantities of digestible food materials per unit of dry weight. Seed yields of alsike in areas suited to production in Ontario are considerably higher than for red clover. The comparison is further in favour of alsike since a pound of alsike seed contains approximately twice the number of seeds as red clover. The prices of both range from 6 to 10 cents a pound.

The recommended hay mixtures of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, are as follows—

1—For non-acid soils where alfalfa can be grown successfully—Timothy 8 lb., red clover [illegible] lb., alfalfa 4 lb., and alsike 2 lb.

2—For non-acid soils where alfalfa is not adapted—Timothy 8 lb., red clover 6 lb., and alsike 2 lb.

3— For acid soils—Timothy 8 lb., red clover 5 lb. ,and alsike 4 lb.

In all these mixtures alsike is included and under acid soil conditions the recommended rate is increased.

While existing practice recognizes the value of a partial substitution of red clover by alsike in seeding mixtures, it is conceivable that conditions might arise where a complete substitution might be advisable. When there is a shortage of our home-grown seed of red clover due to winter-killing, the domestic requirements are supplied by importing, and the growers run the risk of growing poorly adapted varieties. Under war conditions these importations may not be accessible. If there is no shortage of home-grown alsike seed the grower can substitute alsike for red clover in the seeding mixture for hay with the assurance that he stands to lose nothing in yield or feeding value of the resulting crop.

Dr. Mallot In California

Ed. Note—Many friends of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Fred Mallott will be interested in reading some excerpts from letters written on different dates to friends here since their arrival in California.

Nov. 21—Arrived yesterday, it is wonderful here, roses in full bloom, oranges ripening, poinsettia growing ten and twelve feet high. We had a marvellous trip, the last three days through the mountains in Arizona and California, we drove right up in the clouds, with mountains rising high above us and the gorges going far down below, the road winding and twisting around the mountain we were scaling.

We spent very few nights in the cities. We stayed at "Courts" as they call them, in the smaller places and the price was almost always reasonable. Two nights we had a 3-room court beautifully furnished with good beds and bath, etc., for $2.50 for the three of us.

Nov. 26—On Nov. 23, Thanksgiving Day we drove to Palm Springs, 140 miles east. We passed groves of oranges, lemons, grapefruit, apricots, grapes, cherries, olives, walnuts, persimons, dates and figs. In reaching Palm Springs we took a drive through an Indian Reserve, which is in a mountain gorge, where we had our lunch under eight old palm trees. We were not alone, everyone seemed to be of one mind, but we had privacy too. The following day we drove back to Palm Springs, the most beautiful city I have ever seen. Every house and public building is pure white, Spanish architecture of course. Trees, shrubs and flowers are also green, and bright with rare colours of the rainbow. The sidewalks were of varied coloured slabs of marble. The rich and screen celebrities frequent the place.

Dec. 4—Wednesday last we drove through Hollywood to see the Christmas decorations along the boulevard. For miles this chief thoroughfare is lined on both sides with artificial, but very beautiful decorated trees. Each tree a blaze of coloured light, all the lights on one tree of the same colour, but all the colours of the rainbow were represented in the ensemble. The streets thronged with people.

Sunday, I preached in the Community Church here, really a United Church, people of seventeen denominations worshipping and working harmoniously together, and you could not tell one from the other.

Monday we took a picnic basket and drove down the Pacific Coast to a place called Tory Pines and here high up on the side of the mountain we had lunch. The December sun, warming us sufficiently that I took off my coat. I find the people here very friendly and almost 100 per cent. pro-British.

Dec. 11—The ladies are so anxious to see the Rose Festival at Pasadena on New Year's Day that we have decided to start on our way north, after that am going on to my sister's in Berkley.

Dec. 12—We have had one morning of rain, only mist, every day sunshine and then more sunshine. I am to give the Christmas message at Rotary here next week.

Dec. 16—We are busy getting our Christmas mail away. Our next trip is down into Mexico.

Dec. 17—We ate our picnic lunch today at Rosarita, Mexico, about twenty-five miles down the coast, on the shore of the ocean.

Dec. 24.— "It is the day before Christmas when all through the house everyone is stirring even the mouse", (he escaped the trap we had set for him last night). I could write an essay on roses in December or mosquitoes at Christmas, but will call this letter "Down Mexico Way". From Tijuana along the border to Rosarita, twenty-five miles down, the coast is bare and treeless; the ranchers' shacks betray the poverty of the place. Before reaching the Mexican border we spent several hours at La Jolla, of which you have spoken so often. It surely is beautiful, no inferior houses, and no neglected streets. The landscape gardeners have made the most of the hillsides. Both the private dwellings and the public buildings are the finest. We spent part of our time inspecting the ocean caves; the tide was coming in and we got some of the spray when we were down on the lower levels of rock. It was glorious to see the great swells breaking and dashing on the rocks.

Tijuana has three distinctive features to boast of —(1)—the longest bar in the world, over 200 feet long. (We did not sample their wet goods.) (2) —It has the largest race track on the continent. (3)—It has the finest hotel known as the Monte Carlo of Mexico.

Here the Hollywood stars come to play roulette, chemin de fer, and other games of chance, but the present President of Mexico decided to clean up gambling and the place was closed and although it was a very fine hotel it lost its patronage. Two weeks ago it was re-opened as a school for under-privileged boys.

It will not be long until some of you will be loading up your benzine buggy and starting the trek to California. I hope you will have as safe and pleasant a trip, as we did.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Machinery, high explosive and poison gas have robbed war of much of its glamor but from an ice-bound lake in Finland comes a story worthy of Tennyson's pen. If the Victorian poet were alive he might well use it as the basis of a modernized version for his immortal "Charge of the Light Brigade."

A Russian division was trapped on the ice and completely surrounded by Finnish troops who shot it to pieces with machine guns and artillery. Tennyson's poem recounts the fate of 600 British cavalrymen who, in the Crimean War, charged into the mouths of Russian guns and suffered a similar fate.

One incident took place in the south of Russia, the other on Russia's northern frontier. In one the Russians were the victors, in the other the victims. Tennyson said somebody blundered in ordering the British Light Brigade to charge. The Russo-Finnish war appears to be a whole series of blunders.

"Cannon to right of them,
"Cannon to left of them,
"Cannon in front of them
volleyed and thundered."

But the Russian division fighting the Finns had cannon behind them as well.

"Boldly they rode and well," he wrote of the British horsemen.

"Into the jaws of death,
"Into the mouth of hell."

But against the Finns the Russians had no horses and did not ride. They placed their tanks in a circle and sought shelter behind them while Finnish guns thundered from four sides.

Plants Prefer Workers "Eat in"; Result Good Food at Moderate Price

(By The Canadian Press)

Several hundred workers in a government arsenal in Canada eat a tasty, wholesome, full-course meal each day for 15 cents. It is served in a restaurant in the plant and is only one of many attentions paid to the health of the workers.

This restaurant works like clockwork. The workers have to travel miles each day to and from their homes by special train. So only half an hour is alloted to the lunch period. Of this 10 minutes is required for washing and a brief rest. In the remaining 20 minutes the meal is served.

Spotless kitchens, equipped with the latest appliances for large-scale health cooking make it possible to keep food costs down to 11 to 12 cents for each individual meal. The margin of three cents or more covers replacement of broken crockery and worn-out cutlery. Here is a typical meal: soup, corned beef and cabbage, potatoes, apple pie, tea or coffee.

Men and women eat in separate dining rooms. About six women are employed for every man. A radio in the wall between the two dining rooms provides music during the meal.

When the plant was opened the low-cost meal was decided upon in order to dissuade the workers from bringing lunches which might or might not be sufficient. It was an immediate success.

The meal is served on long bare wooden tables and the diners sit on benches. At each table one person is designated as a sort of trouble shooter and gets a few cents extra a day for reporting complaints and checking on grievances. Thus if any one has a complaint about the food it is made at once. If there is something wrong it is corrected.

TWO DIVISIONS TRAPPED BY FINNS

Cornered on Central Front 150 Miles North of Lake Ladoga

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 4—(CP-Havas)—Two Soviet divisions were reported by the Stockholm newspaper Social Demokraten today to have been trapped by Finnish troops in the central front 150 miles north of Lake Ladoga.

The dispatch said the divisions had been cut off from their supply base near Aglaejaervi, close to the Russo-Finnish border, and that their encirclement was imminent.

Finnish airmen reported that they had successfully bombed a bridge on the Leningrad-Urmansk railway and that a train, including an armored car, had plunged into a river.

General Ernst Linder, commander of the Swedish volunteers going to Finland, is leaving this week for the front to take command of the sector held by the Swedes, the paper said. Count Ehrensvaerd was said to have been named chief of staff of the Swedish volunteers force.

200 FEWER SHIPS VISIT MONTREAL

Montreal, Jan. 4 (CP)—Decrease of 200 in a total of 1,376 ships visiting Montreal last year, compared with 1,576 in 1938, was shown today in the annual report of Captain R. C. Brown, Port Warden. Tonnage was down 702,608 at 4,616,272 tons.

Captain Brown attributed the decrease in overseas ship tonnage, lowest since 1934, principally to irregular sailings since the start of the war.

AT THE BELLE

"The Flying Deuces," Funny

Laurel and Hardy again provide good, down to earth slapstick on the screen in their latest picture, "The Flying Deuces," which is now at the Belle theatre. This laugh-provoking comedy proves to be one of the best of their long career. There is little reliance on gags. Instead, the comedians have resorted to that excellent brand of pantomime which distinguished them during their earlier years.

It might be suggested here that those who see the picture pay particular attention to the musical score. Music has been used to excellent advantage to augment the comedy situations, and has more than substituted for the gags that are so commonly relied on in such pieces.

The story concerns a couple of tourists in Paris, who through unrequited love for a girl, join the French Foreign Legion to forget her. Given the dirtiest jobs in the regiment they finally rebel, only to be charged with desertion. Sentenced to death, they escape in an endurance airplane. As a couple of novice fliers, they make the most of comedy opportunities, finally crashing. The climax of the picture is best left unrevealed. It neatly caps the generous series of comedy situations.

As the French girl with whom Hardy is in love, J. Parker reveals vivacious charm. Reginald Gardiner as the jealous husband and Legion officer, proves capable in one of his rare straight roles. Both are featured.

"Meet Dr. Christian," Gripping

Built upon a sincere story that concerns the real life events of every small town citizen, "Meet Doctor Christian" starring Jean Hersholt announced as the second feature attraction is a stirring dramatization of the activities surrounding a typical American rural community. It is adapted to the screen from the famous radio serial, "Doctor Christian of River's End," which is reputed to have a following of 10,000,000 fans weekly.

The film concerns an unselfish country physician who devotes his entire life to alleviating suffering and to straightening out the complexities and problems of his patients. Hersholt's portrayal is a real glorification of the rural medico. In the human, down-to-earth story all the hardships and trials encountered by the average small town doctor are picturized.

Supporting Hersholt are Dorothy Lovett, Robert Baldwin, Enid Bennett, Paul Harvey, Marcia Mae Jones and Patsy Lee Parsons.

A special added attraction on the same program is an all-new edition of The March of Time, revealing the "inside" story on the Olympe Bradna, Roland Young and Pat O'Brien who star in Paramount's "Night of Nights," now showing at the Capitol Theatre with an added western "The Kansas Terrors," featuring the Three Mesquiteers.

'WALK UPSTAIRS AND SAVE'

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

And Thanks to Your New Year's Greeting

No matter how little we may have, we have enough to put some real heart into our New Year's Greetings. We still have the freedom to think, and talk, and we enjoy a free press. These blessings seems to be taking flight in less happier countries.

As on-lookers, forced to witness bloody ruthlessness, we are unhappy, but we can at least be generous and give —"give until it hurts".

How often have we spoken those lovely words: "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" and how miserably the whole world has failed to live up to them! Do we ever stop to think what civilization might have accomplished if we had really put meaning into those words, if they hadn't been, to most of us, just an empty parrot cry?

Without good will, there can be no peace on earth, and yet, how the world longs for peace! Not the maniacs who help destroy what we have of civilization to flash 'round the world their names. Not the modern blood brothers who, like Ghengis Kahn, slaughter women and little children to bring about their dreadful ends. Time and history will deal with them, as it has dealt with their predecessors in frightfulness.

And if there should come to hand one of those parodies of the press which deals in violation of an oath we Canadians can read the perjuries for what they're worth perjuries which tell of blessings brought by fire and sword to peaceful people.

We resist our natural impulse to do violence to such, remembering that someone has said you "cannot eat the cake of democracy and have it too". Such falsehoods are like the measles; better to have them come out in a violent rash than be suppressed. That sort of paper hawked on street corners is a cheap price to pay for freedom of expression.

And our New Year gratitude can take the form of doing without something—the price of a ticket to a show, something we covet to wear, our meals can be simpler, we can walk rather than ride, and give our mites in thankfulness that we are not called on to suffer as Europe suffers.

Do we ever think, really think, of the beauty killed in the world by the Ghengis Kahns, ancient and modern? Gone, never to return, are the lovely arts of China. In the forgotten jungles of Yucatan, given over to birds and reptiles, are buildings as lovely as those of Venice built by a forgotten people, not a word of whose language remains.

And we who are so unintentionally humorous when we guage our civilization by the number of our bathtubs, do we ever stop to think there were bathtubs in Crete as good three thousand year B.C., and that the ivory carvers of Crete have never been excelled, even in China?

No wonder Julian Huxley said a few days ago that mentally we had developed no farther than the fish And certainly we have not progressed as far as the ants. Their miniatue civilization, which has gone on for eons under their mounds, declines to take into account paranoiacs. And if a little ant starts out with delusions of grandeur and a will to conquer the world sending his name 'round the ant-hill he is dealt with wisely.

But we keep right on admiring our paranoiacs putting up monuments to them, writing "folksy" bits about what they did in childhood. Wasn't it Solomon who said "Go to the ant, thou sluggard".

Cancer Hits Children Too

Cancer is a disease we automatically connect with middle and old age. It is a disease we speak of as occurring after the age of forty has been reached and we tend to forget that there is also an early age in life when the dread disease is likely to strike.

Of course, the frequency of cancer in childhood isn't anything like what it is later on in life. I think this is partly due to the fact that many doctors fail to record or refer to cancer in children as anything except growths or tumors These growths in childhood appear in very definite sites which are usually quite different from the occurrence of cancer in adult life. Instead of the stomach, breast and uturus, we find the kidneys involved along with the eyes, or the spleen or some of the soft, muscular tissue.

Tumours of the kidneys are probably the most frequent in children and the time when these are most likely to appear is from one to two years. Generally the first sign of the growth is a gradually enlarging of the abdomen. Seldom is the child brought to the doctor, for examination before the growth is quite large, i.e., big enough to be noticeable to the parents and cause them worry. We keep a close check on the physical condition of the Quintuplets, never taking anything for granted, and naturally we are on the alert for symptoms of disorders of any kind. Similar simple measures will enable parents to detect any growths in the stages when treatments are still capable of arresting them.

One case I happen to know of is rather interesting. A little girl was visiting her uncle who was a doctor He picked the child up and sat her on his knee As he was doing this, he felt a small mass in the region of the kidney. Right away he diagnosed the trouble and as the result of this early diagnosis and prompt treatment the child is alive today. Ordinarily this child would have gone on until the abdomen was so swollen that it could be plainly seen. But by that time the doctor might very well have found the growth so advanced that the child's life could not be saved.

Until the introduction of X-ray in the treatment of tumors, the outlook for a child with tumor of the kidney was very bad. It is still serious enough, of course, but with the X-ray treatment between a quarter and a half the patients will recover. Adequate treatment consists of both X-rays and an operation. Usually the mass which is often as large as a football, is reduced in size by X-ray treatment Then, because the reduction in size is only temporary, an operation is performed to remove the kidney After the operation there should be more X-ray treatment to kill any of the growth missed by the operation.

Of course, this operation is a delicate one. I have never even thought of trying to cure a tumor of the kidney, or the spleen. Anytime I have found a child with a mass in the abdomen that indicated the presence of a tumor, I have taken him to a hospital at once.

Tumors of the eye occur in children frequently enough for us to be on the watch for them. So if a small child shows any form of growth of the eye, he should be taken to a specialist. Fortunately, parents are always prompt to look after anything that appears wrong with child's eye.

Sometimes, an eye specialist will decide it is necessary to remove the eye of a child, when the tumor is serious. When the doctor tells you that your child's eye should come out, get another specialist to confirm the diagnosis if you like, but for goodness sake don't lose any time about it Remember, a child can learn to get along perfectly well with one eye But a delay in the operation may cost his life.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

New Home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

We are soon to move into our new home and all our friends are anxious to see it and will be calling soon after we get moved. I wish to be modest about it and not convey the thought that I think it anything unusual, or to seem over-anxious to show it.

1—Should I offer to show them the house, or should I wait and let them suggest that they would like to see the house?

2—Also this will be a new neighborhood for us and I am wondering if, when our new neighbours come to call, I should show them the house. Should I plan to have something in the house to serve at a moment's notice during such a call? If I should serve light refreshments, please suggest what would be appropriate in such a case.

Ethel

1—Perhaps you'd better wait until your visitors ask if they may see your new home . . . .but I'm sure you won't have to wait very long! If perchance any of these friends seems to hesitate about asking to see the house, I'm sure that I couldn't resist the temptation to say, "I can't wait to show you my new house! Would you like to see it?"

2—Undoubtedly most of these visitors will come in the middle or late afternoon, and you should be prepared to serve tea. Please do feature the serving of tea, or coffee, and have chilled in your ice-box a non-alcoholic drink that is popular in your community. After lunch each day you can quickly and easily prepare your tea-tray, with all the necessary accessories; have the lemon cut or quartered (or ready to be); have some slim, simple sandwiches made and wrapped in waxed-paper in the ice-box (or serve some other kind of bread-item that you consider more attractive than sandwiches); have some simple tea-cakes or crackers or slices of, say, fruit cake. In other words, there are usually two "courses" at tea-time, the bread course, and the cake. But this can porperly be reduced to one.

Wouldn't you like to consider giving a house-warming for your new home? This is such an attractive kind of party to five, say, from four-to-seven on a Saturday or Sunday.

Present From Maid

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Do you think it will be all right for a maid to give birthday or holiday gifts to her employers and family? I have been working for this family for quite a few months and I am treated like one of the family. Please advise me what to do.

Reader

Most employers prefer not to have a maid or other employee give them gifts. Most employers, of course, admire the generous spirit that prompts this gesture of friendliness but still it does create a situation that the employers feel that they are expected to meet. That is, they then feel that they must give gifts to the maid, whether or not they had intended to do so.

A birthday greeting card, or a greeting card appropriate to the special holiday would be in excellent taste.

Courtesy Tip

You should refer to the paper on which you write your letters as letter-paper or note-paper or writing-paper. You should not refer to it as "stationery". "Stationery" is a trade term—everything that a stationer carries in his store is stationery: pens, pencils, erasers and so forth.

The Stars Say

For Friday, January 5

AN EXCEEDINGLY lively and

AN EXCEDINGLY lively and enterprising day, with much stirring to further ambitions and aspirations, is read from the prevailing astral influences. Those in power and financial standing seem ready to co-operate with friendly assistance. Cultivate these sources, especially those of political, diplomatic or fraternal influence, or those in large corporations, Friendship counts.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very progressive, productive and prosperous year, with all things moving in the direction of advanced goals and lofty ambitions at high tempo and with much verve and initiative. Those of position, prestige and financial standing heartily co-operate, especially those in politics, diplomacy, secret bodies or large corporations. The social or convivial aspects of the important propositions prove lucrative and lead to some high honor or sign of preferment.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, ambitious and well-equipped for attaining advanced objectives and high positions in life with the friendship and preferment of those in high places.

TAKE THE "LEAD" FEELING OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get More Oxygen In Your Blood and Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery—you tire quickly—feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1939, G. T. Fulford Co., Ltd.

Belleville Juniors Pry Off O. H. A. Lid With a 4-2 Win Over the Picton Squad

Local Juniors Score Early and Often and Settle Back to Merely Protect Lead as Game Roughens

PICTON GOALIE STARS

Ethier Scores Two in Game That is Productive of Shinny - Like Hockey, Much Roughness Seen, Ten Penalties Served

Scoring with consistency in the first two periods, the Belleville "Quintes" rested on their advantage to double the score on the Picton "Stars" and win the season's initial district junior O.H.A. game 4 to 2 in the Prince Edward County seat before a slim crowd of less than 400 fans last evening.

The tussle, being the first game of the current O.H.A. campaign for both squads, was productive of some rough and rather shinny-like hockey throughout. the Belleville kids being instructed to merely protect their advantage by Coach Holway when going into the final session. Two serious injuries resulted when Bill McQuade sustained a badly lacerated chin that required medical attention and three stitches to close, while Steve Hook sustained a badly injured hip following a collision with a Picton player when he was crashed to the ice. Both injured players wore a Belleville uniform.

Locals Score Early

The game was still early when "Stub" Ethier took Jack Bundy's pass, after Bundy had lured the defence aside and passed to Ethier who scored: Seconds later this pair duplicated their previous scoring feat, but the play was called back as no counter, Referee Holway ruling the puck had deflected into the Picton net from Ethier's skate. Van Dusen evened the count for the homesters as he made sure of his goal by taking Mason's pass in front of Cook to knot the count, while Storms was languishing in the penalty box. With Roblin off Hook's long shot deflected into the Picton net to end the first period at 2-1 for Belleville.

Goyer carried to the Picton defence, passed to Gerow and then Goyer raced in to rap home Gerow's rebound to open the scoring late in the second period. On one of the nicest combination plays of the game Ethier scored his second goal on a rink-wide pass from Clare. With Goyer resting as the result of a penalty Picton moved five forward and were rewarded when Roblin's shot nipped a corner. There was no scoring in the final period as play roughened and four penalties resulted. Cork in the Picton nets was sensational in the last session with many marvelous saves, however.

Chopping Frequent

Although there was far too much chopping and slashing to result in good hockey, the best combination iced by Coach Holway was the Storms-Clare-Ethier trio. Bundy showed some exceptionally fine stick-handling and will doubtless be a favorite on the home ice with his shifty play-making. Goyer carried well and played steady hockey along the rear guard, while the alternates should improve as the season advances.

For Picton, Cork, their goalie, was undoubtedly the best player tossed over the boards by Coach Larry Goyer, a former Belleville and professional player, who is now coaching the "Stars." Mason at centre, VanDusen and Pike turned in creditable efforts for the homesters.

The small ice surface in Picton decidedly handicapped the Belleville sextette in their system of wide passing, while both teams used a strong bruising defence and considerable heavy body-checking resulted.

The line-ups:

Belleville "Quintes"—Goal, Cook; defence, Goyer and Hook; centre, Bundy; wings, Clare and Ethier; subs, Storms, Gerow, Butler, Everett and McQuade.

Picton "Stars"—Goal, Cork; defence, Roblin, Hicks; centre, Mason; wings, Van Dusen and Frederick; subs, Biddle, Pike, Helferty, Platford, O'Neill and Fraser.

Referee—H. P. "Bouncer" Holway, Belleville.

GUS MARKER

Toronto Maple Leafs.

Gus Marker

Toronto Maple Leafs found the injury jinx camped squarely on right wing for them last year and during one of the shortages in this sector the team secured the services of Gus Marker, who had been cast adrift when Maroons went under. Leafs are third N. H. L. club with which Gus has played, his major league career beginning when he got into a few games of the 1932-33 season with Detroit Red Wings. He got into a few more the following season and for the next four years played with Maroons. At the time of that team's demise, most of the players were grabbed off posthaste by the other teams — except Gus, and the Leafs aren't sorry he was left. The Durable Dane and Gus the Goose are a couple of names he has been "honored" with, the former, of course, because he comes of Danish parents. Born 32 years ago at Westakwin, Sask. Christened August, after the month. It's eleven years since he turned pro with Tulsa in the American Association, later moving to Detroit Olympics. Just an ordinary scorer, Gus is a tireless checker and never stops giving everything he's got in each and every game. First season with the Marcons he got 15 goals, his high, and his major league record stands at 48 goals, 50 assists, 98 points and 106 minutes served in penalties.

MARMORA WINS FROM STIRLING BY 4-3 COUNT

Second Defeat Sustained by Bombers Since the Season Opened

TOUGH CONTEST

Referee Broke Spectacles Trying to Part Combatants But Not Hurt

Stirling, January 4—(Special) — Stirling fans were treated to a real smart game on Wednesday evening when the Marmora entry in the Trent Valley League downed the local "Bombers", in Northerner's first game of the current season. It was the second defeat in the same number of starts for the local team and in both cases the games were sufficiently close to spur the boys on. Roughing in the final frame resulted in the loss of Referee Wells' spectacles, which were knocked off as he attempted to separate the scrappers. Refereeing is a thankless job at best and add to this the loss of an expensive pair of glasses and it's no fun. Referees Wells and Dainard did their best to hold a fast moving game in check, but disapproval was registered, when two of the local goals were called back, and later a Marmora counter.

Opens Scoring

Stirling opened the scoring when Jones slipped one past Callery after six minutes of play. Seven minutes later Johnston scored for the visitors and the period ended that way. Gus Leonard put Marmora in the lead after four minutes of the second period and Reynolds made it 3-1 on a solo rush. Morton scored midway through the period on a pass from Walker, who later scored unassisted to tie the score. After five minutes of the last period Hugh Leonard scored. Fisticuffs broke out as Stirling pressed hard and Jones was given a major and Buskard and Kouri two minute penalties.

Shortly after Jones returned to play "Mick" got a misconduct penalty and play ranged from end to end with both teams turning it on. Walker Armstrong, Fraser, Dainard and Morton looked best for the locals with Hart starring in the Stirling nets. Playing his first game of the season Ross Hart played a faultless game in goal and stopped plenty of shots, that were marked for counters.

For the visitors Gus Leonard was the standout. Flanked by E. Leonard and H. Reynolds this lad was a continual threat. Buskard and Johnston also went well. The game ended 4-3 a score equalized exactly in the other games played on the circuit. Bata Cobblers won over Tweed. Madoc over Campbellford, and all by the score mentioned above.

Line-ups

Marmora—goal—Callery; defence —C. O'Neil, N. O'Neil, centre — Gus Leonard, wings—E. Leonard, H. Reynolds, alternates—Buskard, B. Johnston, Kerr and Kouri.

Canadiens Sell Johnny Gagnon To Americans in Straight Deal And Other Changes Expected

Famous Joliat - Morenz - Gagnon Line Now Completely Broken Up by Last Deal

BRING UP RECRUITS

Amerks Play Rangers, Detroit at Canadiens and Leafs Meet Hawks Tonight

Look out for more alterations almost immediately in the composition of Montreal Canadiens, who are fast approaching a break-down after showing fast early foot in the National Hockey League schedule.

Ernie Savard, president of the club, announced last night that Johnny Gagnon had been sold to New York Americans but that there would be no more changes in the personnel "for a couple of days at least". It's almost certain ,though, that Savard won't be just sitting around in the next "couple of days".

Detroit Red Wings oppose the Canadiens at Montreal tonight and another defeat would be the eighth straight for the once-flying Frenchmen. It would drop the Habitant club dangerously close to last place and probably make Savard look frantically around for new strength —possibly to New Haven, where he has a couple of high-class International-American League farmhands in Don Willson and Bill Summerhill.

Deprived of Another Link.

The sale of Gagnon deprived the Canadiens of another link with the French-Canadian atmosphere they have tried to re-establish this season. But Gagnon, once the free-skating "black cat of Chicoutimi", has been going poorly, his work bothered by illness. Never a scoring leader, he contributed 20 goals to the Canadien cause in 1936-37 and always carried his share of the back-checking load.

The Americans get a player who, despite his 34 years, might help them develop scoring punch and pull them from sixth place. They can use players of any kind at the moment and if Gagnon recovers form he might be flying for the stretch drive.

The Americans are in danger tonight of dropping into a last-place tie with Detroit, for they play their swift intro-city rivals, the Rangers, at New York. A victory or a tie would be the Rangers' sixteenth consecutive game without defeat.

Toronto Maple Leafs, tied with the Rangers and Boston for first place, meet the Black Hawks at Chicago.

Manassa Mauler Still Most Vivid Sports Personality

New York, Jan. 4—(AP)—The most vivid sports personality in this town is Jack Dempsey, the tavern keeper. Though he's slowed up somewhat since a poisonous appendix knocked him to his knees last summer, the old mauler still has enough zing for four or five ordinary men.

Long as he lives, Dempsey never will quite calm down. He's as darkly nervous now as he was on the day he made wreckage of Jess Willard. He loved every minute of his recent breakneck flight to Manila, to referee the Garcia-Lee fight.

"It was great, great," he chattered across the coffee cups. "Maybe a little lonesome. There weren't but seven other passengers going out. Those planes are wonderful. Seventy-two passengers they carry. We got lost for four hours on the way back, but it was fun."

Jack still puts on the gloves now and then with some of the hired help around his place. He has installed a regulation ring on the roof for that purpose.

"Better keep yourself in shape," Jack Johnston, the old boy bandit, advised. "I'm going to bring Jack Sharkey in to see you one of these days. That guy still wants to lick you, Jack. I never saw such a guy about not forgetting a grudge. Every time he comes down from Boston he says he'd like to take a crack at you."

"Bring him in," said Dempsey. "If it'll make him feel any better I'll lie down on the floor and they can take a picture of Jack standing over me."

All Dempsey craves now is peace —and plenty of excitement.

RED RAIDERS NOW FIRST

Sherbrooke, Que., Jan. 4—(CP)—Sherbrooke Red Raiders climbed back into a first place tie with Boston Olympics in the Provincial Senior Hockey League Wednesday by scoring a 5-2 victory over Quebec Beavers. Roland Reeves scored two goals for the Raiders with the others going to Hank Harris, Guidoo Roy and Howie Peterson. Theo Hamel and Frank Trottier counted for Quebec.

GRACE "UMPED"

Gloucester, England, (CP)—Gloucester City football club has celebrated its golden jubilee this year. Early records of the team tell of a game in which Dr. W. C. Grace, famous cricketer, refereed a match with Clifton.

HAMMERIN' HENRY MEETS GHNOULY

Native - Born St. Louisans Meet in 15-Round Battle for Welterweight Crown

St. Louis, Jan. 4 — (AP)—Two native-born St. Louisans who left home to seek boxing fame and fortune return tonight—one a champion, the other still fighting for recognition—in a 15-round bout for the world welterweight title.

Henry Armstrong, the little Negro who once held three championships and still is king of the welters, meets Joe Ghnouly, getting his first title shot after ten years in the ring.

If love makes a fighter ambitious, Ghnouly should come out rearing in his encounter with Hammerin' Hank. Ghnouly plans to be married shortly after the fight to Julie Roma of Ridgefield Park, N.J., whom he met at Gus Wilson's training camp there.

"Now I'll have to fight just twice as hard," he grinned.

VARSITY WINS IN NEW YORK

Touring Collegiate Team Defeats St. Nicholas by 8-3 Count

New York, Jan. 4—(CP) — The touring University of Toronto hockey team defeated the St. Nicholas Club 8-3 here Wednesday.

Toronto led from the outset when Muchy Macilquham tallied twice within the first three minutes. His first goal was an unassisted effort at 1:44, and at 2:31 he connected after passes from Tom Callon and Art Boddington.

Toronto increased its advantage early in the second session to 4-0 on goals by Thor Stephenson and Jock Quigley. The avalanche was halted momentarily when Junie Merriam registered for St. Nicks after 9:30 on a pass from Doug Cochrane.

In the final period, St. Nicks replaced Goalie Pete Grace with Tom Stockhausen and Toronto failed to add to its lead. The only scoring in this stanza was a goal by Cochrane, assisted by Merriam, in 16:42.

McGILL GRADS DEFEAT QUEEN'S

Game is Played in Intercollegiate Hockey Tourney at Rye, N.Y.

Rye, N.Y., Jan. 4 (CP) — McGill Graduates defeated Queen's 5-4 in an Intercollegiate Hockey Tournament game here Wednesday.

McGill, defeated by University of Toronto Tuesday in the opening game of the two-day tournament, jumped into the lead near the end of the first period and held it until the fast-stepping Queen's forwards unleashed a fierce attack in the third period.

Two goals behind at the start of the period, Queen's evened matters with goals by Mable and D. McGill. The Montrealers won the game when Crutchfield scored on a pass from Farquharson, only six seconds from the end of regular time.

At 1:05 of the opening period Len Lane gave Queen's the lead, taking Norv Williamson's rebound, but Crutchfield knotted the count at 14:48 and the first of Ken Farmer's three goals, at 16:56, put McGill in front.

Farmer scored at 2:53 and 15:02 of the second period but Norv Williamson cut the advantage in 16:57 as he broke for the goal along with brother Mel and Bob Neilson.

The tri-colors tied it up in the space of a minute and a half in the third. At 7:07 Wilf Mable took passes from George Hood and Lane and hit the cords, and at 8:40 Ding McGill netted on a long poke from the centre of the rink.

Yanks Send Joe Beggs of Newark to Cincinnati in Return

New York, Jan. 4—(AP) — New York Yankees obtained Pitcher Lefty Lee Grissom from Cincinnati Reds today in exchange for right-hander Joe Beggs of the world champions' Newark farm and thereby confounded the "stop the Yankee" movement in the American baseball league.

Barred by a rule passed last month from trading within their own league as long as they remain champions, the Yankees unobtrusively sidled over to the National League and acquired one of the best southpaw pitching prospects in the major leagues.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

HEIGHO-HO, Heigh-ho it's back but it ain't what it's cracked up to be, especially after Christmas, New Years and a little vacation tossed all into one measure.

Foremost we wish to thank those of this G.F.J. who occasionally kept the sports fans abreast with the sporting activities through this column during our absence, especially we make reference to that splendid contribution made by the Ad. Manager, it was a masterpiece and carried more truth than either fiction or poetry. We hope those interested in the promotion of sports in this community read, marked and thoroughly digested the Advertising Manager's contribution to this column last week.

Back to the work-a-day grind the first event out of the 2940 sports bag will be the inaugural games of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association tonight at the Hume Arena, when the Americans meet the Canadiens at 8.00 p.m. and the Black Hawks clash with the Maple Leafs in the second game of a double-header. This city juvenile loop was organized to promote hockey among the teen-aged of our city and help to develop talent for future Belleville O.H.A. clubs. Upwards to $150.00 has already been spent by interested parties in the purchase of uniforms, sticks and other equipment and now the success of the project lies solely in the hands of the sports fans. These youngsters are eager to play hockey and a little moral support from the fans will prove the difference between a flourishing league and just another kids' venture. Remember it's two games at the arena tonight with Belleville's native boys prying off the season's puck lid.

Next coming up we find the intermediate O.H.A. campaign looming before us with the Belleville Redmen entertaining the R.C.A.F. "birdmen" at the arena on Friday night. Eddie Thomas' charges have been running in a streak of tough luck of late (maybe because we've been a minus quantity as a good luck omen for the past two weeks), but regardless whenever the Flyers and the Redmen meet the fans can be assured of plenty of action and a rip-snortin' puck tussle. Both squads have added several new faces to their rosters, which should at least prove interesting to say the least.

We hear the Peterboro scribe is beginning to entertain ideas of an intermediate O.H.A. title for his pets in 1940. He scoffs at Belleville's "Scarlet O'Haras" (no plug meant) and informs his readers the Flyers can't be much better than the Redmen, but did it ever occur to him that a hockey club occasionally runs into a streak of off nights. If our memory serves us right, the Petes used to be perennials in losing when it came to baseball playoffs with Belleville years ago.

Do you remember when former flyweight boxing champion of Canada, Archie (Frenchy) Belanger regained the crown with a 10-round defeat over Steve Rocco at Toronto 11 years ago today.

During the holiday season the Redmen were eliminated from the Van Horne Memorial series by Queen's University in the semi-finals, leaving the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" and the Queen's students to battle it out for the mug. Incidentally if the Air Force manage to win the Van Horne trophy this year the "birdmen" will retain the cup permanently, as it is what is generally known as a three year cup. That is to say any club winning the trophy three years in succession is the permanent possessor of the trophy. The old Belleville Cities Service "Oilers" won it two years hand running and was the only team to win this honor, until the Flyers made it two-in-a-row last year.

Two years ago today we predicted the Cincinnati Reds would win the National League in 1938. We were one year ahead on our predictions that season, but this year our No. 1 snooper-upper tells us it's the St. Louis Cardinals for the National League pennant in 1940, so if you can get the odds, lay the family savings on the Cardinals this year. That is if the boys will kick in with equivalent odds.

The Belleville juniors launched their 1940 O.H.A. drive for a provincial hockey title with a 4-2 win over the Picton "Stars" in the southern town last night. Actually there was nothing sensational about the game, which was productive of a shinny-like hockey for the greater part, due directly to the small Picton ice surface. Some heavy body-checking was seen by both defences, while slashing was the order of the night with the homesters being the aggressors, as can be proven by the injuries sustained by the local "Quintes." Bill McQuade sustained a nasty gash on the chin, necessitating three stitches and medical attention. Steve Hook sustained a badly injured hip and Jack Bundy a cut on the knee. Incidentally Bundy's mother and father motored from Toronto to see Jack play his first game with Belleville and we feel the fans will really go for Bundy's style of hockey. The kid is shifty and knows his way around.

Guess who's coaching the Picton "Stars"—none other than our old friend Larry Goyer, who learned his hockey in Belleville before advancing to the professional class. Goyer took one look at Bundy in the first period and after that Jack really got a going over by the Picton defence. "I told 'em to stop that guy," Goyer admitted as he visited the Belleville room after the game. However, the best combination for passing, used by Coach Holway, way the Storms-Clare-Ethier trio. Then again "Toots" introduced several new kids, all of whom show promise and the Belleville fans will see a better junior team in action this season than last year when they advanced to the provincial semi-finals, but this year the "Quintes" are playing junior "B" hockey and naturally will have to be better. All we're hoping for is a group winner and a crack at the Peterboro scribe's teen aged pucksters. Last night Leo Goyer steadied the defence nicely.

Picton has an exceptionally fine goalie in Cork, who literally saved dozens of practically assured goals. Mason and Van Dusen also get around nicely, but Coach Goyer had soon better teach his charges how to check properly or Trenton will take their measure through the lone medium of penalties.

LESLIE LENNOX ROLLS 772 SCORE

Had Twenty-Two Straight Marks in the First Two Games

Although only three teams competed in the Major "B" League at the Recreation Alleys last night, some fine individual bowling efforts were made.

Honors of the evening went to Les Lennox of the Nightshifters' team, who came through with one of the finest exhibitions of bowling seen at the Alleys in a long time. In the first two games Les really went to town, getting a mark in every frame and struck out in the last frame of the second game making it twenty - two straight marks. In the first game he had eight consecutive spares, having tough luck on the end pins, but his second ball never missed the mark. Les' first two game scores were 281 and 344. A mediocre third game of 147 broke a great bid for a splendid three-string score, but his 772 was still real fine bowling.

Completing a brother act, Ray Lennox came through with a point total of 702 for the Nightshifters, which went a long way toward taking three points off the Ontario Intelligencer team.

"One Beeg" Problem

Montreal, Jan. 4 (CP)—A rather forlorn Pete Lepine shrugged a racoon coat into place, patted the latest in brown headgear into position and then—satisfied with his usual sartorial splendor—admitted today that Montreal Canadiens' losing streak has him "baffled but not beaten."

"I can't understand it at all," the beau brummel of the National Hockey League coaches sighed. "Here we are with the same team that went six straight unbeaten games at the start of the season and we're in a slump that has meant seven straight losses. Frankly, I'm baffled about it all."

Lepine isn't going to say "uncle" for he still believes that it is possible for the Habitants to strike up a winning stride again. Their slump has seen them drop from a spot at the top of the standing to possession of fifth place.

EAGLES DEFEAT SYRACUSE STARS TO TOP DIVISION

Team Has Already Scored More Wins Than Secured All Last Season

HERSHEY WINS

Bears Retain Hold on Second Place by Beating Springfield

(By the Canadian Press)

Come what may, New Haven Eagles can boast of one record in the International-American League this season. With 30 games of the 54-game schedule to play they already have scored more victories than they had at the close of last season's play.

The Eagles beat Syracuse Stars 6-3 last night for their 15th triumph in 24 games, one more than they had when they closed up shop last spring. They are comfortably perched at the top of the league's eastern section.

The game at New Haven was one of three last night with the rejuvenated and fast improving Hershey Bears beating Springfield Indians 3-1 and Cleveland Barons edging out Philadelphia Ramblers 2-1 in the others.

Fourth in Row

For the Eagles their triumph was the fourth in a row over the Stars. Veteran Armand Mondou was the leading scorer with two goals while Paterson, Earl Roche, Singbush and Bill Summerhill, the league's leading scorer, netted the others.

The stars, who trailed from the start. got goals from Norm Locking, Coach Jackie Markle and Maxie Bennett.

Leader of the western division last season, Hershey retained its hold on second place by beating Sprinfield. After a scoreless first period Terry Reardon and Mackie tallied for the Bears in the second.

Joe Lamb reduced the lead with a third period goal but Harry Frost got the point back before the session ended.

Cleveland remained right on the Bears' heels, one point behind, when Bob Gracie, who has won many a game for the Barons this season, counted in the second period. Ossie Asmundsen scored for the Barons and Cliff Barton for the Ramblers in the opening 20 minutes.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

Grafton, Ont., Jan. 4—(CP)—Deliberating only eight minutes, a coroner's jury last night found that Gwendolyn Royal was accidentally killed Dec. 24 when struck by a freight train, and no blame was attached to anyone.

The crew in the cab of the locomotive were unable to see the girl owing to smoke and steam sweeping across the window on that side of the cab.

Miss Royal apparently was concentrating on a train coming from the opposite direction when she walked in the path of the freight train.

SYDNEY HEADED IN DIRECTION OF MARITIME TITLE

No Puck Games Yet Played in "Bluenose" Loop, but Millionaires Have Power

Halifax, Jan. 4 (CP)—Something more than a mere majority of down east fans are willing to wager that Sydney Millionaires will emerge as 1940 Maritime hockey champions even though some leagues have yet to play their first game.

The best of the Maritimes' power—with considerable outside talent—is concentrated this year in the Cape Breton League. With slightly more than half the circuit's schedule completed, Millionaires are so far ahead the rest of the games will merely decide the second team in the playoffs. North Sydney and Glace Bay, the other teams in the loop, are separated by only a few points.

On the mainland, the usual teams are in competition but none of them are expected to take a fall out of the Cape Breton champions.

Halifax Wolves tossed Sydney 4-1 in an exhibition game and held North Sydney to a 4-2 decision in another battle closer than the score would indicate.

But most fans discount Wolves-Millionaires affair as an exhibition of over-confidence on the part of the Millionaires.

Wolves, Kentville and Dartmouth Rough Riders are in the Eastern League, whose first scheduled game will be played tomorrow night. The Wolves defeated Kentville 6-2 in an exhibition game but the Wildcats, now coached by Dick Carroll who last year led Saint John Beavers to the Maritime title, are expected to improve vastly as the season goes on.

In the Antigonish - Pictou - Colchester League are Truro Bearcats, coached by another veteran, Walter McGuinness, New Glasgow, Pictou, Antigonish and St. Francis Xavier University. Only a few games have been played so far since none of the towns has an artificial ice plant.

Windsor, Wolfville, Port Williams and Acadia University make up the Valley League whose schedule likewise has just opened.

Saint John Beavers, last year's Maritime champions who ousted the Hull Volants in the Allan Cup playdowns, are in the Saint John City League—shorn of Coach Carroll and all their stars. Another city league is operating in Halifax with the Royal Canadian Air Force, Royal Canadian Navy, Dalhousie University and Tramways.

400 MEN SEEK SICK, LOST BOY

Drain Creek in Futile Search for Body of Billy Coleman

sick, lost boy, Billy Coleman, 14, who vanished New Year's Day into the vast wilderness at the foot of Mount Lassen, was hunted by 400 men today.

They drained a creek yesterday in a futile search for his body.

The only clues were provided by the discovery of part of the boy's clothing. Sheriff W. W. Sublett said there was a possibility the boy still was alive, but expressed doubt he could survive another winter night.

Young Coleman, still weak from a recent influenza attack, went into the wild Viola district for a holiday with his mother, Mrs. Patrick Coleman, and a group of friends from Redding. His mother saw him last at about 4 p.m. New Year's day, playing under the trees near their cabin. When she looked again, it was growing dark and fog had settled over the country.

FIVE REMANDED FOR SENTENCE

All Pleaded Guilty to Theft of Grain From Storehouse on Tyendinaga Reserve

Four residents of Deseronto pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the storehouse of the Mohawk Indian Band, Tyendinaga Reserve, and steal therefrom 14 bags of barley, today in County Police Court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. A fifth youth, 15 years of age, was also implicated.

His Worship remanded the four in custody as he reserved judgment after the men pleaded guilty. The names of the four men were given as John Sero, 33, Robert Lewis, 22, Albert Cuthbertson, 22 and Donald Brant age 28. The five were arrested by Provincial Police last week following the theft of grain from the Mohawk Band storehouse.

When John Sero appeared and elected summary trial and pleaded guilty, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., asked to have sentence postponed until he could produce Sero's list of previous convictions. His Worship added he would prefer to dispose of the entire matter at one time and immediately remanded the five men for sentence.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH INQUEST FINDING

Accidental death, with no blame attached the driver of the motor car in question, was the verdict tendered by a coroner's jury called to look into the death of George Frank Brant, Tyendinaga Indian, who was killed when struck by a motor car near Deseronto on the night of Dec. 23rd last. The driver of the car was Wilfred Randell, Toronto. The adjourned inquest was held before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., conducting the investigation last evening.

Randell said he did not see the pedestrian walking on the road because of the glare from the headlights of an approaching automobile. "I felt a jar immediately after passing the front of the other car and realized I had struck something. I turned around and returned to the scene, where Elliott Brant informed me that I had struck his brother," stated the driver.

The accident happened shortly before midnight Dec. 23 about nineteen miles east of this city on Highway 2. Randell was driving easterly to Deseronto, while Brant was walking in a westerly direction.

Test Bren Gun For Effect As Anti-Aircraft

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 4 (CP)—Murderous little spitfiers of the Twentieth Century war machine, Bren light machine guns pour from British arms factories in a daily stream for the modern streamlined army. No weapon has so captured the popular fancy as this trim, Czech-invented gun, which a boy can sling over his shoulder.

Few thrills in an age of mechanized warfare exceed the sight of squat, armored Bren gun carriers hurtling over rough ground, their crews dismounting and setting up the fast-firing guns that look like big rifles, in a matter of seconds.

The gun is simple to operate but intricate in manufacture. I saw them during a visit to a Royal Ordnance factory while being shown examples of work done in supplying the army with material. The gun consists of 172 parts which require 3,174 operations to create and 4,987 gauges to perfect.

In a smithy where workers lightheartedly toss red-hot lengths of steel around, the gun's body begins to take shape. Before processing the body weighs 46 pounds but after passing through 260 machining operations the weight has been reduced to less than seven pounds.

Among instruments used in its manufacture are micrometers which measure parts to one-millionth of an inch. Such accuracy is needed because a flaw of 1-10,000th of an inch in the barrel make all the difference whether the bullet leaves the gun or jams the whole works.

Accuracy of manufacture is doubly necessary because the gun's components must be interchangeable. Each gun has a spare barrel which can be slipped on hurriedly when the other becomes hot. It is equipped also with 25 magazines, each containing 30 rounds of ammunition, and these must be adjusted quickly.

Subject To Many Tests.

Every gun goes through innumerable tests at various stages of the manufacture and the completed product is fired at proof butts. The day I stood behind a gun, holding my ears to ease the vibration, sparrows perched saucily on a brick wall above the butts.

The gun has to fire at an angle of 80 degrees before receiving a final "o.k." from the inspector. This is because it can be used as an anti-aircraft weapon in the event low-flying planes appear and must be just as efficient as for horizontal firing. It was tested by a gunner shooting into a wooden box on a wall.

In contrast to the manufacture of the Bren, Vickers and small arms, the making of big guns for battleships and anti-aircraft defence is a slower and quieter process. It wasn't so quiet though, beside a 14-inch naval gun being fired into a pile of wet sand 500 yards away.

The gun barrel is tested by the firing of a stub-nosed projectile containing a higher charge than normally. Nose of the shell is blunted so it will bury itself in the sand. Gunners must know the range or they would be liable to overshoot the wall above the sand. Someone said that in the last war a gunner got his range mixed with the date of the month and the shell landed in a distant garden.

5 Planets Seen In Western Sky In February

Rare Grouping of All Planets Known Up to 1781, Two Eclipses and Possible Comets Reported in 1940

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 4—(AP)—Two solar eclipses and a rare grouping of five planets in the western sky are part of the astronomical show for 1940, not including possible surprise appearances of comets and meteor showers.

"In the closing days of February all five of the planets known to man prior to 1781 will be visible to the unaided eye at the same time in the western sky," says Dr. Robert Aitken, in a current astronomical bulletin.

"Mars, Saturn and Venus will form a flat triangle at the head of the line and Jupiter and Mercury extend it to the western horizon. This assemblage of planets is as unusual as it is beautiful and will not recur for many years.

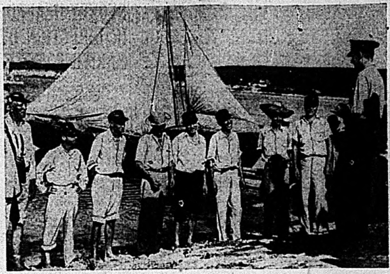
"Venus will pass Jupiter Feb. 20 and for an evening or two about that time the two planets will resemble a wide, remarkably brilliant and beautiful double star, with Venus six times as bright as Jupiter."

A solar eclipse April 7 will be visible as a partial eclipse in North America. Its central path will fall along the central part of lower California.

A total eclipse will be visible in the northern area of South America Oct. 1.

PREDICTS 'QUAKES

Here is Edgar C. Thrupp, Vancouver, B.C., member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, who predicted the disastrous earthquake in Turkey by using his "new law of gravitation." He predicts that the world will suffer severe earthshocks in 1940, comparable to some of the most destructive 'quakes of the past. He is examining some of the charts he uses in exploiting his theory.



Eight men, who are fleeing from the French penal colony at Devil's Island, are shown lined up on the beach at Ensenada Playa, Puerto Rico, as they listened to instructions read by a Puerto Rican immigration inspector before setting sail in their small boat, in which they hope to reach Mexico. The fugitives sailed to Venezuela after their escape from Devil's Island. They next went to Trinidad, where the British governor gave them a more sea-worthy boat and supplies. Their next stop was Puerto Rico, where they were permitted to stay for 48 hours, during which time one of the eight, ill with malaria, was treated by an American doctor. If they succeed in reaching Mexico, the men plan to appeal for a pardon. Should they win their pardon, they will join the French army.

Minneapolis, Minn. — In five below zero weather, firemen are pictured directing streams of water into the gutted Marlborough hotel here, in an effort to master the flames which took 19 lives in an early morning holocaust. Many of the apartment hotels 200 residents were trapped when flames from the furnace room blocked all stairways leading to safety. In addition to the known dead, many were injured in jumping from windows in their efforts to escape.

U.S. Army Rifle Product Of Man Born Canadian

Springfield, Mass. (CP) — A self-effacing inventor of Canadian birth —51 year old John C. Garand — has discarded opportunities for wealth in order to give to his adopted country, the United States, the most deadly infantry rifle in the world, for next to nothing. Garand was born near Montreal.

Garand still goes quietly about his work as a civilian employee of the United States arsenal here, apparently content that his only reward will be his $5,000 a year salary and a place for his name in military history.

Already the Garand semi-automatic rifle—the result of nearly two decades of patient experiment —has been labelled a major advance in infantry small arms. So impressed was a U.S. Congressional investigating committee with the weapon that it recently recommended immediate acceleration of its production in order to make it standard equipment for all the infantrymen of the expanding army of the U. S. as soon as possible.

And Garand—a man with unruly hair and a long narrow face, upon whom 30 years of bending over precision instruments have left their effect—has shouldered the task of helping to speed up production with the same quiet efficiency that marked his work in developing the gun.

Like the U. S. army's 1903 rifle —known as the Springfield, and long considered the best in its field, the new semi-automatic is a clipfed, shoulder rifle, and the loading mechanism is operated by gas pressure, generated in the chamber when a cartridge is fired, thus eliminating the bolt on the Springfield mechanism. It weighs nine and one-quarter pounds, a half-pound heavier than the Springfield.

Behind the story of the development of the gun, capable of snuffing out nearly 40 lives in a minute in the hands of the able marksman and yet light enough to make it practical for infantry use, is the life story of John Garand. It is the story of a man so self-effacing that little would be known of him outside of his "trade" except for government enthusiasm for his work.

To U. S. Early in Life

Born of French-Canadian parentage in a little village near Montreal 51 years ago, Garand came to this country as a youngster and left school to work in a mill at Jewett City, Conn., at the age of 12. Even at that age, his ability attracted attention, and the plant's chief mechanic persuaded young Garand to take correspondent courses in steam engineering, mathematics and English. That education was augmented by another year in school, but only because an inspector for the State Labor Department discovered that he was at work illegally because of his age.

School days over again, he went to work in machine shops in Providence, R.I., and in spare hours helped his brothers operate shooting galleries in resorts near Providence and Westerly, R.I.,—a job which gave him a working knowledge of guns and made him a better-than-average marksman.

Early years of the First Great War found him employed as an expert gauge maker in New York machine shops which were turning out guns for Russia. In the last year of the war, he took a job with the U. S. Bureau of Standards at $1,800—half the salary he was receiving as a skilled mechanic.

More than 50 models were discarded in the evolution of the new rifle. The first "working" model was completed in 1933, and since then Garand has worked steadily to remove imperfections and increase its efficiency. The problems now have changed from those of development to those of production on a mass scale.

UNITED ACTION BY CANADA STRESSED

Tilbury, Ont., Jan. 4—(CP) — United action by Canada was stressed by Paul Martin, Liberal Member of Parliament for Essex East in an address before the Tilbury Lions Club last night.

"It is clearly demonstrated that the best interests of the country are served by viewing our problems in the light of Canada as a whole, not of Ontario, Quebec or of the Maritime Provinces," he said.

INVITED TO AID IN RESTORING PEACE

Arm-in-arm, Dr. Cyrus Adler, left, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Dr. Geo. A. Buttrick, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, leave the White House in Washington after discussing with President Roosevelt ways to restore peace to the world. The conference followed appointment of a personal representative to the Vatican by Mr. Roosevelt. The church heads said that they will remain on call for further conferences.

HEARING FINN WAR NEWS, RUSSIAN STYLE

Clustered around a car in which a radio gives forth the latest war news is this crowd in Moscow, getting the latest (as the government wishes to give it) from the Finnish frontier, where the Soviet army has been kept unusually busy stemming the tide of "Finnish aggression", to use the Soviet phraseology.

First Division of Canada's Army Reaches British Soil

From the gang-plank of the troop transport which brought himself and his mates from Canada under convoy of British men-o'-war, Sergeant Gregson steps onto British soil, the first Canadian soldier to arrive in the Mother Country in this war. The Canadians are welcomed by a handful of British officials and newspapermen, but when the residents of this British port learned of the arrival a mighty and resounding greeting was given the Dominion's warriors.

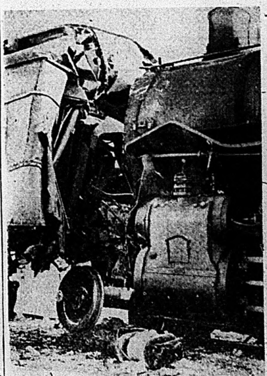
Prepared to assist the Mother Country and her sister dominions to the limit in carrying on the war, Australia is ready to send food and other essential commodities, as well as men and munitions. Illustrative of this all-embracing effort is the picture at TOP. While an armored car section of the Australian army holds training manoeuvres on the road, a farmer continues his harvesting operations in his fields near Wimerra, Victoria. At LOWER LEFT a group of officers are pictured as they arrived at one of the central training camps, to take over the job of drilling recruits for the new Australian expeditionary force. At RIGHT a detachment goes through a gas mask drill at Mount Martha, Victoria. So far only aviation units have been sent overseas, but if the call goes out for more men to take their places in the front lines, Australia will be ready with a modernly trained and equipped force.

ONE DEAD, 56 HURT IN ILLINOIS CRASH



Its nose buried in the debris of the rear coach of the train it crashed, is the Panama Limited, crack flyer of the Illinois Central Railway, which piled into a train stopped at a flag signal, near Arcola, Illinois. The crash resulted in the death of one passenger and injury to 56 others.

Chungking, Jan. 4.—(AP) Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British Ambassador, arrived in China's provisional capital today on what some quarters said was a visit to discuss disposal of 800,000 pounds ($3,560,000) in Chinese silver held in banks in the Japanese-blockaded British Concession of Tientsin. The silver was originally destined for North China flood relief.

Top-Grade Eggs Slightly Lower

Toronto, Jan. 4—A slight decline in the price of top-grade eggs was the only feature of trading on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Buying was limited in all lines. Butter prices remained unchanged.

With receipts of butter light, the market was quiet and steady. Only odd lots of Ontario butter changed hands at 28c lb. for first-grade solids.

Still moving slowly, grade "A" large eggs again eased slightly. In the graded section they sold at 23c to 24c and to retailers at 26c to 27c. "A" medium eggs drifted to a range of 21c to 22c. Volume of receipts was ample for buyers' requirements. When sold alone, "A" pullet eggs brought 1c more than the prevailing quotations. Little demand was shown for grades "B" and "C" and prices on these were merely nominal.

50 EMPLOYEES ARE DISCHARGED

Workers at Kaufman Rubber Company Failed to Appear for Work

Kitchener, Ont., Jan. 4 —(CP)— About 50 employees of the Kaufman Rubber Company were automatically discharged today when they failed to report for work following a walkout by one department of workers yesterday.

The strike affected from 75 to 100 employees in the factory who were unable to continue work when the boot room crew failed to show up.

A. R. Kaufman, president of the company, issued a statement today in which he said the boot room employees had been notified they could "consider themselves discharged" if they failed to report to the factory today.

The strike was in protest against increase of the production rate in the boot room. It was not definitely established if it was called by the United Rubber Workers of America, a committee for industrial organization affiliate, which has a local in the plant. Joseph MacKenzie, C.I.O. organizer, indicated he may make a statement later today.

The Kaufman statement said that "employees dissatisfied with company policy or changes should hand in their notices."

FIRE DRIVES OUT PUPILS

Providence, R.I., Jan. 4.—(AP)— Fire forced several hundred pupils to leave the Point Street grammar school here today. The upper floors of the structure were quickly consumed by the flames and firemen were being driven out of the lower floors as they searched for possible victims.

'SUICIDE PATROLS'

side Soviet territory, and said they were advancing northeast in pursuit of retreating Red army forces.

The Finns crossed the border last month east of Lieksa, in the Inari sector about 140 miles north of Lake Ladoga, and in the Kivivaara sector further northeast.

Ski patrols operating from Juolajaervi also were reported menacing the Murmansk railway at Kandalaska, Russia.

Railroad Dynamited.

The latest exploit of one of these "suicide patrols", the newspaper National Tidende said, was the dynamiting of the railroad, a vital supply line for the Soviet forces, in an undisclosed zone.

Pekka Nieme, champion Finnish ski runner, was said to have led the patrol.

Copenhagen newspapers also published unconfirmed reports that ski patrols had dynamited a branch line and had attacked and damaged Red army supply columns.

Some of these reports said that ski patrols penetrating Russian territory were being helped by inhabitants of Russian Karelia, many of whom are of the Finnish race.

However, no report of train wrecking or of dynamiting on the Murmansk railway has yet been confirmed in Helsingfors.

With the Finnish Forces near Lake Kianta, Jan. 4 (AP)—Russian hopes for a decisive blow against Finnish land defences were believed today to have been crushed for the winter by the rout of the Red army's 163rd division.

Losers in the greatest single battle of the war, 2,000 remnants of the division of 17,000 men, wandering hungry and half-frozen in thick Finnish fir forests, were easy picking for the hardy defenders, lumberjacks who are at home in the snowy woods.

Although the Soviet command was reported massing seven divisions for an attempt to break through the Mannerheim Line, foreign observers considered the Finns' defences impregnable as long as winter lasts.

The vanquished Russian division entered Finland under comparatively favorable conditions before heavy snows fell and Finnish officers said it would take months now to replace it.

Tried to Cut "Waistline".

This column had tried to cut across the narrow "waist" of central Finland in an attempt to separate the north and south.

With the Russians apparently balked here, unable to pierce the Mannerheim Line in the south and stalled on the Arctic front in the north, one Finnish officer asserted: "The war in winter is ours."

While the Finns completed the Lake Kianta victory, the high command announced that a Soviet infantry attack on the Karelian isthmus had been repulsed "with heavy losses". Widespread Finnish successes on the eastern front also were reported.

Nothing To Report.

Unofficial but reliable reports in Moscow said large reinforcements of Red army troops from Siberia were reaching Russian troop locations in Finland. In the vein of the last few days, the Russian communique for yesterday said, "nothing occurred on the front".

(The communique made no note of aerial operations such as the bombing yesterday of Tornea (Tornio) at the head of the Bothnian Gulf, related in dispatches to Stockholm. Observers at Haparanda, Sweden, across the Tornea river from the Finnish city, said the railway to Kemi apparently was damaged.)

PRIME MINISTER

He indicated that the first debate on the subject would arise in the United States Senate which rejected an earlier agreement reached by Canada. It is not generally believed here that legislation will be presented to the forthcoming session of the Canadian Parliament.

Turning to the appointment of L. W. Brockington of Winnipeg as recorder of Canada's war effort, Mr. Mackenzie King said that Mr. Brockington also will assist him in replying to questions in the Commons and preparing statements regarding the war effort which will be made to Parliament.

Refuses to Comment

A question was asked concerning the possible departure of the second division of the Canadian Active Service Force for overseas service and the Prime Minister said it was so completely a defence matter he did not think he should say anything about it at the moment. It likely will be discussed in Parliament, he added.

The Government plans no early steps concerning appointment of a successor to Governor General Lord Tweedsmuir who will return to England next summer or early fall at the expiration of his term, the Liberal Leader told another questioner.

He was queried about a report that the Government has frowned on trade union organization by employees of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation but said "nothing the Government has passed or approved has been directed against trade union organization."

N. Z. PLANS FOR POST-WAR DAYS

New Zealand Will Get Full Quota of Men and Also Prepare for Future

Wellington, N. Z., Jan. 4—(CP—Reuters)—Prime Minister Michael J. Savage said today in an interview that New Zealand is already planning for the post-war period.

The Premier said he did not propose to ask men to go abroad to fight for New Zealand with the prospect of returning to participate in the burden of huge war debts.

At the same time he emphasized the government's intention of getting a full quota of men for war, declaring:

"It is absolutely essential that we get the men. The government intends to make an immediate drive for recruits, and I have sufficient confidence in the young men of the country to believe that they will enlist knowing the responsibility which they carry."

FOUND FROZEN IN PARKED CAR

Malone, N.Y., Jan. 4 —(AP)— State Police attributed to sub-zero weather today the deaths of Richard Boyea, 19, and Ulysses Paquin, 26, both of Chasm Falls, N.Y., found frozen in their parked automobile nine miles south of here.

Boyea was dead when discovered last night by Antoine Disotelle, nearby resident, while Paquin died this morning in a Malone hospital.

Girl, Pale and Weak, Home From Germany

Ambulance Breaks Down 10 Miles From Father's Baronial Estate and Treatment is Delayed

Folkestone, England, Jan. 4 — (CP)—Pale and weak, Unity Valkyrie Freeman-Mitford started today on the last leg of her stretcher-journey home from Germany.

She was described by her father as "very ill", but the exact nature of her ailment still was a mystery.

"My daughter is rapidly getting better but she has been desperately ill," said Lord Redesdale. "She is quite worn out, poor thing."

Asked if Miss Freeman-Mitford would make any statement, he replied:—

"I have been offered 5,000 pounds (about $22,350) for a statement but I would not accept 25,000 ($111,750)."

The breakdown of her ambulance last night forced the pro-Fascist British friend of Adolf Hitler to remain at a Folkestone Hotel. The accident within 10 miles of the Baronial estate of her father, Lord Redesdale, delayed surgical treatment for her mysterious ailment or injury.

Labor Camp Proposal Condemned by Students

Liverpool, Jan. 4—(CP) — Condemnation of a proposal to form a labor camp for youths was expressed by the University Labor Federation of Students today in an unanimous resolution. The proposal, made by the Earl of Derby, would set up a labor corps for youths under army age who leave school without jobs.

The resolution said the proposal emanated from those who "like the Times (London newspaper) and Sir Neville Henderson (former British ambassador in Berlin), regard Hitler's labor camps as worthy of imitation."

POSTAL CLERK GIVEN 3 YEARS

John O. Goodfellow, 46, is Sentenced at London 12 Hours After Arrest

London, Ont., Jan. 4 — (CP)— Within twelve hours after he had been trapped stealing money from the mails, John O. Goodfellow, 46-year-old postal clerk, was given three years in Kingston Penitentiary by City Magistrate D. B. Menzies today.

Goodfellow, father of three children, pleaded guilty to theft of $8.50 in cash, and also to stealing a postal bag key. He received concurrent terms, and the minimum sentence for mail theft.

John W. Stewart, District Superintendent of Mail Services, told the court that as a result of recent disappearances of money and other valuables from the mails, decoy letters were used to try and trap the thief.

Early today at a local railway station where Goodfellow was employed two of the decoy letters were found missing from a bag. Goodfellow was approached, he said, and asked to produce the money in his pocket. It included $8.50 in United States funds which had been marked by postal investigators. The stolen postal key was also found in his possession.

Corset Too Much for Romeo the Porpoise

Swarthmore, Pa., Jan. 5—(AP)— It was the last straw for Romeo when he had to wear a corset.

Exhausted by a truck ride from his home off Cape Hatteras and displeased by the limited confines of the Swarthmore College pool, the 500-pound porpoise died after scientists rigged him up in a corset to which an electro-cardiograph was to be attached to measure his heart beat.

Today the scientists went ahead with plans to put the corset on 350-pound Juliet, who so far seems to enjoy the change in environment.

The Smoke of Victory

By OSCAR JONES

Mrs. Henry Duckworth sat in her especially deep chair on the front veranda of the Myrtle inn, where she had spent many comfortable summer vacations. Her granddaughter, Amy Delorme, who attended her this year, was playing tennis with the particular young man who was her grandmother's bete noir, Ralph Fricke. Ralph was a college graduate, and heir to his grandfather Mallot's wealth-he was young, handsome, and just the sort of a young man that grandmothers usually delight in—he had one defect in Mrs. Duckworth's eyes, and that defect disqualified him entirely from falling in love with her favorite granddaughter, Amy—for Ralph was the adored grandson of Old Colonel Mallot, he who had been Granny's declared lover once upon a time, in ages past.

"Shall we go and confess to your Granny?" whispered Ralph to Amy.

Amy blushed charmingly. "Not now, dearest," she objected. "I must break the news to Granny—and I don't know how she will take it—you see, it just happens that she doesn't like you a bit—why?"

"Answer is, Grandpa," replied Ralph cheerfully.

"How perfectly silly!" exclaimed Amy giggling. "Just fancy, people as old as they are—caring!"

"Who was that young man?" demanded Mrs. Duckworth acidly as Amy entered the piazza and joined her Granny.

"That was Ralph Fricke, Granny."

"Humph—I believe I asked you not to play with him, Amy."

"I know that, Granny—but it seems odd not to, when there are so few men here this year."

"You like him?"

Amy blushed furiously. "Very much," she admitted.

"Humph! Nice state of affairs—I suppose he is a helpless idiot—rich man's heir—good for nothing!"

"But Granny, dear, Ralph has worked his way through college—he wouldn't take one cent from his own people," protested Amy.

"Humph! Don't let him fall in love with you," warned Mrs. Duckworth severely. "If you marry anybody that I do not approve, Amy, I shall cut you off with a shilling and leave every penny to the Sailor's Home."

Amy Delorme dallied over her dressing for dinner that evening. She thought about her grandmother and old Colonel Mallot. Were not the old couple a horrible example of lovers in their old age, they might find some solace together—so dreamed Amy.

"How wonderfully happy we would all be," she sighed, as she tapped on Mrs. Duckworth's door, and then pushed the door wide open.

"You look like a pink carnation, Amy," said Grandmother, who had been day-dreaming herself.

"Well, you look very captivating," said Amy, her eyes dancing.

The old lady's eyes glanced at the girl's pinkness, her air of joy, and she sighed sharply. It was so easy to be happy when young—so difficult to grasp it when one was old and rheumatic. She wondered where Lucien Mallot was.

They were halfway down the front stairs when that cry of fire came from upper storey—as they paused, uncertainly, the diningrooms gave up a crowd of diners, all pouring out of the front doors—Amy caught a glimpse of old Colonel Mallot who looked up the stairs at his old love. Mrs. Duckworth. In an instant he was fighting with the crowd to reach her.

"Maria! Just lean on me, my dear, there, I will take care of you" and Maria Duckworth, forgetting all about her pretty granddaughter, leaned limply against his shoulder and they moved down the stairway. Alone. Amy thought of their valuables, and fairly flew up the wide stairway to their room—her grandmother's dressing case, her own case, smaller, was not far away—Grannie's favorite fur cloak and a bottle of smelling salts—staggering under this burden. Amy met Ralph.

"Darling! Give me those things—now, you!" and Amy fainted in his grasp.

Grannie and Colonel Mallot sat under the trees, hand in hand, blissfully smiling, and when Ralph appeared with his burden, it was the colonel who arose and helped him. "The little girl—ah, she looks very much as you did, Maria!"

"Amy. Hand me my smelling salts, young man! It was like her to think of me at such a time—there, my dear, here we all are, and Colonel Mallot is going to take us to his place in his car—is this your grandson?—I have heard Amy speak of him—I am very grateful to you for saving my granddaughter Ralph—of course—of course!"

"Gee whiz!" exclaimed Ralph joyously, "here is our car—Mrs. Duckworth, may I escort you—"

Colonel Mallot pushed him aside. "Look after your little girl, Ralph," he said with dignity. "I am attending Mrs. Duckworth myself!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Yestidday ma let me bring the little black dog in off the front steps and give him a bath, making a big diffrence in his looks, especially his white spot, only ma still wouldn't promise to leave me keep him, and we were eating supper and I was still asking her, saying, Well jimminy, ma, I mean G wizzickers, if you give a dog a bath, that makes him your dog, dont it? Dont it, pop? I said.

It's logical, but I doubt if it's legal, pop said. I admit it is quite possible that you would have incurred some moral obligation in the eyes of the dog, he said, and I said, Sure you would, pop, and anyways if we keep him we'll have a free watch dog. Holey smokes look at the money he might save us by scaring berglars away, and even if he only saved us a little it would be all pure profit because the dog didn't cost us anything, I said.

Well now that sounds a little sensible, ma said.

The one thing ma likes the least

The one thing ma likes the least being berglars, and when I went to bed I tied the dog to the hat rack with 3 old neckties to train him to sleep down in the front hall, and in the middle of the night he woke me up by barking all his might, and I thought, Good night berglars. And I ran and looked out the guessed room window but nobody was trying to break in, and I heard pop calling over the bannisters to him to shut up, and the same thing woke me up 3 more times besides maybe happening some more without waking me up on account of me getting us to it, and this morning pop sand I were eating breakfist and ma was still up in bed trying to make up some sleep, pop saying, So, you had an idea that dog was smart. Yee gods he must of barked at every footstep within miles, he said.

Well G winckers, pop, maybe he's just exter conscientious, I said.

Being a good answer but not good enough to sattisfy pop.

FIFTEEN MONTHS ON CONVICTION

Pair Held Gasoline Service Attendant Near Port Hope After Stealing Car

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 4 (CP) — Fifteen months definite plus six months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory, was the penalty given Fred McDonald, 19, of Port Hope, and William Pascas, 20, Montreal, when they appeared today for sentence on a charge of car theft.

The two men were arrested Dec. 21 in Hamilton and charged with stealing a car here around Dec. 12. It was alleged at the time that they were in the company of a third man and had driven to Peterboro where the car crashed into a guard rail.

It is alleged that they staged a hold-up near Port Hope and abducted a gasoline station attendant.

"I understand that this car was used to commit a criminal offense somewhere in the country," commented Magistrate McKay. "I am taking that into consideration in passing sentence."

U.S. Will Conclude Waterways Pact With Dominion

Delegation Headed by A. A. Berle, Jr., Will Leave Washington Saturday for Ottawa

HYDRO PROJECTS

Unsettled Points of Draft Treaty Submitted to Canada Last Year Will be Discussed — Signing of Treaty Expected Within Few Weeks

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)— The State Department announced today that a delegation headed by A. A. Berle Jr., would leave for Ottawa Saturday to conclude a treaty with Canada for development of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes Waterway.

The treaty would provide also for Hydro-electric power projects.

The delegation is composed of Berle, Assistant Secretary of State, John Hickerson, Assistant Chief of the Division of European Affairs of the State Department, and Leland Olds, Chairman of the Federal Power Commission.

The committee will discuss unsettled points of the draft treaty submitted by the State Department to Canada last year. It is expected to remain in Ottawa two or three days.

Signing of the treaty is expected within a few weeks. Thereafter it will be submitted to the United States Senate for its advice and consent.

Conference Sugesgted by Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 4 (CP)—Officials of three departments of the Canadian government will confer here next week with a delegation representing the United States government on the St. Lawrence Deep Waterway proposal, it was announced by the Department of External Affairs today.

The conference, suggested by the Canadian Government, will be informal and its purpose will be to clarify some questions of detail preliminary to consideration of broader questions of policy involved in the proposed waterway treaty submitted to Canada by the United States in May, 1938.

Officials of the Departments of External Affairs, Mines and Resources, and Transport will attend the conference.

Representatives of the United States, named at Washington today, will be Hon. Adolph Berle, Assistant Secretary of State; Hon. Leland Olds, Chairman of the Federal Power Commission, and John D. Hickerson, Assistant Chief of the Division of European Affairs.

Statement by Department

The State Department disclosed that the sending of the delegation to Ottawa was as a result of a proposal by the Canadian government. The Department said:

"On Dec. 26, 1939, Mr. Loring Christie, the Canadian Minister in Washington, transmitted a proposal to the Secretary of State that a meeting be held in Ottawa between members of the public services of the two countries for informal discussions to clarify a number of questions of detail preliminary to a consideration of the broader questions of policy involved."

MURPHY NAMED TOSUPREMECOURT

Attorney General of U. S. Elevated and Will be Succeeded by R. H. Jackson

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt nominated Attorney General Frank Murphy today to be an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson to succeed him as head of the Justice Department.

The President also sent to the Senate the nomination of Judge Francis Biddle of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals to be Solicitor General.

The 46-year-old Murphy has been Attorney General since Jan. 2, 1939. Formerly he was High Commissioner to the Philippines and Governor of Michigan for two years.

Jackson has been with the Justice Department since 1936. He headed the anti-trust division prior to moving up to the job of Solicitor General when Stanley Reed went to the Supreme Court.

Biddle, a Pennsylvanian, once was chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

REFUSES TO ORDER COUPLE DEPORTED TO POLAND

Chicago, Jan. 4—(AP)— Deportation to the Poland of today, a newly conquered and subjugated state, is "inhuman and shocking to the senses," in the opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Hence, the court ruled yesterday, it would refuse to order an alien Chicago couple deported to Poland.

The couple, Stanislaw Boraca, 40, and his wife, Agnes, 35, entered the country illegally from Canada 11 years ago. They have an eight-year-old son who was born in the United States.

"We'll serve in any capacity," he added.

The association membership offered its services last September during the Czecho-Slovakia crisis. The members, ranging from subalterns to lieutenant-colonels, are leaving for the front "at a moment's notice."

BATA SHOE TEAM TAKES TWEED 4-3

Stogan for Winning Team Best Player of the Contest

Tweed, Jan. 4 — (Special)—The Trent Valley hockey season opened at the local arena on Wednesday night as the 1940 edition of Tweed puck-chasers and Bata Shoe Works entry paraded their wares before the local fans. Although the home team was forced to accept the small end of a 4-3 score their hockey display was pleasing to the crowd and gave evidence they will have a fine chance of repeating their success of last season when they romped home with the silverware.

As the last strains of the National Anthem, played by Tweed Band, died away the roars of the crowd ushered in the 1940 hockey season as Referee Finnigan dropped the puck at the centre spot.

Prevost and Cournyea who last year were the league's leading scoring pair, started where they left off in March and almost before the visitors were aware that the game was in progress, had notched two goals, each of the duo scoring a goal and assist. The fans cheered their favorites to the echo for their smart plays. Hardly had the cheers died away before Stojan, whose allround play on Frankford defense, was a feature of the game, sank the puck into the twine behind Reeves on a solo effort. A few minutes later he repeated on Reid's set-up to knot the score at two-all. Tummon drew the only penalty of the period.

Tweed Gets Counter

Tweed opened the scoring in the second as Jack Tummon made one of his spectacular end to end rushes, putting the home team in the lead again. Reid, at centre for the visitors, again put the teams on even terms with his neat goal. A Pollard from McDonald play gave the visitors a few minutes later, a lead which they did not relinquish. The second period ended with the score 4 to 3 for the visitors.

There was no further scoring in the third frame as the players of both teams hardly in condition at this early stage, tired rapidly. Play centred chiefly around the middle zone with occasional rushes into enemy territory. These sorties were unproductive as both goalies turned aside easy shots.

The line-up: Tweed — Reeves Tummon, Orr, Wagar, H. Leal, Harold Long, Prevost, Cournyea, Marsh, Woodcock, H. Long.

Bata — Rogers, Guay, Stojan, Reid, Ross, Meyette, Pollard, Hanna, Foster, Lawrence, McDonald.

Referees — Finnigan, Frankford, F. Geraldi, Tweed.

DOUBLE INQUEST OPENED TODAY AT COLLINGWOOD

Warren Bell and Wife, Former Gertrude Small, Lost Their Lives on Oct. 26th.

EVIDENCE TAKEN

Miss Florence Small Makes Striking Statement at Inquest

Collingwood, Ont., Jan. 4.—(CP) — After postponements extending over several weeks while official and private investigations were completed, the inquest on the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bell opened here today.

Mrs. Bell was the former Gertrude Small, sister of Ambrose Small, millionaire theatre owner whose disappearance from Toronto, in December, 1919, is regarded as one of Canada's greatest unsolved crimes.

Miss Small and Warren Bell, electrician, were married at Stayner, Ontario, October 26, and that evening the automobile in which they were riding ran off Wasaga Beach and into the Nottawasaga River, where they lost their lives.

Mrs. Bell had moved from her former home in Toronto to Midland, 105 miles north, where she met Bell.

Investigation

After the bodies were recovered, Patrick Sullivan, friend of Florence Small, sister of Mrs. Bell, announced he was instituting a private investigation. At the request of Miss Florence Small, the inquest was postponed until today.

The courtroom was crowded when the inquest opened. Dr. E. J. Corcoran, Elmvale coroner, presided. Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner of Ontario, was present.

W. B. Common, K.C., of the Ontario Attorney General's office, represented the Crown. J. C. Risk appeared on behalf of Miss Florence Small Frank Regan, K.C., represented Capt. and Mrs. J. C. Calquhoun of Midland, who may be called as witnesses.

Inspector E. D. Hammond of Provincial Police was the first witness called. He identified a number of photographs of the automobile in which the Bells were said to have been riding.

Dr. E. Fielden of Toronto, who performed the post mortem examination on Warren Bell, October 30, testified that with the exception of four small marks on the forehead and a bruise on the right lower leg the condition of the lungs, heart and stomach were typical of conditions found in drowning cases.

Dr. Fielden said he believed Bell came to his death by drowning.

Florence Small on Stand

When Miss Florence Small entered the witness box many interruptions occurred and it was found necessary to have all witnesses excluded. In her evidence Miss Small told of the harmonious relationship which had always existed between she and her sister, Gertrude.

Several months ago she had gone to Midland and resided there until her death. She had on two occasions been in hospitals for her nerves. When she went to Midland it was, Miss Small said, "to go to the Shrine there for treatment, which she felt was a mistake".

"My sister," she declared, "was doped and murdered and continued "I will stick to that."

Miss Small told of visiting her sister's home in Midland after her death. Her home, Miss Small stated "was not the same to which she had been accustomed".

She and her sister Gertrude had received equal incomes from the Small estate. They had lived comfortably. On her sister's death her income would revert to the Catholic Church while her own would go back to the estate.

She had identified her sister's body at Elmvale. On leaving the box, Miss Small did so with the remark "My sister was murdered".

Inquest Adjourned in Girl's Death

The preliminary inquest looking into the death of 19-year-old Ruth Shore, Belleville, whose lifeless body was found on the C.P.R. bridge in this city ear today, opened before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson at the Martin Funeral Home at noon today. Following the viewing of the body by the coroner's jury and identification had been made the body was released for burial.

At the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., who is conducting the investigation looking into the death, the proceedings were adjourned until Friday, Jan. 12th., at which time Mr. Donnan, stated he believed more detailed information would be available and which would throw more light upon the unfortunate affair.

The coroner's jury empanelled by Sergeant Arthur Harman included, Messrs. J. McFee, J. Shaw, Russ White, Stanley White and Harry Green, foreman.

ALL IS BRIGHT

By Eleanor Browne

Star was aware that Kent applied the description to himself. He ground the coffee spoon into his cup as if he wished Coates were beneath it. With great enjoyment Star deliberately let her shoulder touch the dark coat beside her.

"I'm open to conviction," she murmured.

But Gloria had taken that opportunity to whisper to Kent. He was nodding, probably he's missed the little byplay. Star went on quickly:

"I thought you were the rock-throwing type. Gloria tells me you're a geologist.

"Not quite. An archeologist."

"Your future is in the past?" smiled Star.

"My future i sin—your hands!"

His dark eyes kindled as they looked at her......Star felt an almost physical revulsion for his oily black hair and thin eagerness. But she controlled herself well.

"There is a boat deck," Gloria said insolently.

"I'm sure we'll see you up there" Coates retorted.

Kent's sulky silence made Star sure the thrust had gone home. So that was what Gloria had whispered about—what Kent had agreed to—a rendezvous on deck? Star wondered why she wanted to protest. What difference did it make to her?

"It's a date then?" Coates whispered.

Star forced herself to say lightly, "I make only one date every night—"

"Break it tonight," Coates demanded.

"—with a gentleman who has already retired," Star went on. She saw Barton Underwood making his way toward their table. "After my young man is asleep —perhaps."

"Miss Sandringham," Barton leaned over her chair. "I'm punishing Stuart by not letting him hear a story tonight."

"Then you would punish me too," Star objected. "He admitted his mistake like a soldier, Mr. Underwood. That's all anyone can ask. Please don't insist on hurting him any more."

Barton smiled down at the lovely face pleading so gracefully for his child. He had a vision, too, of Stuart—after he had heard the ultimatum—turning toward the wall and burying his head in the pillow, one tiny hand clenched to keep from protesting. Star had said he must take his punishment like a man.

"I don't believe he's asleep yet", Barton announced.

Star rose quickly, her face bright with happiness, and walked toward the door—to the dark cabin where Stuart had decided that even a man might be permitted to sob if he pressed his lips tightly together so that no sound escaped.

"Oooh! It's so windy!" Gloria shivered and ducked into a fairly sheltered corner. Kent followed her there slowly. Grudingly he put an arm around her as she snuggled up to his coat. "Gloria—I've got to talk to you," he said determinedly. "It's about—about that letter...."

"Kent, is that the North Star—the big one? Pardon me, darling, but it seems so silly to be prosaic up here, alone."

"It isn't the North Star and this isn't silly to me."

"Don't be angry," Gloria murmured. "Since I've been on this trip I can almost see why you like this stupid old boat—really I can."

Kent's heart sank. What if she was going to say that she would marry him now, with no conditions?

"Oh, no—you—you wouldn't like it at all," he said desperately. "You were perfectly right—"

"Then you will take up a land practice? Oh, darling!" Impulsively Gloria threw both arms around his neck.

"Careful—someone's coming!"

Gloria dropped her arms, but she did not move away. In a guilty silence they waited as the footsteps came nearer and nearer. Suddenly Captain Porter stood before them, his sharp eyes seeing Kent's quick salute. Gloria's affected shyness. For a second the Captain paused in surprise and then went on hurriedly. Kent could almost see him thinking! Engaged to one girl, kissing another. More unpleasant gossip!

x x x

Star stepped cautiously onto the windswept deck. She didn't want to meet Coates just now. She saw a dim form approaching. Saw the quick sure way he walked, the gleam of his wrist watch as he passed a lighted window. It was Coates. Of course she could go back. Yet it was such a gorgeous night! Who was it said you could always go three ways? She didn't want to go down or sideways —but she could go up!

Star ran lightly toward the stairs. Her heart was pounding as she reached the top and paused to catch her breath and listen. Coates walked on quickly—to the ladder—passed it. With a sigh of relief Star ran aft .

No one but a stupid blundering girl, Star thought afterward bitterly, would have so heedlessly disturbed people. No one else would have been so entirely engrossed in her own thoughts that she would practically walk into a couple before she halted.

Even after she had heard her roommate's passionate, "Kent, you mustn't say that. You mustn't!" Star had stood rooted to the spot while Gloria's arms were flung around Kent's neck—while her lips were pressed together.

And then instead of slipping away Star had said primly, "I beg your pardon!"

No wonder Kent had looked up with such a guilty start. It was enough to make any man angry.

And it was enough to make any girl cry a little, even though she was happy that Gloria had patched up the quarrel with her sweetheart. She had known all along that Kent and Gloria were to be married. No, she wasn't weeping about that. It was only—she wished she had drowned before she had that love scene burned into her memory!

CHAPTER XI

With her feet propped against the rail and her eyes looking deep into the turbulent water, Star felt lonelier than she had ever felt before in her life. Ten days to Christmas! If she were home this would be a time of whispered consultations with the children's mothers, of arrangements for the library tree and ornaments, of endless lists of recommended reading for children of varying ages. Christmas week always passed in a whirl of activity.

Star hoped the girl taking her place would not forget to have the tree anchored securely. It had fallen one year. She could never wipe out of her memory the expression on the children's faces as they saw the one bright star on top come crashing down.

She wondered if her own face did not reflect something of what those children must have felt. Her particular Christmas ornament had been this cruise. She wanted it to be perfect, gleaming through the dark months, perhaps years, that would surely follow. Yet already there was a touch of tarnish on the gilt. Instead of the sustained joyousness she had expected, there were moments like last night when everything turned shabby and dull.

Last night Gloria had not mentioned that painful moment. She had tiptoed into the cabin an hour later and Star pretended to be asleep. This morning, however, Star had managed to stumble through a sort of apology. Gloria stared at her and stretched with yawning good humor.

"Did it embarrass you to see Kent kissing me?" she asked in surprise. "Think nothing of it. The Captain caught us five minutes before you appeared. We should have staged our petting scene in Grand Central Palace."

The upper deck was almost deserted. Evidently the Sunday afternoon habit of napping for a few hours had claimed most of the guests. Further toward the stern there was a group of passengers Star had seen sitting at the Captain's table. They were talking and laughing; she did not want to walk past them. She thought of going below. At that minute Gloria and Coates came up the stairs. They paused awkwardly beside her.

"Oh, hello! It was Gloria's turn to be embarrassed. "I didn't know you were up here."

"We're trying to get up a game of bridge," Coates said. "Do you play?"

"Please count me out," Star refused. "I was going downstairs in a minute anyway. I'd like to write a few cards for tomorrow's mail."

"See you later then."

Gloria and Coates walked off slowly, leaving Star thoughtful. It was strange that Gloria had not been embarrassed about her love scene with Kent and was obviously ill at ease when she was with Coates!

Elise Cattrell, "the woman in black" as Star had come to think of her, fumbled around in her trunk until she found the small box of medicines she always carried with her. Bandage, iodine — her fingers hesitated for a moment and then passed on. They said it burned; she didn't want to look distorted and ugly. A tinier bottle. She took it out and closed the trunk carefully.

The little cabin was in perfect order. Jim had always called her an "old maid" for being so tidy. She smiled wryly as she considered how apt that description had been Unconsciously her hand went to her hair and she straightened the small silver butterfly that nestled in the smooth waves. No longer black, but at night the gray seemed softer, her skin looked smoother. Her eyes were almost as round and sparkling as they had been five years ago when she had met Jim.

Just about this time—about ten days before Christmas. Chicago almost buried in snow, a picture-card Christmas Eve. Great white flakes falling softly, slowly—light wet kisses as they touched your face. How happy they had been, she and Jim, carrying home that silly little tree, decorating it afterward in her apartment. How shyly and boyishly he had produced a small box from his pocket—a silver butterfly. "They always light on the sweetest flowers," he had said.

Jim! Jim!

The face in the mirror contorted pitifully as she fought back the tears. She would not think of that now. All those weary years of waiting; years of giving some diverting answer to that ceaseless question: "Why don't you and Jim get married?"

Why? Why?

What would have happened if she had turned on those idle questioners just once and shouted: "He is married. His wife is insane. Terribly, hopelessly insane! She thinks Jim is their son. He must see her every week and tell her that he wasn't killed in action — that he's back from the war. He must assure her that he's well and strong and happy, call her 'Mother.' He's tearing his heart out — and mine too. But we can't get married—not yet."

Not yet. Not this year. Perhaps yet. And then, Jim's voice saying: not next year—nor the next. Not

"Darling, I've just got a telegram. I'm flying west tonight She's very ill—dying—calling for me. They say she's rational. I'll let you know when it's over. I wish I could see you once more before I go."

Then that telegram—two weeks later:

"ALL IS OVER MEET ME AT AIRPORT FOUR THURSDAY."

And those black minutes in the November dusk. Standing with the few others who looked at you and at each other fiercely as if they cried, "It's all right—just a delay —a forced landing somewhere."

A forced landing! You said it over and over to yourself until the word of the crash came. Then you repeated: "He isn't hurt—he isn't hurt" until someone put a list on a board.

Even then—even looking at Jim's name you kept repeating: "He isn't dead—he isn't dead!"

SMASHING VICTORY ON SALLA FRONT IS REPORTED

Red Force Fleeing In Confusion Across Frontier

Finns May be Able Not Only to Cut but Destroy Murmansk Railway Used as Main Line of Communication

MUST CONCENTRATE

Russia May be Forced to Abandon Winter Attempts to Smash Finland in North or Cut Her in Two as First Planned

By Thomas Hawkins
Associated Press Staff Writer

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 5—(AP)—Finnish forces today were reported to have won another smashing victory against Russian troops on the Salla front, 125 miles north of Lake Kianta where the Finns virtually destroyed the Red Army's 163rd Division last week.

The Russians were said to have been routed at Salla, just above the Arctic Circle, and to be fleeing in confusion across the frontier in the direction of Kandalaska.

Inasmuch as the Russian Murmansk-Leningrad Railroad is only 40 miles from the frontier, the new victory, observers said, may mean the Finns will not only be able to cut but destroy this line of communication.

Persistent reports from northern and central Finnish fronts of successful raids against the railroad led neutral military sources to believe Russia would be compelled to abandon her winter attempts to smash Finland in the north or cut her in two and concentrate attacks on the Karelian Isthmus to regain prestige.

Russia can send reinforcements and munitions to the Karelian front through Leningrad but would have difficulty provisioning troops in the north without the Murmansk Railroad.

With Finnish forces on the Lake Kianta Front, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Finns apparently held the initiative in a roving, hit-and-run war today deep in the forests along both sides of this wild northland frontier.

Skiing Finnish patrols were reported to have cut the Murmansk railroad at several places after forays deep into Soviet territory. The railroad is the only supply line to harassed Red Army forces in the far north.

The raids against the railroad, which winds through the lake-dotted Russian wilderness at distances of from 50 to 150 miles from the border, were said to have been part of an encircling drive by Finns pursuing remnants by the routed 163rd Russian division.

With the main bodies of both armies lying back now, the fighting has been largely hand-to-hand guerrilla skirmishes between ski soldiers, mostly in Russia, and ambushes by the white-clad Finns who swoop in sudden attacks and vanish.

There no longer is a well-defined battle line in this war zone that takes 40 hours to tour by automobile.

War and peace mingle strangely close to the embattled areas. Along the roads to the front in the Arctic darkness one sees a milkmaid on the way to her morning chores and, returning at night, a boy pumping a bicycle.

Occasionally a reindeer slips across the one good road to the frontier. It is a rolling road over which the car bobs at about 30 miles an hour.

A woman welcomes you for the

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Changing weather! This may be said to be largely due to changing winds which bring in air from widely separated source regions. For instance the cold winds of the temperature zones come from the polar regions or the interior of cold continents. They bring in cold heavy air which upon going south becomes warm by contact with the warmer surfaces, and hence becomes unstable, that is it tends to rise. This brings about cloudy, showery weather. On the other hand, warm air comes from the tropical region or warm continents, and going north becomes cooled by contact with the cooler surface, and hence becomes more stable. If the cooling is carried far enough fog or cloud will form.

NINE MEMBERS SIT AT COUNCIL

Bitter Breach in Windsor Council Wider and More Definite

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 5 — (CP)—The bitter breach in city council is wider and more definite today as the nine members opposed to Mayor David Croll held a second meeting of their own, purporting to sit as city council.

The nine held their first separate meeting yesterday, when they gave first and second readings to a by-law altering the proportion of votes necessary to carry any measure. Mayor Croll last month introduced a by-law requiring a two-thirds vote but the nine have declared themselves determined to change that to an ordinary majority.

At yesterday's meeting-of-nine, E. C. Awrey, their special counsel, was quoted as advising that the two-thirds vote was not legal. Mr. Awrey said only the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs could change the rules of procedure.

Mayor Croll and his five supporters in council were not around for today's meeting, the mayor having claimed that meetings must be called by the mayor, even on petition of members. Neither the city clerk nor the assistant clerk attended the meeting-of nine, City Engineer Ray Desmarais acting as clerk. It was stated the mayor had instructed the other two officials not to attend.

Assistance for Finland by Britain Under Non-Intervention Policy

London, Jan. 5 (CP)—The Daily Express suggested today that an unidentified £10,000,000 ($14,500,000) increase in "other accounts" shown in the weekly statement of the Bank of England might represent a loan to Finland. The newspaper observed:

'The last time such a big increase was shown, experts were saying, was when the government opened a £10,000,000 credit for Czecho-Slovakia a year ago, and the sugegstion was made that a loan to be sanctioned later by parliament had now been made to Finland or some other country.

"No official information was obtainable last night. But it is known that the British government are giving all the help they can to Finland. To include a loan would cause little surprise.'

The paper said that while support for an open British war on Soviet Russia is growing both among the right and the left, the government could intervene in Finland in the same way that Germany did during the Spanish civil war.

"Give thanks to America," the editorial said, "give thanks to Roosevelt for his inspiring speech and give thanks for the news that America may be sending more than speeches to help the forces of democracy. The United States may lend $25,000,000 to Finland to buy arms.

"What support should Britain give the Finns? There is a movement to send this country to war against Russia on behalf of Finland. That movement gathers strength both from the right and the left. . .

"Now what will emerge? The probability is that there will be no war against Russia. The government will have the sense to take that decision.

"But there is another way in which we can assist the Finns. Some people will say we can employ the same methods as the Germans used in relation to Spain.

"These methods were under the name of non-intervention. But the Germans gave help to (General) Franco and he won his war. The policy of Great Britain towards Finland may be non-intervention on precisely the same lines."

11-YEAR-OLD BOY SAVES FAMILY AS HOUSE BURNS

PRESENCE OF MIND

Boy Leaps Safely to Ground With Baby of Family Held Tightly in His Arms

Warren, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP). — Dashing through flames early today, 11-year-old Leo Bibeau herded his mother and two sisters safely out of their burning home, dropped two younger children from the second storey into waiting arms in the snow below and then jumped safely to the ground with the baby of the family locked tightly in his arms.

Joseph Bibeau, father of the family, had left to work in the fields near this centre, 20 miles east of Sudbury, when the house was turned into a raging inferno.

It is believed the furnace became overheated and set fire to the floor. Quickly it reached a can of gasoline which exploded and in a minute the house was in flames.

Fire Awakens Mother.

The roaring fire awakened the mother upstairs. Leo leaped out of bed and while two of his sisters raced down stairs in night attire, the young hero pushed his mother after them and out of the house.

Without hesitation he ran back into the house. He raced upstairs to where the younger children were still sleeping. He picked up two of the children, aged three and four, smashed a window and dropped them into the sisters' arms. Then he clutched the baby in his arms and dropped safely into the snow below.

The family was taken to the home of an uncle while neighbors tried to salvage what they could from the shambles of the house.

'RECKLESS FLYING' BLAMED AS CAUSE

Board of Inquiry Probing Civilian Airplane Crash Favors Frequent Warning

Ottawa, Jan. 5 (CP)—A Board of of Inquiry, appointed by Transport Minister Howe, in a report today blamed "reckless flying in breach of air regulation" for an airplane accident at Larchwood, Ont., near Sudbury, last Nov. 6 which claimed the lives of three persons.

The aircraft crashed when it failed to recover from a spin and subsequent dive.

The pilot, who was relatively inexperienced, was performing aerobatics although two passengers were being carried, the report said.

Those killed were Ross Armstrong, the pilot and owner of the machine, Frank Church and Donald Lennox. All were Sudbury district miners, whose off-duty hobby was aviation.

The Board, set up to investigate the crash, recommended frequent warning to licenced personnel and severe punishments for infringements of air regulations, especially part VI which deals with dangerous flying.

Appointees of President Will Have Majority Control Of Tribunal for Two Decades

Washington, Jan. 5.—(CP)—Elevation of Frank Murphy to the United States Supreme Court will give appointees of President Roosevelt majority control of the tribunal for possibly two decades, barring deaths, resignations or removals.

Nomination of the 46-year-old Attorney General yesterday as Mr. Roosevelt's fifth appointee on the 9-man court may well imprint the new deal hallmark on its opinions for many years after the President's own retirement from office.

Discussing Mr. Roosevelt's lower court appointments, Murphy himself said yesterday that "for years the country will watch the work and receive the benefits of the wisdom of these men of learning and integrity".

Senate comment indicated that Murphy would be confirmed promptly.

He will be the second youngest member of the court. The oldest Roosevelt appointee is Felix Frankfurter, 57, who would serve 20 years more if he remains until he is as old as Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Justice James McReynolds.

The youngest is William O. Douglas, 41. Should he remain on the Bench only until reaching the average age of the four non-Roosevelt appointees, he would still be serving thirty years from now.

Besides comparative youth Murphy shares with three other Roosevelt appointees a background of government service. He has been Mayor of Detroit, Commissioner to the Phillipines, governor of Michigan and Attorney General.

On the Bench he will join two of his predecessors as Attorney General—Justices McReynolds and Harland Stone.

Twenty Witnesses Remain to be Called in Deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bell

LENGTHY INQUEST

Collingwood, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP) — Although the jury considering the death of Gertrude Small and her husband of a few hours, Warren G. Bell, is satisfied that there are enough facts before it to return a verdict, the double inquest being held here is to continue with possibly a score of witnesses yet to be heard.

This morning the foreman of the jury told the chief coroner that he thought there were enough facts, in answer to a query made by Dr Smirle Lawson, chief coroner.

"I, myself, think there are," said W. B. Common, K.C., of the Attorney General's department, "but my friend Mr. Risk has some witnesses yet to produce and I don't want to suppress or hide anything which may help."

Dr. Lawson said the inquest would continue.

First half of the witnesses were heard yesterday during which Miss Florence Small of Toronto, sister of Mrs. Bell, testified she believed her sister had been "doped and murdered." Expert Crown witnesses, however, testified that the couple drowned.

Mrs. Bell, sister of Ambrose Small, millionaire theatre owner whose disappearance in Toronto in December, 1919, has never been solved, and her husband were married in Stayner a few hours before the automobile in which they were Aldershot, Jan. 5 (C.P. Leaves which have held up drills and demonstrations will be virtually complete by the week-end.

Approximately 3000 Canadians are away on leave at present, mostly from the second contingent which arrived last week-end.

Intermittent Artillery Fire Heard Along Entire West Front

Paris, Jan. 5 (C.P.-Havas) — Unusually intense activity by patrols occurred yesterday in the sector of the front west of the Saar River.

Since the beginning of the week this district, where French troops recently carried out a reconnaissance expedition far inside the German line of outposts, has been less calm than usual, whereas the Moselle sector, hitherto the most active theatre of patrol operations, is quieting down.

During the course of the day there was intermittent artillery fire along virtually the entire front Activity in the air was reduced to zero by weather conditions. No changes were noted in the disposition of German forces from the Rhine to the North Sea.

Bandits Lock 7 in Live Steam Room, Manager's Plea Secures Release

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)— Six armed men locked seven silk company employees in a room charged with live steam last night and made off with $15,000 in silk—but only after the superintendent had risked his life to plead that the steam be turned off.

Several of the employees of the Supreme Skein Dyeing Company of Brooklyn had dropped under the intense heat when the superintendent, Louis Wachter, burst from the chamber shouting:

"For God's sake let me turn off the steam or we'll all die. The temperature is 120 degrees in there now and getting hotter."

"Okay,' one of the men grunted. "Turn off the steam—and get back in there quick."

Wachter did as he was told — under the muzzle of one of two sub-machine guns the six carried —while silk was being loaded in a truck at the building's rear.

SEA POWER REAL PRIZE OF THE WAR —LORD LOTHIAN

British Ambassador to U. S. Expects Big Drive by Nazis in Spring

EXPLAINS VIEW

If Thrust on Sea Power Fails Britain and Allies Can Dictate Peace Terms

Chicago, Jan. 5 —(AP)— Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, believes that the "real prize" of the war between Germany and the Allies "is not territory but sea power."

"For that is the real key to victory," he said last night in an address before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

He also said the Nazis probably would throw all their forces into a "terrific attack by land, air and sea" early in the spring "on France and on the basis of British naval and aerial power."

The Ambassador explained British views on the struggle for sea supremacy thus:—

"If Germany can defeat England either by direct attack upon her naval and sea communication or on France through Belgium or the Maginot line, and compel us to surrender our fleet or a large part of it and the naval bases whereby fleets may travel all over the globe, Germany will then be on top of the world.

Opposition Would Disappear

"The opposition to her in Europe will disappear. Most of the other nations will hasten to get on her band wagon and she will be able to dictate the basis upon which world politics shall be conducted.

"If the German thrust for sea power fails, it is only a question of time before the relentless pressure of the blockade upon her capacity to carry on the war effectively will end in the defeat of her purpose and the democracies will then have

At 11 a.m an inch of snow had fallen over the Kingston district and it still was snowing lightly. The Dominion Observatory in Toronto said the storm likely would be spent before reaching Ottawa.

Extent of Storm

The storm this morning covered the area from Owen Sound southeast to Cobourg. St. Catharines reported an inch, indicating a light fall on the Niagara peninsula.

British Press Speculates Over Extent To Which Goering is Replacing Hitler

London Jan. 5 (CP)—Appointment of Field Marshal Hermann Goering as economic dictator of the Reich caused London newspapers to speculate today over the extent to which the power of Goering is replacing that of Adolf Hitler.

"Who is the real master of Germany, Adolf Hitler or Hermann Goering?" asked the Daily Mail. "Hitler is the leader. He's the big name for veneration by the masses, but Goering has immense power. Consider his enormous responsibilities. As chairman of the defence council, he virtually controls Germany's war effort. He is Commander-in-Chief of the Air Force and director of the four-year plan

"Now he has been entrusted with supreme direction of Germany's war economy. Nothing can be bought or sold or grown, not a train can move nor a ship sail without hte permission of Field Marshal Goering. Never has so much man power been concentrated in the hands of a man who still lacks the title of dictator.

"Goering has many enemies in the Third Reich. He has beaten them. . . . Goering is able, aggressive, unscrupulous. He will squeeze Germany to win Hitler's war. We must counter him at every turn stop his trade, capture his markets, deny him raw materials."

London Times' Comment

The Times commented: "Hitler's reason for allowing Goering to assume new powers as economic dictator is probably that given him in an unexpected speech to a meeting of German industrialists in 1936. The Fuehrer then said he had entrusted execution of the four-year plan of self-sufficiency to Goering because 'for the general the impossible does not exist.'

"The Field Marshal's powerful personality is able to carry through economic measures which industrial leaders and economic advisers regard as disastrous. Just as Hitler's favorite reply to warnings against inflation is to say that he will call out the storm troopers if prices go up. It may be the first step toward some possibly unpopular move, such as rationing of all commodities to prevent inflation."

U.S. Holds Britain Responsible for Losses, Injuries

Note Deals With American Ships Forced Into British Control Ports for Examination

NOTE RELEASED

State Department Charges U.S. Vessel Has Been Taken to Control Port Within an Area Forbidden U.S. Vessels by Neutrality Act

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP) — The United States government has warned Great Britain it would hold her responsible for damages resulting from "losses and injuries" if American ships were forced into British control ports.

The State Department released the text of a note given to the British ambassador for forwarding to his government. At the same time that it disclosed that an American ship, the Moormacsun, of the Moore and McCormack Line, en route to Bergen, had been taken into Kirkwall, one of the British control pports within the area forbidden United States vessels by the Neutrality Act.

The department said that since it was a violation of the American Neutrality Law for an American vessel to enter the combat area, it cabled the American Embassy in London last night to communicate immediately with the master of the Moormacsun and obtain a statement of the circumstances.

Volunteer Co-operation

The State Department's note to Britain dated Dec. 14, made the point also that American steamship companies are voluntarily co-operating with Britain authorities.

The message, signed by Secretary Cordell Hull, then said:

"In view of these considerations it is difficult for my government to foresee, as a practical matter, any occasion necessitating the entry of American vessels into belligerent ports.

"If, despite the considerations, the British authorities should feel it necessary to compel any American vessel to enter the combat area or any of those belligerent ports which by the provisions of the neutrality law they are prohibited from entering the government of the United States will feel it necessary to examine carefully into all of the facts of the case and to take such further action as the results of such examination appear to make necessary or expedient.

Reserves All Rights

"Meanwhile, I feel that I should inform Your Excellency that this government, for itself and its Nationals, reserves all its and their rights in the matter and that it will be expected that compensation for losses and injuries resulting from the infraction of such rights will be made as a matter of course."

Hull's note replied to a British note of Nov. 9, the text of which was not released. In it Britain reserved the right to take American vessels to control ports despite the combat are a proclamation.

MORE VIGOROUS POLICY IS URGED

Executive of Conservatives of Alberta Passes Resolution Unanimously

Red Deer, Alta., Jan. 5—(CP)—A demand for a more vigorous war policy for Canada was urged in a resolution adopted unanimously by the executive of the National Conservative Association of Alberta in conference here yesterday.

H. R. Milner, K.C., Edmonton, Past President, in moving the resolution, claimed Canada entered the war totally unprepared and asked whether Conservatives were satisfied with the Dominion Government's effort in the war today.

Major-Gen. Hon. W. A. Griesbach of Edmonton, who seconded the resolution, suggested that "what the Government is doing falls far below what the people of Canada would like to see done."

He urged the need of an inquiry into all war supply contracts. In the last four years some $90,000,000 over and above the usual expenditures, had been voted by the Dominion Parliament for defence purposes, said Senator Griesbach, and the first task was to find out what the Government had done with the money.

Conservatives should put their views before the people and not wait for Parliament to meet, he suggested.

In the Federal field Conservatives plan to contest all 17 Alberta seats in the next general Dominion election, said President R. Ward of Calgary.

But in the Provincial campaign joint political action with other parties opposed to the Alberta Social Credit Government was reaffirmed by the executive.

The war policy resolution claimed Canada's military effort "falls far short of what the Canadian people were led to expect and hope."

It said that troops "are insufficiently armed, clothed and shod" and "Canadian industry and labor are still largely unemployed in manufacture of necessary equipment."

The Empire training scheme was termed "disappointing as a war effort and discouraging to our national aspirations."

Will Not Hamper King Regime

Blind River, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP)—The Conservative party has no desire to hamper the King government in its efforts to win the war, Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, National organizer for the Conservative party, said in an address here last night.

Dr. Robb said he had engaged in no political activities since September because of the outbreak of war.

"But in an election it will be different," he added.

Dr. Robb spoke at the Board of Trade banquet marking dedication of a new post office.

SMASHING VICTORY ON SALLA FRONT IS REPORTED

Red Force Fleeing In Confusion Across Frontier

Finns May be Able Not Only to Cut but Destroy Murmansk Railway Used as Main Line of Communication

MUST CONCENTRATE

Russia May be Forced to Abandon Winter Attempts to Smash Finland in North or Cut Her in Two as First Planned

By Thomas Hawkins
Associated Press Staff Writer

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 5 —(AP)—Finnish forces today were reported to have won another smashing victory against Russian troops on the Salla front, 125 miles north of Lake Kianta where the Finns virtually destroyed the Red Army's 163rd Division last week.

The Russians were said to have been routed at Salla, just above the Arctic Circle, and to be fleeing in confusion across the frontier in the direction of Kandalaska.

Inasmuch as the Russian Murmansk-Leningrad Railroad is only 40 miles from the frontier, the new victory, observers said, may mean the Finns will not only be able to cut but destroy this line of communication.

Persistent reports from northern and central Finnish fronts of successful raids against the railroad led neutral military sources to believe Russia would be compelled to abandon her winter attempts to smash Finland in the north or cut her in two and concentrate attacks on the Karelian Isthmus to regain prestige.

Russia can send reinforcements and munitions to the Karelian front through Leningrad but would have difficulty provisioning troops in the north without the Murmansk Railroad.

With Finnish forces on the Lake Kianta Front, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Finns apparently held the initiative in a roving, hit-and-run war today deep in the forests along both sides of this wild northland frontier.

Skiing Finnish patrols were reported to have cut the Murmansk railroad at several places after forays deep into Soviet territory. The railroad is the only supply line to harassed Red Army forces in the far north.

The raids against the railroad, which winds through the lake-dotted Russian wilderness at distances of from 50 to 150 miles from the border, were said to have been part of an encircling drive by Finns pursuing remnants by the routed 163rd Russian division.

With the main bodies of both armies lying back now, the fighting has been largely hand-to-hand guerrilla skirmishes between ski soldiers, mostly in Russia, and ambushes by the white-clad Finns who swoop in sudden attacks and vanish.

There no longer is a well-defined battle line in this war zone that takes 40 hours to tour by automobile.

War and peace mingle strangely close to the embattled areas. Along the roads to the front in the Arctic darkness one sees a milkmaid on the way to her morning chores and, returning at night, a boy pumping a bicycle.

Occasionally a reindeer slips across the one good road to the frontier. It is a rolling road over which the car bobs at about 30 miles an hour.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Changing weather! This may be said to be largely due to changing winds which bring in air from widely separated source regions. For instance the cold winds of the temperature zones come from the polar regions or the interior of cold continents. They bring in cold heavy air which upon going south becomes warm by contact with the warmer surfaces, and hence becomes unstable, that is it tends to rise. This brings about cloudy, showery weather. On the other hand, warm air comes from the tropical region or warm continents, and going north becomes cooled by contact with the cooler surface, and hence becomes more stable. If the cooling is carried far enough fog or cloud will form.

NINE MEMBERS SIT AT COUNCIL

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 5 — (CP)—The bitter breach in city council is wider and more definite today as the nine members opposed to Mayor David Croll held a second meeting of their own, purporting to sit as city council.

The nine held their first separate meeting yesterday, when they gave first and second readings to a by-law altering the proportion of votes necessary to carry any measure. Mayor Croll last month introduced a by-law requiring a two-thirds vote but the nine have declared themselves determined to change that to an ordinary majority.

At yesterday's meeting-of-nine, E. C. Awrey, their special counsel, was quoted as advising that the two-thirds vote was not legal. Mr. Awrey said only the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs could change the rules of procedure.

Mayor Croll and his five supporters in council were not around for today's meeting, the mayor having claimed that meetings must be called by the mayor, even on petition of members. Neither the city clerk nor the assistant clerk attended the meeting-of nine. City Engineer Ray Desmarais acting as clerk. It was stated the mayor had instructed the other two officials not to attend.

11-YEAR-OLD BOY SAVES FAMILY AS HOUSE BURNS

PRESENCE OF MIND

Warren, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP). — Dashing through flames early today, 11-year-old Leo Bibeau herded his mother and two sisters safely out of their burning home, dropped two younger children from the second storey into waiting arms in the snow below and then jumped safely to the ground with the baby of the family locked tightly in his arms.

Joseph Bibeau, father of the family, had left to work in the fields near this centre, 20 miles east of Sudbury, when the house was turned into a raging inferno.

It is believed the furnace became overheated and set fire to the floor. Quickly it reached a can of gasoline which exploded and in a minute the house was in flames.

Fire Awakens Mother.

The roaring fire awakened the mother upstairs. Leo leaped out of bed and while two of his sisters raced down stairs in night attire, the young hero pushed his mother after them and out of the house.

Without hesitation he ran back into the house. He raced upstairs to where the younger children were still sleeping. He picked up two of the children, aged three and four, smashed a window and dropped them into the sisters' arms. Then he clutched the baby in his arms and dropped safely into the snow below.

The family was taken to the home of an uncle while neighbors tried to salvage what they could from the shambles of the house.

Assistance for Finland by Britain Under Non-Intervention Policy

London, Jan. 5 (CP)—The Daily Express suggested today that an unidentified £10,000,000 ($14,500,000) increase in "other accounts" shown in the weekly statement of the Bank of England might represent a loan to Finland. The newspaper observed:

"The last time such a big increase was shown, experts were saying, was when the government opened a £10,000,000 credit for Czecho-Slovakia a year ago, and the sugegstion was made that a loan to be sanctioned later by parliament had now been made to Finland or some other country.

"No official information was obtainable last night. But it is known that the British government are giving all the help they can to Finland. To include a loan would cause little surprise.'

The paper said that while support for an open British war on Soviet Russia is growing both among the right and the left, the government could intervene in Finland in the same way that Germany did during the Spanish civil war.

"Give thanks to America," the editorial said, "give thanks to Roosevelt for his inspiring speech and give thanks for the news that America may be sending more than speeches to help the forces of democracy. The United States may lend $25,000,000 to Finland to buy arms.

"What support should Britain give the Finns? There is a movement to send this country to war against Russia on behalf of Finland. That movement gathers strength both from the right and the left. . .

"Now what will emerge? The probability is that there will be no war against Russia. The government will have the sense to take that decision.

"But there is another way in which we can assist the Finns. Some people will say we can employ the same methods as the Germans used in relation to Spain.

"These methods were under the name of non-intervention. But the Germans gave help to (General) Franco and he won his war. The policy of Great Britain towards Finland may be non-intervention on precisely the same lines."

SEA POWER REAL PRIZE OF THE WAR —LORD LOTHIAN

British Ambassador to U. S. Expects Big Drive by Nazis in Spring

EXPLAINS VIEW

If Thrust on Sea Power Fails Britain and Allies Can Dictate Peace Terms

Chicago, Jan. 5 —(AP)— Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, believes that the "real prize" of the war between Germany and the Allies "is not territory but sea power."

"For that is the real key to victory," he said last night in an address before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

He also said the Nazis probably would throw all their forces into a "terrific attack by land, air and sea" early in the spring "on France and on the basis of British naval and aerial power."

The Ambassador explained British views on the struggle for sea supremacy thus:—

"If Germany can defeat England either by direct attack upon her naval and sea communication or on France through Belgium or the Maginot line, and compel us to surrender our fleet or a large part of it and the naval bases whereby fleets may travel all over the globe, Germany will then be on top of the world.

Opposition Would Disappear

"The opposition to her in Europe will disappear. Most of the other nations will hasten to get on her band wagon and she will be able to dictate the basis upon which world politics shall be conducted.

"If the German thrust for sea power fails, it is only a question of time before the relentless pressure of the blockade upon her capacity to carry on the war effectively will end in the defeat of her purpose and the democracies will then have

HEAVY STORM ROLLING EAST

Three Inches of Snow in Toronto and Two More Inches Expected

(By the Canadian Press)

A snowstorm rolled eastward across sections of Ontario today precipitating about five inches in the vicinity of London and St. Thomas, where the fall was heaviest.

In Toronto, where snow was still falling at 11 a.m., three inches had fallen and another inch or two of snow was expected before colder weather set in to prevail probably over Saturday and Sunday, giving winter sports enthusiasts a break.

At 11 a.m an inch of snow had fallen over the Kingston district and it still was snowing lightly. The Dominion Observatory in Toronto said the storm likely would be spent before reaching Ottawa.

Extent of Storm

The storm this morning covered the area from Owen Sound southeast to Cobourg. St. Catharines reported an inch, indicating a light fall on the Niagara peninsula.

British Press Speculates Over Extent To Which Goering is Replacing Hitler

London Jan. 5 (CP)—Appointment of Field Marshal Hermann Goering as economic dictator of the Reich caused London newspapers to speculate today over the extent to which the power of Goering is replacing that of Adolf Hitler.

"Who is the real master of Germany, Adolf Hitler or Hermann Goering?" asked the Daily Mail. "Hitler is the leader. He's the big name for veneration by the masses, but Goering has immense power. Consider his enormous responsibilities. As chairman of the defence council, he virtually controls Germany's war effort. He is Commander-in-Chief of the Air Force and director of the four-year plan.

"Now he has been entrusted with supreme direction of Germany's war economy. Nothing can be bought or sold or grown, not a train can move nor a ship sail without hte permission of Field Marshal Goering. Never has so much man power been concentrated in the hands of a man who still lacks the title of dictator.

"Goering has many enemies in the Third Reich. He has beaten them. . . . Goering is able, aggressive, unscrupulous. He will squeeze Germany to win Hitler's war. We must counter him at every turn stop his trade, capture his markets, deny him raw materials."

London Times' Comment

The Times commented: "Hitler's reason for allowing Goering to assume new powers as economic dictator is probably that given him in an unexpected speech to a meeting of German industrialists in 1936. The Fuehrer then said he had entrusted execution of the four-year plan of self-sufficiency to Goering because 'for the general the impossible does not exist.'

"The Field Marshal's powerful personality is able to carry through economic measures which industrial leaders and economic advisers regard as disastrous, just as Hitler's favorite reply to warnings against inflation is to say that he will call out the storm troopers if prices go up. It may be the first step toward some possibly unpopular move, such as rationing of all commodities to prevent inflation."

U.S. Holds Britain Responsible for Losses, Injuries

Note Deals With American Ships Forced Into British Control Ports for Examination

NOTE RELEASED

State Department Charges U.S. Vessel Has Been Taken to Control Port Within an Area Forbidden U.S. Vessels by Neutrality Act

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP) — The United States government has warned Great Britain it would hold her responsible for damages resulting from "losses and injuries" if American ships were forced into British control ports.

The State Department released the text of a note given to the British ambassador for forwarding to his government. At the same time that it disclosed that an American ship, the Moormacsun, of the Moore and McCormack Line, en route to Bergen, had been taken into Kirkwall, one of the British control pports within the area forbidden United States vessels by the Neutrality Act.

The department said that since it was a violation of the American Neutrality Law for an American vessel to enter the combat area, it cabled the American Embassy in London last night to communicate immediately with the master of the Moormacsun and obtain a statement of the circumstances.

Volunteer Co-operation

The State Department's note to Britain dated Dec. 14, made the point also that American steamship companies are voluntarily co-operating with Britain authorities.

The message, signed by Secretary Cordell Hull, then said:

"In view of these considerations it is difficult for my government to foresee, as a practical matter, any occasion necessitating the entry of American vessels into belligerent ports.

"If, despite the considerations, the British authorities should feel it necessary to compel any American vessel to enter the combat area or any of those belligerent ports which by the provisions of the neutrality law they are prohibited from entering the government of the United States will feel it necessary to examine carefully into all of the facts of the case and to take such further action as the results of such examination appear to make necessary or expedient.

Reserves All Rights

"Meanwhile, I feel that I should inform Your Excellency that this government, for itself and its Nationals, reserves all its and their rights in the matter and that it will be expected that compensation for losses and injuries resulting from the infraction of such rights will be made as a matter of course."

Hull's note replied to a British note of Nov. 9, the text of which was not released. In it Britain reserved the right to take American vessels to control ports despite the combat are a proclamation.

MORE VIGOROUS POLICY IS URGED

Executive of Conservatives of Alberta Passes Resolution Unanimously

Red Deer, Alta., Jan. 5—(CP)—A demand for a more vigorous war policy for Canada was urged in a resolution adopted unanimously by the executive of the National Conservative Association of Alberta in conference here yesterday.

H. R. Milner, K.C., Edmonton, Past President, in moving the resolution, claimed Canada entered the war totally unprepared and asked whether Conservatives were satisfied with the Dominion Government's effort in the war today.

Major-Gen. Hon. W. A. Griesbach of Edmonton, who seconded the resolution, suggested that "what the Government is doing falls far below what the people of Canada would like to see done."

He urged the need of an inquiry into all war supply contracts. In the last four years some $90,000,000 over and above the usual expenditures, had been voted by the Dominion Parliament for defence purposes, said Senator Griesbach, and the first task was to find out what the Government had done with the money.

Conservatives should put their views before the people and not wait for Parliament to meet, he suggested.

In the Federal field Conservatives plan to contest all 17 Alberta seats in the next general Dominion election, said President R. Ward of Calgary.

But in the Provincial campaign joint political action with other parties opposed to the Alberta Social Credit Government was reaffirmed by the executive.

The war policy resolution claimed Canada's military effort "falls far short of what the Canadian people were led to expect and hope."

It said that troops "are insufficiently armed, clothed and shod" and "Canadian industry and labor are still largely unemployed in manufacture of necessary equipment."

The Empire training scheme was termed "disappointing as a war effort and discouraging to our national aspirations."

Will Not Hamper King Regime

Blind River, Ont., Jan. 5 (CP)—The Conservative party has no desire to hamper the King government in its efforts to win the war, Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, National organizer for the Conservative party, said in an address here last night.

Dr. Robb said he had engaged in no political activities since September because of the outbreak of war.

"But in an election it will be different," he added.

Dr. Robb spoke at the Board of Trade banquet marking dedication of a new post office.

AGED MARE FEEDS ON OATS GIVEN BY POLICE

Philadelphia, Jan. 5 (AP)—A 25-year-old mare with a police record and the name Toots ambled up to headquarters last night. Policemen, who often had to find the rambling animal, filled a bag of oats and notified Moe Eckelstein. Eckelstein, Toots' owner, said coal haulers seldom brought her back to the stable after they rented her.

BUSINESS GIRLS OF "Y" MEET

After Basketball practice under direction of Harold Cowain and Gym Class directed by Miss Mary Roberts, the members of the Business Girls' Group at the Y.M.C.A., met in the auditorium to consider plans and programme events for the year 1940.

Among several items two are being given immediate attention—(1) two or three good basketball players will be welcome. The team meets for practice Tuesday and Thursday 6.30 p.m. at the "Y". (2) Business girls' supper meeting will be held on Thursday, January 25th., with supper, music and a speaker.

Committee on arrangements — Miss Mary Lockhart, Marion Maclean, Evelyn Cole, Gertrude Colden, Ann Schuster and Jean Dickens.

FEAST OF EPIPHANY OBSERVED SATURDAY

Tomorrow is the Festival of the Epiphany when the Magi visited the manger at Bethlehem where they adored their new-born Saviour and offered gifts of gold, frankincence and myrrh. This was commonly known as "Little Christmas." The festival will be observed at St. Michael's Church when Masses will be said at six, seven and nine o'clock. The last will be a High Mass sung by the children of St. Michael's Academy. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will take place at seven-thirty on Saturday evening.

TWO BICYCLES REPORTED STOLEN

Two bicycles were reported stolen from the premises of Christ Church Parish Hall last night. The bicycles were the property of Hugh Simpson, 211 Foster Ave., and Donald Freeman, 134 Charles St. Constables Arnott and Evans patrolled the city following the complaint, but could find no trace of the missing bikes. Chief Kidd revealed today this is not the first time bicycles have been stolen from that vicinity and added that persons apprehended and convicted of subsequent charges of this nature can expect no leniency in court. "Usually the bicycles are taken by joy riders and later abandoned, but the difficulty in recovering is finding where the thieves cache their loot," revealed Chief Kidd today as he added that all of the bicycles reported stolen in Belleville during 1939 had later been recovered, although some had been dismantled.

ANNUAL JOB OF STOCK-TAKING NOT SO BAD AFTER A GOOD SEASON

Despite the fact that merchants, and business men of the city are in the midst of that annual job of stocktaking, there is a certain cheerfulness about the way they are going about it that has been absent for some years.

"Not a bit of trouble this year at all," smiled one Front Street merchant, "for the simple reason that the job is not nearly as heavy as in previous years. The pre-holiday and holiday business swept most of the stock from the shelves and in some cases we were forced to order more. All of which makes this dread of all store staffs, a much better job."

MAN ON RELIEF HOPES FOR HEAVY SNOWFALL

Light snow falling over the city and district today brought a glimmer of hope to unemployed of the city. "I hope it snows four feet so that we can get an odd job or so," one member of the city unemployed said today.

Scarcity of these small jobs, that mean so much to these men, has been marked so far this winter, Employment Office officials said. "We have never experienced such a lax season as this one, insofar as casual employment is concerned."

Trained domestics however, are at a premium, although there are plenty of unexperienced girls anxious to secure employment. Applications for farm help are practically nil.

Three New Members In Hastings Council

Three new faces will greet the Hastings County Council when that body meets on January 16th., for its inaugural 1940 session. Elections of the warden for 1940, appointment of various committees and chairmen and general "first-of-the-year" business will ocupy the council at this session.

Township councils will meet on January 8th., to formulate plans for the coming year. This is a statutory date and is observed by local municipal bodies throughout the province.

POLICE COURT

John Woods, transient, nodded his head indicating he was guilty when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's local police court on a charge of intoxication. Unable to meet the fine assessed, Woods was sentenced to serve fourteen days in default.

A local youth appeared charged with the theft of a mantel radio, stolen from the premises of William Worrell, 121 Station Street, last November. The lad admitted breaking a window in the premises and reaching inside and stealing the radio, which he later repainted.

Detective Fred Isard later found the radio in a local repair shop and traced it to the accused lad's possession. His Worship reprimanded the lad severely, but Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., and Chief Kidd interceded for the lad, informing the Bench the crime was the first to have been committed by him. A full year's suspended sentence was imposed by the court, upon the payment of the costs, which were borne by the boy's father. The radio was today returned to Mrs. Worrell.

James Tong, local Chinese restaurant employee, appeared charged with unlawfully giving away two bottles of beer. The minimum fine of $100.00 and costs was imposed. The accused revealed he had unknowingly given the beer to a friend and did not realize he was infringing upon the regulations of the Liquor Control Act.

Two other inebriates were assessed the conventional ten and costs after pleading guilty to charges of intoxication.

Funeral of Rev. S. E. Morton Takes Place at Brockville

Impressive Service in Church of the Holy Trinity Attended by Number of Clergy of Diocese of Ontario

ADDRESS BY BISHOP

Within the sacred precincts of the Church of the Holy Trinity in Brockville, and in the presence of sorrowing parishioners, and a large representation of the clergy of the Diocese of Ontario including the Lord Bishop, the Burial Office of the Church of England, was conducted for the Rev. Stanley E. Morton, M.A., the late rector of the parish and Rural Dean of the County of Leeds, on Thursday afternoon, January fourth.

Prior to the time for the opening of the service and while the congregation in which every walk of life in Brockville was represented, was assembling and which filled the large church, the beautifully toned chimes in the tower played by Mr. Clutterbuck, rang forth in the following hymns which were favorites of the late rector: "Rock of Ages", "Forever With the Lord", "Safe in the Arms of Jesus", "On the Resurrection Morning", and "Now the Laborer's Task is O'er". The music of these beautiful hymns wafted over the town, while within the church the organ played softly, creating to a marked degree a feeling of reverence.

Service Opens

As the vested choir, the robed clergy and the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, the Rt. Rev. John Lyons, with his chaplain, the Rev. Canon A. E. U. Smart, entered the church in procession, the opening sentence, "I Am the Resurrection and the Life, said the Lord: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die". and the other sentences in the service were read by the Rev. T. H. H. Hall, the rector of the parish of Maitland.

The service was in charge of the Rev. Canon L. E. Davis, rector of St. Paul's Church, Brockville. The Venerable Archdeacon J. H. H. Coleman, secretary of Synod, Kingston, led in the recitation of the proper Psalm, and the Lesson was read by the Very Rev. W. W. Craig, rector and dean of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston.

During the service the following hymns were sung, "Jerusalem, the Golden", "For all the Saints", and "Abide With Me".

Bishop's Address

In addressing the congregation the Lord Bishop said,

"We are all called, my brethren, to be Saints and Priests in the Church of God. Not all, however, are called to the special priesthood of the Church. Our brother was.

"Stanley Edgar Morton was the product of a genuinely Christian home. I recall with thankfulness the devotion and loyalty of the members of the family to the Church, and to me at one time privileged to serve as their rector; their kindly consideration for all members of the Church and of the community in which they lived and served so well. This was reflected in the life of the son whom we mourn, as a man, as a husband and father, and as a minister of the Church, the pastor of his flock.

"After graduation from the same university, we were ordained on the same day, Sunday, May 3rd., 1908, in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, he to the Diaconate and I to the Priesthood. He was placed temporarily in charge of the Mission of Wolfe Island. On December sixth, of the same year, he was raised to the Priesthood and licensed to the Mission of Maynooth in North Hastings. Here his name still lives, his memory perpetuated by two fine churches, erected during his tenure, at Maynooth and Monteagle Valley. His second appointment was the parish of Ameliasburg in Prince Edward County. While here, under his guidance, the beautiful little Church of St. Alban the Martyr was built at Roblin's Mills. In 1916, he was appointed to the parish of Rawdon. These were the days of the Great War. He resigned the parish to accept an appointment as Chaplain in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. He was sent to Western Canada and was not privileged to see overseas service. Shortly following the close of the war, he was re-appointed rector of Rawdon.

"On January 1st., 1921, he became rector of the parish of Leeds Rear. On September 1st., 1927, he was appointed rector of St. Luke's Church, Kingston, which he resigned on May 1st., 1930, to become rector of this parish, Trinity Church, Brockville.

"On October 19th., 1933, he was appointed Rural Dean of Leeds, which position he filled with dignity and efficiency until called to higher service. For years he has been a member of the Executive Committee of the Diocese, of a number of sub-Committees and Chairman of the Audit and Accounts Committee of the Synod. The high esteem in which he was held, the confidence reposed in him by his brethren of the clergy and laity in the Synod was evidenced in the fact that in recent years he invariably headed the polls.

"He possessed the chief characteristics of a true Shepherd. His attitude towards God was one of humble and loving trust. God never manifests himself, someone has said, to cowards or self-seekers. He shared with saintly leaders the capacity to lose himself in the Service of God and his people in Christ's Body, the Church. His life was free from egoism. With this were blended other necessary qualities—simplicity, transparent sincerity, conviction, courage, untiring energy, reliability and force of moral worth. This large concourse of friends and sympathisers, gathered from all parts of the Diocese, from the various Christian communions represented in this community, and from all walks of life, is a silent and impressive tribute to his worth, and far greater than mere word can express.

"Our hearts go out in sympathy and prayer to the sorrowing family and friends. The Church in the Diocese shares with them in their loss. May God comfort them and give them strength, who alone can. This last service provided by the Church for her Children here upon earth is one of hope and comfort. Its message more satisfying than any I can voice. Here we commend our dear ones, when life's task is o'er, to a loving Father's care.

"No word is more vaguely used than the word Church. In the broadest and truest of all meanings it includes the whole family of the Living God, as well in Heaven as on earth".

" 'One Company we dwell in Him,
One Church above, beneath,
Though now divided by the stream,
The narrow stream of death'."

"He belongs to the great Company of which it has been said,

"They died in the faith: they rest from their labours: and their works do follow them".

"May light eternal shine upon him".

Served the Church Well

The late Rev. Rural Dean Stanley E. Morton, M.A., served well the Church of England in the Diocese of Ontario; he built several new churches in the northern part of Hastings County and during his rectorship of the Church of the Holy Trinity for the past nine years in Brockville, he did excellent work and as a result of his efforts a new rectory was built.

BOX OF MATCHES BOUGHT IN 1917

Fred Harper, local dairyman, is the proud possessor of a small pocket box of matches, which he purchased in 1917. The match box is much larger than the present-day type and contains somewhat smaller matches of a much different manufacture. The stem of the pocket macthes of 23 years ago was made of wax-covered strands of cotton, while two distinct substances of sulphur were used on the head of the match. On the bottom of the box, in which the matches were carried, was a war tax stamp of one-half cent value. Mr. Harper found this unique antique in his home recently. The matches are still inflammable.

BIG ISLAND HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

Fire, of an unknown origin, completely destroyed the fine residence of Wilfred Williams, Big Island farmer early this week. Neighbors attracted by the blazing structure fought vainly to save it, but were forced back by the intense heat, and flames which swept rapidly through the house.

Part of the contents of the lower part of the house was retrieved but the greater majority of furniture was lost.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, January 6

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A LIVELY and joyous day in which the social, romantic and affectional interests seem to obliterate all other engagements, is forecast. Courtship, marriage or other forms of pleasurable pastimes are on the tapis. But there is danger of over-doing, through impetuosity, extravagance and excessive indulgence in many forms. It might be well to take heed of warnings from elders.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much personal happiness and joy, with romance, adventure, much festivity and celebration associated with engagements or marriage. There are signs of excessive indulgence and extravagance, in which the funds as well as personal energies may be subjected to regrettable outlay. Elders stand by with wise advice.

A child born on this day may be extremely lively, active, ardent and enthusiastic, especially in its personal life, in which extravagance and indulgence abound. It may be romantic, gracious and socially inclined, and should find much happiness and domestic contentment.

CANADA'S FIRST WARTIME REVUE COMING HERE

Direct from its's hold-over engagement at the Royal Alexandra, Toronto and a triumphant run in Montreal, "Chin Up," first of the big wartime revues, comes to the Capitol Theatre next Thursday, Jan. 11th for one show only.

Hailed by the critics as the most elaborate and sparkling of this season's song and dance show, this tuneful and hilarious travesty on the lighter side of war stars such footlight favourites as Ross Hamilton, creator of the famed "Marjorie" impersonations; "Red" Newman, lusty singer of rollicking soldier songs and Pat Rafferty, show stopping knockabout comedian.

Also high up in a lengthy cast of 45 are Marquette and Lynda, suave dance team; La'Nor Triller, French Chanteuse of soul-searching ballads, Alex Morgan, handsome young juvenile; the Three Cheers, madcap singing trio; the Lowells, outstanding equilibrists and the gorgeous chorus of sixteen glamour-girls and six boy dancers.

"Chin Up" in two acts and twenty-five gorgeous scenes is the last word in pretentiousness, clever staging and colorful costuming. Among the full stage sets are the West Coast Indian Village, the gun-turreted deck of a battleship cleared for action, the silver birch forest and a sub-Arctic Eskimo village. The aeroplane finals in which the chorus in flying costume swing out on a giant bombing plane is only one of the big-punch items in this elaborate and sparkling revue.

U. S. DEFICIT ONE OF SMALLEST IN TEN YEARS

President Roosevelt Urges Congress to Slash Farm Relief and Public Works Spending

HEAVY REDUCTIONS

Total Expenditures Next Year to be $8,424,000,000 Which Will be $675,000,000 Lower Than This Year

Washington, Jan. 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt urged the United States Congress today to slash farm, relief and public works spending in a budget message asking $460,000,000 of special defence taxes and proposing one of the smallest deficits in a decade.

If all recommendations are followed, the President forecast a net deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1 of $1,716,000,000, compared with an estimated $3,933,000,000 for the current year.

Cutting nearly everything in the budget except defence funds, Mr. Roosevelt estimated expenditures for the next fiscal year at $8,424,000,000, which he said would be $675,000,000 less than this year. Net receipts from existing taxes, not counting Social Security levies, would increase $382,000,000 to $5,548,000,000 because of better business.

Mr. Roosevelt bluntly told members intent on making election-year records that "those who call for further cuts should have the courage and honesty to specify where they should be made."

For himself, he said, he was satisfied no lower figures could be attained without impairing the administration of laws or working "undue hardships on individuals and economic groups."

MYSTERY GROWS IN MAN'S DEATH

Skipper of Tanker Reports He Saw Man Go Overboard From Liner

New York, Jan. 5—(AP) — A mystery developed over the death of a middle-aged man whose body, with a forehead bruise, was taken from Ambrose Channel by the coast guard after the skipper of a tanker reported yesterday he saw a man go overboard from the outbound Norwegian liner Bergensfjord.

Coast guard officials identified the dead man from his seaman's discharge book and other papers as Matt H. Niinimaa but found no address. They at first stated the head bruise might have been from a blow sufficient to cause death but Dr. William Rappaport of the United States Marine Hospital on Staten Island said the blow had not been fatal and that a preliminary examination indicated death was due to drowning.

None of Personnel Missing

The Master of the Bergensfjord, carrying some ninety Finns back home, by way of Norway, to fight against Russia, said none of his personnel was missing.

In the group were fur-capped Canadian miners, laborers, carpenters, watchmakers, chauffeurs, a former butler and an Olympic wrestling champion. In charge of the group was the ex-butler, Martin Heino, past president of the Finnish war veterans.

Eina Kotonen, another Canadian miner, got a parting kiss from a feminine Brooklyn admirer while Esro Holobainen of Timmins, Ont., looked on enviously. Others who sailed included Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Gaster of Toronto. Gaster, a British citizen, said he was going over to fight because his wife is Finnish.

TRAFFIC PATROL AND O.P.P. MERGED

No Distinction to be Drawn Between Officers in the Future

Toronto, Jan. 5—(CP)—Following a conference of district inspectors of the Ontario Provincial Police yesterday Attorney-General Gordon A. Conant warned that under the amalgamation of the general force and the motorcycle patrol, now effective, no distinction or difference is to be drawn between officers in future. The amalgamation was announced several days ago.

"A member of the regular force has the same standing as, but no higher standing than a member of the motorcycle patrol," Mr. Conant said. "It is essential if the best results are to be obtained and the efficiency of the force is to reach its highest point that the most cordial co-operation between all branches of the force should prevail."

Under the amalgamated force all motorcycle patrol constables will be under the jurisdiction of and will report to their respective district inspectors.

"Every man of the entire force must first be qualified as and perform the functions of a constable for law enforcement and the suppression of crime," the Attorney-General said. "Motorcycle patrol officers will attend principally to the control of traffic and the enforcement of traffic laws but must be available and co-operate with the regular force in all law enforcement undertakings."

185,365 VOTE TO GO TO GERMANY

Rome, Jan. 5—(AP) — In line with Italy's desire to repatriate Germanic residents of former Austrian territory, 185,365 persons have voted to go to Germany, it was announced today. The vote was taken to end a minority problem between Italy and Germany.

A government communique did not make clear how many persons of Germanic origin would remain as Italian citizens but said 166,488 inhabitants of Bolzano province, 16,572 from the "mixed language" provinces of Trento, Udine and Belluno, and 2,305 living elsewhere in Italy had voted for repatriation.

Unofficial estimates had put the number of possible repatriates in Bolzano province alone at 250,000.

CHINESE STOP ADVANCE OF JAPS

Inflict 10,000 Casualties in Northern Kwangtung Province

Hong Kong, Jan. 5—(AP)—Assertion that Chinese forces had stopped a Japanese advance in Northern Kwangtung Province after inflicting 10,000 casualties was made today by spokesmen in China's provisional capital of Chungking.

The Chinese said an entire regiment of Japanese Imperial guardsmen was "annihilated" and a Japanese force of 100,000 routed 100 miles northeast of Canton (South China) when Chinese forces attacked in a mountain area.

(Japanese army spokesmen declared Jan. 2 their Kwangtung campaign had been halted after successfully attaining all objectives and killing 15,000 Chinese. They said Japanese troops now were engaged in mopping up the area).

Lloyd Nolan Committed for Trial on Charge of Armed Robbery

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 5 — (CP)—Pale and still showing the effects of a bullet wound received on Dec. 12 when he was shot down by an alert clerk as he made an alleged attempt to rob the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Herkimer and Locke streets, Lloyd Nolan, 23, limped into court before Magistrate James McKay today. "I saw the accused after he had been removed to the General Hospital," said Detective Stanley Gaylard. "He told me that he had been in the bank and had been shot in the groin. He also said that he had no intention of shooting anyone, and added that he could have done so if he wished for he had a gun. In his trouser pocket, we found some bank money—a quantity of 50-cent and 25-cent pieces, done up in parcels in bank fashion."

The child admitted to police she had sat through repeated performances at a Kitchener theatre and hearing her parents' reaction had fabricated the story of her kidnapping.

Rout of Red Army's Division Crushes for Winter Russia's Hope for Decisive Blow

(By Thomas P. Hawkins)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

With Finnish Forces on the Lake Kionta Front, Jan. 5 — (AP) — A Finnish division on this northern front has established positions within five miles of the Russian border, while before and behind ski patrols glide along wide semi-circles to close in on the fleeing enemy.

The ski troops, which played a major role in dispersing the Russian 163rd division at Lake Kianta, killing thousands and capturing hundreds, penetrated Soviet territory at a number of points.

The Finnish patrols were said in a highly reliable quarter to have cut the Murmansk railway not once but several times.

These patrols co-ordinated their attacks with Finnish aerial operations further south.

Established Near Lake Kokki

Finns established positions yesterday in the Lake Kokki sector, which meant they had advanced against no effective resistance for about 12 miles. The Russians in this area were presumed to be a handful of men who escaped the battle of Lake Kianta.

This seemed to be borne out by telephoned reports from patrols to field headquarters here saying that a lone tank was destroyed and several men with it. The tank was a number of miles to the north, apparently headed for Russia along the Kokki road.

Hand-to-Hand Fighting

The Russians also are using ski patrols, but in small numbers. Mostly they are kept to the Soviet side and try to catch the elusive white-garbed Finnish detachments.

Almost every night there is hand-to-hand guerrilla fighting between men on skis, fighting a war without a real front in snow in the forests and on frozen lakes.

DRIVE SAFELY ALWAYS

One of the happiest signs of the past season is the reduction generally in the number of deaths and injuries on highways during the holiday season.

Motorists surely realize the danger of travel at all times, and particularly in weather which makes the roads slippery and at times when there is great congestion of traffic.

A traffic accident is one which has stood out and stands out so prominently in this age that any improvement is rightly hailed. Such a sign was shown in the past two weeks.

The fact that the holiday season is one of great cheer and happiness has no doubt impressed itself on the minds of drivers and they naturally are anxious not to mar in any way the pleasures of the season.

The improvement which has been seen is an indication of what greater improvements can be made. Travel can be made very much safer and the highways avenues of greater pleasure if improvement continues with every driver having one thought paramount that he will drive safely at all times.

Motorists complain that pedestrians have a great deal to learn in crossing the streets, some cross at any place on the street, others dart out from behind cars or in front of cars near corners. The walker has a duty to perform—that is—not to do anything which may cause a motorist to cause an accident.

With motorists and pedestrians both considerate and courteous and sincerely endeavoring to follow the regulations there should be a cut in the number of accidents.

SAW GREAT NEW ART SWEEP THE WORLD

It is not so many years ago that the motion picture industry was in its infancy. It was not certain that anyone had the faintest idea whether it would live or pass out in its infancy. Today it stands one of the giant industries of the world.

A man is not necessarily old because he took part in the foundations of the new art. Harry Davis, who started the nickelodeon or the world's first motion picture house, died the other day at 71 years of age. He was not old as years go according to the present view with the average length of life increasing. But his past thirty some years compassed the whole range of the picture industry.

Today we can hardly conceive of an age that was almost pictureless. The turn of the century did not know the movies.

Davis was born in London, England, and came out with his parents to the United States, his father a millwright who built the first tin mill in the United States. Harry Davis started at the low wage of one dollar and a half a week as an errand boy in a florist shop and backed his $60 savings on one occasion on a road show which went down. He promoted walking races, children's shows, grand opera and stock companies. In 1905 he conceived the idea of turning one of his theatres over to the movies and set up a nickeleoden theatre in Pittsburgh.

That first theatre held 96 persons. The admission was five cents because that theatre was no palace as modern theatres are and because municipal authorities had not yet learned how to extract revenue from pictures. The revenue the first day was $22.50 and the second $76. The show was soon running continuously from eight in the morning until midnight and profits approached $1,000 a week.

Every town and city has recollections of the first movies. Belleville had its first movie house in the first decade of this century and in a few years there were a flock of them. The middle-aged have recollections of crowds attending the "flickers" in those days, of hearing piano accompaniment to the films and then a song.

Like the growth in the metropolitan cities where the influence of Davis spread until he became one of the first organizers of the Metro Pictures Corp., there was the steady growth of the picture houses all over this continent. The motion picture, then silent, had started on its course which was to create a new art of the screen. Today it is one of the great democratic institutions, the "theatre," where every man, woman and child sees life. Its developments have come quickly, now the screen has specially designed houses of entertainment, has its own actors, it has been given voice and sound. And its development is not ended. No one can tell how far it will go. So great an art has a future.

The picture idea has swept the world. Today people think in great measure in pictures. The world of nature, industry, and every phase of social life, whether in the dark continent or the hidden caves of savage races or the life of the ancients or the life of the present is picturized; it has affected modern dress, for it has taught people what to wear and how to wear clothes well. It has helped to improve homes because it has brought knowledge of architecture and decoration.

No doubt the motion picture would have developed even if Davis had not had the foresight he possessed. But he was able to give it a great impetus because he found what the people wanted—a democratic art. Here is a lesson for the boy who has visions of future greatness. Davis was prepared by his training and experience to seize one of the greatest opportunities offered to any man.

SEES ROOSEVELT 'LINCOLNIAN' IN ATTITUDE

What many men will consider the highest praise possible to be given an American is the praise of a British newspaper that the content of President Roosevelt's speech to the United States Congress was "Lincolnian."

Lincoln appeared a great man on the world stage in a momentous time. President Roosevelt has given many proofs of his sane outlook on national and world affairs and he, too, appears on the world scene in one of the greatest crises in history. Today is a crisis for combattant and for neutral alike, for the fate of humanity rests upon the arbitrament of arms now taking place in Europe. Mr. Roosevelt has spoken fearlessly on the question of the adequate armament of defence and of peace. He sees the months and years ahead freighted with great importance to the world.

This age has thrown the great men of all the nations on the world scene, for it is a fact that today with the intercommunication and the relations of nations, what is national is international.

The United States has developed and is developing great men as a free people naturally should develop them. Mr. Roosevelt happens to be the guiding figure at this time in his country. His words on Wednesday are spoken of in the British press as the breath of sanity, of sense, and of hope.

The United States is the leader of the neutral democracies at this time, she is a giant figure with the fine spirit of freedom and will continue to exert a potent influence upon world affairs.

CLEARANCE OF RADIO CHANNELS

Clearance of the radio channels for Canadian stations cannot come too soon. Though the time for making effective the North American regional agreement may be six months hence, it will be well worth waiting for if it is much of an improvement on the present situation.

In this district many Canadian stations at certain times of the day and night might as well not be broadcasting for all the reception there is to be had here.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Heat Relieves Pain

When you are suffering severe pain from rheumatism, arthritis, or neuralgia, you are likely to reach for the strongest pain killing drug, except morphine which you wisely refuse to use. Most physicians believe that while searching for the cause of your pain, there is less harm to the body by using a pain killing drug than trying to withstand a pain that wracks your mind and body.

Unfortunately, most of us forget that there are other methods of relieving pain and stiffness besides drugs. Among these other methods are what are called "physical" measures, that is, heat, massage, and electricity.

In speaking of neuritis—the severe rheumatic pain due to organisms or products manufactured by organisms, Dr. Richard Kovacs, New York, in New York State Journal of Medicine states that general heat measures—electric cabinet baths, hot baths—should be used because they speed up the body processes and increase the rate at which the poisons are removed from the blood and tissues.

"Mild local heating is the main standby to give relief from pain. Its action is two-fold because it not only brings about direct quieting of the nerve endings but also relieves or relaxes the adjoining muscles which are in a state of spasm as they try to protect the damaged part (joints, tendons)". It is this continuous spasm or tenseness that helps to cause so much pain.

"This explains why more penetrating forms of heating—diathermy and short wave diathermy — are more effective than hot compresses and baking cabinets. In mild cases counterirritation of the skin is helpful by several types of current—high frequency, galvanic, and ultra-violet light treatment".

In addition to heat other "physical" measures used are massage to improve the nutrition of the part (brings blood to part faster and removes wastes), to prevent thickening of the tissues affected, and to prevent wasting of the muscles. Passive exercises (part is moved by the attendant, not by the patient) to prevent deformity and shortening and growing together of the ends of the joints; active exercise and hot applications to keep the unparalyzed muscles in good condition.

Believes Germany Will Try Assault On Western Front

Written for the Canadian Press by

GENERAL SIR CHARLES GWYNN

London (CP)—Winter has closed down upon the great armies assembled on the Franco-German frontier and the possibility of an immediate German offensive in the West has gone.

The question arises whether the immobility imposed on the German forces by Winter conditions will merge into chronic inaction, or whether the German High Command will make a determined effort in the Spring of this year to break through the Allied defences.

The probabilities can only be estimated as the result of a technical consideration of the present relative strength of offensive and defensive works and weapons.

The general impression of the informed layman today is that defensive tactics and equipment have mastered offensive operations on land. My own view is that the German High Command will not be deterred by this apparent superiority of defence over attack.

German military leaders are unlikely to acquiesce in a stalemate which can only result in a progressive weakening of Germany's position on the home front and immobilize indefinitely the powerful war machine which has been created at such infinite cost.

Important Factors

I am concerned here with military factors. All turns upon the question whether the new weapons which have assumed increasing importance since the last war will dominate the struggle or whether the older weapons in their modern form still retain their importance.

Have tanks and aircraft superseded infantry and artillery as the decisive factors in warfare? In the last war the power of infantry weapons was immensely increased, but they were far from having reached the limit of their potentialities. Nor were they used as effectively as they might have been. Troops were hurried into the struggle inadequately trained and their leaders, pressed and hampered by day-to-day necessities, were unable to make an exhaustive study of technique. Nevertheless, towards the end of the war revolutionary advances in technique were made, particularly in the employment of artillery, which went far to producing decisive results.

The sensational advent of the tanks tended to obscure the part played by the older weapons and there was a tendency to attribute to them that revival of offensive as opposed to defensive power which contributed so much to ending the war a year sooner than was expected.

Tanks are admittedly of great importance; they are of course, accepted as an indispensable weapon in modern war and they have been developed out of all comparison with their prototypes. In certain conditions they may play a dominating role, but under other circumstances their potentialities are limited either by the nature of the ground or by the developments that have taken place in anti-tank defences of variolus natures.

No one denies that modern weapons have tended to increase the power of defence but for military experts the decisive problem is not how to make a defence completely invulnerable, but to devise means of restoring offensive power.

Offensive Action

Military victory can in the long run be won only by offensive action and the power of defence must still be regarded as a pivot for offensive action. Defensive action alone can result only in stalemate and if stalemate is to bring victory it will be due to economic or political factors.

The main conclusion to be drawn from these considerations is that victory in the long run must be won by infantry, which still remains queen of the battle field. Infantry cannot achieve victory entirely by its own exertions, but it can still determine the issue thru' the co-operative and co-ordinated action of all weapons to bring it to bear upon the objective. The infantry, however, must be highly trained to take full advantage of the co-operative action of other arms and for that the initiative and skill of subordinate officers must bedeveloped to the utmost.

Artillery in its modern developments remains the principal supporting arm for both infantry and tank attacks. It is especially fitted for co-operative action by reason of the range, accuracy and continuity of its fire. When aircraft are used, as they were in Spain, as a substitute for artillery support, they are inferior in all these respects except that of range.

Artillery fire can be used for the destruction of life or material, a function which reached its highest development in the prolonged bombardment of 1916-17. Its other function is to "neutralize" the enemy's weapons, that is, to prevent them being brought into effective action. The term is generally applied to neutralizing counter battery action, but it applies equally to the creeping barrage and to the stunning effect of a short hurricane bombardment.

Aircraft action for purely military purposes depends for its effectiveness on close co-ordination with land action. Attacks on railway and other communication, on movement or assemblages of troops, etc., obviously depend for their effectiveness on being carried out at critical times.

Thus, the older weapons remain decisive, and successful offence remains the object of any army which seeks to secure a military result. For those reasons I believe that the German General Staff is likely to advocate offensive action, but to recommend its postponement till all arms can co-operate most effectively.

SEASONED EXPERT COMMENTS ON WAR.

London (CP) —Brilliant soldier and since his retirement an authoritative writer on military affairs, General Sir Charles Gwynn —who is writing war commentaries for The Canadian Press—wound up his military career as commandant of the Staff College at Camberley the "university" of the British army. He retired in 1931 after holding the position four years

At the staff college the army's future generals and field-marshals are trained. Many of Sir Charles' former pupils now hold commands and staff appointments with the B.E.F.

Sir Charles won his D.S.O. as captain of Royal Engineers in the Sofa campaign in Sierra Leone, 1893-94. He was wounded, mentioned in despatches and given the brevet rank of major. Then came a period of study at the staff college.

From 1911 to 1914 he was director of military studies at Duntroon, the Australian Commonwealth cadet college. There he achieved the feat, not always easy for a British officer, of becoming highly popular with the Australians. During the first Great War he held a number of staff appointments with the Australian troops in the field in Gallipoli and France. The C. B. was conferred upon him and he gained two foreign decorations—the Croix de Guerre and the Belgian Legion of Honor.

General Gwynn is the author of "Imperial Policing" in which he describes the work of the British army in assisting the civil power throughout the Empire in the troubled period after the First Great War. He is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

HIGH SEAS SHIPS REQUISITIONED

Shipping Minister Explains Action Effective Oct 1st Applies Only to Routes and Cargoes

London, Jan. 5 (CP)—H. M. Clemison, general manager of the United Kingdom Chamber of Shipping, declared today the nation would receive "with questioning if not even concern" the government requisitioning of all high seas ships of the kingdom and colonies.

Mr. Cleminson questioned whether the country could obtain as effective service from the merchant marine "in the strait-jacket of government control", and where the basis of requisitioning would "be such as to leave British shipping ill-equipped financially to face post-war competition, which is bound to be fierce."

Shipping usually is paid best when it is needed most, he said, "because then enterprise which has gone unrewarded receives its reward. If British shipping is to be able to face the future, these considerations must be faced by the minister of shipping".

Applies Only to Cargoes and Routes.

Sir John Gilmour, the Minister of Shipping, emphasized that the requisitioning, effective Feb. 1 for most ships, would apply only to instructions of cargoes and routes, leaving management to the owners.

One shipping executive said the order would "cause enormous dissatisfaction" among ship owners. "I cannot see that more red tape is going to help," he said. "The whole thing is a scandal."

Another ship owner, however, said most of the big companies favored requisitioning and that it would help keep living costs down.

Mr. Cleminson said shippers were anxious to serve the nation and "avoid any suspicion of profiteering".

Ships of Canada and other dominions are not affected by the new requisitioning.

Russia Concludes Trade Agreement With Bulgaria

Moscow, Jan. 5—(AP) — Soviet Russia was reported today to have concluded a commercial treaty with Bulgaria, opening a largely undeveloped trade field, while similar negotiations were begun with Japan and continued with Germany.

Bulgarian sources said the pact, which might be signed today, dealt principally with a Black Sea shipping accord, political questions were not involved.

(There had been rumors in Sofia that Russia might make military demands in connection with the treaty. Commercial relations between the two countries have been almost non-existent. Figures for 1938 show that Russia bought less than $200 worth of Bulgarian merchandise.)

VICTIM OF MINNEAPOLIS HOLOCAUST

The body of one of the 18 persons who perished in the Marlborough apartment hotel holocaust in Minneapolis is shown being carried from the smoking ruins by fire department searchers after the building had been razed by flames. A cigarette, tossed down a garbage chute, is blamed for the disastrous fire.

President Kyosti Kallio, of Finland, cocks an investigating eye at a range-finder during his visit to the Karelian front, where the Red army invaders of Soviet Russia have been attempting to break through the Mannerheim line for nearly a month. President Kallio keeps in constant touch with the men who are fighting for Finnish independence.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Both the British and the Italian ambassadors have left Moscow. Although official circles in London and Rome let it be known that no significance should be attached to this, it coincides with intensified speculation about the role of Russia in the Second Great War.

With her armies stopped in their tracks by a combination of Finnish resistance, poor leadership and bad weather the Soviets are showing signs of resorting to a greater use of air bombing in their effort to destroy Finland. That can only mean slaughter of civilians. Too, it will add to the bad odor already surrounding Russia's attack on Finland.

While Great Britain and France may have no immediate desire to add to the number of their declared enemies, Russia's recent actions leaves them little choice but to regard the Soviet regime as on a par with the Nazi regime and as increasingly likely to become subject to the latter.

The Nazis hint that if the Allies send troops to aid the Finns, Germany may intervene to assist Russia. Should they do so, a new front for the war of the Allies against Germany would open up. The war along the French border where both sides maintain their powerful fortifications might continue its present cautious, defensive course while a war of movement was being waged in the far north.

Nazi help to Russia would also probably mean a measure of Nazi domination of Russia. In the First Great War it will be recalled that when Austria-Hungary suffered defeat at the hands of the Russians and sought German help the Germans insisted on placing their own generals in command.

German officers and civilian technicians, proud of their own efficiency and competence, are not likely to serve as junior the Communists who already have bungled the attack on Finland.

IF IT'S ABOUT YOUR EYES . . . SEE McFEE

ALL IS BRIGHT

By Eleanor Browne

Then you went home still not believing, but remembering the way he smiled; how big and strong he had always been. Afterward, days or months—it didn't matter which—friends asked you to forget.

"Go on a cruise," they said. "Meet new people."

They meant to be kind, but it was no use. You couldn't forget. You kept hearing Jim's voice: "I wish I could see you once more."

You're going to have your wish, Jim. You're going to see me once more. In this old white evening dress that's wilted now, but still beautiful because you thought it was. I've been happy tonight, Jim. Dressing for you.

Her hands trembling with nervous haste, she filled the water glass and opened the bottle. Three of the little pills spilled on the floor, but she let them go. There were enough. They looked so tiny, so inadequate. Perhaps another, just to be sure. She swallowed them quickly, drank the water. Strange—she had no sensation at all. It was just as well, perhaps. There was time to lie down; to drift off into sleep.

The glass missed its holder and crashed to the floor. Guiltily she looked around. If anyone came—but it was such a small sound. There was a knock on the door.

"Miss Cattrell! Miss Cattrell! Are you hurt?"

It sounded like that pretty girl, Star, the one who looked so alive and so happy to be alive. Strange that she should be the last one....

"Miss Cattrell!" A man's voice—that slim dark man. "Do you think I'd better get the Captain, Star?"

She forced a laugh and holding onto the bunk managed to reach the door and unbolt it. Their figures were blurred, indistinct. They looked relieved to see her.

"Just a glass—dropped it," she explained. "So sorry you were disturbed." If they'd only go away quickly.

They were getting fainter and fainter. If she could only smile, shake her head. She must have succeeded. They were turning away. Shut the door carefully. The bunk was there—right there—hang onto it......

Oh Jim! Jim!

Star stood in the narrow corridor and wondered if her heart would ever stop its mad racing. It was so horrible to think of anyone being anxious to die—eager to leave all the fun and happiness of life. But Kent Barrett wouldn't let anyone die like that.

How blind she had been! Only this morning she had been feeling sorry for herself, worrying because of her own petty troubles. And within reach of her hand there was a woman needing help and understanding. If only she had gone to her. There wouldn't be this need of waiting—waiting.

"Star?" She looked up to see Kent standing on the threshold.

"Yes, Kent."

"She'll be all right." He closed the cabin door and came forward. "She must have just swallowed the stuff when you knocked at the door. Lucky you were near enough to hear the crash."

"Can I do anything —anything? Oh, Kent, perhaps I could have stopped her, spoken to her......"

His hand pressed lightly on her shoulder. "Don't worry about it. She'll be all right. I'll stay for a while. She'll sleep, I think, until morning. If her pulse is better after a few hours I'll call the stewardess. Now you run along. Good night!"

Elsie Cattrell would be all right. Impossible to doubt that, looking into Kent's eyes, hearing the quiet assurance of his voice. Star smiled at him in return. For a minute the corridor held them close in a comforting hush.

"Good night!" Star whispered.

CHAPTER XII

"Lordy, it's hot!"

Gloria flung her light blanket away and stretched until the crumpled silk night-gown was pulled tightly across her rounded body Then impatiently she turned over and burrowed into the pillow.

Star, struggling up from the depths of sleep, blinked against the glaring light that glanced through the shutters of their cabin and danced on the ceiling. For a minute it was hard to realize that this was not just another summer day. There was scarcely any movement at all. Perhaps the ship was already at the pier. Haiti!

The thought made Star jump up and dive for the windows— she got one down with a clatter that brought a groan of protest from Gloria. Then she raised it again hastily as Coates, approaching along the deck, quickened his pace.

"Sleepy heads," he called tauntingly through the slats.

"Go away," said Gloria peevishly. "Can't a girl get any sleep on this boat?"

"I was talking to Star," Coates said coolly.

"I—I'm dressing," Star faltered.

"May I help?"

"No, thank you."

Star was annoyed. Coates' insistence on this pseudo intimacy was becoming unpleasantly obvious to Gloria and to everyone else. Yet there was nothing definite. She could not openly object to anything.

Later, as Star appeared on deck, blinking, the water was covered with gold dots that glistened and flashed with unbelievable brilliance. So this was Haiti! On both sides the green mountains stretched up and away—flung like a protective arm around the tiny thatched cottages scattered on the shore. The air was clear—so clear the little clouds threw perfect shadows on the mountainsides as they sailed lazily over.

Star was smiling as Kent, resplendent in a white uniform, stopped beside her. Her breath caught in her throat as she watched him. He looked so—so right—standing against that background of sea and sky and savage hills. As if the brightness of the sky and sun was in his eyes; the adventure and mystery of the land in his heart. It was hard for Star to remember that the way he looked was really a credit to the father he had neglected; that the way he had managed Stuart and saved Miss Cattrell's life were only a part of his duty.

As if he knew what/ she was thinking, Kent's voice was coldly polite. "If you like, you may see Miss Cattrell for a few minutes. She was asking for you. But don't ask her why she tried to commit suicide."

Star's eyes flashed angrily. "Of course I won't."

"Don't even let her tell you about it," Kent went on evenly as if she had not interrupted. "And stay only a short time." He turned and walked away and Star found herself hoping fervently that he would trip over a seaman's swishing mop.

But her anger had vanished by the time she found Miss Cattrell's cabin. She tried to ask the white-faced woman on the bunk how she felt, to say something about getting well soon. Miss Cattrell's slender hand moved gently on the blanket. Star put her own warm fingers over it and found in the woman's expression a sudden keenness that forged an instant bond between them.

"You're unhappy too. Do you want to tell me about it?" The voice was only a whisper.

Star shook her head. "I—oh, Miss Cattrell, I don't know what's the matter! It's just—just that—"

There was a faint pressure on her hand. "Please call me Elsie. I want to call you Star. Such a pretty name. Perhaps later we can talk."

Only when she was out on deck, startled again at the strange brilliance of this tropic world, did Star realize that she had gone to comfort and instead had been comforted; that she had meant to sympathize, to pity — and had found a friend.

Gloria looked around impatiently for Kent. He was being unexpectedly difficult. Ever since that night on the boat deck when she had kept him from telling her it was all over, he had consistently avoided her.

How lucky it was both the Captain and Star had seen that one-way embrace. Evidently—in Star's eyes at least—it had looked as if Kent were doing the love-making.

Well, it was too late for him to back out now. Whether he liked it or not, Gloria thought grimly, she would maneuver enough situations to make it clear that she was engaged to the ship's attractive doctor. Let him try to wriggle out of it if he could!

She smiled wistfully as Barton Underwood drew near. She leaned gracefully against the rail, aware that her pink silk dress and wide-brimmed hat made her look particularly entrancing.

"Yes, it is beautiful," she breathed in response to his comment on the picturesque island before them.

"Funny to think that in the middle of the ocean, practically, those natives have to carry almost every bit of water they use in the hills. Must be a filthy lot," he commented.

"Yes", Gloria assented indifferently, really Underwood was impossible. Almost any other man in the world would have taken the opportunity she had offered, to assure her that she was beautiful too.

Then up near the prow she caught sight of Kent. Near Star, of course! Gloria had seen, at first unbelievingly, Kent's eagerness to be near her roommate; that tenderness in his every gesture toward Star—a tenderness he had never shown to her. But as she watched she was puzzled. Kent was standing near Star, but he did not look at her as she perched like an impatient bird near the descending ladder. He seemed as unaware of her as if he were a thousand miles away.

Star seemed equally unconscious of him. Perhaps Star did not know what was happening to Kent. Gloria's lip curled sneeringly. Perhaps he did not know himself! But she knew, and if she could prevent it those two would never make the discovery that there was an electric spark between them; a current of thought and feeling so strong that even she, reluctantly, had to admit it was there.

Barton excused himself, and Gloria sauntered toward Star. As she had expected, Kent tried to retreat, but Gloria was too quick for him. Her hand settled lightly on his coat, her fingers twined themselves firmly around a brass button.

"Kent, this is the most beautiful spot in the world! So utterly tranquil. Isn't it glorious, Star?"

Star turned and was apparently aware of Kent for the first time. Her face was alight with joy. She had what Kent called her "Christmas morning" look. He wanted to warn her that nothing could be so perfect as she expected.

"I have to go below," he said firmly.

Gloria pouted. "Mayn't I come too?"

"Sorry, this is routine." Kent could hardly conceal his pleasure as he walked swiftly away. Gloria, furious, joined Star at the rail, looking down at the chattering natives and the reed huts near the shore.

"Horrid little hole, isn't it?" she commented.

"I guess any place would be horrid," Star said gently, "if you're quarreling with the one you love."

x x x

The long dusty quai fairly flew under Star's feet. The ship's cars would take them up the purple mountain. It made her heart hammer just to think of ascending the peak that towered over the little hamlet of Port au Prince.

A huge Negro woman dressed in faded calico was walking on the opposite side. Her head was almost lost under a great basket, yet she did not even steady it with her hands. As casually as if she were bareheaded and walking on velvet her slippered feet stepped along until she turned the corner and was lost from sight.

The flash of Gloria's pink dress drew Star toward her. "Did you see that woman, Gloria? The one with the basket on her head?"

"What woman? No, I didn't," Gloria said. You'd better find another car. I'm saving this seat for Kent. He ought to be along any minute."

"Oh—sorry! Star backed away hastily. She finally reached the last car and found it already held the Livingstons. At Star's hesitant request Mrs. Livingston immediately moved over. The car next to them started and after an explosive report ran smoothly up the street and turned the corner.

"Driver, we're the last car. The others have already started." Star leaned forward anxiously. She turned in time to see Kent's hand on the door. The next minute his immaculate white uniform was crushed into the seat beside her. The driver started briskly after the procession of cars ahead.

Picton Council Holds Inaugural Meeting

Picton, Jan. 5—Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon extended a welcome to new members of the town council at their inaugural meeting. In his address he said that we must be prepared for great sacrifices both as to time and money and that taxpayers would be called upon to make these sacrifices either voluntarily or otherwise. He said "that essential services must be maintained and urged members to exercise the right of free expression of opinion and action which was their heritage."

The council took up the matter of a rest room in town and decided to take advantage of the county council's offer whereby they would assist in financing such a centre in the Maher block.

A by-law was considered under which it was proposed that closing hours of local stores would be regulated, but no action was taken. Members felt that merchants should make their opinions better known on the subject before such a by-law was passed.

Large Crowd at Dance

The entertainment committee of Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Depot battalion sponsored a dance in the Armouries here Thursday night. A large crowd turned out and enjoyed dancing to music by Jimmie Davies and his orchestra. Proceeds were for the improvement of the quarters in the Armouries.

Indian Mascot with Troops in England

Word has been received here that the Indian mascot of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has arrived safely in England with the troops. The Indian known as the Little Chief, is eight feet tall and of metal construction and has a tomahawk in one hand and a spear in the other. For over fifty years he stood on top of the local canning factory which was turned into a barracks for the regiment, and he was soon taken down and adopted as the regiment mascot. When the troops left Picton on December 17 the mascot was smuggled aboard the train and later got on board ship. In England, it is planned to have the mascot repainted and repaired and mounted on wheels so that it may be taken on parades.

Negro Killer-Suspect Hunted in Dense Forest

Meadville, Miss., Jan. 5.—(AP)—More than 100 Mississippi farmers and thirty-five National guardsmen today hunted a negro killer-suspect in the dense Homochitto National forest near here.

Adjutant-General John O'Keefe, directed the guardsmen (militiamen), ordered out by Governor Hugh White, after fear was expressed that a mob might lynch the negro known only as "Red", if he were captured.

Farmers from miles around joined in the hunt. They carried a variety of weapons, including shotguns, rifles and pistols.

"Red" and another negro named "Oklahoma" were sought for the killing last Monday night of Hillard Hall, 21, and the slight wounding of Constable Philip Shell and his brother, J. W. Shell.

They were fired upon when they sought to question the negroes, strangers in the neighborhood, in connection with numerous recent robberies in the vicinity of Knoxville, three miles from here.

A posse yesterday surprised "Red" in a cabin near Knoxville and fired at him as he fled to the woods. Some believed the negro was wounded.

Reports also came in yesterday of two unsuccessful attempts to seize a negro jailed at Columbia in connection with the slaying of J. C. Sanford at Prentiss on Monday.

Argyll Chapter, I. O. D. E. Holds First Meeting of 1940

On Thursday afternoon the Argyll Chapter Daughters of the Empire held the first meeting of the New Year.

The Regent, Mrs. Gribble, presided. A report on the Christmas baskets showed that seven families had received large boxes of food, which would greatly exceed the holiday demand. In addition the pickets at the Armouries were each presented with 2 pairs of socks and a sweater.

Previous to the departure of the Hastings-Prince Edward Regiment for England, the Argyll I.O.D.E. presented them with forty-nine pairs of socks and 38 packages of cigarettes. There were seventy-six Belleville men to receive gifts. The balance was made up by our sister chapter.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the members spent several hours sewing bandages and knitting.

Phobias of Beauty Bath

By HELEN FOLLETT

SOME MISGUIDED young ladies develop a soap phobia. They use it freely in the bath but have a notion that it should not be used freely on the face. Silly. Skin is the same one place as another; suds won't do a bit of harm. The soap-scared girls are likely to find that their complexions are unsightly with black points which, in due course of time, develop into pustules.

Choose soap wisely; if one brand makes the flesh feel drawn, experiment with another. There are ways of getting around this starched feeling. Use cold cream first as a cleansing agent. Let some of it remain on, dip a washcloth in soap suds, pass it lightly over the flesh.

If blackheads have formed, apply hot moist compresses after the sudsy washing. Moist heat softens the wax-like obstructions, heals eruptions. Soap is necessary in the treatment because it is drying. Too much friction with creamy cosmetics may spread an infection.

Cut down on fats and sweets which cause sebaceous glands to become over-active. Take orange juice once a day, eat lettuce, drink plenty of water. The blotched skin calls for normal activity of the eliminating organs—skin, kidneys, lungs and intestinal tract.

If you have protruding eyes, never use eye shadows that will make them look even more prominent. Apply mascara to the lashes on the upper lids.

JANICE LOGAN . . . uses soap freely in keeping complexion clear.

Keep the eyebrows low rather than high The higher they are arched, the more is accented an expression of surprise. Extend the eyebrows, adding a touch of crayon to the far corners, letting the line drop slightly.

Subdue lipstick coloring. Prominent eyes so dominate the facecape that make-up must be restrained.

GOOD MANNERS

Your Letter-Paper Represents You

The problem of what to do with used razor blades is as nothing compared to the problem of what to do with atrocious, bizarre letter-paper that is often given to us for Christmas!

My advice is to use one sheet to write your thank-you note to the friend who gave it to you, and then just forget about the rest of the box. Your letter-paper tells too definite a story of you and your taste to take any chance on having your taste misinterpreted.

Confused Waitress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Please let me know what I should have done in this case. Recently I entertained ten friends at a Hostess House. Just before the dessert was brought in, the waitress brought in a small glass bowl with two small flowers floating in the water and set it to my right. No one else was given one. What was it for?

Hostess

The small glass dish with the two flowers floating in the water was undoubtedly a finger bowl. But I can't imagine why you were the only one to be given a finger bowl. The only explanation I can think of is that the waitress wasn't familiar with the finger-bowl service and got confused.

Speaking of Father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Will you please tell me which is correct, when a mother speaks to her children of their father "I told Frank so and so", or "I told Father so and so"?

D.

It is completely out-of-order for a mother to use her husband's first name when she speaks of him to her children. Either "I told your father", or "I told Father" is the correct form to use.

Courtesy Tip

When you are making an introduction, it is extremely bad taste to use the phrase "my friend". Obviously if you are introducing one person to another person and you call one of them your friend, you imply that the other person is not your friend.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Better Come Clean

It seems queer in this age of porcelain tubs, unlimited water and inexpensive soap that anyone should be indifferent to these blessings, and attempt to be popular without taking advantage of them.

A young man, employed in a good but messy job, at the end of his working day dashed off to see his Heart's Desire without taking time to tub or change. When he arrived at the girls' house, her older sister was entertaining a very snooty young man actually wearing a dinner jacket. It seems they were going out to dance.

The young sister nearly passed away with mortification when her greasy and unkempt swain entered the living-room. As he writes me: "She tried to pretend I was not a friend at all, had just come there on business, and she kept raising her eyebrows shaking her head, and giving other signals for me to fall in with her little plan.

"It hurt me good and plenty, Miss Fairfax, and I'm writing to you because I read something in your column the other day telling a girl not to be foolish and turn down a fellow because he didn't hold a white-collar job. And I believe you w'l see my side of the case.

"She wrote me a blistering letter and told me not to call on her again if I didn't 'come clean'. The if sort of leaves the door open. She means me to understand not to see her anymore if I don't change my working clothes before I go to her house.

"Now, of course, I could write her a sassy letter and tell her that it is all the same to me whether I come or not. But Id be lying, because I love her lots and lots. What's your idea about this? Was it so shocking to go to call directly from my work?

Inquiring".

Doubtless if the snooty young man in the dinner jacket had not been present, your girl would not have made so much of your coming to see her as you did.

And it was silly of her to try and palm you off as someone who was not a friend. Making due allowance for a lover's impatience not to lose a moment in seeing his Beloved, it's never wise for him to present himself "as is", when his job is good but dirty.

If there is anything terribly important he has to communicate, it would be better to phone and say: "I'm coming directly from the garage, or the factory" (or where ever it is he's employed) "and I haven't got time to doll up". This would, of course, give the girl a chance to break the news to dinner-jacketed callers that her friend was coming directly from his work.

Personally, if I had been the young lady, I wouldn't have cared a cent about receiving a friend in his working clothes. But then, snobbishness to me seems silly. And if the girl does break with you on account of coming to her house in your working clothes, I really don't think you need break your heart over this loss.

Look Gay to Feel Gay

DO YOU suffer from color fear? If so, snap out of it. Dismal draperies bring dismal thoughts. Wear drab clothes and life is drab. A red hat will do more to boost a woman's morale than almost anything else in this crazy, delirious world.

Pastel blue and old rose are favorites for the evening robe. Madame Fashion says so and who dares to contradict her? Plaids are going strong; they're young and gay and lovely. Think twice and count ten when considering the purchase of a new frock. Is it going to make you a happier, gayer-looking girl? If not, let somebody else take it home. You don't want it.

What beautiful lines and draperies do for the figure, compelling colors do for the feminine countenance. Line and color! If they're flattering, dress is perfect; the fight for good appearance is won, no matter what one's age may be.

Changeable velvets are offered, and they're lovely—blue flecked with red, black shot with gold, white and periwinkle. Rustling taffetas come in changeable effects, green and yellow being particularly attractive. Of course, these new color combinations may call for a shake up in the make-up kit, but that's fun, too. Nobody wants to wear the same old face all the time. A new one stimulates the circulation.

While the high hairdress was not a howling success, it revolutionized the low one. What we have now is high and low.

Sweep your fore locks away from the forehead and, if you want something more modish that rolls, form a lifted pompadour —it should have two or three wave lines—and hold it in place with tuck combs.

At the back you can have a soft, free effect if the silky shafts aren't too long. Shoulder length has been done to death. Have the ends three inches lower than the nape line. Comb the ringlets out in a fluff. Quaint as a baby's bonnet.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Baby Teeth

The Dionne Quintuplets are fast loosing their baby teeth, and this is a good time to say a few words about the function of these very important organs.

The Quins were all very slow in getting their teeth because, as you know, they were premature children and very backward at first. But they are losing their first teeth right on schedule. Their age (5 1-2 years) is the time when any child should begin to lose its teeth.

There seems to be a lit of grave misconceptions as to the value and use of baby teeth. I have encountered mothers who thought that the natural way for the baby teeth to go was for them to decay. The last thing in the world they thought of doing was having their small children brush and take care of the first set of teeth.

"What's the use, they fall out anyway?" This is the attitude of far too many parents toward their baby's teeth.

The Quins, Marie, Emilie, Cecile, Yvonne and Annette, are losing some of the healthiest teeth you ever saw. Not a cavity in a single one of them. And the reason there are no cavities is no accident. Ever since those teeth popped through their gums they have been brushed daily. Their diets have been chosen with a view to making their teeth healthy.

The result is they are losing their teeth, not prematurely through decay, but on schedule, the healthy way. The roots are just absorbed, and the crown of the tooth is left sitting on the gum. So, they are removed with no trouble as soon as the child finds that they are loose.

Marie was the first to lose a tooth, a right central incisor. The day before she came to the nurse to show how she could "wiggle" it, and she was very proud of her feat. This caused Emilie and Annette to discover they could wiggle teeth with their tongues too. In each case it was lower front teeth that were loose.

Next day Marie lost her loose teeth and the day following Emilie's came out too. Annette still went about wiggling two loose teeth frantically to get them out and share in the attention her two sisters were getting. Poor Yvonne and Annette were terribly put out. Their teeth were still firm as anything.

Of course, we will watch this loss of teeth very closely. This should be done for every child, for suppose some of the baby teeth should be stubborn for some reason and refuse to come out on schedule. This would mean that the permanent teeth, coming through underneath would be interfered with; they would be pushed out of line and come in crooked and uneven. You have often seen children going about with metal braces on their teeth, well, in most cases this is the direct result of trouble with the baby teeth.

So, if some of the Quins' teeth seem stubborn and threaten to interfere with the oncoming permanent teeth, we will have the stubborn ones pulled. We will have a fully qualified dentist to do it too, for while I have pulled hundreds of teeth because I had to in cases when there was no dentist near.

Children should be brought up to look on the dentist as a friend who will help keep away toothaches and cavities.

Of course, I know some dentists have a manner which frightens children. But most of them have learned how to handle children and how to make them feel at home and friendly once they are in the chair.

Some parents make the mistake of bribing little Willie with the promise, "The dentist won't hurt you". When the dentist begins to work on a bad cavity and the parents prophecy turns out to be painfully wrong, then your child loses confidence in you and develops a fear of the dentist. It can be prepared for this pain and made to feel heroic about withstanding it without tears or fear.

'Juliet' Herrick and 'Romeo' Lowther United After Smart Ruse by Girl

New York, Jan. 5—(AP) — The front page romance of George (Romeo- Lowther and Eileen (Juliet) Herrick went to the want ad "lost" columns today — their announced marriage admitted but all else shrouded in mystery.

The time, the place, the circumstances of the love affair that survived two habeas corpus battles, several disappearances of glamor-girl Eileen and a "final hand-washing" of society's George Lowther, was kept a deep secret, but apparently all was well after a sudden elopement yesterday.

The 20-year-old Juliet's parents—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herrick—gave little evidence of being as pleased about the situation as did Lowther's attorney, Eli Johnson.

Father Makes Charge

Herrick, former Park Commissioner and head of a distinguished old New York family, told police his daughter was being detained against her will when she disappeared less than an hour after she left her swank east side home to "take her dog for a walk."

This was the same argument put up by Lowther when he had the object of his affections and her parents brought into court twice on allegations that she was being forcibly detained—prevented from seeing him by parents who disapproved the match.

After Eileen had disappeared twice—her last one due to an appendectomy from which she has just recuperated—he said he was washing his hands of the whole affair and that the next move was up to her.

Johnson said the trouble would blow over; that the parental-suitor din would be drowned shortly after New Year's by the ringing of wedding bells.

Pair Bid Goodbye

And last night he said Lowther, 30, and Eileen, had told him goodbye, with the assertion that they were "very happy that this is ending in marriage." He said they would become man and wife far from New York in a hamlet to which they sped by "fast car, fast train and fast plane."

Eileen left her home yesterday modestly clad for a bride, wearing only a house dress and polo coat. She was hatless, but she had thoughtfully taken along a tooth brush and comb.

Three minutes after leaving, she had jumped into a taxi and was dashing across town to "the apartment of a confidante" where she met Lowther And it was there, Johnson said, that the marriage trip started.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Winter Carnival"

Movie fans everywhere will have one decided advantage over the gay thousands who go to New England for the snow sports this year. They will be able to view the celebrated Dartmouth winter carnival at first hand in Walter Wanger's "Winter Carnival," which co-stars Ann Sheridan and Richard Carlson and opening next at the McCarthy Theatre.

"Winter Carnival" is unique in that neither winter atmosphere nor winter sports control any portion of the story or demand even the slightest deviation from a smoothly moving story plot to accommodate scenes of the 1939 Dartmouth carnival. To offer a relief from time-worn settings Producer Wanger chose to create a romantic film tale around the Dartmouth carnival because it presented New England in its most colorful natural raiment and because the winter sports fete is America's most distinctive social event.

The story which the Wanger film depicts has had more than one parallel in the history of winter carnivals and Director Charles F. Riesner exercised extreme care in presenting the romance between Jill Baxter and Prof. John Weldon, in the film, as it might be seen through the eyes of youth. Both story and accompanying musical score were created by Dartmouth men whose memories of many winter carnivals are still fresh.

"The Game that Kills"

In addition to "Winter Carnival," Rita Hayworth and Charles Quigley head an excellent cast in an action-crammed hockey story entitled "The Game that Kills," a co-feature offering specially booked to give Belleville lovers of winter sports a real double-header in swell entertainment.

"The Real Glory"

Do not miss "The Real Glory."

AT THE BELLE

"The Great Victor Herbert"

Victor Herbert, the man who ruled Broadway during its most colorful era and taught the world to sing of love, is dealt with on the screen for the first time in Paramount's elaborate new musical romance, "The Great Victor Herbert" scheduled to open Saturday at the Belle theatre.

Herbert, in his initial appearance before motion picture audiences, is portrayed by an actor whose resemblance to the famed Irish-American composer is so remarkable that friends of the late maestro insisted he play the role. He is the popular Walter Connolly who shares the leading spot with a pair of the theatre world's best-liked young singers, Allan Jones and Mary Martin.

Miss Martin's film debut would be a big occasion under any circumstances, but now in a dramatic role it is a doubly important event! Mary, of Course, is the Texas girl who was wafted to fame in a single successful song, the catchy "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," which she made a national sensation in the last season's musical comedy, "Leave it to Me."

Jones, has long been a favorite of filmgoers who like music with their pictures. A perfect voice, combined with acting ability and good looks, made him a hit in such pictures as "Rose Marie," "Show Boat," "A Day at the Races" and "The Firefly."

More concerned with Victor Herbert's influence over Broadway and the Broadwayites of his day than with the composer's own life, "The Great Victor Herbert" tells a romantic story of a young actor and actress, played of course by Jones and Miss Martin, whose rise to fame as the stars of Herbert's operettas and find their greatest happiness through their friendship with the song-writer and producer.

Herbert's songs in the picture hold a place of prominence second only to that of the cast. With Jones and Miss Martin doing most of the singing, dozens of the master's best-loved numbers will be heard among them such favorites as "A Kiss in the Dark," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Kiss Me Again" and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone."

The already-famous Miss Martin is not the only feminine singer who makes her debut in "The Great Victor Herbert." Paramount expects much of its fourteen-year-old discovery, Susanna Foster, who plays Miss Martin's daughter in the latter part of the story. A talented newcomer, Miss Foster accomplishes the musical feat of ascending to B flat above high C.

Also prominent in the supporting cast under the direction of Producer-Director Andrew Stone, are Lee Bowman, cast as Miss Martin's unsuccessful home-town suitor and Judith Barrett.

Grand Show Tonight

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy always provide grand entertainment to this writer. Their latest effort "The Flying Deuces" a feature comedy, at the Belle tonight proves no exception. In it the comedians are funnier than ever; in fact, the picture is probably one of the best of their comedies to date.

You love him on the radio, now see him on the screen Jean Hersholt in "Meet Doctor Christian," announced as the second feature attraction, and featuring the romantic stars Dorothy Lovett and Robert Baldwin.

An all new edition of the March of Time will be exhibited on the same program.

FASHION FLASHES

New ideas for fur handling are apparent in the new models. Tightly curled black Persian lamb is used for a grand coat with tight bodice and full skirt. A tiny collar, gilt buttons and heart-shaped revers mark the bodice.

Listen to the news about the new earrings! Many of the new ones follow the ear lobe, such as the earring with tiny tear-drops of moonstones and brilliants hanging from a gold bar shaped to outline the lobe. A tiny gilt cupid with rhinestone wings is another nice design.

Off again from the face are many of the new hats. An off-face model of black beaver felt has the back-turned brim lined with aquamarine beaver felt.

CHILD TAKEN HOME BY MOTORIST

George A. Rickley, Foxboro, reported to police yesterday afternoon that a child by the name of Bowerman had ran into the side of his motor car on Dundas Street, and sustained a slight head laceration. The driver immediately applied the brakes of his car and was nearly stopped when the child collided with the front fender and was knocked down, sustaining the minor head cut. Accidental Drowning Verdict of Coroner's Jury in Deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Bell

Collingwood, Ont., Jan. 5.—(CP) A verdict of accidental drowing was returned by a coroner's jury today, following a two-day inquest into the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Bell of Midland, whose bodies were found in Georgian Bay waters off Wasaga Beach last October 27.

After 35 minutes deliberation, the jury in its verdict said that medical evidence presented "explained to us clearly there was no sign of foul play". Recommendation was made that some warning signal be erected at the end of the Cement Road where the car in which Mr. and Mrs. Bell were riding plunged into the Nottawasaga river a few hours after they had been married.

Testifying yesterday, Miss Florence Small of Toronto, said she believed her sister had been "doped and murdered". Mr. and Mrs. Bell, sister of Ambrose Small, millionaire theatre owner who disappeared in 1919, were married in Stayner and were believed to have been driving back to Midland when the tragedy occurred.

Found no Poisonous Substance

Professor C. W. Ewing, Toronto analytical chemist, in evidence today said he was "prepared to swear that there was no poisonous or narcotic substance present in the viscera of Mrs. Bell as examined by me."

"I found no trace of any poisonous material, any narcotics or sedatives of any kind", said Prof. Ewing. Questioned by W. B. Common of the Attorney-General's Department, Prof. Ewing said that such substances can be detected for "quite a long time" following their consumption.

J. Kenwell, whose boat assisted in hauling the Bell car from the Nottawasaga River, described the vehicle as being retrieved in an upright position. The top of the car was torn and canvass was hanging over the windshield.

Easy to Break Glass

Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief coroner for Ontario, asked Kenwell if he considered that some one crept into the water and broke the glass in the car, which was reported found only two feet below the surface.

"It would be easy to break the glass as we were working on it", Kenwell replied.

Russell Kenwell, who said he did not arrive on the scene until half an hour after it had been found, admitted to Mr. Common, that he was in the vehicle to put it "out of gear when it was partly out of the water". He said the manoeuvre was to make hauling easier and that the car was in high gear when he climbed inside.

Fairbanks Leaves Half of His Estate to His Widow

New York, Jan. 5 —(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks left half of his estate to his widow, the former Lady Sylvia Ashley, it was disclosed when his will was filed for probate in court today. He stipulated, however, that her share should not exceed $1,000,000.

To his son, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., the athletic movie hero left 12-40ths of his property, the total not to exceed $600,000.

Fairbanks specified that his total bequests to his wife, son, "brothers and other relatives" should not exceed $2,000,000.

The will was executed Nov. 2, 1936, shortly after Fairbanks married Lady Ashley. There were no codicils or revisions.

The will made no mention of Miss Pickford.

Belgian Premier Is Asked to Form New Ministry

Brussels, Jan. 5—(AP)—Premier Hubert Pierlot submitted the resignation of his cabinet today to King Leopold and immediately was asked to try to form a new ministry.

Pierlot said he hoped to make some definite announcement on the results tonight. Pierlot, a member of the Catholic party, has organized the ministry a number of times since he became premier Feb. 21.

Today's action was interpreted by observers as a move to prune the largest cabinet in the country's history for reasons of economy and as having no bearing on the international situation.

Hungarian Minister Arrives in Venice

The possibility was reported in Budapest that Count Osaky might talk to Premier Mussolini Monday.

Points of discussion as announced by Italian circles include:

1. Hungary's claims on Rumania for Transylvania, which was taken from Hungary after the first Great War.

2. Relations between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

3. Relations between Hungary and Russia—provided with a joint frontier by the Red army's seizure of Polish territory.

Italy was said to support Hungary's determination that Russia should not pass south of the Carpathian Mountain frontier.

While Italians consider the danger of a Russian invasion slight as long as Moscow is occupied with Finland, Osaky and Ciano are expected to talk over defensive plans for the future.

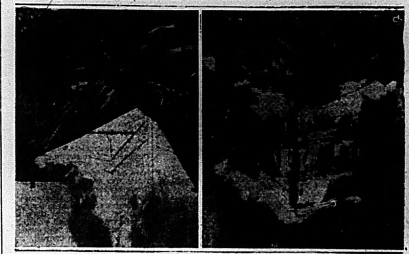
Dawn of the boxer's 25th birthday today found him conscious again and in "fairly well" condition. However, he still was reported in a critical state.

Lindsay, known as the "fighting Marine", was preparing Conn for his New York fight next week with Henry Cooper of Brooklyn, when Dr. Bragdon said he was hit on the temple by a hard blow "which snapped his head back."

AS FINLAND CONTINUES ITS FIGHT AGAINST RED HORDES



As diplomatic relations become increasingly strained between the English and Russian governments, gallant little Finland battles on with increasing success against the Red hordes which batter the Finnish defences. Blazing wreckage across the Finnish countryside bears terrifying testimony of the fierce struggle taking place in the homeland of the peace-loving Finns. A bomb, believed to have been incendiary, from a Russian bomber, started this blaze in Helsingfors, LEFT, during one of the many raids the Finnish capital has been subjected to. A burning structure in the background serves as an illuminated frame for the picture of this Russian plane, RIGHT, which was shot down behind the Finnish lines on the Karelian front.

Rangers Run Their String Of Undefeated Games to 16 By Downing Americans 6-2

Team Only Two Games Off Record Set by Canadiens in 1927

TORONTO BEATEN

Chicago Black Hawks Win 2-1 While Detroit Takes Canadiens 3-2

(By Jack Calder, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Manager Lester Patrick doesn't intend to fool about the way he convinces the critics that his Rangers don't need super-stars or prima-donna players to keep National League hockey on a big business basis in New York. A winning team can silence criticism like nothing else.

The Rangers swept to a 6-2 success last night over New York Americans before 13,700 paying customers who gave ample evidence that Patrick hasn't forgotten how to keep the turnstiles clicking. When the Rangers defeated the Americans 5-2 New Year's night, a Madison Square Garden record crowd of 16,526 looked on.

Again the winners' scoring was distributed through the lineup. The nearest thing Patrick showed to a super-star was Alex Shibicky, who got two goals and an assist.

It was the Broadway blueshirts' 16th consecutive game without defeat and therein lies the reason for the way the fans are turning out, to hurl back those caustic words that confronted Monsieur Lestaire at the start of the season. No one has told him to go look for a super-star in days and days.

Rangers Simply Flew

Shibicky started the scoring after two minutes, and the Rangers flew from that time until they relaxed enough to let the Americans divide four goals with them in the third. Alf Pike, the club's tenth forward, scored once and added an assist, while the other goals were potted by Lynn Patrick, Neil Colville and Dutch Hiller.

Nel Stewart rattled in the Americans' first goal when his team fought back gamely in the last period and Eddie Wiseman got the other with only slightly more than half the chapter gone.

The victory left the Rangers alone in first place in the standing, since the Black Hawks defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 at Chicago. Boston Bruins, previously tied with both the Rangers and Toronto, were idle.

Goodman Stars

It used to be Mike Karakas who was the Maple Leaf's biggest stumbling block in Chicago. Now that Paul Goodman has supplanted Karakas in Chicago's goal, the Leafs aren't sure which of the pair they prefer.

Goodman kicked out everything but the Toronto players' bench as the Leafs descended on him all through the third period. The only thing that got past him was Billy Taylor's goal on a rebound shot.

Chicago went two goals in the second period, George Allen scoring with the aid of Bill Carse and Phil Hergesheimer, and Joe Cooper following with an unassisted goal.

Shakeup Appears Likely

Talk of a shakeup grew louder around Montreal after Detroit Red Wings defeated the Canadiens 3-2 before a scant crowd of 4,000. The Canadien management had postponed making extensive changes in the lineup before the game, but when that blow fell it seemed certain the habitants would be changed drastically before long.

Captain Walter Buswell scored for the home side in the first period but Mud Bruneteau, Conny Brown and Ken Kilrea scored in order for the Red Wings after that. Toe Blake finally punched another for the Canadiens in the final second.

Game Stopped Twice By Fist Fights

Shawinigan Falls, Que., Jan. 5 (CP)—St. Hyacinthe Gaulois edged out Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 6-5 Thursday in a rough Provincial Senior Hockey League game interrupted twice in the third period by fist fights.

Three goals inside of two minutes in the second period, all scored while they were shorthanded, piled up a lead for the Gaulois that the Cataracts were unable to erase completely despite a gallant comeback.

Gordie Poirier scored 2 goals for the Saints while the others were distributed among Tony and Albert Lemay, Fernand Ranger and Yvon Dugre. Leo Carroll, German Bergeron, Fernand Gauthier, Frank Davies and Jacques Lavoie scored for the Cataracts.

COACH GIVEN RELEASE

Quebec, Jan. 5—(CP) — George Boucher has been given his release as coach of Quebec Beavers of the Provincial Senior Hockey League and Theo Hamel has been named playing-coach, it was announced Thursday after a meeting of the team's directors.

Boucher, who coached Noranda in the Northern Ontario Senior Hockey League last season, came here late in October to organize the Beavers after directors definitely decided to make use of a P.S.H.L. franchise, granted them in September.

WILF FIELD

N.Y. Americans.

Wilf Field

Haven of veterans in the National League is Red Dutton's Americans where in the minds of the more facetious, all hockey players go to spend their declining years. The Amerks have more old fellows around than any other club in the loop, but last year they brought up a not-so-old find in Wilf Field, who proceeded to make good as a major league defenceman from the start. He had played the previous season with Seattle Seahawks, from whom Dutton secured him. He got one goal and three assists, and served 37 minutes in penalties last season, and this year he has shown all-round improvement, dealing out hefty checks and carrying the puck with more surety. Born in Winnipeg, he played senior amateur for Monarchs of that city before turning pro with New Haven in the Canadian-American League in 1934-35. Comes by his athletic ability naturally, grandfather Field having been quite a cricketer in England, and Wilf's father having taken to hockey sufficiently to play for Edmonton in a Stanley Cup battle in the distant past when challenges came from all over Canada. Youngest player who sees regular action with Dutton's ancient warriors. Has been popular with Madison Square Garden fans since his first appearance.

N.H.L. LEADERS

(By the Canadian Press)

Alex Shibicky, Rangers, scored twice and assisted in another in a 6-2 victory over New York Americans.

Eddie Wiseman, Americans, picked up a goal and assist as his team lost to the Rangers.

Paul Goodman, Chicago, allowed only Billy Taylor's shot to elude him as the Black Hawks defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1.

Kenny Kilrea, Detroit, scored the winning goal and played a fine all-round game as the Red Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens.

MINOR BASEBALL LEAGUES ENJOY FINEST SEASON

Exclusive of Play-Offs Increase in Attendance in All Loops Was 3,000,000

ONE NEW LEAGUE

Spread of Game in Canada Appreciated by Baseball Men of U.S.

(By William G. Braham, President, National Association of Professional Baseball League.)

Durham, N.C., Jan. 5—(AP)—There is a popular saying that the first 100 years is the hardest. Baseball has just completed its first century and we in the minor leagues are looking toward 1940 with a confidence born of the success of the past.

The season of 1939 was, perhaps, the best the minor leagues have enjoyed in their long history. Exclusive of the play-offs and post-season series which were staged, our 41 leagues drew a total of 18,500,000 paid admissions, a remarkable increase of 3,000,000 over the previous season.

Already, we have added one new league to the National Association roster for 1940, and several more are in the process of organization. The spread of the game into Canada has been most gratifying, and while nations across the sea are in the midst of strife, it is a source of much satisfaction to know that our neighboring government in Canada looks to baseball as one of the effective mediums to relieve the war-worried minds of its people.

At our centennial convention in Cincinnati we accomplished much, and the desire to cooperate and to learn, as expressed by our club officials, was more pronounced than it ever has been.

To those of you who are associated with our organization in the operation of the individual clubs, I urge that you look ahead with the same confidence and enthusiasm you have displayed in the past.

Nicknames of most football teams are obvious....But around here we have been wondering why the Southern Cals were dubbed the Trojans....Just when everyone was ready to give up, along came Franklin P. Adams of the N.Y. Post to suggest maybe it's because the football players out there have to work that way to maintain their scholastic standings.

REDMEN AND FLYERS MEET

O.H.A. Season Will be Ushered in Tonight at the Arena

O.H.A. hockey assumes the local sports pictuure tonight when those two ancient enemies of the ice lanes, the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" and the Belleville Redmen cross sticks in the season's opening game at the Hume Arena. Both teams have added material strength to their line-ups since last season and a typical Air Force-Belleville game can undoubtedly be assured. In their only meeting thus far this season, played at Kingston, the "Flyers" gained a narrow-margin 2-1 victory over the scarlet-clad Belleville pucksters, which indicates their relative strength.

The management of the Hume Arena has requested that the "no smoking" regulations at the Arena be strictly observed by the patrons, additional smoking rooms have been opened on the west side of the rink for that purpose.

The probable line-ups for tonight's game are:—R.C.A.F. "Flyers"—goal, Gibson; defence, Higgins and Cameron; centre, Legris; wings, Baldwin and McNab; second line, McLeod, Gathercol and Lemeoux; relief, Irwin and Dryer; alternates, Day and Dunning. Belleville Redmen—goal, Watt or Hinton; defence, St. Louis and McCreary; centre C. Jackson; wings, Windsor and W. Jackson; second line, Ronsky Yates, Thompson and Filion.

The referee for the night appointed by the O.H.A. will be Joe Smith of Kingston.

The Princeton defence collapsed in the third period when the visitors scored six times.

Barrow Finds Pleasure In Circumventing Rule

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—President Ed. Barrow of the Yankees is going to find a lot of pleasure in circumventing that new rule which says he cannot do business with other American Baseball League Clubs.

He was good and sore when his fellow magnates passed it at the Cincinnati meeting. That has worn off and he is accepting the challenge in higher spirits. His satisfaction in obtaining Lefty Lee Grissom from the Reds in exchange for Joe Beggs is all too obvious, though it is doubtful the veteran actually wanted Grissom.

"I saw him but once in my life," he said. "That was in the recent World Series. I thought he looked pretty good."

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Jan. 5—(AP)— Aided and abetted by the fair name of charity, fight promoter Mike Jacobs stepped out of character today for a short role as the angel of peace .

The result probably will be that the New York State Athletic Commission and Joe Jacobs, Manager of Tony Galento, will "bury the hatchet" in their long-standing row, thus removing the biggest stumbling block in the way of holding the heavyweight bouts between Galento and Max Baer this winter and Galento and Joe Louis next summer in New York. These are a couple of parties which figure to pay well at the box office.

Contributes Entire Profit

At the same time, the Finnish Relief Fund, for which the Galento-Baer festivities will be staged in March, will do all right, too, with Mike Jacobs contributing his entire profit from the project to that charity. The fight was the top event proposed at a get-together of Ex-President Herbert Hoover, head of the Fund, and various ports writers yesterday. Plans were also outlined for such other competitions as an open tennis tournament, a basketball doubleheader, several other fights and an exhibition by Paavo Nurmi for the benefit of the Finns.

Here's the way "Uncle Mike's" peace proceedings go:

For weeks, Joe has resisted all Mike Jacobs' pleadings to hold the fight in New York, simply because neither Joe, as manager, nor Two-Ton Tony, as fighter, hold New York licences from the Commission.

Fight for Charity

But Mike announced the fight as for charity, so Joe immediately accepted—with a stipulation. This was that he had, at present, no legal power to sign a contract for Galento in this state, but that he would do it in a minute if granted a licence. Since charity is a compelling factor in the fight business, the fistic fathers undoubtedly will see the light.

All this time, Mike Jacobs has been looking ahead to this summer, when he must give Louis some work at good pay. Rated off last year's spectacle, in which Galento floored Louis, a Galento-Louis rematch for the title is the one to make the turnstiles click here. So, if Joe and Galento are granted licences, there'd be no reasons for the commissioners to take away their sanction again later on.

McGill Scores Six Times in 10 Minutes

Boston, Jan. 5 (AP)—Hockey rivalry between Boston College and McGill University was renewed Thursday after a 15-year lapse, McGill winning the game 9-3.

Boston held the strong visiting team on even terms for 50 minutes then its defence fell apart. The Montrealers scored six times in less than 10 minutes of the final period.

Boston came from behind three times to tie the score and then kept the Redmen well under control until the 11th minute of the finale, when Ralph Powers weakened them by drawing a tripping penalty.

As Powers rested in the box, Tim Dunn and Howie Walker each scored their second counters of the game within 49 seconds.

That sharpshooting routed the Eagles and McGill drove four more pucks, two of which were aimed by Cam Dickinson, into the B.C. net before the final bell sounded.

ARMSTRONG K.O'S GHNOULY IN 5TH

Welterweight Champ Had Opponent on Canvass Three Times in First Round

St. Louis, Jan. 5 (AP)— Henry Armstrong successfully defended his world welterweight championship by knocking out Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis in 34 seconds in the fifth round of their scheduled 15-round bout here last night.

Armstrong started with a rush and the Italian challenger was on the canvas three times in the first round.

A hard left hook to the head first put Ghnouly down, then a few seconds later a left to the head and right to the body smashed him to the canvas for the second time. Joe took a count of nine on this knockdown to clear his head but was on the floor again a second later.

Armstrong weighed 136 3-4, Ghnouly 135 1-2.

JUVENILES OPEN CITY SCHEDULE WITH TWO DRAWS

Americans Tie Maple Leafs and Canadiens Earn Draw With Black Hawks

SPLENDID MATERIAL

Teen - Aged Boys Given Chance to Play Hockey Under Ideal Conditions

Belleville's young hopeful hockey players of future years paraded before a practically empty house at the Hume Arena last night in the opening doubleheader of the newly inaugurated Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association, when in the curtain-raiser the Americans came from behind with a last second penalty shot to knot the count at 2-2 while in the second game the identical score was seen when the Canadiens rallied to score twice in a belated third period rally to tie the speedy Black Hawks at 2-all.

The second tussle was productive of slightly faster and cleaner hockey as the players on the Canadiens and the Black Hawks were not inclined to congregate around the elusive rubber too frequently, although all four teams battled strongly and the handful of patrons present agreed the foundation of a long-needed want was established in the City Juvenile loop as several likely looking prospects were paraded in the uniforms of all four clubs. All players were provided with uniforms, identical to the N.H.L. clubs with which their clubs are associated by name in the league. Hockey sticks and goalkeeper's equipment is also being furnished by the league.

Credited With First Goal

In the first game Mike Powers, shifty centre of the Maple Leafs, was credited with the first goal of the new league when he scored on a combination play along with Barnum and Langabeer. Bruce Cronk on a solo effort beat Clarke in the Leafs' nets to tie the score two minutes later and there was no scoring seen in the middle session. In the third period the Maple Leafs forged ahead again as Langabeer rapped home Robertson's pass out. With one second left to play Burkholder tripped Cronk going in and Cronk was awarded a penalty shot which he drove by Clarke to tie the count as the final whistle sounded.

Second Game

Rowe scored the first goal in the second game poking home Maracle's goal-mouth pass and Maracle scored alone to put the Black Hawks in front 2-0 at the end of the first period and there was no scoring in the middle session of this game either.

Owing to the only penalty of the game Hunter rifled home Reid's pass on a power play. Stan Reid gave a pass to Bill McBride for the second Canadiens' goal, that knotted the count also. To name individual stars in the opening games would not justify the principle behind the sponsoring of the game among the youth of Belleville, although several players did stand out as more finished pucksters.

The teams are sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, the Kinsmen Club, Reid's Dairy and the Belleville Creameries.

All roads and back alleyways lead to the Hume Arena tonight when the Flyers and the Redmen resume their hockey feud of the ice lanes. Significant of the picture the game also marks the opening of the O.H.A. hockey season and a goodly crowd will doubtless be on hand to take in the proceedings. True enough the scarlet clad Bellevillians have been subject to two bad reverses lately, but it must also be remembered that the "birdmen" and Eddie Thomas' pets battled 60 minutes in the Van Horne series, when the Flyers eked out a narrow margin 2-1 win, which might show something of the relative strength of the squads.

However, the fans will see several new faces bedecked in both uniforms. For instance Herb Windsor and Les Yates with the Redmen are from Prescott and Brockville of the Ottawa Valley loop respectively, while George Filion, Trenton, has seen hockey service in Northern Ontario and the Maritimes since appearing here some years ago. On the other hand Coach "Toots" Holway has several new faces with the "birdmen.". There's, "Stew" Irwin, former Ottawa Senator, Harry McLeod last year with the Barrier Colts, "Frenchy" Lemeoux, Edmonton seniors 1938-39, "Mush" Higgins, former London player and one other, perhaps "Toots" Day, a classy play-maker who will doubtless be well received in Belleville. However, the Redmen have the redoubtable Jackson boys, Speedy St. Louis and Harry McCreary, who have carried many Belleville hockey banners before.

Manager Norm Barriage of the Hume Arena, has asked us to acquaint the fans with several innovations now to be enjoyed at the Arena. First the fans are requested to observe the NO SMOKING regulations at the Arena. "We have erected a new heated smoking room beneath the seats on the west side of the Arena for the comfort of the fans and entrance can be made through the runway near the press box," explained Manager Barriage as he invited all to enjoy the facilities of this comfort. Also new net twines and goal posts have been purchased and are modern in every sense of hockey equipment. However, we have been asked to stress the NO SMOKING in the Arena during the game and we know the players would appreciate such cooperation on the part of the fans.

Some time ago the Peterboro' scribe openly predicted that providing the Peterboro intermediates had a little more practice his pets would take the measure of the Oshawa Generals anytime, anywhere and under any conditions. Well, the Petes had their second go at the Generals right in the Brock Street rink the other night and as we predicted before — "the Petes couldn't beat the Generals if they play from now until the Oshawa kids grow long white beards." The score was 7-5 for the Generals, who scored four goals in the middle session and then coasted in. Perhaps now the Liftlock City scribe won't be so egotistic regarding his pets, who may receive a severe jolt the next time they meet the Flyers.

Old time baseball fans will well remember Art "Baldy" Quinn, former Kingston and Deloro baseball player, who caused a riot at the old fair grounds one fine summer's day years ago when he clipped Vern Weir and tossed the latter for a ten-yard loss as Weir was crossing the plate. Well friend Arthur joined the ranks of the benedicts at Timmins recently when he married Miss Lucille O'Donnell. Art is coaching both baseball and hockey in Northern Ontario and will doubtless carry the good wishes of all his old C.O.B.L. friends in his more recent "double play."

Do you remember when the first bobsled race ever recorded took place 42 years ago today at St. Moritz, Switzerland, where the bobsled had been invented eight years earlier. Time for the mile-and-a-half course was 2:54, compared with the present running time of 1:40. Bobsledding was first incorporated in the Olympic Games in 1928.

Has it come to the stage where a mere handful must pay for the sports and sponser athletics in this city? At this stage we are referring primarily to the support of sports among the teen-aged boys of Belleville. Last evening nearly 50 Belleville boys, all under the age of 17 years, appeared at the Hume Arena in the opening games of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association and how many adult patrons or interested fans were on hand to encourage the kids? One could have counted them almost on the fingers of his hands. Those behind the league are quite willing to foot the bill towards the provision of equipment and would even pay for the rink, but if Belleville is ever to take a prominent place in the sports of the district—the fans MUST encourage our youthful talent with their attendance and moral support. Two fairly good juvenile hockey matches were provided by the four teams in the local Juvenile Association and the individual kids are to be congratulated upon their efforts, there wasn't a dull moment in the two games.

We will refrain from selecting any particular or individual stars or even outstanding players from out last night's dual bill of juvenile hockey, although there were several outstanding players, but the kids were naturally over-anxious and trying desperately to make an impression upon the respective team coaches. In the first game the ice was noticeably much too fast for the kids, which may have been the reason that the second game appeared to be the faster tilt, as the Arena management provided a perfect sheet of ice for the opening of Belleville's "little, big league." Perhaps it was a blessing in disguise that both games terminated in a tie, the Maple Leafs and the Americans playing a 2-2 draw and the Canadiens and Black Hawks dropping the curtain with the same score. A last second Merriwell finish by the Americans with a penalty shot gave them a tie with the Leafs, while the Canadiens had to score twice in the last few minutes to earn a draw with the Black Hawks and now the four clubs are all evened up so perhaps the fans will warm up to the league and provide a little more support in the future.

SPORT SPICE—Apparently Joe McCarthy thought more of Lefty Lee Grissom's mound efforts than did the Cincinnati Reds, who traded Grissom for pitcher Joe Beggs of the Highlanders. . . . That's equivalent to being kicked upstairs.

OVERTIME GOAL HELPS

Valleyfield, Que., Jan. 5 (CP) — Johnny Huguet's overtime goal climaxed a Valleyfield comeback Thursday that brought the Braves a 4-3 victory over Verdun Bulldogs in a provincial senior hockey league game.

Trailing 2-0 as the game neared the half-way mark, the Braves scored three times before the second period ended. In addition to Huguet, Lionel Lafontaine, Callahan and Ray Mullins scored for the Braves while Bob Morin got two of the Verdun goals and Gerry Walker the other.

HERBIE LEWIS A SMART COACH

Indianapolis Capitals Leading Both Divisions of Int.-Am. by Clear Margin

By The Canadian Press

Herb Lewis, for a coach who in recent weeks hasn't been sure from day to day what players he would have available for games, is doing a grand job with Indianapolis Capitals of the International-American hockey league.

Farm team of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, the Capitals have been breaking up lines, sending players up to Detroit and getting them back again most of the season as the Wings battled to keep away from the N.H.L. cellar.

And despite it all Lewis has kept his team sizzling hot. The Capitals' 4-4 draw with Pittsburgh Hornets last night put them 12 points ahead of Hershey Bears, second place team in the league's division, and four points ahead of New Haven Eagles, leaders of the eastern section.

Providence Reds, with goalie Mike Karakas playing shut-out hockey for more than two-thirds of the game, beat Syracuse Stars 5-2 in another game to slice New Haven's lead to five points.

Glen Brydson started the scoring for Indianaolis in the first period and Kashner scored for Pittsburgh and Scotty Bowman for the Capitals in the second. After Goldup's goal had tied the score early in the third Abel and Ronnie Hudson gave the Capitals a two goal lead. This was wiped out later in the period by Sherf Metz.

Providence, after a scoreless first period, gained a two goal lead in the second when Mackenzie and Ambols scored. In the third Sherwood, Red Roan and Johnny Chad scored for the Reds and Eddie Convey and Norm Locking for Syracuse.

Mussolini to Visit Pope Pius XII

Rome, Jan. 5—(AP)— Premier Mussolini is expected in political circles to visit Pope Pius sometime between Jan. 11 and 18, following formal calls exchanged by the Pope and the Italian Royal family late in December.

Authoritative circles have made clear that any contacts between the Italian Government and the Vatican are merely signs of cordiality, without signifying any immediate move for peace in Europe.

No Fear Felt for For Safety of Crew

Port Burwell, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP) —No fear was felt here today for the safety of five men trapped in the Kenteau, a diesel-engined fishing boat, in an ice-floe about 1 1-2 miles out of this port.

In contrast with last night's high wind, lake conditions were mild and the boat was in no danger of being damaged. It was expected another boat would put out this morning to free the Kenteau from the ice if she did not succeed in working herself free.

In charge of the Kenteau was Capt. Bunn Matthews of Port Hope. His four crewmen are from Port Burwell and nearby Port Dover.

Early today while it was not possible to see the tug from shore, the reverberating exhaust from its Diesel engine could be heard as she was apparently being driven into the ice, backed up, driven in again in the attempt to open a way for herself into the harbor.

Film Colony Given Fuel for Conversation

Hollywood, Jan. 5 (AP)— Death, divorce, difficulties and business deals in and out of the courts gave the film colony fuel for conversation today.

Flora Finch, noted commedienne of the silent films, died of blood poisoning and pneumonia yesterday. She was past 70.

Alice Day, former screen star, testifying she was doing her own laundry, won a court order requiring her former husband, Broker Jack Cohn, to pay $150 a month to support her and their two sons.

Another former actress, Mrs. Charlotte Burford Lieberman, gave testimony in court to supoprt her petition for $445 a month temporary alimony pending trial of her divorce suit against film producer Donald Lieberman.

Bing Crosby, movie singer, Harry Owens, orchestra leader, and Paramount Pictures incorporated, denied the contention of Myrtle Hoffman, in her $500,000 plagiarism suit, that the song "Sweet Leilani" was taken from her original composition.

Will Filed For Probate

The will of Mrs. Margaret Fillmore, filed for probate left only $1 each to her sister, Mary Miles Minter, star of the silent screen, and their mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, and gave the rest of her $12,000 estate to a former maid, Elsie Brosten.

Mrs. Fillmore, whose differences with her mother and sister frequently reached the courts, became permanently estranged from them after they sought to have her committed to a psychopathic institution. She died Dec. 27. Miss Minter and Mrs. Shelby a week ago objected to appointment of Miss Brosten as administrator of Mrs. Fillmore's estate, indicating they would contest the will.

On the brighter side, the newly-organized Retsama Film Company announced it had signed two former film stars, Mae Murray and Claire Windsor, and Geraldine Spreckels, sugar heiress and stage actress, to contracts.

Pursuant to the provisions of the Mining Tax Act (Chap. 28, R.S.O. 1937), the following list is published of mining locations, mining claims, and mining rights, in respect of which taxes imposed by the said Act are more than two years in default, and notice is hereby given that unless the amount due as shown on the said list shall have been paid on or before June 30th, 1940, the property in respect of which the taxes so remain unpaid shall on the day following the above date become forfeited to and revested in the Crown.

In the arrangement of the list, lands are given in the judicial district in which they are situated, commencing from the west, and in each district the lots in townships are placed first and in alphabetical order, according to the townships; then follow the locations or claims not originally in surveyed territory, also alphabetically arranged and in sequence. Owners of property thus advertised are advised that extra costs are incurred if payment is delayed beyond February 29th, 1940, as the Act requires an additional notice to owners of claims on which the taxes have not been paid by this time for which there is a statutory charge.

Communications regarding this matter should be addressed to A. C. Young, Mine Assessor, Department of Mines, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

H. C. Rickaby,
Deputy Minister of Mines.

CANADIAN TROOPS IN ENGLAND CHEERED DURING ROUTE MARCHES

The arrival of the first division of the C.A.S.F., under the leadership of Maj.-Gen A. G. L. McNaughton, has won the enthusiastic acclaim of the Britishers, who never tire of watching the Canadian troops as they swing smartly past during route marches. Scottish troops of the first division receive a hearty cheer, BOTTOM, as they swing along an English country road. Wearing their battle dress, the Canadian "Scotties" are shown lining up for inspection, TOP.

A Matter of Consonants

By HERBERT WILSON

Margaret Guille Baxter had the blues, and it seemed to her that she had a perfectly legitimate right to them. In the first place, it was Monday, and she had read the other day that a noted London scientist had declared the well-known Monday morning feeling to be a definite, scientific fact; moreover, she simply detested her name—Margaret Guille! Why, she moaned inwardly, had no affectionate nickname such as Peggy or Margie ever been given her; on the contrary any attempt to shorten her baptismal name, even when she was an infant, had been vigorously opposed by her tradition-workshipping mother—"Guille" being an old French family name which, her mother insisted, added eclat to her first name. Beside being low in mind, Margaret Guille was low in funds, $1.80 being the amount she had been able to extract from her purse even though she had turned it upside down. As Daddy Baxter discouraged requests for advances, the outlook for the remaining five days of the month before her next allowance was due was far from rosy. To make matters worse, her hair needed trimming, a fluff of yellow showing beneath the tight little felt hat that she pulled down as far as possible.

"Hello, Margaret Guille," called a gay voice from the curb.

Used as she was to hearing her name from relatives, teachers and friends, it seemed, on that particular Monday morning to only add insult to injury. She said nothing, however, but stepped into the nifty little roadster of her next door neighbor's with no display of enthusiasm.

"I've got a wow of a plan, Margaret Guil—" began her companion eagerly.

"Peter Lathrop, can't you open your mouth without shouting my—my—detestable name?" she asked, irritation getting the best of her.

Peter looked at her in astonishment.

"Detestable name? What on earth do you mean? What's the matter with Margaret—"

"Don't you dare finish it!"

"But I've called you that ever since you were knee high to a grasshopper—everybody has — now if it were your last name that got you all wrought up, you know I've maintained for some time that Lathrop—"

"As for that plan—it's this. We'll telephone your mother from downtown and then drive out to a roadhouse for luncheon. What do you say?"

Margaret Guille's only reply was a subsiding sniffle, but it had an acquiescent sound.

It would be an exceedingly obstinate mood that could not be mellowed by the old world atmosphere of the quaint old inn called "The Worn Doorstep." Situated on the bank of a river, its charm lay largely in its dissimilarity to the usual roadhouse. Margaret Guille soon felt the soothing influence of the place. It was early—not yet one o'clock.

Peter, never one to lose a golden opportunity, had for the seventh time—he insisted upon its being the seventh as well as upon the fact that seven is an unfailing lucky number—expatiated upon the advantages that would accrue if she, Maragret Guille, would change her last name to Lathrop.

"Baxter isn't the part of my name that bothers me" said she saucily. "Now if it were 'Margaret Guille' that you could eliminate—"

"Peter Lathrop!" she exclaimed suddenly "I'll make a bargain with you., If you'll promise on your word of honor never to call me 'Margaret Guille' again I'll—I'll—marry you."

"Holy cats!" said Peter jumping up from his chintz-covered chair and making one long stride for her, "I'll promise anything in reason or out, but"—after an appreciable interval—"what am I to call you—in public let us say? It would hardly do to always say sweet—"

"You shall call me Peggy," interrupted his new fiancee. "I've longed for a nickname all my life and I'm going to choose my own, since I have to get married to get one."

"Peggy it is from this moment until death do us part," declared Peter with upraised hand.

Peter was undeniably hungry and he gave his rapt attention to the menu-card as soon as they were seated for luncheon.

"Margaret Gui—" one glance at the stony face across the table and he went on, "guinea hen is fine this time of the year, what do you say if we try it?"

The face across the table softened somewhat.

"I'll forgive the first name, but, Peter, I really thought you were going to say it all and if you had—"

"And if I had?"

"Why of course, you would have broken your promise and we wouldn't be engaged."

After the luncheon Peter strolled out to the kitchen, and although the little Frenchman there was quite unable to understand anything except the denomination of the bill that he received, Peter expressed his most fervent thanks for the chef's thoughtfulness in serving guinea hen that day.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and me were eating breakfist alone on acount of ma not being up yet because our new dog kept her awake all night trying to prove he was a watch dog, and pop said, Now remember, that dog sleeps in your room tonight, and if he lets out one bark he sleeps in the pound tomorrow night.

Well then jimminy, pop, if he cant hear berglers trying to break in, it wont be his fault, he said, and pop said, I'd rather have the berglers, thanks. If they're any kind of berglars at all, at least they wont wake me up, he said.

Well anyways, pop, maybe he ought to have a name, maybe it would make him feel more quiet, I said, and pop said, Then call him Insomnia.

Aw heck, pop, that's no kind of a name for a dog, I said, and pop said, And that's no kind of a dog for a name, he keeps people awake and so does insimnia. How about calling him Gilty Conscience, I understand you cant sleep with a gilty conscience. Or how about calling him Indigestion? he said.

Aw G, pop, nohting like that, I said, and pop said, It might be simpler if we knew what kind of a dog he is, I wonder if he's a military dog.

I never heard of that kind, I said, and pop said, Neitehr did I, but if he was a military dog we could call him General Nuisance.

Being more sourcasm, and I said, Well anyways, we dont know what kind of a dog he is. so how about calling him Misty?

I suppose you mean on acount of his past being shrouded in a mist of uncertainty, pop said, and I said, No sir, I just mean Misty, short for Misterious.

Yee gods, you win, you come in first, 2nd and 3rd, pop said.

Meaning Misty was a good name. Wich it is.

Fashion Flashes

PRETTY AS A PICTURE are some of the party frocks designed with an eye to holiday festivities. Peach, turquoise or pale pink faille taffeta is used for a pretty frock with short puffed sleeves, tiny waist and the hem discreetly shirred at centre front to reveal a rustling petticoat.

Going Oriental is the message of some evening frocks, for the harem drape is back. A lovely model is a moulded dress with graceful harem drapery done in white crepe girdled with a wide gold kiskin belt studded with gilt nail heads.

Be comfy as well as pretty when you don a house coat. A grand model is done in fine French flannel in pale blue with pink satin pipings. The robe, though full, is cut on princess lines.

CANADIAN TROOPS

ity committee, headed by Lieut-General C. N. F. Broad, general officer commanding the Aldershot command, finished sorting out and totalling up the invitations accepted. A summary showed 800 private parties and theatrical entertainments were given.

The invitations covered two or three, or sometimes half a dozen officers or men for an evening. In most cases cars were provided, picking up the guests and returning them after the evening. Invitations still are coming in, but few are being accepted due to the intensification of training preparations.

Leaves are offering varied experiences to the troops. The newspapers are dying to unearth weird happening and are having fair success. The best recently concerns a C.A.S.F. laddie, Thomas Green, of Pembroke, Ont., tracking down an uncle named Frank Green of Sheffield. There are 500 Greens in Sheffield and Tommy did not know his uncle's address. After investigation in various suburbs he finally found his uncle at the thirteenth Green home visited.

Egg Prices Again Lower at Toronto

Toronto, Jan. 5—Egg prices again were on the downgrade yesterday as trading maintained a slow pace on the Toronto open produce market. Butter held quietly steady.

Demand for eggs was only fair. With trading dull, prices in the graded section declined to a range of 22 1-2c to 23c for A-large eggs, 20 1-2c to 21c for A-medium and 18 1-2c to 19c for A-pullets Quotations to the retail trade also were lower.

Buying interest in butter was lacking, and trading was barely sufficient to establish prices. With fresh receipts light, there was no real pressure on holders to sell, and prices remained steady. Publication of the preliminary storage stock figures report was not as favorable as the trade had anticipated and the general inclination was to postpone buying until the final report is released at Ottawa next week.

driving back to Midland was found in the waters of the Nottawasaga River at a point where it empties into Georgian Bay.

Lungs Filled With Water

Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert, testified there was nothing to show that Mrs. Bell came to her death in any way but by drowning. The lungs of both Mr and Mrs. Bell were filled with water when found, he said.

Death of the 50-year-old woman was followed by requests for Government investigation by Florence Small and Patrick Sullivan, former Toronto policeman and advisor to the Small sisters over a period of years.

The attorney-general's department ordered a complete probe of the circumstances in which Mrs. Bell and her 39-year-old husband died. The inquiry culminated in the inquest.

Miss Small testified she had not heard of an impending marriage between her sister, who went to Midland for her health, and Bell, a Midland electrician. She said that needles containing ether were found in the house occupied by her sister.

Refuses To Answer Questions.

"Do you think my sister wasn't murdered?" Miss Small asked W. B. Common of the attorney-general's department.

"That is for the court to say," Mr. Common replied.

"I will say it," Miss Small said. "My brother's death was hushed and kept down and I am not going to do the same thing about my sister's death."

During the hearing of evidence, Sullivan interrupted proceedings on several occasions and finally all witnesses were excluded from the room, with the exception of the testifying witness.

Rev. A. W. Downer of Duntroon, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature for Dufferin-Simcoe, testified he was called to Stayner to perform the ceremony. Captain H. A. Colquhoun of Midland, who with his wife was a witness at the wedding, testified there was liquor drunk following the ceremony by the wedding party. The Colquhouns left shortly after the ceremony and did not see the Bells again.

go of lubricating oil valued at $1,000,000, put in here to avoid capture by the Allies. He claimed he was employed on the vessel from April 24 to Dec. 7.

Demand Vessel Be Sold

The action was filed for Harren, a native of Hamburg, by Hymen Katz, a Boston lawyer of Jewish extraction, and demanded that the tanker, owned by Eugene Friederich of Bremen, Germany, be sold to satisfy the former officer's claim. The action is returnable Jan. 12.

Harren was quoted by his lawyer as stating that he did not wish to return to Germany, but prefers to become a United States citizen because he has no u. for the Nazi regime. As a discharged seaman, he has 60 days to find employment on a neutral ship or be detained by immigration officers.

SEA POWER

the chance of determining the kind of world in which we are to live."

Lord Lothian said all current indications pointed to the probability that Germany would attempt to gain a decision over Britain and France early this spring by "a terrific attack by land, air and sea," and that she would "use every weapon in her armory."

Must Reach Decision

"The object of war is to reach a decision and Germany cannot afford to wait," he added. "Moreover, from the point of view of the National Socialist party and the Militarists who support it, not only is there a chance of a rapid decision today but it is a decision which may give them the supreme prize, world empire. That chance may never come again. Nazi Germany is in a better position to win it today than she was in the last war."

He explained Germany had to fight on two fronts during the first Great War but now could concentrate on one and that Germany had no effective long distance air power then but had "the most terrific air force in the world" now.

But the Allies are confident they can repel the attack, the Ambassador added, and declared it would not be long thereafter "before Hitlerism itself goes down in defeat."

If "Hitler and his friends" should win the war and seize Britain's sea power, Lord Lothian said, the world "might get peace but it would be a peace with the light of liberty gone out."

HEAVY STORM

Conttinued From Page One

Little or no snow was reported from the Muskoka district and northern Ontario.

Woodstock had it heaviest fall of the winter. Four inches had fallen and it was still snowing at midday.

Galt also reported the winter's biggest snow. Most areas experienced no tie-up in traffic or communications. Highways were reported treacherous in the Galt district. A large tractor trailer skidded off the road near Rockton and landed on its side in the ditch.

Three inches of snow have fallen in Kitchener and the storm is still blowing, especially in the country where there is a mild blizzard. All the main roads are still open but some side roads are impassable.

50-Year-Old Hamilton Presbyterian Church Destroyed by Fire

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 5—(CP) — Downtown Hamilton was illuminated for blocks around by soaring flames from the fire that demolished the interior and roof of the 50-year-old St. John's Presbyterian Church, Emerald and King Streets, during the night. The blaze was prevented by city firemen from destroying the Sunday School at the rear of the stone building or from spreading into the adjacent lumber yard of the Evel Casket Company. Loss was estimated at $50,000.

Several hundred spectators who watched a large force of firefighters pour tons of water through 11 hose lines into the stricken building were kept at a safe distance by police for fear the tall spire would topple into the intersection.

Believed to have started behind the organ, the fire had eaten through the roof and flared high into the air by the time firemen responded to the fire alarm.

Reginald Juke, night watchman for the Evel Casket Company and a former city police constable, turned in the alarm. Glancing from westerly windows of the Evel factory, Tisdale and King Streets, he saw the side windows of the church lighted up from the fire within and flames starting to flicker through the roof.

Firemen had several streams of water on the outbreak in record time and a tall standpipe was brought from the Robert Street Station so that 750 gallons of water a minute could be played in three streams into the steeple in which a stubborn fire raged.

In an effort to get water into the interior, hoses were trained on the beautiful stained glass window on the King Street facade and it was some time before even the force of the water and the heat weakened the finely wrought glass sufficiently to permit a stream to get through.

When the intense heat of the blaze had subsided sufficiently to enable firemen to get in close, the front door was broken through and a flow of water six inches deep gushed from the interior and flooded into the street. Thousands of gallons of water were rained into the church in a vain effort to save it.

SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES TOLD TO CLARIFY POSITION

Warned Against Permitting British and French Military Aid to Pass Through to Finland

ALLIES ACCUSED

Aid Promised Used as Screen to Involve Norway and Sweden in War Against Germany

Berlin, Jan. 4 (CP).—Deep concern over developments in Scandinavian countries was expressed in Germany today as Sweden and Norway were warned in a new press campaign, bearing an official tinge, against permitting British and French military aid to pass through to Finland.

The two northern countries were told to "clarify their positions".

The allies were accused of using the covenant of the League of Nations, under which aid was promised to Finland by League states, as a screen to involve Norway and Sweden in the war against Germany.

In the Nazi view, the aid the allies say they are going to give Finland only can mean transportation through Sweden and Norway. This, the Nazis assert, means a British-French foothold in Scandinavia against the Reich.

The northern states, Nazis said, are being promised League aid if they become involved in the war as the result of assisting Finland.

4 British Cruisers Off Montevideo Cause Speculation

Montevideo, Jan. 5 (AP)—Concentration of four British cruisers off Montevideo caused speculation among marine authorities today on whether a hunt was on for another German raider like the scuttled pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee.

After the cruiser Ajax put out to sea from this harbor this morning a port observer sighted two other warships, which he tentatively identified as the Cumberland and the Shropshire, about two hours sailing off shore.

The cruiser Achilles left Buenos Aires early this morning, apparently to join the squadron. The Achilles and Ajax, together with the cruiser Exeter, were responsible for the defeat of the Graf Spee.

SAVARD REPORTS DRASTIC SHAKEUP IN LES CANADIENS

Three Players Demoted and Three Brought Up From Farm at New Haven

SEEK NEW PLAYERS

Montreal, Jan. 5 (CP). — The threatened shakeup hanging over Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League broke today with an announcement by President Ernie Savard that two players have been demoted, one retired and three recalled from their minor league farm team.

The announcement, coming with the team on an eight-game losing streak, removes Paul Drouin, Earl Robinson and Paul Haynes from the lineup. They will be replaced by Bill Summerhill, Gus Mancuso, and Armand Mondou, recalled from New Haven of the International American League.

Temporarily removed from the lineup also will be Rod Lorrain, ordered to hospital for a minor operation. The sweeping changes, part of a reconstruction plan that sent veteran Johnny Gagnon to the New York Americans Wednesday, comes on the day Canadiens celebrate their 30th anniversary—the oldest club in professional hockey.

Not Satisfied With Team.

"We are not satisfied with several things on the Canadien team," Savard said in making the announcement. "We have one of the highest price teams in the entire league and frankly, we do not feel we are getting value for our money."

The Flying Frenchmen started the present season with a rush after finishing sixth last year. After climbing to first place in early season, they started a slump that left them today but one point out of the cellar.

Savard said the club felt Drouin, veteran left winger, was not in top condition while Robinson, right winger, was still suffering the effects of recent injuries. Haynes, he said, has been released as a player but will be offered a position as scout.

Made Bid of 20,000.

Claiming it was "no cinch to get players", Savard said he had bid as high as $20,000 to New York Rangers for Edgar and Bert Laprade of Port Arthur Bearcats while offering Joe Benoit of the same club a contract calling for $10,000 for three years. In both cases he was refused.

"I could get some amateurs here," he said, "but some of these amateurs make $4,000 a year. How can we compete with salaries like that."

Heard No Word of Offer

New York, Jan. 5 (CP) — Word from Montreal that the Canadiens had offered New York Rangers $20,000 for two of their amateur hockey prospects was greeted with good-natured bewilderment by the Ranger officials today.

Ernie Savard, president of the Montreal National Hockey League club, said in Montreal the offer had been made for Edgar and Bert Laprade of Port Arthur Bearcats, but had been refused.

"I wonder to whom he made the offer," one officer of the Ranger organization said. "But we certainly would be interested if he 'renewed' the offer. Twenty thousand dollars can buy a lot of tea."

"BETTER TO BE BORED THAN BOMBED"

His umbrella discarded for the nonce, Premier Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, is shown inspecting a camouflaged gun emplacement during his recent visit to the front. Note the boots and canvas puttees. It was on this occasion that Chamberlain replied to critics of the "boring war" with the sage remark that it is "better to be bored than bombed".

CABINET SHAKEUP PUZZLES BRITISH PUBLIC

Hore-Belisha Out As War Secretary; Stanley is Named

Sir John Reith Succeeds Lord McMillan as Minister of Information and Sir Andrew Duncan Heads Trade Board

EXPLANATIONS ASKED

Editorials in Leading Papers Demand Full-Dress Debate on Shakeup in Parliament — Failed to Get Along With Gort Claimed

London, Jan. 6—(CP)—New ministers took over the portfolios of war and information in the cabinet today in a politically-sensational shakeup which was announced suddenly to a puzzled British public last night.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, war secretary who gained fame by modernizing the army, was replaced by Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade.

Sir John Reith, Chairman of Imperial Airways, succeeded a fellow-Scot, Lord MacMillan, as Minister of Information; and Sir Andrew Duncan, barrister and banker, was chosen to head the Board of Trade.

"He has not been getting on with the generals, and he goes," commented the Daily Mail of Mr. Hore-Belisha's replacement, which the Press generally protested.

Explanation Requested

Editorials called for explanation in a full-dress debate in the House of Commons. Liberal and Labor members of Parliament also registered indignation over the change. Mr. Hore-Belisha's resignation was said to have resulted from his failure to get along with Viscount Gort, Commander-in-Chief of the British Expeditionary Force in France and himself one of the younger men whom the war secretary had advanced to high position.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Veering winds! When a wind blowing from the east changes to northeast, north, and northwest, or changes in an anti-clockwise direction, it is said to "back". But when it changes in a clockwise direction say, from east to southeast, south and southwest, it is said to "veer". But if the wind changes in any direction whatever, people generally say the wind is veering. However, what one learns about these changes is that if the wind "backs", the storm (or cyclone) is passing to the east with its centre south of your point of observation; but if it "veers", then the storm's centre is passing north of your point of observation.

Madame Casgrain May be Appointed To the Senate

Montreal, Jan. 6—(CP) — The Gazette says today that the Dominion Government is reported "to be on the eye of appointing" Madame Pierre F. Casgrain, wife of the Speaker of the House of Commons, to the Senate.

Consideration of the appointment the Gazette says, "was interpreted here as pringing from a desire on the Government's part to express a gracious 'thank you' to the Province of Quebec for its electoral 'beau geste' in the last Provincial election."

The newspaper adds that appointment of Madame Casgrain would "give recognition to one of the most ardent feminist workers in the Dominion of Canada."

There are at present two women members in the Red chamber, Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa and Senator Iva Fallis of Peterborough, Ont. Madame Casgrain is a resident of Montreal.

SIX FISHERMEN REST AT HOMES

Crews Battered About in Floating Ice Unable to Reach Dock for a Day

Port Burwell, Ont., Jan. 6—(CP) —Six weary fishermen rested at their homes today and told a story of a fight against crushing ice floes that added another chapter to the saga of Lake Erie.

Safe in harbor were the sturdy fishing tugs Kenteau and the Dover Clipper. They docked early today after a shift in the wind allowed them to find paths through jammed ice. The crews said they suffered no hardship except lack of "smokes."

The Kenteau, in command of Captain Bunn Matthews and carrying a crew of four, was caught in the floes Friday night while attempting to make port. Late yesterday she had battered her way to within one-half mile of port after the larger vessel, Dover Clipper, in charge of Captain John Matthews, brother of the Kenteau's skipper, put out to her aid.

Together the craft progressed a mile towards shore after two members of the Kenteau transferred to the clipper to aid Captain John Matthews, who went alone to the aid of his brother. Then huge ice jams caught them up. A midnight wind shift carried away bulk of the floes and the vessels, owned by the Kole Fish Company, glided proudly into harbor.

PRIME MINISTER ALONE HOLDS KEY TO THE SITUATION

Chamberlain Will be Pressed for Full Statement of What Has Been Going on

CABINET NOT CONSULTED

It is Understood Commander Gort and Hore-Belisha Had Differences in Policy

London, Jan. 6.—(CP)— The account of the resignation of War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha by the military correspondent of the Press Association, follows—

Today, the politicians of all parties and the public alike are demanding to know what is behind Mr. Hore-Belisha's resignation, no one having expected such a turn of events.

The nation is dumbfounded. As soon as parliament reassembles on January 16, Mr. Chamberlain will be pressed for a full statement of what has been going on behind the scenes. He alone holds the key to the situation. It was he who initiated action and offered to Mr. Hore-Belisha the presidency of the Board of Trade.

It is understood that none of the Cabinet was consulted or knew what was pending with the exception of Sir John Simon.

The resignation is, it is declared, the culmination of a whispering campaign which originated in social circles rather than in political quarters, and spread so high and so extensively that Mr. Chamberlain could not be aware of it.

It is a sequel to the gradually widening rift between the War Minister and the higher command, men of his own choice and promotion.

SOVIET RUSSIA SIGNS AGREEMENT

Commercial Trade Treaty With Bulgaria Will Run Three Years

Moscow, Jan. 6.— (AP)— Soviet Russia has signed a three-year commercial and navigation agreement with Bulgaria, ratified a trade treaty with China and continued negotiations for a similar compact with Japan.

Tass, Soviet News Agency, which made the announcements yesterday, said the Bulgarian Treaty provides for "considerable extension of trade", and includes a reciprocal most-favored nation clause.

The agency said Russia would export agricultural machinery, ferrous metals, oil products, fertilizers, chemicals, cellulose, cotton in return for Bulgarian pork, hides, rice, tobacco and rose oil.

Terms of the navigation section were not disclosed, but some reports said it calls for a new shipping line between Odessa and Varna, Black Sea ports.

The treaty with China, negotiated last June 16, contains a most-favored nation clause and provides for maintenance of trade missions in the two countries.

Set of Psychological Commandments Employed to Solve Eternal Triangle

Hollywood, Jan. 6—(AP)—A set of psychological "10 Commandments" was employed by Dr. S. L. Katzoff, marital expert, in solving an "eternal triangle" case in Hollywood.

Dr. Katzoff believes they can be applied successfully to most such domestic rifts, he said today.

The Hollywood case involved a prominent film couple. The wife contended her husband had fallen in love with another woman. Denying this, he said his wife had hurt and antagonized him by criticizing his intellectual interests and friends.

Seeking Dr. Katzoff's aid, the actress insisted she still loved her husband and wanted to keep him, but seemed inclined to do something rather drastic about the other woman.

Dr. Katzoff told her that was not the way to work it. To build a solid reconciliation, he came here a few days ago from San Francisco, where he is medical director and consulting psychaitrist of the institute of human relations. He talked with both wife and husband. The upshot was that the couple went off to a secluded resort for a second honeymoon.

Following are Dr. Katzoff's "commandments" for winning back a straying mate:

1. Pretend to know nothing of the infatuation or new love affair.
2. Do not criticize or condemn the third party.
3. Do not criticize or condemn the mate.
4. Take an inventory of your own emotional assets and liabilities.
5. Begin to do the things one has neglected to do and shun things which should have been left undone or unsaid.
6. Try to remember that the greatest mischief maker is the human tongue.
7. Begin a campaign of undermining a mate's resistance by being unusually kind and attentive.
8. Give him merited praise, more than ever before. (Feed him mostly through his ears).
9. Compete with your competitor in every way.
10. Keep on visualizing the goal—that of re-winning him, and do everything in your power to accomplish that aim. Give particular attention to tactfulness, praise and making him feel important.

A Smaller Council

In view of the fact that the citizens of Belleville in January 1937 went on record by the vote of 1740 to 1419 in favor of reduction of the council to a mayor and six aldermen from the membership of mayor and thirteen aldermen as it is constituted at present, it would seem the time is opportune for the city council to make application to the Legislature for private legislation to amend the charter of the city of Belleville to reduce membership of the council to a mayor and six aldermen.

Since the time of the vote, the appointment of a comptroller has taken a great deal of the work off the committees and chairmen and in consequence there is not the need today for so many committees and chairmen as there was some years ago.

In the local Board of Education the city has an example of a body which was recently reduced in size from twenty-one members to nine members. The decision to reduce the membership of the board was carried by a large majority three years ago, when the vote on council reduction was taken. Apparently the present system of electing the board is working very satisfactorily both to the members and to the city.

The City of Niagara Falls, Ontario, is an example of a municipality which has reduced the membership of the council. There 19,000 people have a council of the mayor and seven aldermen. Prior to 1922 elections were held under the ward system, which was discarded at that time.

It would appear to be a fine gesture on the part of the incoming council and a very constructive piece of business to take such a step as applying to the Legislature for private legislation authorizing the change even if it might mean that those who favored reduction might by reason of the smaller number of seats deprive themselves at some date in the future of membership and remuneration such as they might have were they elected under the present system, but at the same time, reduction of the council membership would, it is estimated, save the municipality about $1,500 a year.

Of course any change would not be effective until the next election and the date of that is not certain. If the Premier of Ontario carries out the proposal of suspending municipal elections for two years or for the duration of the war, such reduction would come into force only with the next municipal election whenever that may be held.

London Evening Press Demands 'Whole Truth' Regarding Hore-Belisha

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 6 (CP-Cable)—Leslie Hore-Belisha went to the war office today to bid his staff good-bye while the London Evening Press demanded the "truth, and the whole truth", about his departure from the cabinet.

The authoritative Press Association said that for the present Mr. Hore-Belisha intends to make no statement other than the message to his constituents in which he remarked that "whatever task may fall to me, I shall perform with vigor, but I have no thought at the moment but that of winning the war."

Surrender Seals Tuesday.

On his arrival at the war office he went to his barely furnished private room overlooking Whitehall which he had used since his historic term as War Secretary began in 1937.

Seated at a large conference desk, he received the heads of departments and thanked them for their cooperation. Afterwards he left for Warren Farm in the rural surroundings of Wimbledon Common—a 17th century residence he purchased a year ago.

It is understood he will surrender the seals of office Tuesday.

Long before his arrival at the war office messages of sympathy and of appreciation for his work began arriving. They included offers of lucrative contracts which it is understood he has no intention of accepting. A friend sent spring flowers, with a card: "If winter comes, can spring be far behind?"

MERCURY SKIDS TOWARD ZERO IN EAST U. S.

Cold Wave Advances Another Lap in Journey From Rockies

HEAVY SNOWFALL

New York, Jan. 6—(AP)—Temperatures skidded toward the zero mark in the Eastern United States today as the cold wave advanced another lap in its journey from the Rockies.

The frigid weather eased somewhat in the Middlewest after a day of zero and sub-zero temperatures but the mercury was still far below freezing.

Snow ranging from flurries to a 10-inch fall was reported from scattered parts of the east, middlewest, southwest and Rocky Mountain region.

A snow storm raged in the southwest. The weather bureau at Albuquerque, N.M., reported the storm area extended from the continental divide in western New Mexico northeast to Wichita, Kas., east to Oklahoma City and southeast to Abilene, Tex. A two-day storm left two to ten inches of snow in Utah and southern Idaho.

Fifty persons were treated at Denver hospitals after minor accidents blamed on ice-glazed streets and sidewalks. Most of Wyoming was covered with two to eight inches of snow.

Freezing temperatures on the Atlantic seaboard extended as far south as the Carolinas. The mercury hit the low twenties in Virginia.

River traffic at Pittsburgh was virtually suspended by ice. The Ohio River along the Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky borders was ice filled and in some places frozen over.

Willston, N.D., with 25 below, was the coldest spot in the country.

DARING ATTEMPT ON BRITON'S LIFE MADE AT SHANGHAI

C. Godfrey Phillips, Secretary of Council, Fired on by Japanese Terrorists

ESCAPES INJURY

Shanghai, Jan. 6 (CP)C. Godfrey Phillips, Commissioner-General and Secretary of the Shanghai Municipal Council and a Briton, escaped injury today in a daring assassination attempt.

As the commissioner was being driven in his automobile on Avenue Haig, in the French Concession, en-route to his office, two men pulled jinrikishas into the path of the machine.

When the car swerved and slowed down, the men fired pistols from both sides, six bullets piercing the car.

Phillips dropped to the floor, uninjured, and his chauffeur sped ahead.

The terrorists fled towards Greater Shanghai, which is under Japanese-dominated rule, and were reported seized by private watchmen of a gambling house. It was not known immediately whether they had been handed over to Greater Shanghai officials.

The shooting followed the appearance here yesterday of anti-foreign posters on walls just outside the international settlement.

A native of Gloucestershire, England, Phillips came to Shanghai in 1934. As chief of the executive council, he recently has been active in negotiating with the Japanese-controlled Shanghai government over control of roads outside the international settlement.

NO INDICATION OF ARMED ACTION TO BACK THREATS

Reich Troops Remain Massed in Depth Facing French Positions but Activity Slight

HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE

Reconnaissance Flights Carried Out by Germans but Executed by Way of Belgium

Paris, Jan. 6. — (CP-Havas)— French military authorities reported today there has been no change in German troop dispositions which would indicate immediate armed action to back up the renewed Nazi campaign of threats against neutral countries.

Reich troops remained massed in depth facing the French positions, but military activity along the front was slight—even the heavy patrol and artillery activity which occurred yesterday having slackened.

The customary reconnoitring patrols were sent out by both sides, however, and artillery fire during the night was fairly heavy near Apach.

There was little activity in the air, although German planes twice managed to fly deep into eastern and northern France on reconnaissance missions. The second of these flights was carried out by way of Belgium, both coming and going.

The liveliest infantry activity yesterday took place when a German patrol, which had penetrated between the Maginot Line and French outposts on a wooded sector of the front, surprised a mess detail bringing up food from the main French Line. The French soldiers put down the food and succeeded in routing the Germans with rifle fire.

Ministers Confer On Balkan Policies

Venice, Jan. 6.—(AP) — Count Galeazzo Ciano and Count Stepnen Csaky, Foreign Ministers of Italy and Hungary, conferred for two hours today on Balkan policies and reviewed the relations of the two nations.

Following a luncheon attended by eighty Fascist officials, their meeting was to be resumed this afternoon.

Ciano told newspapermen after the first talk that the conference was intended to develop further collaboration already existing between Italy and Hungary "particularly for the maintenance of peace

The Italian foreign minister said the conversations showed "the greatest cordiality" and a "complete identity of views on problems concerning defence of order and peace in Europe".

FIRE LOSSES LOWER

Toronto, Jan. 6—(CP)—Firelosses in Canada declined for the week ended Dec. 30 according to the Monetary Times' estimates of $133,900. This compared with loss of $281,060 for the preceding week and $285,300 for the final week in 1938.

Total losses in 1939, according to a preliminary estimate, amounted to $13,576,910 compared with ..$16,990,450 for 1938.

King Carol Serves Strong Warning To Soviet Russia

Rumania Will Fight "As One Living Wall" if Russian Armies Attempt to Invade Bessarabia

ARMY IS READY

Russia Has Never Recognized Rumania Sovereignty Over Bessarabia — Large Portion of Troops Moved Out Are Replaced

Chisinau, Rumania, Jan. 6—(AP) —King Carol served a strong warning to Soviet Russia today that Rumania will fight "as one living wall" if Russian armies attempt to invade Bessarabia.

Speaking after reviewing a parade of troops, planes and tanks at Chisinau (Kishinev), capital of Bessarabia, 12 miles from the Russian border, the king insisted Bessarabia "will always remain Rumanian by the force of our arms."

General George Argesanu, commander of the third army corps, told the crowd which assembled at the governor's palace to hear the king that the "whole army from the first man to the last is ready to defend the eastern border."

Russian, Ukranian and German minority leaders of Bessarabia—which was Russian until the war settlement of 1919—publicly swore allegiance for themselves and their followers to King Carol and Rumania. Russia never has recognized Rumanian sovereignty over Bessarabia.

"We pledge our lives for our beloved Rumanian fatherland," they declared.

As he reviewed the troops, King Carol was flanked by Premier Georges Tatarescu, Crown Prince Michael and the ministers of war, navy and air.

The king's speech followed a similar declaration by Tatarescu at Constanta, Black Sea port, Jan. 1.

Rumania was reported to have moved most of her troops out of Bessarabia a few months ago with the semi-official explanation that the province was impossible to defend. If it was invaded, Rumania indicated at the time, the Rumanian army would abandon it and make a stand along the river Pruth.

However, authoritative sources have admitted that since Finland's successful resistance against the Red Army, the government has moved troops back into the province and expressed greater confidence in Rumania's ability to defend herself in case of a Russian invasion.

'POSSUM HOUND STILL MISSING

Washington, Ind., Jan. 6—(AP) —Policeman Christopher Guthrie is looking for his 'possum hound. He said he had only to display a pelt-stretching board to the dog, and immediately the pooch would go out and catch a 'possum with a skin exactly the size of the board. Several days ago, he said, the dog accidentally saw the family ironing board and has been missing since.

Increased Prices for Farm Products Predicted by Agricultural Minister

Toronto, Jan. 6 (CP)—Increased prices for farm products in 1940 was predicted today by Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Agriculture Minister.

"These increases may be small in some cases but in others they are certain to be more substantial than anticipated a few months ago," the Minister said in his agricultural outlook for 1940.

"War conditions have naturally upset the ordinary calculations of farmers," he said. "They have brought about increased overseas demands for some farm products and reduced the demands for others."

"Altered market demands due to war call for careful thinking and planning for 1940."

The Minister urged farmers to use increased incomes to the best advantage. Farms mortgages should be reduced and farm surroundings improved in preference to "unwarranted investments in more land at inflated values as was the case in the last war," he said.

Urged Field Crop Cultivation

Reviewing crop prospects the Minister urged wide field crop cultivation to supply fodder for livestock.

"With a wartime demand for bacon, cheese and concentrated milk products, the Ontario farmer must first produce field crops with which to feed hogs, dairy and beef cattle."

"He must wrest from the soil every bushel of oats, barley and mixed grains it will produce," Mr. Dewan said.

The Minister forecast continued demand and increased prices for cheese and powdered and evaporated milk for army supplies. In October 1939, cheese exported to the United Kingdom totalled 15,280,000 pounds compared with 11,583,000 pounds in the same month in 1938. A slight increase in tobacco to the United Kingdom is also anticipated.

Based on the increased purchases of seed potatoes, a bumper potato crop is expected in 1940 with prices likely to hold firm. Recent exports of canned fruits to the United Kingdom have increased and the demand is likely to carry over to 1940, Mr. Dewan predicted.

"Taking all the available agricultural data into consideration, the outlook for the Ontario farmer is brighter," the Minister summed up.

SHIPS SUNK THIS WEEK

By the Canadian Press

Sea warfare was at a low ebb in the week ending Jan. 5 dispatches from London tended to the belief that the enemy was concentrating on assembling his forces for a new phase of the war at sea and that submarines and mine-laying craft temporarily were inactive.

One British and one French ship were lost during the week, while a German vessel which went ashore off Spain after eluding an Allied patrol broke up on the rocks. Another, the Gonzeuheim, was learned to have been scuttled last September. Its tonnage was 4,574.

The week's sinkings of merchant ships:—

EXECUTIVE'S WIFE BRUTALLY SLAIN

Skull of Woman Smashed by Double-Bitted Axe Found Near the Home

Aberdeen, Wash., Jan. 6.—(AP) —Mrs. Dick Law, wife of a Congress of Industrial Organizations Millworkers' Union official, was brutally murdered at the home of her parents last night while her infant daughter slept soundly and unharmed in an upstairs room.

Coroner John Stevenson said Mrs. Law's skull had been smashed, apparently by a double-bitted axe. Such a weapon, blood-covered, was found near the house.

The coroner said the house showed evidence of a violent struggle. He said Mrs. Law's body was found lying in the living room surrounded by overturned furniture. After killing Mrs. Law, her assailants ransacked the dwelling.

Mrs. Law's husband learned of the gruesome murder when he returned home from a meeting of a C.I.O. Executive Council.

Law was active in denouncing a mob which wrecked the Finnish Workers' Federation Hall here shortly after Russia's invasion of Finland. He accompanied members of the Finnish Socialist Society when they filed a claim against the city for allegedly having allowed rioters to wreck the hall and destroy furnishings.

CHILDREN ENJOY FREE SKATING AT THE HUME ARENA

Upwards of 500 school children, both boys and girls, enjoyed the privileges of Saturday morning free skating at the Hume Arena this morning. The joyous voices of the kiddies, while gaining healthful recreation, was ample proof of the fact the free skating at the Arena is thoroughly enjoyed by the children of Belleville. Twice a week these free skating hours are afforded the school children at the Arena. A splendid sheet of ice was in evidence this morning.

'Little Chief' Makes Ideal Mascot for Regt.

When the bugles blow "muster" and the boys of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment "fall in" on parade "somewhere in England" nearby with coppery arms raised in an attitude of benediction, will be "Little Chief" eight-foot Indian statue which has been officially adopted by the regiment as its mascot.

"For fifty years," "Little Chief" braved Quinte suns atop a canning factory in Picton, his body bullet-scarred with pellets fired by pranksters of the Prince Edward County town.

When the troops moved into the factory, commandeered for billeting purposes, he became the favorite of the boys. As they passed many saluted the tall figure. He became a byword in the regimental messes. Then the boys officially adopted him and "Little Chief" became an honorary member of the regiment.

When the regiment prepared to entrain for an eastern port prior to embarkation for England, the "Chief" was removed from his lofty perch and given a position of prominence in front of the N.C.O.'s mess, draped with blankets, bottles and signs bearing varying regimental inscriptions. Later he was wrapped in blankets, carried aboard the army train and later on a troop ship bound for England.

The "Chief" is an ideal mascot, so the boys think. He eats nothing, drinks nothing, and says nothing. The proud head that rears over eight feet above the buckskin-clad body wears the naughty mien, and proud carriage of those warriors whose history is linked with the pioneers of the district after which the regiment is named.

"Little Chief" will undergo a thorough overhauling in England, according to E. A. Pearce, district representative of the canning company, former owners of the mascot, English representatives have been instructed to give the "Chief" a brand new coat of warpaint, mount him on wheels and generally "doll" him up so that he can be present at all muster parades of the unit.

Box of Old-Type Sulphur Matches Found in Store

Veritable treasure houses of articles used by the older generations of the province, the little country stores of Ontario occasionally bring forth from dusty hiding places those things that were in common use six or seven decades ago, and yet are novelties to the present generation.

For instance Edward Ashley, commercial traveller, while covering his "beat" recently, stumbled across one of those ancient boxes of matches, that grandfather and grandmother used in the long, long ago.

Enclosed in crude hand-made paper cases, cylindrical in shape, the matches are of wood, and have small red heads. A heavy covering of sulphur is hidden beneath the lighting surface of the head which when ignited gives off strong fumes, that are irritating, if inhaled.

Mr. Ashley secured his "treasure" from a friend whose grocery store connection purchased the matches over sixty years ago. While removing an old counter from the store, the grocer discovered a wooden box, with a sliding top, that contained a half-gross of the matches, all in a perfect state of preservation.

Tweed Resident Given One Year Term for Possessing a Still

Appearing before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd at Tweed on a second offence of violations of the Excise Act, Stephen Wood, Flinton, was convicted of being found in the illegal possession of parts of a still suitable for the manufacture of illicit liquor. Wood was sentenced to six months and in addition a fine of $500.00 and costs. In default of the payment of the assessed fine Wood was given an additional six months and was lodged in the Napanee jail following the trial, which was held yesterday. Constable Wm. Beatty of the R.C.M.P. preferred the charge.

FRIDAY'S SNOWFALL WILL BENEFIT WOOD-CUTTING OPERATIONS

Farmers of the district viewed with appreciative eye the generous fall of snow that enveloped the city and district in its first complete white mantle yesterday and last night.

"It will greatly facilitate wood-cutting operations in our district," a northern Prince Edward County resident stated.

Water in the swampy lands where a number of Prince Edward farmers derive their summer wood supply, has been badly depleted by the severe Autumn drought, and the arrival of snow will greatly aid the hauling of wood from the sources of supply.

SHORTAGE OF WATER IN RURAL DISTRICTS STILL IN ACUTE STAGE

Shortage of water for domestic and agricultural purposes is still in the acute stage, rural residents stated today. Many farmers of the surrounding districts are forced to drive their cattle considerable distances, or haul water from nearby lakes or the river. The present heavy snow will greatly hamper the driving of cattle any lengthy distances, and in some instances impede haulage to some extent.

Farmers, however, look for an early January thaw which will alleviate to some extent the present water shortage.

RETURN TO Mother
IN GOOD CONDITION

Every little child that's admitted to The Hospital for Sick Children . . . there were more than 9,000 last year . . . wears an imaginary tag that reads "Return to Mother in Good Condition".

For more than sixty years, this Hospital has been receiving the sick and crippled children of Ontario, treating them, healing them, and sending them home to grow up and become healthy, USEFUL citizens.

Now, more than ever before, children have a greater chance to be sent home in "Good Condition".

Advances in medical science have increased greatly the scope and services of this Hospital. New treatments have been discovered to improve . . . even cure . . . the crippled children once doomed to a life of misery. Great strides have been taken to reduce the horrible effects of Poliomyelitis. New cures have been discovered for Pneumonia and many other diseases.

All these wonderful developments, plus the increase in emergency accident cases, add to the operating expenses of the Hospital.

But nothing new has yet been developed that will add, in the same proportion, something to the OPERATING REVENUE, except, of course, the generous support of kindly Ontario citizens who make many sacrifices to send a donation to help The Hospital for Sick Children.

Please appoint yourself a benefactor of sick and crippled children . . . send a generous gift to the Hospital TODAY. Your financial assistance is urgently needed.

NAMES BY WHICH WARS ARE KNOWN

What will be the name of the war now raging between the Allies and Germany and that of Finland against the invading Russians?

The late war of 1914-18 has gone by the two names, The World War and The Great War. Perhaps these names will not endure. Posterity may have a hand in changing the name of this struggle.

The present war is in fact not yet a world war but it is a great war and yet as every nation is armed to the teeth, neutral and combatant, and as it affects the world in general more than even the war of 1914-1918 it may in a sense be called a world war.

Attention is called to the fact that some English writers are calling the war of 1914-1918 the First German War, which the Montreal Gazette says is "simple, descriptive, accurate." This would make the present hostilities the Second German War "and it may well be that history will so designate them—both having been caused by German ambition and unscrupulousness."

It may be that this or some other apt name for the war will appear and find its way into history and there lodge for all time.

Wars have been numberless throughout history but they have been given names which are largely simple. There were the Hittite wars; the Ethiopian and Nubian wars; Assyrian wars! Persian wars; the Peloponnesian War (431-404 B.C.); named after the aggressor Sparta in the Peloponnesus against Athens, the symbol of democracy; the wars of Alexander (334-323 B.C.); named after the great conqueror; the Pyrrhic war named after the King of Epirus who fought the Romans; the Punic wars between Rome and Carthage, the people of the latter city-state being known as of the Punic race; the Gallic War and the War in Britain, of Julius Caesar; wars of the Barbarian invasions, named after the barbaric Huns; the Wars of Charlemagne against the anti-Christian German tribes (768-814); Feudal Wars of the Middle Ages, largely local in character; the Crusades named for the religious purpose of the struggle of saving the Holy Land from the Mohammedan, the word "crusade" being from the Latin word 'crux" meaning cross, the symbol of the Christian faith; The Hundred Years War of England and France; the Wars of Religion; the War of the Spanish Succession; the Seven Years' War; The War of American Independence; the French Revolution, the Napoleonic Wars, named after the conqueror and dictator Napoleon, the maker and breaker of kings but himself broken at last by the strength of British seapower; the War of 1812; the Greek War of Independence (1821-1828); the Italian War of Liberation; the Crimean War; the American Civil War; the Spanish-American War; the South-African War; the Sino-Japanese War; the Italo-Ethiopian War; and the Spanish Civil War.

These are names of some wars of history. They all are very simple and descriptive. Some are named after territory which changed hands, many are named after the aggressor, some are named after a religious principle as the Crusades, others after the cause of the war as in the case of the Spanish Succession, others for the nations involved. Some have been named for the length of the war.

THE WINTER'S SETTING

Winter which withheld its snow until almost Christmas and then furnished but a thin mantle of white, has descended on the country in earnest. Snow-white landscapes now become the natural setting for the lives of the people for the next three months.

The people of the north welcome the snow. It has become a part of their experience and of the national life. They take as much glee as southern visitors who have never seen snow do when they see the first flakes falling or as children who feel like chasing the snow crystals as they fall.

Snow has its advantage. It is a common belief that man does not feel the cold when there is snow as much as he does in a winter largely without snow. There is no doubt a psychological reason for this as well as a physical background of fact. The snow fills up the crannies in walls of the older houses, closes the chinks in basements so that drafts of air are not blown beneath the flooring.

Rain is out of place in winter and is not wanted. The nearest approach to it is snow and the spells of thaw.

Today snow does not blockade the country as it used to do. Motor traffic demands cleared highways and the result is the use of ploughs to keep the roads clear.

Snow is an economic factor by providing protection for the young roots of the grains and the roots of trees, it provides moisture in its best form at this time of the year. It furnishes work in cities and towns and on railways that the ways may be kept clear.

NO ROOM FOR COMMUNIST THOUGHT

There is no room for communistic thought in these days. Results at the polls in Ontario elections this month showed clearly that Canadians want none of this type of thinking in their municipal representatives.

This ought to be a sign to the Communists that they represent something which is not desired in Canadian life. They should see that Canada is getting along with its well-established opinions and making its way. But somehow they have the wrenched and twisted notion that they can set up a perfect state, while if they would just look at their originators in Russia they would see what Communism is. There it means anything but efficiency, it means aggression, it means lack of sympathy for other ways of thought.

Events of the last year with the pact of Red Russia and Nazi Germany have brought stern realities.

One thing the Communists can ask themselves—why is it that democratic countries, which are as free as the wind that blows, permit them to hold office, when Communism is itself the most repressive of political creeds and allows no rights to others? Why cannot they see that the very liberty they enjoy in Canada is a proof that the things the Communists stand for are wrong.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 6, 1920.

The Picton - Trenton - Belleville junior series in hockey has commenced with Belleville in the lead. Many who witnessed the exhibition games of our spirited juniors predicted that they would come out on top when the real O.H.A. games commenced and they certainly lived up to expectations last night when they defeated the fast Picton juniors at the arena here. The score at the end of the first period was 2-0, at the end of the second period 3-0 and at the end of the third period 7-1 in favor of Belleville.

The following composed the teams: Belleville, Hulin, Beach, Holway, Coon, Canning, Tilton, subs, Swayne and Hagerman. Picton, H. Trimble. G. Clapp, J. Carter, E. Graves, H. Stafford and R. Rorke, subs, C. McWilliams and A. Grinrod; sub goal, R. Wright. Lou Marsh was the referee.

Many geniuses are at work trying to perfect flying machines.

Some time during last night Bush's barber shop on the market square was entered and six razors and other articles were stolen. The police have the matter in hand.

Jack Marks, formerly of Belleville, who is now playing with the All-Montreal hockey team, had his left foot frozen in the recent game with the Shamrocks.

40 YEARS AGO

JANUARY 6, 1900.

The Rev. Joseph H. Locke of Eglington, Toronto, has been invited by the Quarterly Official Board of the Tabernacle Church to become pastor of the church commencing next June in succession to the Rev. Newton Hill. Mr. Locke is no stranger in this city, he having been the first pastor of Holloway Street Methodist Church after its separation from Bridge Street Methodist Church. He resided here for three years, 1878, 1879 and 1880. Since then he has been the pastor of large churches in Toronto and of George Street Methodist Church in Peterboro. Mr. and Mrs. Locke will be welcomed back to Belleville by many friends.

Mr. George H. Pope, who has been at Halifax, N.S., in connection with the fitting up of the transports for South Africa, has returned to his home here.

Midget Submarines

There are good technical reasons for doubting whether Germany will accomplish anything with the 150-ton submarines which, according to a dispatch from Paris, she is about to build or rather to assemble from standardized parts. Limited to cruises of only four or five days' duration, these "vest-pocket" undersea craft would just about reach the lanes of transatlantic traffic in mid-ocean when they would have to refuel. The harbors and estuaries of the British Isles are now so well mined and the convoy system so effective that not much is to be expected from activities in waters nearer home. If there were any great virtue in these midgets, presumably Germany would have built them in the last war. As it is, the submarine has been increasing in size ever since it was introduced, and gaining in seaworthiness until in its most highly developed British and French form it is now a huge gun-carrying vessel which has a cruising radius of several thousand miles.

Germany's commerce - destroying tactics are very much the same as those which were developed during the last war. Apparently only one device has not yet been used, and that is the commerce-destroying freighter which relied upon a seaplane to spot distant prey. Such a menace of the sea was the Wolf, which proved highly effective in Pacific waters during the last war. The Germans are more likely to resort to tested inventions of this type than to stake much on small submarines of short radius.—New York Times.

Poland Under Two Despotisms

The doing of the Gestapo, even among their own countrymen, are not of a kind on which they are willing to let the light of publicity play, says the Times, London, but in spite of rigid suppression of news enough intelligence is now coming through from Poland to show that German administration of conquered territory has changed its spirit little since the reign of terror in Belgium twenty-five years ago. The Polish government are compiling an official list of the cruelties reported to them, which will be published shortly. Meanwhile General Sikorski, the prime minister, has spoken in general terms of the atrocities committed; survivors have escaped to recount their experiences; and it is possible to put together a fairly detailed picture of Poland under the oppressor's heel.

It appears to be the deliberate policy of the Nazis to attempt to humiliate the gallant people whom their superior numbers and resources have temporarily overwhelmed. The head of the administration at Lodz, after blowing u pthe statue of the hero Kosciuszko, announced: "We are masters. As masters we must behave. The Pole is a servant here and must only serve." Scientific distinction, it seems, is above the station of servants, though theft is not thought beneath the dignity of masters; accordingly the research installation of the famous Warsaw Institute of Experimental Physics has been dismantled by a committee of Nazi professors, who have carried off their plunder to Germany. There are notices posted outside hotels forbidding the entry of Poles and Jews, and there are concentration camps up and down the country, where no doubt the Nazi bullies demonstrate their "superiority" in the accustomed manner. Poles are conscribed into gangs for heavy labor, sometimes in the depths of Germany, and special pleasure seems to be taken in forcing distinguished men to perform menial tasks and the old to exhaust themselves with work beyond their strength. There are the minor brutalities. There are also more blood-thirsty forms of persecution. Executions are of daily occurrence. Locally prominent men are seized and shot, apparently with the intention of breaking the spirit of the people by the destruction of their leaders; and in some parts the roads are stated to be lined with the graves of hostages taken in what is called the "blood-tax" of the villages. These murders are frequently committed in public, before the eyes of the whole local population, who are sometimes hounded from their beds at midnight to watch the grim spectacle. Beyond this constant menace of sudden death looms the threat of famine; for the rich agricultural country of Western Poland is being denuded of its harvests to feed the conquerors, and the great cities which normally depend upon it have only a few weeks' reserve between themselves and starvation.

The Poles subjected to the Soviet yoke are victims of a less bloody but scarcely less rigorous tyranny. Here also dictatorship has closed its iron grip, and the determination to obliterate Polish nationality is shown by the renewal of the old Tsarist attempt to suppress the Polish language. The government is in the hands of a military and police oligarchy controlled from Moscow, which has organized so-called elections on the well-known totalitarian plan. That is to say, there is only one set of candidates and the task of the assembly when elected is not to legislate but to confiscate land, banks, and industrial capital, assent to a revolutionary constitution, and then abdicate. The process of expropriation is at present in its very early stages, and it is not yet clear that the peasants, whom the Soviet have encouraged to seize the great estates for themselves, will be so ready to co-operate in a collective regime. The erection of the theoretic Marxist system presumably has to wait upon the drilling of the popular mind, which is being provided for by the subjection of the machinery of education to propagandist control.

Torn asunder and shared between these two despotisms, Poland has the sympathy of all nations for whom liberty still has a meaning, and not only of those who are fighting on her side. More than most European nations she has experience of oppression, and she has her own history to assure her that her national spirit is indestructible. It is incarnate now in her sons, enrolled in her own army and under the control of her own government, who are standing shoulder to shoulder on the western front with the men of the two powers pledged to her liberation. —Montreal Gazette.

LIFE'S HIGHWAY

Arthur L. Burke

Along life's highway I have often lingered,
And scanned with interest every passing face,
The old and tried, the young with great ambition,
From every country, every clime, and race.

With vision clear and happy voices ringing,
With hopeful hearts each treading toward the goal,
Of future tasks and worthy aspirations,
The face of youth, alert and clean of soul.

I saw the face that spoke of indecision
The look that comes when one has lost the fight,
The lines that leave the mark of dissipation,
With no desire to battle for the right.

And other faces seemed to glow with sunshine,
They told of mighty battles fought and won,
Triumphant, filled with all of earth's great treasure
The joy of service and of deeds well done.

Then as I viewed each face in quick succession,
And tried to understand the many trials of man,
Some pitfalls we might shun if we could rip asunder,
The veil obscuring life's perplexing plan.

When I have seen life's last remaining sunset,
And passed from view across the great Divide,
I'll be content if I but know in passing,
I've helped some one to win against the tide.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Many Apparently Healthy People Have Tuberculosis

Some years ago in discussing tuberculosis with the medical superintendent of a large sanitorium, he gave it as his opinion that at least half the adult population had or had had tuberculosis. Today it is agreed that practically everybody has had tuberculosis somewhere in the body. It is because most of us have gained some knowledge of health habits— rest, food, exercise — tuberculosis has failed to make any headway within us.

It would appear also that there are a number of individuals who have "active" tuberculosis but because they are able to go about their work daily, neither they nor their families are aware of it.

Drs. C. F. Baker and W. J. Marquis, Newark, N.J., in Radiology "emphasize the unexpected finding of tuberculosis in a large number of supposedly well people who had, immediately before having an Xray examination, passed a satisfactory physical examination." There are cases in which people have lost little or no time from work for years and yet were, by chance, found to be suffering from tuberculosis of one or both lungs, with cavities, and the tubercle organisms in their sputum.

"Of a group of healthy male factory workers examined only because they were about to be transferred to work known to be hazardous, 6 per cent were found to show lung symptoms so severe that they were not permitted to transfer to the hazardous work."

Drs. Baker and Marquis believe it probable that more than 1 percent of their readers, though considering themselves well, would be discovered to have either tuberculosis or some other serious lung condition if they submitted to an Xray examination. Even those who feel well should be urged to submit occasionally to an Xray examination of the lungs. "This Xray examination becomes more urgently necessary if a person has frequent colds or feels tired more than he should."

I believe the above information is timely. Instead of feeling alarmed that tuberculosis is so widespread, we should be comforted by the fact that it is not an incurable disease if people can have it and still lose no time from work.

Further, the fact that an Xray examination of the lungs is now available free in most cities for those whose funds are low is very gratifying.

Play for the Middle-Aged

The subject of appropriate physical exercise for persons of middle age is once more under intensive discussion, since Premier Hepburn has elected to try skating as a means of keeping fit during winter.

Some doctors say that Mr. Hepburn couldn't have made a better selection. He is 43, and at such an age the medical men say there has to be judicious discrimination with regard to physical exercise. It would not be advisable for the average person of middle age to attempt to play hockey with the youngsters or to get into strenuous tennis or football games. They agree that skating is an excellent way to get beneficial exercise, provided it is not overdone or that the subject is not overweight or the victim of heart disease. Pleasure skating for exercise could not harm anyone.

There is another school of medical men which urges extreme discretion in the matter of physical exercise for those who have passed the 40 mark. They are inclined to the opinion that more people of that class do harm to themselves by physical exercise than occurs through lack of it. They are representatives of the theory that walking is the best of all exercises and that there is no danger of getting too much of it. They hold strongly to the idea that after the youth period, when strenuous games can be played without damage, is passed, the thing to do is to be extremely moderate in physical exercise, particularly if the individual has abandoned all games for a time. The great danger seems to occur when a person goes back to games that he or she has not played for some years. The re-introduction to strenuous physical exercise ought to be gradual. The muscles have to become built up and the action of the vital organs adjusted to extra strains. This requires time.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Encouraging the Tourist

German propaganda may be crude and childish, but it cannot safely be ignored. It is all very well to laugh over the vapourings of "Lord Haw-Haw" and to marvel at the absurdities of Munchausen Goebbels; but when it comes to a deliberate attempt to injure one of Canada's most profitable industries, it is time to take serious notice. This Dominion has spent large sums of money on building up its tourist business, advertising the varied attractions of its different provinces and persuading an ever-increasing number of citizens from the United States to come and revel in our scenery and enjoy our hospitality. With Europe cut off from trans-Atlantic pleasure travel, intensive efforts have been made on this continent to divert the stream of sight-seers to the famous beauty-spots, north and south. In the United States the slogan "see America first" has naturally been much to the fore, but a good deal of attention has been paid, also, to places of interest outside that country, in which Canada has had its fair share.

A typical tourist appeal is that of Mr. Howard Braucher, Secretary of the United States National Recreation Association, as published in the official bulletin of the United States Travel Bureau. He says that "experiences, not things and not dollars, make people what they are — experiences enrich life, broaden vision, sharpen perception and deepen understanding of people and of the world around them." "Travel," he adds, "perhaps more than any other experience, brings to individuals the opportunity to know more of nature and her wonders, of peoples of different race and clime, of the sources of our daily living, of the means of producing wealth, or a thousand things that we can never get from books or conversations or lectures or other cources of information." No exception can be taken to such statements as these, which are, indeed, a direct incentive to Americans to visit their neighbors. Citizens of Canada are only too glad to co-operate in movements assisting an interchange of such tourist travel and promoting closer relationships and better understanding between the two peoples.

But the Nazis have seen in these activities an opportunity of harming the interests of this Dominion, by spreading reports which, though utterly false and ridiculous, are calculated to deter American citizens from crossing the border. It is charged that the cars of American tourists will be commandeered by the authorities for war purposes; moreover, American money, far from being at a premium in this Dominion, is said to be exchanged at the rate of only fifty-nine cents on the dollar. Many other fictitious impositions are mentioned which, if true, would make the entry of the American tourist into Canada a truly formidable ordeal. This unscrupulous lying propaganda, which may be regarded by the majority of people as too silly to have any effect, cannot be ignored, and it is well to know that the Canadian Tourist Bureau is taking measures to nullify the mischief. Efforts of organizations and of Canadian citizens in general to encourage the people of the United States to go north for health, pleasure, delightful recreation and enjoyment should be redoubled, in answer to this hostile Nazi manoeuvre. — Hamilton Spectator.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

One of the uncertain factors in the war outlook is the ability of the Soviet Government to change its policy overnight when faced with a failure. Due to the repulse of the Soviet troops invading Finland on three fronts, Russia appears confronted with the choice of carrying on a war against an expanding international army or quietly dropping the whole venture.

Were it not for the history of Russia and the Communist regime the latter alternative would appear impossible. For another nation the loss of prestige would be serious. It would probably result in the overthrow of the government and invite a more aggressive attitude on the part of rival nations.

The Russian people, however, know little about the Finnish war and nothing about the defeat of their armies. The Soviet press and radio tell the people Finland, aided by the capitalist powers, attacked Russia.

As long as that impression can be maintained its internal prestige is to keep the Finns out of Russia.

Russia Less Vulnerable

As a nation Russia is less vulnerable than almost any country in the world. It has little to fear from other nations, certainly as long as its principal likely enemies are at war with one another.

So a further exhibition of the experimental, opportunist tactics so often displayed by the Soviet Government and the Communist International is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

One previous instance of a complete reversal of policy was the adoption of the united front tactics by the Communist parties throughout the world. For years they remained aloof from all other movements, seeking to destroy Socialist parties and non-Communist trade unions. Then came a new policy. They joined forces with the movements they previously attacked.

Another was the Spanish Civil War. Russia aided the Leftist Government in Spain with men, money and propaganda and fought against Nazism and Fascism. When the war was lost the Soviet Government made an alliance with Nazi Germany.

Still another was the Russian attitude to the League of Nations and the principle of collective security. Russian spokesmen at Geneva were among the loudest in denouncing German and Italian aggression. Now Russia shares the spoils of German aggression in Poland and commits new aggression against Finland on its own behalf.

ALL IS BRIGHT

CHAPTER XIII

As if to make up for his coolness that morning Kent explained everything as they went along.

Their car ran through narrow crooked streets that wound in and out between crude huts thatched with grass. Yet every once in a while they would pass a grand stucco house sunk in rank overgrowth which seemed to pull at its very walls. Lovely houses—Star tried to imagine them as they had been when they were new — white in the bright sunshine, their lawns trimly cut and banked with a riot of color.

Then all at at once they were in the Plaza—bare and dusty, with the President's Palace rising hard and white on one side. Star did not like it. She was glad when they turned of once more into a little road that wound slowly up the mountain. Women on donkeys peacefully smoking pipes, drew to one side to watch them pass. They preserved a curious dignity for all their tattered dresses and odd means of transportation. Many other groups passed them on foot —almost every woman carried at least one tin oil can on her head.

"For water," Kent explained to Star's question. "They need water up in the hills and they use old oil cans to carry it."

After that, when one of the tattered children ran alongside the car shouting, "Five cent — five cent," in a peculiar singsong. Star threw some coins recklessly into the grass beside the road. Yet she doubted whether the little beggars really understood what they were asking for. They liked the fun of scrambling for the money, but they hardly seemed to think of what the shining pieces would buy.

"It's like an enchanted land," she told Kent happily. "They're poor, but they don't mind. I doubt if they even know it. And, after all, they have the things that count—sunshine and beauty and peaceful days. We need no more, do we?"

Kent was looking off to the hills that dropped in softly rolling terraces to the new distant harbor. He was silent for so long Star wondered if he had heard. Finally he said, without taking his eyes from the scene below. "Some of us don't I should think if two people felt like that about it they'd own the world."

She was aware suddenly that he was close beside her, that his brass buttons winked at her in the sun. She stared at them, unable to meet his eyes although she knew that was what he was waiting for. And for the first time she was afraid—afraid that this new and startling inner turmoil his voice had the power to raise would be apparent even to them.

The car stopped before a low open building floored with terra cotta tile and flanked with incongruous slot machines. Just outside, a lovely balcony looked upon a terraced garden; below and away stretched the cane fields like dainty green patches on a colorful quilt. But there was no time to admire the view. The rest of the passengers were gathered in one excited group in a corner of the balcony.

Even before Star left the car the crowd had parted and stood waiting for them. And she saw with a catch in her throat that it was Gloria they were surrounding. Gloria, limp and still, in a low chair!

x x x

It was all so mixed up. Gloria, leaning heavily on Kent's arm had immediately been whisked down the mountain. There were sympathetic murmurs that the altitude had affected her heart. Star did not see her roommate again until she returned after shopping with Barton and Stuart.

Star was carrying an immense sun hat and a basket that she was sure would not fit into their already overcrowded cabin. Stuart was quietly proud of his machete —found only after trips to every shop along the water front. Barton was only a shade less exuberant than his small son. He was proudly carrying a tom-tom which he had been assured was once used for voodoo rites. They were tranquil, at peace with themselves and with the world. She could even manage to greet Jack Coates without the instinctive dislike he had gradually aroused in her.

They were still laughing and talking when they reached the ship. Kent watched them as they climbed the ladder and listened with a strained smile to Stuart's excited chatter over his machete. He seemed definitely ill at ease with them, Star thought, although she could not imagine why unless it was because he just didn't like Coates.

And when she went to the cabin she found that Gloria was equally distant. She acted like a martyr when Star asked about her heart and had only a weak smile for the account of the shopping trip.

The next morning as the ship was nearing Jamaica, Star tried to tell her roommate that she had not been responsible for Kent riding in her car to the mountain.

"No?" Gloria's smile was cynical. "I suppose you haven't anything planned for today either?"

Star resented her tone and the implication. She didn't care for herself, but surely any girl ought to be able to trust the man she loved! She slipped away to the boat deck trying to recapture the feeling of joy and adventure with which she had started the trip and caught sight of Elise Cattrell lying in a deck chair in the sun.

Elise smiled, her lovely hands outstretched in greeting. "You always look so fresh and inspiring!' she said admiringly. "I feel better just looking at you."

"That compliment works both ways—I was just feeling mean and ill-tempered and you've put me right with the world." Star settled on the footrest of Elise's chair.

"You must be in love."

"Oh, no! It isn't that." Star surprised herself with the vigor of her denial. "There isn't anybody to be in love with, is there?"

Elise looked out to sea. "There's always someone," she said gently. "I didn't know that a few nights ago. I found it out just as I was going, and wanted to come back. There's always someone—someone to help. Is it the doctor?"

"No."

Elise was quiet, watching the water stretch away, watching the land flow softly by them reaching out to touch the boat, to bring it in to itself.

Later when Kent stopped her as she was coming out of the dining saloon she caught herself remembering Elise's question: "Is it the doctor?"

She looked at him curiously, spectulatively. This was not just John Kenneth Barrett, the son of her adopted uncle. This was a man in his own right—a young man.

Suddenly she saw that the motive for this trip—her motive—was entirely false. A man had to go out. He had to get away from home. Otherwise he was lost. He became just a shadow, an imitation of the thing a man should be. He had to found his own home, make it entirely his—possess it. He couldn't take his father's home. It would never be his.

She was wrong to think that she could ever make Kent feel that he should have stayed at home. He was right. A man had to go away. And a girl—well, she stayed home until—until something happened.

Now that he had stopped her Kent seemed at a loss for words. She could wait. She had lost that sense of cold antagonism. Something of her attitude must have been in her smile. He was looking at her as if he couldn't believe it. His words were slow, hesitating: "When are you going ashore?"

"When the ship docks."

"Yes, but I mean—couldn't you —that is, would you like me to—to show you around?"

Gloria's face came before her for a minute. Gloria's voice. "I suppose you haven't anything planned for today either?"

"I think that would be very nice."

As if her words had some strange magic in them, Kent straightened. His voice steadied. He said crisply: "I don't know why you should. You don't like me, do you?"

"Why do you say that?"

He looked at her deeply. She flushed. It was hard to be evasive.

"You know why I say it. Why I say this, too. Let's make a truce. For just one day—today. Forget that we met on the boat. Forget everything you know about me. Pretend that we are meeting for the first time as we reach the pier. And we'll see Jamaica together." His eyes searched her face. "Will you do that?"

He was terribly in earnest. Trying to make her set that day apart —a separate entity they could create between them, and have together. She held out her hand. His own was around it crushing the fingers in a clasp that was warm and strong.

"It's a bargain, then?" he was saying. "I can get away about one-thirty."

He ran up the stairs boyishly, two at a time, as if he wanted to shout. In the back of his mind was the thought that Gloria would be angry. She would expect him to take her out to the Castleton Gardens. He would have to make some excuse, say he had to stay with the ship. Perhaps, he thought hopefully, she would become so angry she wouldn't speak to him.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

Unauthorized News Story Results in Flood of Letters

(By Gillis Purcell Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, Jan. 6 (CP Cable) — Canada House was inundated today with letters from women and girls in the British Isles who consider themselves the answer to the Canadian soldier's prayer.

The incoming correspondence resulted from an unauthorized London newspaper story saying "Mr. Vincent Massey, the High Commissioner for Canada, is looking for a woman who will combine the drive and kindliness of Florence Nightingale and the sparkle and cheeriness of Gracie Fields."

It went on to say such would be the ideal hostess for the new Beaver Club, which will soon be ready for Canadian soldiers on leave here.

The flood of letters is a great tribute to the self-confidence of the United Kingdom's womanhood. The general tone of the replies was expressed by this from one letter:

"I feel sure I have all the qualifications you require."

Many included pictures, some in the uniform of auxiliary services, others in the bosoms of large families.

Generally high regard was shown for the Canadian thus: "I can't imagine anything I should like better than looking after the well being of all those splendid Canadians."

The letters are being answered individually with the explanation that the news report was unauthorized.

German Landlords May Oust Any Tenant Who Receives Jewish Friends

Berlin, Jan. 6 (AP). — German landlords may dispossess any tenant who regularly receives Jewish friends in his home, according to a verdict by the district court of Koeslin.

Publication of the verdict in the press today indicates it may serve as a precedent in other parts of Germany.

The court held no German should have social relations with Jews.

The Jews of Frankfurt were directed to stay off the streets during the coinbox collection of winter relief funds today and tomorrow, and during all future collections.

They also were instructed to stay in their own homes after 10 p.m. Previously, they had to remain off the streets after that hour, but could visit friends.

The Warschauer (Warsaw) Seitung edition of yesterday, which reached here today, said no Jew within former Polish territory occupied by Germany could move outside his present community without a special permit, and that Jews must not be on the streets between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m.

At Krakow, formerly Poland, more than 200 Jews have been ordered to remove snow from the city's main streets.

AIR FORCE 'BEES' BEAT BATA SQUAD BY 5-3 SCORE

Exhibition Game Played at Frankford Arena Before Large Crowd

BETTER COACHED

Foxboro, Jan. 6—(Special)— Displaying marked evidence of a more thorough coaching in the finer points of hockey playing and using their few extra pounds of avoirdupois to full advantage, a squad of players wearing the colors of the Trenton R.C.A.F. spoiled the inaugural game of the season for a rink full Frankford hockey fans when they downed the Bata "Shoemakers" in an action-filled exhibition tilt in the Frankford Arena last night.

Loose defensive work inside their own blue line proved the downfall of the Bata lads, who saw their more experienced rivals rap in three quick goals in the middle chucker to take a commanding five to one lead after scoring the odd goal in three in the first period. The homesters came back strong in the last period however with Mayette beating the "Flyers'" goalie from close in at the four-minute mark while in the closing minutes of the game, with the "Shoemakers" playing every man up, playing coach, Brydon took a pass out from the corner to end the scoring.

The game opened with the "Flyers" forcing the attack and Rogers in the nets for the homesters, was forced to do some snappy work to avoid a score. The Bata line of Reid, Rose and Moyette made several sorties into enemy territory, but the defence held well, resulting in many shots from the blue line. Finally with the first period about half over, the Airmen dented the twine behind Rogers as Lafferty took Harrison's passout to put their team one up. The "Cobblers" came right back however and evened matters when Reid took Stojan's pass inside the defense and beat Driscoll from close in. The "Flyers" went one up again however when Hunt scored on a solo effort just as the bell rang.

Plenty of Reserves

With lots of players at their command, the Airport management kept tossing out complete new lines every few minutes with the Bata team becoming momentarily disorganized midway through the second period with Sigardsen being left uncovered in front of the goal to notch two counters and make the pass for another by Ullyot.

In all fairness to the Bata team, however, it must be said that they were minus the services of two of their star players as well as their regular goalie and although just at present, the lack of condition is somewhat apparent, Coach Brydon very evidently has plenty of capable playing material at hand and when they get a bit more coaching will take a lot of beating. Undefeated in their first two starts in the Trent Valley League, the "Shoemakers" are now at the top of the ladder and will be gunning for their third victory when they play hosts to the fast Campbellford sextet in their first scheduled home game of the season next Monday evening.

The teams: Trenton R.C.A.F.—goal—Driscoll; defence— Jamieson and Crawford; centre—Lockyer; wings—Lafferty and Harrison; alternates—Currie, Pickard, Hunt, Sigardsen, Granger and Ullyot.

Bata Shoe — goal—Rogers; defence—Dore and Brydon; centre—Reid; wings—Rose and Mayette; alternates — Pollard, McDonald, Hannah and J. Stojan.

Referee—"Barney" Yorke, Trenton.

VALUABLE HORSE KILLED BY TRAIN

Believed to have wandered on the tracks from its owner's barnyard, a valuable horse owned by Edmund Mundick, farmer residing on the second concession of Thurlow, approximately three miles east of the city, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when it strayed in the path of a fast Canadian National Railway passenger train.

The dead animal was carried nearly a half-mile by the "cowcatcher" of the engine before the train was brought to a stop. A delay of ten minutes was caused while members of the crew removed the mangled carcass from the engine.

According to reports from the scene of the accident, the horse had strayed from the barnyard and gone down road to railway crossing where it turned and wandered along the tracks.

Beautiful Nashville

By TEMPLE MANNING

There is beauty, romance and tradition in the south. Travelers who go south this winter will have the vacation of their lives if they go further afield from the beautiful playgrounds and beaches, and head for other spots. New Orleans, city of a glamorous past and a vibrant present; the glories of Charleston; the picturesque mansions and plantations of Mississippi; the lovely winter playgrounds of Biloxi and Pass Christian—all these make up an experience that is unique.

One of the most beautiful of our capital cities is Nashville, called with pride the "Athens of the South" a title that is no misnomer, we can assure you. It is a city of lovely gardens; one can roam for days through the sylvan beauty of old-fashioned gardens and parks.

Riding Through Orchards.

A favored spot is Percy Warner Park, where riding trails have been laid out through orchards. To ride through it when the blossoms deck the trees is an unforgettable experience. To us this is one of the most beautiful city parks in the world, but it is typical of Nashville. There are nearly four square miles of deeply-wooded forests, cedar-clad glades, picturesque hills and blue grass fields, with large areas devoted to the preservation of wild life. And there are 25 acres planted with iris, the official flower of Nashville.

The Capitol, located atop Cedar Knob, is a landmark, for Cedar Knob is the highest point around Nashville. The legislative house is one of the finest examples of pure Greek Ionic on this continent. On the Capitol grounds, among other mementoes, is the famous equestrian statue of Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the United States. Beautiful, indeed, is the Hermitage, the historic home of Andrew Jackson, a few minutes from the heart of the city. Nothing has been disturbed in the stately old mansion, a marvelous picture of household life in post-bellum days. In the gardens bloom flowers and shrubs planted by Rachel Jackson.

Parthenon Beautiful.

Also on the Capitol grounds is the War Memorial building, one of the most superb structures in the country. But for sheer beauty, first prize goes to the Parthenon, the pride of Nashville. This building is the only complete replica of that ancient masterpiece of Greek art and architecture, which crowned the Acropolis at Athens. Nashville's Parthenon is in Centennial Park, set amidst glorious gardens and fronting a lake. From afar the vista of perfect proportions and lovely sculpture is a thrilling one, and the interior is perfectly beautiful. The park itself is glorious, with huge lily-filled lakes, statuary, a splendid art gallery and a lovely Japanese garden.

Marriage Forgiven By Parents After Announcement Made

North Conway, N.H., Jan. 6. — (AP)—The romance of Eileen (Juliet) Herrick and George (Romeo) Lowther, which bounced from habeas corpus writs to games of hide-and-seek-but always under the frown of Eileen's parents—blossomed today into a honeymoon as secret as their courtship was public.

Eileen, 20, and her 30-year-old insurance saleman swain were married here yesterday after a mystery-cloaked trip by auto, train and plane from New York city, where she had eluded her objecting mother and father by taking her dog out for a walk.

Immediately, they hid from the public—moving into a honeymoon cottage, but spending their first evening of married life last night at the nearby Eastern Slopes Inn where champagne had started their wedding breakfast yesterday.

Eileen's parents—Walter Herrick, former New York City Park Commissioner, and Mrs. Herrick—forgave her for the marriage, but they were unrelenting toward the handsome bridegroom.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Quarrels Which Beset Marriage

"Why is it," a young wife writes me, "that during all our engagement of over two years we never quarrelled, and now that we are married and should be perfectly happy, we quarrel all the time?"

Nothing is easier to answer than this question. Instead of my answering it, I'll try substituting a letter from a young husband which states "Before Dorothy and I were married it was a case of 'yes, yes' with her, but now everything seems to be a case of 'no, no'."

As a postscript, I might add that old one, "when you've caught the streetcar you stop running". Lamentably sad but true that after marriage people often do not feel obliged to go through the motions of being considerate, well bred, or affectionate. With the wedding garments, alas, too often are folded away good manners.

The girl who listened to you as if you spoke with the tongues of angels is plainly bored when you discuss neutrality or Cash and Carry. She seems to have her own ideas on the subject and these you feel she's got from her own family, all of whom are hopelessly misinformed.

And you remember how she used to love to go fishing with you, before the final vows were said, but since then she hates the mess, and shivers if she is supposed to bait the hook. And she'll ask "what's the use of sitting in the sun fishing all day, when fish may be bought at the chain store, cleaned and ready for the pan, at twelve and fourteen cents a pound?" It's sadly different, all of these "before and after painful discoveries.

And why, of why, does the little woman rush off to her mother to be comforted, when you give a grudging nod to the gown she made out of that bargain counter remnant? It's a repica, she tells you proudly, of that imported thing she saw in the Paris Shop window. She imagined you'd be crazy over it, the way you were over every new dress she had before you were married. But when she called your attention to it, all you said was: "Uh, huh, did you really need it, and how much did it cost?"

It's all so different, after you've stopped running and caught the car. You take her as a matter of course, and she takes you for one of the uninspired.

It's horrible to admit it, but the only good times you really have are after those horrid spats when you make charges and she makes counter-charges. And the dull monotony of domestic life is pepped up by good ringing free-for-alls in which you say things you could never have imagined yourself saying before you were married, and she goes you one better. And then she sits down to have a good cry. Somehow or other, you kiss and make up and everything goes smoothly until you liven things up by more arguments, which end the same way.

The way to stop quarrelling is so simple that no one, or at least very few, will apply the remedy. It is just to stop. Imagine you're engaged instead of married. Imagine that the pursuit is on, that you're still chasing the street car. And that the uncensored word may lose him or her, as indeed it often has, after you are married. Stop, look, listen-don't quarrel!

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Courteous Phrases Reveal Mannerliness

I'd like to do a little attention-calling today to something you may not have noticed. It's a brief lesson, but it's important.

Observe certain people whose manners you find especially gracious. They may be friends of yours, or they may be people whose mannerliness you observe casually. See if you don't discover that there are certain little phrases they use to preface a request or a suggestion.

That is, notice that they don't just bluntly or brusquely make a request, but that they make a little word-bow first. And the words have in them a grace which makes them easy to say and which somehow transforms the request so that we feel it is a privilege to grant it.

Here are a few of these phrases—"Would you be so kind as to . . .", or "I'm so sorry to trouble you, but may I ask . . ." or, "Won't you please. . . .", or "I'd be grateful if you will . . ." or "Would you mind if . . .", or "Thank you so much if you will . . ."

Listen to kind-natured people use these polite phrases. Think about adopting them for your own use. Observe how they oil the wheels of the machinery of our daily living. Watch their reaction on other people. You'll be proud of this easy-to-acquire habit, which instantly and charmingly will reveal your mannerliness.

Good Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Please give me some points concerning an "open church" informal wedding?

1—The bride is to wear a going-away suit of black velvet. Does she carry a purse and does she remove one or both gloves during the ceremony?

2—What is the best form for invitations to such a wedding?

May the minister extend an invitation to the church people at an earlier service and may the others be invited by telephone or informal notes from the bride's mother?

R.

1—When the bride wears a suit, she would not wear gloves during the ceremony. Also she should not carry a purse during the ceremony, this would be inconvenient.

2—The most appropriate and the most gracious form of invitations for this informal wedding would be notes written by the bride's mother, the hostess of the occasion. Perhaps relatives and very intimate friends might be invited by telephone.

If the prospective bride and groom and their families especially wish that such a general invitation be given to all members of the congregation, and if this is a custom in their country, this invitation may be given by the clergyman.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

At the Fraternity house where I eat, there are three tables. If one table is served dessert before the other tables are completely served, is it all right for the boys at the served table to start eating the dessert when it has been served to them, or should they wait until all are served?

W.

I don't believe that you and I can answer this question, young man, for we (and it might be I!) might interfere with an existing regulation of the fraternity house dining-room. For there probably is a regulation about this, founded on both convenience and courtesy, and you can easily find out about this, either from one in charge, or from observation.

If the rule is that all the young men leave the dining-room at the same time, undoubtedly the rule is that everyone waits for the eating of the dessert until all the tables are served.

Fashion Flashes

There's a Glitter to many of the new evening frocks. A party frock is of black crepe with buttoned-down the-front bodice and short sleeves. On the skirt are hip pockets with flaps of silver and midnight blue iridescent sequins. The sleeves have a band of the sequins and the cowl collar, which is also a hood, is edged with bands of the glitter stuff.

A good friend to the wardrobe for either day or dinner wear is a chenille sweater in red, black or white with tiny collar and cuffs of sequins.

Going places this year is the fur-trimmed cloth coat. A beauty is in black cloth with wide plastron of ocelet. This spotted fur also borders the ripple skirt, coming almost to the hipline.

Very kind to the full figure is a dress of pure silk crepe in black. From shoulder to waist, from waist to hem is a slimming panel of tiny tucks curving under to make the skirt full and graceful. Clips at either side of the square neckline. Nice for important afternoons.

Go away and wear a coat that will be useful after you're arrived. Such a model is a boxy coat in a fine checked tweed in bluish-violet and black. Collar and tuxedo revers are of lynx-dyed fox.

All dressed up for the afternoon wearing a frock of black taffeta with slim waist and very full skirt. On the bodice, black velvet simulates a tiny bolero.

Curing the Child Who Plays Sick

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Can you remember a headache you didn't have, a pain in your chest that wasn't there, or a doctored throat that was not sore? Maybe you can't. Perhaps you never discovered these resources as a means of escaping arduous or repellant tasks.

Some of us do remember. Some, indeed, do not have to go far back. Occasionally adults discover that a sudden ailment wins them coveted attention which doesn't come so easily in any other way. It is a childish trick to which a few grown-ups of good social standing have resorted.

Many children have enjoyed this convenient device. Parents who are over-anxious about the child's health encourage it. Anyway, it seems pretty good to have a little extra attention, and it usually works very well.

Tried It Once.

I know; I tried it with special dexterity when I was about nine years old. My sister, who was nearest me in age and whose companionship I greatly cherished, was, as I saw it, blessed with illness. School then had little lure for me. Home had a great deal, especially when my sister stayed there. But with a vigorous appetite at breakfast I could not easily feign illness in the early morning. So I had to trudge off to school with my brother.

About ten o'clock, however, a very severe headache developed. Tears came. I even wept. As nearly as I can remember it was a kind of home sick feeling that I had worked up. My brother took me home as ill.

The next day the same thing happened, and it happened again on the third day. On that day I was dosed with medicine, but my appetite for lunch betrayed me. Consequently my father had some doubts. I remember that I sensed his unfortunate discovery.

Next morning he told me rather sternly not to come home again, or I would have "a little hickory oil". I understood that figure of speech and ten o'clock passed that day without another headache. I was wholly cured.

Assumes He's Ill.

Many parents have told me of similar problems with school children. Some pre-school children, jealous of a younger brother or sister, also feign illness for attention.

Regardless of the child's age, it is safe to assume that the child's saying he's sick may be ill. Put him to bed, and whether or not the thermometer registers fever, give him a limited liquid diet. You will call the doctor, of course, if the child has temperature that is noticeably above normal. But don't question the child or suggest that you doubt his truthfulness. Indeed, it is possible for him to think he is ill when he is not, if he has a good imagination.

The school child pretending illness is likely to show marked recovery an hour or two past the time for school. If he does, say to him, "Since you are ill it won't be safe for you to get out of bed today." Play the game through without any suggestion to him that he is being punished. Merely take him at his word. You are thinking of the effect this experience will have on his future conduct. Be pretty busy during the day so he does not get much attention. Next time he complains of illness he will doubtless have more substantial grounds for his report.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. What is a good way for a child to learn common fractions at home?

A. By measuring carefully, as in cooking and baking, or in making things from paper, cardboard and wood. My two boys learned the meaning of fractions and were quick and accurate at manipulating them before they were taught fractions at school. They taught themselves while having fun at their work bench in the basement.

Q. Is it advisable for a young child to take a toy to bed with him?

A. Only if it seems to help him go to sleep quickly, as something to cuddle, like a yarn doll or rabbit.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Osteomyelitis

Here is a disease that strikes often at children of the adolescent age. We doctors dread finding it in any child because it is so serious.

Osteomyelitis simply means dead-bone. Infection coming from germs of any one of many kinds, settles in some bone and begins destruction. The bone is just killed and the patient suffers great pain.

Usually by the time the doctor is called, the child has rapid pulse, a fever. He may even be delirious and often the symptoms greatly resemble those of typhoid fever.

The doctor will find the section over the diseased bone hot, red and swollen. When the spot is touched the child screams with pain. It may appear in any bone of the body, but it is usually the larger bones that are involved. In quite young children, the disease sometimes involves the joints but in older children, it is the bone between the joints that is attacked.

As I said, the disease is caused by many germs. Very often it is streptococcus. Often, too, the disease appears after some injury to the part. For example, after a boy has suffered a broken leg, osteomyelitis sometimes strikes at the point where the break occurred. Sometimes the germs are carried through the blood stream to the point where they begin their destruction. Consequently, tonsillitis, la grippe, boils, infected wounds, tuberculosis, pneumonia may cause osteomyelitis. Usually only one bone is involved although I have occasionally seen cases where more than one bone was affected.

Parents should know that infected tonsils, decayed teeth or diseased gums are centres of infection that may cause osteomyelitis.

(In a later column this week I am going to tell how bad tonsils produced a crisis in the lives of the Quintuplets.)

Usually the disease starts in the marrow of the bone and spreads to the [illegible] wall, works its way through to the outside where an abscess appears. As it progresses, it spreads through the flesh over the bone and breaks through the skin. Then an evil-smelling discharge will be observed. Long before this, however, the case should have come to the attention of a doctor.

When the doctor discovers the centre of the trouble, he makes an incision to allow free drainage of the discharge. Then he drills through the diseased bone, or cuts away a section of it so the discharge from the marrow may escape. Next the dead bone is removed, and the area is lined with wax, or the cavity is allowed to fill with a blood clot. There are a number of other preparations with which the cavity may be filled effectively.

Progress in treatment is necessarily slow, but if complete healing does not occur, it means that some of the dead bone is still there. This means another operation must be done and the remaining infection cleared away. In some cases so much bone is removed that a bone graft is necessary to prevent the patient from being crippled.

When the bone graft is done, it isn't performed for six months after complete healing has occurred. Otherwise, we can't be sure that all the infection has been cleared away. If some of it remains when the graft is put in place, it too would become infected.

Splints are used following such an operation to prevent the limb from becoming crooked. Since the limb cannot be moved for long periods of time there is danger of stiffening of the joints and for this reason a movement of the joints must be done by an attendant.

But parents whose child is stricken with osteomyelitis need not despair. Complete recovery can be brought about.

I shall have more to say about this disease and what parents can do about it tomorrow.

The Houseworker Needs Good Tools

By ELEANOR ROSS

No matter how hard one works, the house cannot be kept spick and span without proper working tools. Elbow grease is all very well but, without assistance, it only helps rub in the dirt. Cleaning aids, together with technique, will make for clean rooms in short time and with a minimum of effort.

Dusting shelves and furniture should not be a haphazard affair. The dust should not be hurriedly wiped or brushed off the surface, when it is then free to scatter through the air and land once more on a convenient surface. Instead, it should be gathered firmly yet gently into the cloth, which should be clean, soft and lintless.

Idea For Dustcloths.

One reader has furnished us with a swell idea for making good dustcloths. She cuts cheesecloth the size of ordinary dusters, then dips them in a mixture of a cup of lemon oil and two cups of hot water, squeezing out the superfluous liquid and hanging the squares to dry. The result is a duster that is unexcelled for wood surfaces. But whatever cloth is used, it should be kept clean. Give it a good cold water soak, then wash out with soap and warm water. This task takes but a few moments, and saves loads of time when cleaning.

Keep clean dusters and dust cloths in a container of their own, in a separate drawer, if possible. In fact all household cleaning equipment should have its own place. If you are building or remodelling a house, a good idea is to allow for a special cleaning equipment closet, one hwere vacuum and its attachments, mops, brushes, brooms, dusters, soaps, powders, polishes and oils will have their proper niche, and where any item can be quickly reached. There should be a household cleaning basket to hold dusters, cleaning powders and polishes when cleaning is going on. All this makes for quicker, more efficient operation.

Keeping Them Clean.

Keep brushes clean, using warm, but not hot, water and ammonia. Use about a tablespoon to a [illegible] of water. Don't rub soap into brush bristles in an effort to get them clean. Work the bristles gently in the solution, and do a quick job, as too much exposure to moisture won't do any good, only harm.

Mops should be cleaned often, as should brooms. Don't rest mops, brooms and brushes on their bristles or heads; either hang them up or rest them on their handles. Keep te carpet sweeper clean, using the special comb that is standard equipment with most cleaners to keep the roller brushes as clean as possible and free of lint, hair and such. Look after the vacuum cleaner, for it cannot do an efficient task if its parts are clogged or the bag filled with dust.

What a Grand Girl!
Energy, Poise and Personality

She has energy, poise and personality and is always so sure of herself. Worry and irritability are farthest from her thoughts for she is filled with the joy of healthful living.

Most any girl can have similar attractiveness if she gives proper attention to her health. Anaemic condition, jangled nerves and tired, languid feelings soon give way with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. And what a pleasure it is to win back the joy of healthful living.

The foundation of all beauty is health. Creams and makeups have their uses but they cannot take the place of vigor and vitality.

When Lace Goes Dancing

By ALICE ALDEN

A surprising number of lace dresses are dancing through mid-season. Designers have handled the exquisite yardage more cleverly than ever, posing it over taffeta or satin in full-skirted, youthful styles, or in the ultra-slim manner. The romance type of gown worn by Anita Louise in this picture is a combination of black silk lace over pink taffeta. Leg o' mutton sleeves end in mitt effect partially covering the hand. The only jewelry the star wears, and all she really needs with such elegance, is a necklace of rhinestones and filigree silver.

Frostbite Does its Biting Now

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Frostbite does not occur very often in these days of pampered living in steam-heated apartments and houses, and in warm motor cars. Among the more rugged of our population, however, those who work in the great outdoors, it still takes its toll.

Dr. Leopold Brahdy, of New York, studied the weather conditions which bring frostbite. He worked with the employees of the street-cleaning and snow-shoveling department in which there are about 400 cases regularly from December to March. He learned the temperature at which frostbite begins to occur is 8 degrees F. Regardless of humidity or other conditions, frostbite is common at that level. Between 8 degrees F. and 14 degrees F. frostbite occurs only if there is a high wind velocity. Above 24 degrees F. frostbite never occurs.

Fatigue, exhaustion, hunger and malnutrition all contribute to the causation of frostbite. In long treks over frozen territory fatigue and exhaustion naturally play a part because they numb the mentality and prevent noticing the pain and tingling sensations that warn of the approach of the danger, and also stop all preventive measures.

Grease Another Factor.

Grease is another contributory factor. The clothing makes the body warm because of the air layers between the fibres. When the air cells are filled up by oil or grease, it makes the clothing less protective.

Constrained position or posture for a prolonged time without exercise conduces towards the production of frostbite.

Essentially, frostbite is a kind of gangrene, shutting off of the blood vessels to the affected area. Naturally then, the terminal places on the body, where the circulation is scanty, are the places affected: the tip of the nose, the ears, the fingers and toes. Especially important in prevention is the way the feet are stockinged and shod. For outdoor work or exercise in frostbite weather, thick stockings that have plenty of air spaces are essential.

Not Wise Remedy.

"Rub the affected parts with snow" is the old household wisdom about the treatment of frostbite, but it is not a very wise wisdom. It is, in fact, barbarous because snow is gritty and may not only hurt, but actually injure.

"Gradual warming," with the accent on the gradual, is proper treatment, however, and is really what lies back of the "rub with snow" idea. The best initial source of warmth is your own body or that of a companion—hands pressed on the frozen area and accompanied by rubbing to bring back the circulation. Getting indoors and in front of a radiator or good fire can be postponed until later—until circulation is established.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E.N., "Are bananas fattening or do they give you very much energy? Some people say they are fattening and some tell me they are not."

Answer—Bananas contain about 20 per cent starch (which is the energy-giver of food), one and one-half per cent protein and a half of one per cent fat, which is high for a fruit. They contain phosphorus, iron and calcium, the essential minerals, and vitamins A, C and D, so that they make a pretty well-balanced article of diet. Any food is fattening if you eat enough of it, but the trick about bananas is that they quickly satisfy appetites. That is why Dr. Harrop found them useful in his famous milk and banana reducing diet.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Here is something new for supper on a frosty night or for a Sunday tea. Add a cup of chopped cooked ham to your regular waffle recipe, then cook the waffles as usual. Serve them topped with scrambled eggs and accompanied by plenty of hot coffee. Or add some grated cheese to the waffle batter and serve the minced ham in the scrambled eggs.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 7

SUNDAY'S horoscope is an excellent one for all affairs of clerics and the church, as well as for all sorts of social, domestic and affectional activities. In other matters there is need for great vigilance and discretion, since there are signs of treacherous undermining, with sinister import. Beware of entanglements in underhanded affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a favorable year in connection with work and serious matters, which are in line for recognition from elders and superiors. Strictly private interests thrive and give pleasure, but be alert to sinister legal entanglements and intrigues in business relations.

A child born on this day may be studious, industrious and practical, and may attract recognition and reward from its superiors. However, there are possibilities of its having an inherent tendency to being secretive and sordid in attaining its objectives. It may be sly, crafty and tricky.

For Monday, January 8

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is not a very propitious one, holding threats of disruption, distress, inharmony and sudden upheaval especially in the private relations—domestic, social or romantic. This may be due to ungoverned and impetuous conduct in which there is a tendency to "fly off the handle" with trivial provocation. Beware of tempest, accidents and litigation, also fire or theft.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which turmoil, disaster and disruption may be due to their own unrestrained passions, language and fiery indulgences. These, if allowed to dominate, will bring regrets, violence, accidents or litigation. Diverting such fiery forces and highly-stimulated energies into constructive channels should bring gain. Intimate relations are particularly menaced by want of control.

A child born on this day, while having great talents and abilities, with originality and initiative, may be a "fire-eater," squandering its assets unless given early discipline and direction.

Dishes for Dented Budgets

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

These recipes are not only good, but kind to the holiday-dented budget as well.

A jar of spaghetti in tomato sauce and a jar of sliced tongue are all the ingredients you need for a jiffy casserole that can beat most menu deadlines. Place alternate layers of spaghetti and tongue in a greased casserole; top with grated cheese and bake in moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) for 30 minutes. This makes six portions.

Creamed beef with onions hits the spot when the weather is cold. Make it with three and one-half-ounce jar of dried beef (cut in pieces), two tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, dash of pepper, two and one-fourth cups of milk, one-fourth teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, 12 medium-sized onions (cooked). Saute dried beef in butter until well browned. Stir in flour, add pepper, milk and Worcestershire sauce. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add onions and simmer for five minutes longer. Serve on crisp buttered toast or with steamed rice or buttered noodles. Makes six portions.

Excellent Dish.

Spanish Casserole of Potatoes and Dried Beef is an excellent dish. It is made with three and one-half-ounce jar dried beef, 2 tablespoons butter, two cups tomatoes, two teaspoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon black pepper, four medium-sized potatoes, four medium-sized onions and one large green pepper, all vegetables sliced. Saute dried beef in butter until crisp and brown. Add a small amount of juice from tomatoes to flour. Stir until smooth. Add to remaining tomatoes. Add black pepper. Place alternate layers of sliced potatoes, sliced onions, sliced green peppers, dried beef and tomato mixture in buttered casserole, finishing with tomato. Bake, covered, in 375 deg. F. oven for one-half hour. Remove cover, bake 30 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender and top is browned. Yield: six portions.

If you want to glorify a simple meal, serve a special soup and an extra good dessert. Ginger Soup is made with three cups milk, one tablespoon grated onion, tablespoon butter, one cup strained vegetable puree, three-fourths teaspoon salt, a little pepper and two teaspoons ginger. AT THE CAPITOL

A Soldier Show That Pleases Everybody—"Chin Up" War Time Hit Visits Capitol Next Thursday

Let's be honest and straightway confess. I'm the press agent speaking, so perhaps I'm prejudiced, but it's my personal opinion that "Chin Up", coming here direct from a hold over two weeks' engagement in Toronto, is a very swell show. It has all the ingredients covered by 'entertainment' . . . tuneful new songs, attractive scenery, plenty of hilarious comedy, a bevy of beautiful girls, elaborate costuming, spectacular dancing, in fact all the ingredients of a real hit. Its twenty-five rapid fire scenes combine to give everything eye and ear can demand, so much so that repeated encores ran the first show on until nearly midnight. Critics agree with me too, for the reviews ran like this: The 'Tely found "Chin Up" 'fairly studded, with hit numbers, with many of the skits as timely as today's headlines'. The Globe and Mail told the world our 'success was assured', Agustus Bridle in the Daily Star dubbed our three stars as 'the greatest group of entertainers born of any war', while staid old Saturday Night added 'a lively and well dressed show that travels fast, with lavish and beautiful costumes and scenery and with sixteen lovely girls exquisite and skilful in their dancing.' So you'll forgive me for being proud of my show, won't you, frankly, I want you to see it because I know you'll agree with me that it's a great show that neither soldier nor civilian can afford to miss, so just note it's at the Capitol Theatre and the date Thursday next, Jan. 11 only. Secure your seats early, they are on sale now and the best go quickest.

AT THE BELLE

"Victor Herbert", Tuneful.

A cast headed by such celebrities as Allan Jones, Mary Martin and Walter Connolly, twenty-eight of the unforgettable melodies written by Victor Herbert, in the greatest heart story of show business since "The Great Ziegfeld", is on the bill of fare now at the Belle Theatre, with Paramount presenting its new musical drama, "The Great Victor Herbert".

The story of "The Great Victor Herbert" represents Producer-Director Andrew Stone's solution of one of the knottiest production problems of the year; how to build a drama around Victor Herbert, a man whose life was singularly lacking the incident and excitement vital to a good film plot?

Stone's solution has resulted in a story which advance scouts herald as one of the most dramatic and moving of the season. Not so much a biography of Victor Herbert as a drama of the composer's influence over the glamorous show world of his day, the film tells of the romance of a stage-struck girl and the matinee idol of the day, who meet in Herbert's gay world, find fame in starring in his operettas and happiness in their friendship with the great man.

Miss Martin, as the young girl in the story, comes to storied New York with her only assets, uncommonly good looks, a fine singing voice and a spirited determination to make a name for herself on Broadway. Her lucky day comes when she meets Herbert's premier star, Jones, who falls in love with her, makes her his wife and later his stage partner.

"The Great Victor Herbert" then traces the couple's dramatic experiences, over which Herbert, in the person of Connolly, casts a long shadow. Their struggle to stay in the public's favor, their efforts to prevent their marriage from becoming "just another Broadway affair" and their campaign to make another star of their talented daughter form a fast-paced backstage story.

Miss Martin, who now makes her film debut, only needed one role to make her name famous on Broadway — and throughout the entire country for that matter! Her singing of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in the musical comedy, "Leave It To Me", did the trick. Another newcomer who will be seen for the first time in "The Great Victor Herbert" is Paramount's sensational new singing discovery, fourteen-year-old Susanna Foster. Others figuring importantly in the story are Lee Bowman and Judith Barrett.

Some of Victor Herbert's best-remembered songs—about two dozen of them—intersperse the story. Among them are such all around favorites as "A Kiss in the Dark", "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", "Kiss Me Again' 'and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone".

The popular Belle overseas and Canadian News, Aqua Rhythm, a smart-paced revue, and a Paramount Pictorial in Technicolor will be presented on the same program. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 9.10 p.m.

Walter Connolly, Mary Martin and Allan Jones in, "The Great Victor Herbert," the greatest heart story of show business since, "The Great Ziegfeld," now on the Belle Screen.

Little Benny's Note Book

Our new dog Misty slept in my room last night on account of having kept everybody awake when we let him practice being a watch dog down in the front hall, and this morning at breakfist I said, Hay, ma, do you know there really must be something in dreams after all?

What do you mean, after all? ma said. Of course there's something in dreams, I've always known that. Why, have you been having some particular dream? she said.

Dreams being one of her favorite subjects, and I said, Sure, last night, I dreamed I was laying on my stummick in the middle of the street and a man came along with a big electric drill, and he said, This must be the place, and he put the drill in the middle of my back and started to work it, I said.

What a gassly dream, what makes you think it has any special meaning? ma said and I said, Because I woke up and it was all true.

Dont talk abserd for land sakes, ma said, and I said, Sure, ma, Misty was sleeping right in the middle of my back, and I told him if he wanted to do that he'd have to stop scratching, because that's what it was, ma, him scratching with all his might, and that's not all, ma, because the next thing I dreamed, I dreamed I was all alone in the Artic Circle with one frozen ear, and do you know what it was? It was Misty with his head on my pillow and his nose in my ear, and if you dont know how cold a dog's nose is you ought to have one in your ear, I said.

Now really, Willyum I mean really, this cant go on, that dog must go, that boy needs his sleep, ma said, and I said, Well aw G, ma, it's no worse for me than it is for him, I wake him up every time, dont I?

Ma claiming it was no comparison.

Like a Soldier on Parade

JUDITH BARRETT. . . . carries herself erect for beauty's sake.

By HELEN FOLLETT

CARRY YOURSELF like a soldier on parade. If you let your shoulders slump, you'll look old even if you haven't yet counted 30 candles on your birthday cake.

The commonest beauty defect of this period is the slouchy attitude—chest in, shoulders thrown forward tummy ploppy. Some girls affect this pose; the physical results may be harmful. Unless the chest is high, breathing is shallow, and shallow breathing means that the complexion will be pale, general physical condition not top-notchy.

The erect attitude is that of snappiness, courage, ambition. The slumping pose denotes inertia, lack of interest in what's going on in the world. It permits the muscles to go fast asleep, and in due course of time they'll be blanketed with adipose tissue, which is no help to any woman who is trying to earn a high beauty rating.

Bad posture causes fatigue. The typist who sits tall, holds her head well, will not suffer from four-o'clock-itis, which means that she's ready to quit the job, go home and do a flop. Correct posture helps the blood to circulate normally, has a strengthening effect upon the nervous and digestive system.

Come on, now, up with you! On your toes! Step lively and you'll be a credit to the beauty pageant.

It sometimes happens that summer tan will hang on until the tulips start to bloom. Very bothersome, because discolorations that are well established don't seem to do an even fadeaway. They go spotty.

Use hot moist compresses which tend to loosen the dead skin scales and help them to fluff away. Yes, my children, your facial coat is ever doing a hail and farewell act, old scales dying, new ones a-borning.

Half an hour after the steaming, apply a lotion made of equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide. When it has dried on, have a three-minute tapping and slapping with a heavy massage cream.

Well, It's Leap Year!

First Period Margin Gives Flyers 6-3 Win Over Redmen In Opening Game of Season

Flyers Score Three Times in First Frame Without a Reply

DAY PACES TEAM

Stands Out for Birdmen, While Jackson Brothers and St. Louis Show Class

A three-goal lead in the initial period gave the Air Force "Flyers" a 6 to 3 win over the Belleville Redmen in the opening intermediate "A" O.H.A. game, before some 1,500 rabid hockey fans, at the Hume Arena last evening.

Showing more finish around the nets the "birdmen" made sure of their early tallies and sustained a strong defence for the greater part of the game to halt the 'scarlet-clad" Belleville pucksters, especially in their last period drive as the Thomasites moved to the offensive in full force and virtue in a futile effort to haul down the margin, that stood 6-1 at one stage. The score by periods was 3-0; 4-1 and 6-3 with the Air Force always in command.

"Toots" Day, shifty left winger of the Air Force paced his team on the offensive with a goal and two assists, while Baldwin hit the hemp for two goals and a helper. Bill Jackson, left wing player of the Redmen notched one counter and had two assists, while brother Clayt Jackson counted a goal and an assist. "Speedy" St. Louis counted the other Belleville marker.

The nicest play in the early stages of the game was made by Bill Jackson, who stickhandled through the entire Air Force sextette, but was thwarted by Gibson in the Flyers' nets as he tried to backhand his shot. As Belleville were clearing from behind their own citadel at the 8.09 minute mark, Baldwin cuffed the passout into the Redmen's nets for an easy counter. Later Day raced through the locals for a sensational counter and later the same player gave McLeod a goal-mouth pass for another goal to end the initial session at 3-0.

Rapped Home Passout

Early in the second session, St. Louis was parked in position to rap home Bill Jackson's pass from behind the Air Force net as Belleville rallied, but the Flyers retaliated when Baldwin scored his second goal on a pass from Legris. The remainder of the period saw rather listless hockey, despite the fact that four penalties were handed out by Referee Smith for minor infractions. Higgins and Lemieux scored early in the third period, forcing Belleville to move five forward in desperate attempts to haul down the large margin. Again the game took on a disinteresting atmosphere, but later the teams settled away and the Jackson brothers combined nicely to beat Gibson with Brother Bill on the scoring end. Five minutes later the Jacksons duplicated this feat with Brother William on the scoring end. The pastime ended with both teams playing wide open hockey.

The Holway-led Flyers' line of Day-McLeod-Lemieux showed fine combination, with Day making the plays, while Higgins and Dreyer carried the bulk of the defensive efforts of the winners. For Belleville the Jacksons, Storms, St. Louis and McCreary carried the mail.

The shots on net by periods were—

Air Force	11	7	7—25
Belleville	8	5	7—20

The line-ups—Belleville—goal —Watt, defence—St. Louis and McCreary, centre—C. Jackson, wings —Windsor and W. Jackson, subs—Storms, Barriage, Yates, Pilon and Bonsky. DIZ DESILETS

Chicago Black Hawks.

Diz Desilets

Most dangerous player on the attack for Chicago Black Hawks last season, not counting Johnny Gottselig, who's made a habit of taking top team honors, was Diz Desilets, who posted 11 goals and 13 assists for the Stewart - Thompson team in his first season of play in Chicago. His major league puck career had begun in 1935-36 when he saw some service with Canadiens and some in the minors, and through the next two seasons he was Canadiens' property until traded to the Hawks in the summer of 1938 for Loui Trudel. The deal proved to be one of those that turn out fine for both teams. Diz is 24 years old and was born at Stratford, Ont. Played junior in his home town and senior in the Maritimes before hitching his hockey wagon to the financial star with the Flying Frenchmen. Medium sized player, weighing around 170 pounds. Plays right wing. Joffre Wilfrid is the name he was given before hockey companions dubbed him Diz. Last year, needless to say, was his best, and during his short career, spent only partially in the N.H.L., where it appears he will be a fixture for some time, he has counted 31 goals, received credit for 38 assists and sat out 51 minutes for rule infractions.

Boston Olympics On First Rung

Boston, Jan. 6— (CP)— Boston Olympics came from behind Friday to defeat Lachine Rapides 3-2 and regain first place alone in the Provincial Senior Hockey League standing. The victory was Boston's ninth in a row and marked the 11th successive game in which the United States team had been unbeaten.

Carvelli and Paul Guibord scored goals late in the third period to erase a 2-1 lead the Rapides built up earlier in the game. Gerry Desrosiers scored the other Boston goal with Tag Millar and Fernand Majeau getting the Lachine markers.

A crowd of 9,830 watched the dull game.

Tiremen Take St. Catharines 8-5 for First Time and Cataracts Beat Sailors

GRAND CONTESTS

Ken Begin and Eddie Runions, Former Players Around Belleville, Prominent

By the Canadian Press

Niagara Falls Cataracts and Toronto Goodyears have beaten the jinx and the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" race is wide open.

Goodyears, unable to beat St. Catharines Saints in three games this season, obtained at least partial revenge in Toronto last night, carving out an 8-5 win in a thrill-packed struggle before a crowd of 5,000. At Niagara Falls, the Cataracts, who had won but three games in 15 played, provided a big upset in edging the second-place Port Colborne Sailors 5-4.

A third-period scoring flurry gave Goodyears victory and hoisted them into a tie for first place with the Saints. Three of the five Toronto goals in the final period were scored within 23 seconds — a record in senior hockey this season.

Murray Ezeard, recruit wingman of the Goodies, scored three goals, while Paul Mundrick, the silent flyer from Winnipeg, tallied two. Single ones were added by Eddie King, Johnny O'Flaherty and Punchy Imlach.

Came From Behind

St. Kitts came from behind a 7-2 deficit in the third period to ram in three goals before Toronto gleaned the clincher in the final minute of play. Star of the Saints was Captain Red Reynolds who sparked the attack. Scorers were Buell, with two, and Bobby Pinder, Jack Boyd and Bill Mochar.

With Gooney McGown off his usual clever form, the Sailors went down before a hard-skating band of fighters. Behind 3-2 going into the final frame, the Cataracts put on their best display of the year in the final period to tally three times to once by the Tars.

SMOKE EATERS BEST TEAM IN WESTERN HOCKEY

Winners of World Amateur Championship Last Winter Going Strong

BEAR CATS SHIFTY

Saskatoon Quakers Only One Point Behind Leaders in Their Group

Winnipeg, Jan. 6 (CP.—Five teams have stepped into the limelight of Western Canada's senior hockey picture.

Despite a late start, Port Arthur Bear Cats show promise of giving a real battle in an effort to retain the Allan Cup. The team has been victorious in its two starts so far and appears to have its coaching difficulties settled.

Further west the teams giving the best account of themselves so far are Trail Smoke Eaters, Allan Cup winners in 1938, Calgary Stampeders, Regina Vic-Aces and Saskatoon Quakers.

Last year Port Arthur was piloted by Jazzy Manahan, a veteran lakehead player who resigned just before this season's schedule started. Hugh O'Leary, who succeeded him, found the pressure of acting as playing coach too great and resigned his coaching position last night.

Phat Wilson Is Coach.

Phat Wilson, star defenceman of three of Port Arthur's four Allan Cup teams, was appointed to succeed O'Leary. Wilson coached the Ports once before—in 1929 when they won their third Allan Cup.

Trail Smoke Eaters, winners of the world amateur championship in Europe last winter, have been setting a hot pace in the West Kootenay League with ten wins in thirteen games. Nelson Maple Leafs, holders of second place, have won seven of twelve.

Calgary Stampeders have held the lead in the Alberta League since early season and now have a three-point edge over Turner Valley Oilers and four over Edmonton Flyers.

Saskatoon Team Strong.

Regina Vic-Aces have clung to the league lead in Saskatchewan since the start of the season, but Saskatoon Quakers have been right on their heels all the way. Quakers now are trailing by a single point. Each team has played twelve games.

Only five games have been played in the Thunder Bay League. Port Arthur defeated Fort William in its two games while Geraldton won two and lost one in games with Fort William.

QUEENS WIN EASILY

West Point, N.Y., Jan. 6—(AP)—Queen's University's fast skating hockey team easily defeated the United States military academy 9-1 Friday in the first intercollegiate hockey game of the season for the cadets.

HUNTING HOCKEY TALENT NO PICNIC FOR CANADIENS

Other N. H. L. Clubs Do Not Wish to Release Strings on Promising Material

PLAY IN TORONTO

Team Will be in Cellar if They Lose Tonight and to Chicago

Hunting hockey talent is no picnic and Montreal Canadiens realize it as they go into Toronto and Chicago this week-end in an attempt to recoup their National League fortunes with an altered lineup.

The Canadiens were shaken up yesterday — and drastically — but whether the changes will mean a great difference in playing strength remains to be seen. Bill Summerhill, Gus Mancuso and Armand Mondou, whom they have called up from the New Haven farm, have been up before without setting anything afire.

A Tough Week-end.

The Habitants play the Maple Leafs at Toronto tonight and the Black Hawks at Chicago tomorrow and can drop into last position if they lose both times.

What the Canadiens could use are new, young players. They tried to get Edgar and Bert Laprade of Port Arthur's Dominion amateur champions and failed, because New York Rangers wouldn't sell the right to the brothers. They tried to get Joe Benoit of the 1937-38 Dominion champions from Trail, B.C., but Benoit wouldn't move.

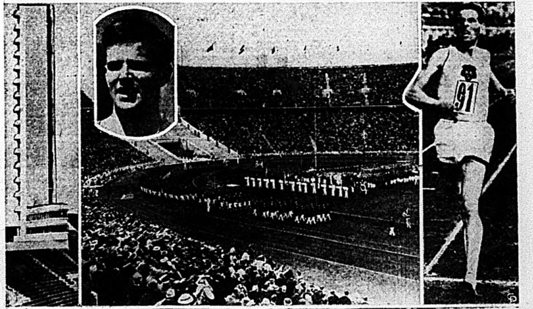
Looking For Amateurs.

So the Canadiens are sending Paul Haynes, a veteran player, into the highways and byways to look for promising amateurs. Haynes can't do them much good for their engagements this week-end and it is to be doubted he can find more than a player or two who might help the club this season, the way the strings of other N.H.L. organizations are spread through Canada.

Toronto can tie the Rangers for first place by beating Canadiens. The Rangers, however, can jump right back into sole possession of the top tomorrow night if they defeat Detroit at New York and extend their string of games without defeat to 17.

The Bruins, tied now with Toronto in second place, oppose New York Americans tomorrow at Boston. Chicago is three points up on Canadiens who are a point ahead of the Americans and Detroit.

Chances for Glory Slip by Innumerable Athletes As 1940 Olympics Go the Way of Those of 1916



GONE WITH THE COMING OF WAR: For the second time in a generation the Olymppic games, symbol of friendship between the nations, have been cancelled while tribute is paid to Mars. From the radio tower of the Helsinki Olympic stadium, LEFT, no description will come of athletic feats, as the host country is kept busy with tasks of a grimmer nature. There will be no parade of athletes from all corners of the globe a sthere was at Berlin, CENTRE, in 1936. Outstanding star of the games that will never be was expected to be Taisto Maki, RIGHT, great Finnish runner, who had shattered most of Nurmi's marks, but his 1940 efforts are taking place on the battlefield instead of the track. A Canadian competitor in the last games and just at his ppeak for the cancelled event, was Larry O'Connor, INSET, middle distance runner. By 1944, should international athletics ever get back to an Olympic basis, there will be a new set of stars to headline the sports news with their record-breaking.

By BILL RITT
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

For the second time in the memory of most men the world enters an Olympic year with all prospects of an Olympiad being held anywhere non-existent.

The 1916 Olympic games were to have been held in Berlin. Germany but at the dawn of 1916 the world was gripped by war and the quadrennial revival of the great games had to be postponed.

Today, as in 1916, Europe faces an Olympic year with deadly warfare again having cancelled any prospects of an Olympiad being held when and where scheduled.

The Olympiad originally was scheduled to be held in Tokyo, Japan—and was to have been a tribute to the fine understanding and common fellowship at last achieved between Asiatics and the western world. Japan's invasion of China, however, eliminated Tokyo as 1940's Olympic site and the Japanese Olympic committee surrendered its claim as Olympic host to popular, athletic Finland.

Helsinki Chosen

Helsinki, Finland, was awarded the games. At the time no one visualized the possibility of a Russian blitzkrieg directed at the capital city of little Finland.

In view of current events, whatever may be the eventual fate in the war with Russia, of Helsinki—and Finland—the 1940 Olympics are a lost dream of international good will and amity.

This cruel change from pleasant possibility to grim reality naturally makes one wonder who the world athetic champions of 1940 might have been—those superb athletes whose splendid careers would have been capped with athletic immortality and, now, whose names we shall never know.

Would 1940 haev given us another Paavo Nurmi, marvelous mechanical human machine? Another brilliant Charley Paddock? Another Craig, Meredith, Williams, Flanagan or Tolan? Another Helene Madison or Babe Didrikson? Now we can never know.

After the 1912 Olympic games a score of track and field champions looked forward toward the 1916 contests in hope of repeating their victories. And thousands of rising young athletes also trained, throughout the world, for those games in hope of dislodging those champions.

War broke the dreams of all of them.

No Repeaters

It is significant that of the 20 track and field events (the backbone of the Olympiads) held in 1912 not one champion repeated his triumph in 1920—eight years later —when the games were again revived in Antwerp, Belgium.

The champions of 1912 and many of the hopefuls of 1913 onward were, by 1920, dead, killed in the war or by its ravages, or long past their athletic prime due to illness or advancing age.

By 1944 what will have happened to the champions and rising young athletes of the 1936 games? How many will have gone beyond the point where a world athletic crown could have been theirs? How many will have fallen face toward the foe though, in their hearts, they felt no enmity?

By 1944—if the world has somehow managed to skid back onto the high road of human progress and if an Olympiad is staged somewhere, the spectators should add an extra handclap of applause for the never-to-be-known heroes of the two Olympiads which never were held.

There has been a complete change in the finals of the Kingston Van Horne Memorial finals between Queens University and the R.C.A.F. "Flyers." Originally these games were to have been played on Jan. 3rd, 5th and 8th, but the "Birdmen" asked permission to postpone the second game owing to last night's O.H.A. date. This was granted and the Flyers prepared to journey to Kingston for the first game of the Van Horne finals Wednesday night, but at the last minute they were informed the entire series had been adjourned until next week. Of course the Van Horne officials know full well that if the Flyers win the Van Horne mug this season they will retain it as a permanent sports possession, as a win this year will give the Airmen three successive Van Horne series. Sensing this the Limestone City moguls, who knew full well last fall that Queens seniors would be making their annual New Years hockey sojourn to the U.S.A. this week, promptly postponed the Van Horne finals until Queens would be at full strength next week. Of course when you're driver of the horse you can almost direct the course, which is an old Kingston custom.

A new threat loomed on the district junior O.H.A. horizon last night when the Trenton juniors took the Picton kids into camp by a 3-1 score. Pre-season reports were to the effect that last year's Trenton squad had been riddled with absentees, but it begins to look as though Art Black and company have been playing possum. However, the real test of the Trenton kids comes on Monday night when the Trenton juniors invade the Hume Arena to meet "Toots" Holway's Belleville Quintes and incidentally with each team enjoying a win over Picton the leadership of the group is at stake right here on Monday night. The best the Quintes could do was beat Picton 4-2 and as Trenton triumphed over the Prince Edward County kids 3-1 it would almost appear as though the old Trenton and Belleville junior O.H.A. feuds will resume once again at the Hume Arena on Monday night when junior O.H.A. hockey makes its initial appearance of the current season.

According to the Kingston scribe the Signal Corps from Barriefield has dropped out of the O.H.A. intermediate series and will concentrate all its sports activities around inter-unit and camp recreation and sports. With the Signals definitely out of the group it leaves only the R.C.A.F. seconds, Gananoque and Queens intermediates left in the group. Incidentally Scribe Walshe did not say whether or not the Signals were withdrawing from provincial basketball circles, however. With the Signals out of O.H.A. competition Secretary Billie Hewitt got himself busy and today we learn that Napanee has taken over the Signals' franchise and games, which means a hockey team from Walter Gerow's adopted town will meet the Air Force second team here on Wednesday night, the date originally scheduled for the opening of the district intermediate "B" scheduled between the Air Force "Bees" and the Signals. Just what material Napanee may possess is an unknown quantity, but Napanee may have a call on Kingston players, which again will cause friction between the Gibbardville entry and Gananoque, but we wonder if Napanee intends to play intermediate hockey in their abbreviated rink.

Globe and Mail Ed. Fitkin asks: "Are Hogtown's hockey teams packed?" That one isn't even funny and there can be no deviating from the answer. Toronto, with a metropolitan population of at least a million, sponsors one lone senior O.H.A. club and three junior "A" teams, as they can't claim the Varsity junior entry as a Queen City squad. Even with the Toronto Goodyears we find Mundick, of Winnipeg, Johnny Inglis of Regina, Jerry Cooper of Oshawa and Jack Draper of Ottawa, all imports besides several pucksters who deserted Toronto "the good" to learn the fundamentals of the game. How can Mr. Fitkin expect smaller centres like Galt to compete against a lone team that has drawing facilities of well over a million? Let the Toronto moguls answer that one first.

Do you remember when greatest among the great Finnish runners, Paavo Nurmi made his American debut 15 years ago today by shattering world records. He set a mile time of 4:13 3-5 and ran 5,000 metres in 14:44 3-5.

Ruffing of the Yanks, Feller of the Indians, Leonard of the Senators and Newson of the Tigers were the American leaguers to win 20 or more games in 1939.

Maybe the Peterboro scribe really had something when he predicted the Petes were all but in the intermediate "A" O.H.A. playoffs, that is to say unless both the Air Force and the Redmen garner in some scoring punch pronto. As for Eddie Thomas' sextette, well the scarlet-clad locals are woefully weak in the matter of reserve strength and today, a hockey team is just as good as its alternate playing material. The Air Force did move into a commanding lead with three goals in the initial period last night, but one was of the softest nature and when the Redmen applied the pressure in the last few minutes the Flyers failed to impress us as having that much needed moneyed scoring punch. However, as with all of the Air Force teams in the past, we've noticed that the "birdmen" actually play better hockey when pressed, so maybe the picture is not quite as bad as it appeared last night when the Flyers coasted in to a 6-3 win after scoring three in the initial frame. The Airmen of this season do not possess any colorful Johnnie Lalonde, nor the driving force of an Ernie McNeely.

Incidentally "Toots" Day, who cavorted along the left boards and made so many plays for the Flyers last night, leaves today for Camp Borden to complete his flying training. Day will be missed by Coach Holway as the lad knows how to take and give a pass and also can score when the opportunity arises. Filling Day's skating shoes will be no easy task for the "birdmen," but he'll be back in about four weeks, we're told.

With both clubs wearing jerseys of a very similar color, we thought Referee Joe Smith handled a hard situation well, as it is no easy task to distinguish uniforms that bear so much resemblance as the Redmen and Flyers'.

Actually better team play and the strong reserve strength of the Flyers took its toll last night, as three or four players cannot hope to cope with a complete hockey team of today, such as Coach Holway iced last night.

Rome, Jan. 5—(CP-Havas)—A system of food cards will be introduced in Italy, beginning Jan. 15, it was announced today.

Newspapers announcing the step said it was being taken as a "precautionary measure" and explained that under present war conditions non-belligerents are affected as much as belligerents by the economic strain imposed by the conflict.

Trenton, Jan. 6 (Special).—The Trenton juniors handed the Picton (Stars) their second straight defeat, here last night, by a score of 3-1, in the first O.H.A. game to be played in Trenton this season. 10 GOALS SCORED IN 5 MINUTES

Cornwall Flyers Emerge as Victors Over Montreal Royals by 11-7 Count

Cornwall, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP)—The Cornwall Flyers and Montreal Royals staged one of the greatest scoring orgies in Quebec senior hockey league history Friday with Flyers winning 11-7 to gain second place in the standings just one point behind the Royals.

The game was a wide-open thriller from start to finish and the 2,800 fans scarcely had a chance to catch up with the goals. The Flyers piled up a huge lead, holding a 9-1 advantage at the five minute mark of the third period, and the Royals were unable to catch up despite a mighty rally.

The first period gave little indication of what was to come as Cornwall led 2-0 at the end of the session. After three minutes of play in the second period, however, Flyers led 7-1, Fred Gardner getting three of their goals inside of 70 seconds.

There was no more scoring in that period but ten goals went into the nets in the third, Royals getting six and the Flyers four.

Despite the heavy scoring, Gardner's three-goal effort was the best of the night. Stan Robertson and Lamoureux had two apiece for the Flyers whose other goals went to Gerry Brown, Catlin, Cliff Maundrell and Shaw.

The Russ McConnell-Johnny Acheson-Marcel Raymond line was the most effective for Royals, getting five of their goals. McConnell and Acheson had two apiece and Raymond one while Haggerty and Ken Murray also picked up singles.

IN MEMORIAM

ALEXANDER—In fondest memory of my dear father, Joseph Alexander, who entered rest on Jan. 6, 1935.

The rose that blooms beyond the wall

To fairer lands of rest,
There is no death where there is love—
And God knows what is best.

ROOKIE PITCHER ISN'T WORRYING

Fred Hutchinson, Sold for $80,000 in Cash and Playerss, Expects Good Year

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 6—(AP)—Freddie Hutchinson, 1939's publicized major league rookie pitcher who likes his base hits as well as his shutouts, isn't worrying about the 1940 baseball campaign.

The 20-year-old Detroit Tiger right-hander sizes it up this way: "If you've got it, you've got it. If you haven't, well, that's that."

Sold to the Tigers by Seattle of the Pacific Coast League for a reported $80,000 in cash and players, the young pitcher was under tremendous pressure from the time he went to training camp last spring.

He didn't fare so well in his training trials and he was benched during the early weeks. Finally, he was sent in while Detroit was taking a lacing from Yankee bats. The Yanks had a hot streak and Hutch couldn't cool it. He was sent first to the showers and—within two days—to Toledo, tail-end club of the American Association.

In late season he was recalled and won three and lost six with Detroit. He denies stories the Tigers tried to change his pitching style.

"If anybody changed it, it must have been myself. Nobody else did. When you're right the plate looks so close you can reach right out and touch it. When you're off, it looks the size of a dime and a block away. But control isn't everything. You've got to have your stuff, too."

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Jan. 6—(AP)—Here's one we heard: if Francis Schmidt takes the Stanford job (and he can have it if he wants it) the No. 1 choice at Ohio State will be Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago.... L. W. St. John, Buckeye athletic director, has been one of the quiet Irishman's greatest boosters for years.

Rodney Ross, athletic director, South High School, Columbus, says: "The ideal basketball team consists of two Jewish lads, two negroes and a good tough Irishman......the Negroes would do the dribbling, the Jewish fellows would shoot the baskets and the Irishman would take the ball off the opponents' banking board."

Challedon is training nicely at Columbia, S.C., but it's still a question whether he'll go in the $50,000 Widener at Hialeah......Morgan and Mack (remember the old vaudeville team?) will fight it out for the substitute first basing job with the Reds next spring...... the baseball gossips say big hearted Bill Terry has offered the Bees Slick Castleman and Manuel Salvo for Buddy Hassett. Open Air Rink is Erected at Ivanhoe

West Huntingdon — The ringing of the school bells on Wednesday morning was the official notice that the great holiday season was over. The scholars have been somewhat interrupted in their studies since the beginning of the autumn term, but now it will be a steady grind until Easter.

One of the most thriving villages in the township of Huntingdon is the progressive hamlet called Ivanhoe. During the past few years many new industries and public buildings have been added, the latest addition is a new open air skating rink which it is hoped will provide amusement for the younger generation without causing them to drive long distances for this popular pastime.

The rink has been made possible by the efforts of the members of the newly formed hockey team. At a recent meeting the following officers were elected:

Hon. presidents, Henry Wallace, and Thomas Fleming; President, Rev. Samuel Delve; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. Frank Palmer; Directors, Goldie McInroy, Milton Shaw and Clifford Mitts; Manager, Mr. Norris Tomilson.

The officials are busy preparing a team to enter the Centre Hastings Rural League.

St. Hyacinthe Gaulois Now in Third Place

Quebec, Jan. 6—(CP)—St. Hyacinthe Gaulois, with slim Gordie Poirier paving the way, downed the seventh-place Quebec Beavers 7-5 Friday in a wide-open Provincial Senior Hockey League game. The victory moved the Gaulois into third place, one point ahead of Lachine Rapides who were beaten in Boston.

Poirier scored four goals, all in the second period, and assisted on two others. Albert and Tony Lemay and Frank Mailley tallied the other St. Hyacinthe counters.

Quebec's scorers were Guy Labrie, Theo Hamel, newly appointed coach who got two, Frank Trottier and Emil Fortin.

ALBERT COLLEGE IN C.O.S.S.A.

Will Play Senior and Junior Interscholastic Hockey and Draw Bye Into Playdowns

Competition in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. groups for winter sports of both hockey and basketball will be confined for the greater part to hockey in the Trent Valley section of the Quinte group.

In the southern group, that usually embraces Belleville Collegiate, Albert College, Trenton H. S., Picton and Napanee Collegiates, only two of these schools indicated willingness to compete in Interscholastic competitive sports this season. In the northern section, however, Stirling, Marmora and Tweed High Schools will play senior Interscholastic hockey only.

Coach Pete Beach of Albert College entered both senior and junior Interscholastic hockey teams, but will draw a bye into the C.O.S.S.A., playdowns, as other secondary schools within the district withdrew from the group in both hockey and basketball. Napanee Collegiate was given a bye into the senior and junior girls' basketball playdowns, as no other school in the district is sponsoring girls' basketball this season.

Last night's meeting of the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. groups was held in the Belleville Collegiate with President S. McEwen in the chair and Secretary H. Moffat assisting. George Laughlin, physical director at the Belleville Collegiate, was present to say that the local Collegiate would confine itself to inter-form sports this winter.

FRED APOSTOLI DEFEATS BETTINA

Both Fighters in Late Rounds Almost Too Tired to Lift Sodden Gloves

New York, Jan. 6 (AP). — Fred Apostoli, heavier and slower than he used to be but a more deadly puncher, was back in pugilism's top drawer today, a menace to the 175-pound division.

The San Francisco star, knocked loose from his middle-weight crown by Ceferino Garcia and widely regarded as "washed-up", returned to Madison Square Garden last night to win a gruelling 12-round decision over Mello Bettina of Beacon, N.Y., former light-heavy king.

It was so close that a big portion of the crowd of 5,707 roundly boo'ed the verdict. The referee and one judge voted for Apostoli. The other judge gave Bettina the nod, while The Associated Press score sheets had them dead-even.

Toward the last both fighters were almost too tired to lift their sodden gloves. Blood flowed from a deep cut on Bettina's lip, smearing the exhausted pair with crimson. It was a brutal fight.

Bettina, the southpaw, knocked Apostoli down in each of the first three rounds for counts of nothing, eight and nine. Apostoli, throwing his right like a sledge-hammer, half knocked, half pushed Bettina down for nine in the tenth chapter. Neither ever looked like staying on the floor.

STIRLING LOSES TO TWEED IN ROUGH CONTEST

Score is 5-2 With Winners Scoring Four Times Without a Reply

18 PENALTIES IN GAME

Teams "Play for Keeps" and Referee Busy to Keep Game in Check

Stirling, Jan. 6—(Special)—After showing slightly more than equality for eighteen minutes of real classy puck-chasing Stirling "Bombers" yielded slightly to the sizzling speed set by Tweed's hustling squad and could do no better than "bounce" their way through to a close second. "Bounce" is exactly the fitting word, for the game, after the first period, was a series of bouncing and 18 players bounced themselves into the penalty box. When the going was rough the boys from the north proved themselves equally able to take and dish it out. Stirling boys tried hard in the final frame but the leaders were too far in front. The final score 5-2 in favour of Tweed is a good indication of the play through the game.

The Play

After thirteen minutes of well balanced checking and sizzling speed on a sheet of faultless ice, Jack Tummon broke loose and went through unassisted to gain the first counter and only goal of the first period. Wager was responsible for the second goal after five minutes in the middle period. Skirting the Stirling defence he went right in on Ross to score. J. Cournyea and Prevost combined to make it 3-0 and Prevost scored with only two minutes of the period left to put the winners four goals in front.

Third Period Rough

The speed took its toll in the final period which began and finished a long parade to the penalty box. Penalties numbering 18 in all were handed out during the game and thirteen of the total was given in the final session. Morton of the local crew was the "Horner" of the evening, serving five penalties. The rest was about equally divided by players on both teams. Joe Cournyea clicked for the fifth Tweed counter and the goal-getters for Stirling were Richardson and "Mickey" Armstrong. Jack Tummon, Wager Prevost and Cournyea brothers were the pick of the visitors. Armstrong, Richardson, Fraser and Morton went well for the locals. Walker, Jones are improving on their defence tactics at the Stirling blue line. Stirling has yet to click for a win but they are a game bunch of youngsters trying hard.

Teams:

Tweed—Goal, Reeves; defence, Tummon and Orr; centre, Wagar; wings, Leal, Marsh, Prevost; alternates, Long, Cournyea and Woodcock.

Stirling — Goal, Hart; defence, Walker and Jones; centre, Armstrong; wings, Richardson and Fraser; alternates, Morton, Dainard, May.

Sometimes Grateful

By WILLIAM SMITH

Mrs. Mill was a good and rather pretty little widow. Her five children adored her and usually obeyed her, which is significant. She had never smiled merrily since the day her husband died, finely fighting the worst blaze that had ever occurred in the history of peaceful Dannsville.

Dora Mill was a dressmaker and a good one, though if she hadn't been quite clever with her garden as well making it support the hungry five and supply early peas to some of the neighbors, it was hard to see how she could make ends meet.

Her attractive face and pleasant manner had called forth at least one offer of marriage, but she dreaded the effect of a stepfather on the affairs of the five, which she was capably directing to certain definite ends. Derrick was to be an electrical engineer. He knew, of course, that this meant immense effort on his own part, for never disguished that [illegible] meant work. Fanny was to [illegible] signer. Tom was too small to be seriously inclined toward any calling, and the twins were mere babies.

Therefore when Gerard Filey, owner of the Filey Iron Works, drove up to the tiny house and asked for Dora, she was surprised and just a little frightened. Tom would throw balls. Possibly his ball had broken a sizeable window.

But no.

"You are Mrs. Mill?" asked Filey.

"I am," replied Dora, "won't you come in?"

"If I may, I will,' said the stranger.

"I came," said Filey, coming directly to the point, "to tell you that your husband saved my life. Possibly you did not know it."

Mrs. Mill flushed painfully.

"I think Tom did his duty—always," she said, quietly.

Filey looked at her. What a lovely little face it was. How refined in expression.

"I wasn't thinking of any material expression of gratitude," he hastened to explain, "I only thought perhaps we might — might — be friends. I lost a son, you know. Frat house burned. Maybe you heard of it. And my wife slipped, climbing in Switzerland. I'm alone, don't you see? And I'm very sorry for folks who are alone. That's all. Then, I know Dr. Bigby who judged your babies. And I am particularly interested in better babies."

It was all said so simply that Dora could not take offense or suspect ulterior motives.

"If you are unhappy," said she with the same fine frankness, "I shall be glad to help you if I can. I am not very well educated I've never been further away than St. Louis in my life. But I want the best of life for all my little ones. And I am glad they're healthy and good. Do you know," with half a smile. "I was afraid little Tom might have broken one of your windows."

Filey smiled, too. "No," he said, "it was just that I couldn't wait any longer to tell you that my thoughts were with you. Have been since I heard about it. That's all. I'll be mighty grateful if you'll let the kiddies come around some time and play. It doesn't matter if a ball or so goes astray once in a while. I'm lonely. I wonder," hesitatingly, "if you'd ever let me take you out in my car for a ride."

Dora knew Filey was rated at over half a million, but she understood his need. "If it helps you any, of course I will. And I'd enjoy the rides. I may bring the twins, of course?"

"Couldn't do without 'em," said Filey.

And a strange and rather beautiful friendship grew between these two simple souls. Dora never seemed to recognize the barrier of money. She was too genuinely unsophisticated. To her he was just the man her Tom had saved. Filey had met for the first time in his life a woman who thought all the time of others as if it were the most natural thing to do. But he noted the drives brought a pretty color to her cheeks and that the twins grew to hug him as if he belonged, somehow, in the simple scheme of their lives.

At last he asked Dora if she thought she could ever learn to care for him a little. "Not,' modesty, "as you cared for—Tom. But if you'd let me take care of you I'm so darn fond of the kids.'

For the first time the difference in social position dawned on Dora.

"I'm only a fireman's widow," she said.

"My father was foreman at the iron works," he said, "he was an inventor and that's how he made his money. After all, we're Americans and I don't think it matters. Can't you like me just a little?" he coaxed. "I love you, Dora."

"I can't give you what I gave Tom," whispered Dora, "but I respect you with all my heart, and I love you for your goodness to us all."

"I guess I'll have to be satisfied with that then. Maybe in the years to come you may grow to like me a little better." He smiled half wistfully as he took her into his arms.

Marketing Problem Fully Explained

When a marketing problem is explained in the light of dollars and cents to the producer it is more easily understood by all. At present prices the producer actually receives more for a 170-lb. grade "A" carcass than he does for a carcass weighing 200 lbs. The maximum weight for grade "A" is 170 lbs.

Grade "A" 170 lbs at $11.50—$19.55 plus $1.00 premium—$20.55.

Grade "B1" 175 lbs. at $11.50—$20.12.

Grade "B3" 185 lbs at $11.50—$21.27 less $1.50 deduction—$19.77.

Heavy 186 lbs. at $11.50—$21.39 less $2.50 deduction—$18.89.

Better Demand Halts Egg Decline

Toronto, Jan. 6.—Ending a price decline that lasted several days, eggs closed the week on a steadier footing yesterday on the Toronto open produce market. Butter remained unchanged in quiet trading.

Dealers blamed increased receipts for the downturn in egg prices early this week. Demand was not sufficient to absorb the surplus; consequently trading became quiet and top-grade eggs retreated slightly. The lack of interest on the part of buyers was most noticeable in A-large stock, with grades A-medium and A-pullet enjoying a little better inquiry. Demand improved yesterday, however, and the market developed a steadier undertone.

There was slight buying interest in grades B and C, on which prices were only nominal. Inspected egg shipments to the north were light during the week, but one car of 400 cases was being prepared yesterday for inspection and shipment to the Maritimes.

The butter market was extremely quiet. With trading slow and draggy, prices remained nominally unchanged. First grade Ontario creamery solids sold at 28c. Offerings were light and brokers did not press for sales.

Friday's Snow Storm Heaviest of the Season; Roads Generally Clear

Winds veering into a northerly direction during the night changed what threatened to develop into a heavy fall of snow, to the clear coldness of a bright winter day.

As it was, five inches of snow, the heaviest fall to be recorded this season thus far, covered the city and district in a white mantle, yesterday afternoon and evening.

Lack of strong winds, however, resulted in a minimum of drifting, and today roads of the surrounding district were said to be free from any banks or drifts.

County snowplows, however, are standing by for any emergency. Weather reports and present indications point to cold weather, with threats of light snow in this district for over the week end.

MEN SUN BATHERS HAVE TO COVER UP

Hollywood, Fla., Jan. 6—(AP)—The manager of an oceanfront hotel here sent an air raid alarm to masculine sun bathers in the solarium yesterday. The men covered their various degrees of sunburn with robes and headed for their rooms. Women fliers entered in a Miami air race, it seemed, used the hotel as a pylon.

HORE-BELISHA

The 43-year-old minister's advocacy of a unified command on the western front under the French General Gamelin was reported to have received scant support from his officers. He was said also to have encountered opposition of Air Minister Sir Kingsley Wood when he urged a single command for the air force and army in France.

Although these undercurrents never came into the open, Prime Minister Chamberlain was reported, in order to preserve peace in the government, to have asked Mr. Hore-Belisha to take the Board of Trade portfolio, but Mr. Hore-Belisha refused. His letter of resignation said "for reasons I gave you verbally" he could not accept another office.

The Times, which never has been particularly friendly toward Hore-Belisha, said that "thanks largely to him", a new British army was "in a fair way to come into existence".

Accent On Youth.

Military chieftains had looked askance at him, however, since he took office in 1937 and immediately placed the accent on youth by retiring several elder generals.

He got better pensions and living comforts for enlisted men, sought equal opportunity for all ranks, and furthered the mechanization of a horse-loving army. He was extremely popular with the enlisted men.

The war ministry change overshadowed the others, for the man in the street regarded Mr. Hore-Belisha as second only to Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in prosecuting the war against Germany.

A commentator in the Daily Herald said Prime Minister Chamberlain had "started a blitzkrieg of his own," and inquired, "what on earth has been going on behind the scenes."

The Daily Express said the choice of Oliver Stanley as Mr. Hore-Belisha's successor was "a most unsatisfactory appointment".

War Secretary Only 43

Mr. Stanley, also 43, is the son of Lord Derby, War Secretary in 1916-18 and 1922-24. Tall, lean and prematurely gray, he won a reputation for his mastery of detail as president of the Board of Trade.

Twice decorated for his services as a major in the last war, he became Minister of Transport in 1934 the youngest man in the cabinet. The same year, he became Minister of Labor, and Mr. Hore-Belisha took the transport job. Mr. Stanley later served as Minister of Education.

Mr. Stanley, who shuns publicity, whereas the retiring War Secretary is not averse to it, was in bed suf of the Executive Committee of the appointment was made known.

Sir Andrew Duncan is chairman fering influenza last night when his British iron and steel federation and a director of the Bank of England.

Headed Commissions in Canada

The new Board of Trade president twice headed commissions in Canada. Fifteen years ago he was called to head a royal commission inquiring into grievances of the Maritime Provinces and afterwards wrote the famous "Duncan Report." Earlier he had headed an investigation into the Nova Scotia coal industry and in 1932 he made another inquiry into the province's coal problems.

Sir Andrew is not now a member of Parliament but a seat in the House of Commons probably will be found for him.

Sir John Reith, new head of the much-criticized Ministry of Information, is noted for his organization of the British Broadcasting Corporation and his direction of that system from 1922 to 1938, and as chairman of Imperial Airways.

More Correlation Promised

Since the ministry was organized hastily at the start of the war last September, it has been assailed in the House of Commons and in the Press, largely over the handling of official news.

Sir John was expected to work for speedier reporting of war news by government departments and correlation of various offices of the ministry.

The son of a United Free Church of Scotland pastor, he is known as a moralist who shuns tobacco and alcohol. He was a major in the last war and, after being wounded, he was placed in charge of British munitions contracts in the United States in 1915-18. His predecessor, Lord MacMillan, 66-year-old former judge, told the Prime Minister in a letter of resignation:

"You have been good enough to tell me that impending changes which you have in view, as well as the embarrassment which has been caused by the fact that I have no seat in the House of Commons, render it expedient that I should place my appointment at your disposal."

Nation is Puzzled

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said "The comment is that the army old gang have defeated him." It printed prominently the press association's comment that "the general opinion expressed in this country is that 'Belisha did not get on with the Generals—and he had to go." The press association added that one comment was: "The youngest Member of the Cabinet has been beaten at last by the old gang of the High Command."

Editorially the Evening Standard said: "The nation is puzzled." The Star, beneath a headline reading "The Story Behind Belisha's Dismissal," put the sub-heading: "Sacrifices by Premier to appease military critics."

The News headed its story "Belisha's quarrel with Generals." In an editorial the paper said "the public is entitled to know the truth and the whole truth about Mr. Hore-Belisha's departure from the War Office."

Supporter Not Satisfied

The influential Cardiff Western Mail, a strong supporter of Mr. Chamberlain's Government, said: "We cannot say he (Oliver Stanley, now Secretary for War) has been a conspicuous success at the Board of Education and the Ministry of Labor, or at the Board of Trade."

The political correspondent of the Daily Express, Guy Eden, said that Mr. Chamberlain's decision to ask Mr. Hore-Belisha's signature was taken under pressure from the army Generals who objected to the War Secretary's reforms and drastic changes.

"It was rumored," the correspondent wrote, "that Parliament might reassemble before the appointment date of Jan. 16 when Mr. Hore-Belisha will make a 'personal statement.'"

He added that the Opposition is likely to ask for a full dress debate on what the Minister will say and Mr. Chamberlain will give his version. The writer also said there may be a slight reshuffle in Junior Cabinet offices.

Victory of "Brass Hats"?

"Belisha Sacked," was the blunt heading of this morning's Daily Herald. Hannen Swaffer, writing in the Herald, described Mr. Hore-Belisha's departure from the War Office as a victory for the "Brass Hats."

"Soon the Bore War had settled down," he wrote. "The British Expeditionary Force almost without casualty entrenched itself in Arctic cold and waited for spring.

"Except for Gracie (Gracie Fields, British stage star) they might not know that a war is on.

(Miss Fields has just returned from singing for the troops in France and her activities while at the front received wide publicity here).

"'Things are going splendidly,' said everyone.

"Then Neville started a Blitzkreig of his own. He annihilated—his Secretary of State for War!

"Now what on earth has been going on—behind the scenes? Whom has Leslie offended? What did he refuse to do?"

The Times, which in the past has criticized Mr. Hore-Belisha, praised his work and said editorially that the new army "thanks largely to him is in a fair way to come into existence."

"There is no reason to suppose," it said, "that this retirement marks the extinction of a political career which ha been distinguished by the one most essential quality of drive.

"These changes will not be taken as a last word either as regards men or as regards machinery," the Times said.

The Daily Mail explained the war secretary's resignation, saying that "Mr. Hore-Belisha has not been getting on well with the generals and he goes."

Whispering Campaign

The News Chronicle gave the same reason, and said: "For some time past gossip has been unpleasantly busy with stories of a whispering campaign against the ministry in high army circles."

The Daily Express said "Mr. Hore-Belisha was one of the most efficient ministers. Mr. Oliver Stanley is a most unsatisfactory appointment."

The same paper charged Mr. Stanley in an editorial with "putting the clock back" as minister of transport and said he "blundered over unemployment assistance" as minister of labor.

The Press Association said: "The resignation, it is declared, is the culmination of a whispering campaign which originated in social circles rather than political quarters and spread so high and so extensively that Mr. Chamberlain eventually could not but be aware of it. It is a sequel to the gradually widening rift between the war minister and the high command."

Message to Constituents

Mr. Hore-Belisha's message to his constituents was as follows—

"The people of Devonport have always sustained me in the very arduous life that I have led in their service and the service of the state since my first election to parliament more than 16 years ago.

"I have worked hard in four different government departments, and in the last of these, the war office, it fell to my responsibility to reorganize it drastically and to prepare thoroughly the British army for war.

"Many changes and enlargements have been necessary in the army and it now takes the field in ever-growing numbers and in a democratic organization. It will acquit itself with valor and distinction if and when the occasion comes.

"I am proud and privileged to have been for so long associated with it, and to have helped to mould its form and spirit. Whatever task may fall to me, I shall perform with vigor, but I have no thought at the present moment but that of winning the war.

"This concentration of purpose, I am sure, is shared by everyone of my constituents. The fact that I remain the member for Devonport still gives me an opportunity for service."

London, Jan. 6.—(CP)— The Press Association said today it was understood Prime Minister Chamberlain consulted no cabinet members, except Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, on the developments leading to the resignation of Leslie Hore-Belisha as Secretary of State for War.

When Parliament reconvenes January 16, Mr. Chamberlain will be pressed to make a complete statement regarding Mr. Hore-Belisha's resignation, the News Agency said. Only the Prime Minister, it added, holds the key to the enigma of why the Secretary for War resigned.

MARKET PRICES GENERALLY FIRM

Staple Vegetables Slightly Higher — Eggs Unchanged — Fair Display of Poultry on Satur. Market

With the rush and bustle of the Christmas and New Year's markets over, farmers and other vendors of the district settled down to the usual Saturday routine on the city market today.

The offering, while not nearly as heavy as the past two weeks, was productive of a fair display of produce. No turkeys or geese were offered, vendors in several cases stating that their supply had been exhausted over the holiday week-ends.

Prices were steady in practically all phases of the offering. Egg quotations showed no change over those of a week ago, grade "A" selects selling at 28 cents the dozen with other grades a few cents less. Butter quotations were firm at 30 cents the pound for one and two-pound rolls.

The chicken offering was fairly good with choice weighty June birds selling at one dollar each or approximately 25 cents the pound. Fowl was offered at 60 and 75 cents each.

Vendors on the outside market said today that a shortage of staple vegetables was imminent. This in turn was substantiated by a general increase in prices that featured this offering.

Carrots and turnips increased five cents the bushel to 60 cents while parsnips rose to 65 cents and onions to $1.25 the bushel. Potato prices, however, were steady with 75-pound bag lots offered at $1.25.

"Stark Delicious" and Northern Spy apples featured the winter fruit display selling at $1.25 per hamper for ring-packed fruit. Russets and Tolman Sweets sold at $1.00 the bushel with other cooking varieties selling at a few cents less.

Whitefish at 20 cents the pound and mudcats at 15 cents the pound rounded out the fish offering. Six-weeks-old pigs sold at $5.50 and $6.00 each.

PRIME MINISTER

Viscount Gort and Mr. Hore-Belisha have had no differences of opinion since the war began—this is emphasized—but Mr. Hore-Belisha is a man who, having decided in his own mind what he deems to be essential, administers the utmost drive to bring the idea to its fullest fruition.

He has felt that, fast though it was, the speed with which our defences across the water were progressing was capable of even greater acceleration, so as to leave no doubt in the minds of Germany that our military position is impregnable.

Military policy, the best way to carry it out, and the best application of military technique, were all involved, affecting the area occupied by British troops.

Mr. Hore-Belisha wished to be more vigorous, and Lord Gort, backed by G.H.Q., has shown, it is believed, a certain resistance to the War Minister's insistence. Both were agreed on principles, but the expert advice of the soldier did not coincide with the full-blooded views of the Minister.

Finally, the Prime Minister found himself obliged to decide, and, unwilling to allow the dissensions to continue, took the strong line — which was to allow the generals to prevail.

Military Wedding At Aldershot Camp Brilliant Affair

Aldershot, Jan. 6—(CP Cable) — One hundred and twenty guests today attended the fashionable wedding of Miss Peggy Crerar and Lieut. Hamilton Palmer, both of Ottawa, in St. George's, the Aldershot Garrison Church, in a setting made colorful by an abundance of military uniforms.

It was the first overseas wedding of a member of the Canadian Active Service Force.

Among those present were the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor General of Canada, and the Countess of Bessborough; Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, and Mrs. Massey; Brig.-General H. D. G. Crerar and Mrs. Crerar, the bride's parents.

Also Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, General Officer commanding the C.A.S.F., and Mrs. McNaughton; Colonel G. P. Loggie and Mrs. Loggie, and senior officers of the Canadian Divisional Headquarters Staff.

PRAY FOR THAW AS SOLUTION OF WATER SHORTAGE

Farmers Need Water to Replenish Ponds, Creeks and Wells

COLD TO PREVAIL

Farmers over large sections of Ontario might well be praying for a thaw today as a solution to the acute water shortage.

With winter sports lovers revelling in the forecast of clear cold weather following yesterday's heavy snowfall in central and western Ontario, farmers looked beyond the week-end and hoped for a thaw that would replenish ponds, creeks and wells and raise the water level generally.

The Dominion Observatory at Toronto said low temperatures would prevail over most of Ontario until Sunday at least. There is no forecast beyond Sunday.

A thaw would be especially beneficial in the environs of London, St. Thomas, Woodstock, Owen Sound, Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto as far east as Kingston, where from five to three inches of snow fell yesterday. It was continuing in some districts today.

Haul Long Distances.

In many sections of the province a shortage of water due to the dry autumn has compelled farmers to haul water over long distances for their livestock to drink. In some instances, farmers are paying to have water carted to their farms.

Kingston reported the heaviest snowfall of the winter today. A storm started early this morning and was expected to continue into the night. Snowploughs will be operated overnight in order to keep highways open.

The Timmins district reported clear weather and a temperature of 12 below zero. Two feet of snow is on the ground there and residents are starting a movement to have the road between Timmins and Swastika kept open by a snowplough during the winter.

A light fall of snow was reported at St. Catharines, about two inches falling by 10 a.m. Snow continued to fall at Galt and the depth there reached eight inches.

Some districts reported highways were drifted or slippery but no main roads were blocked.

Now the laborer's task is o'er
Now the battle day is past
Now upon the farther shore
Lands the voyager at last.

Earth to earth and dust to dust
Calmly now the words we say
Left behind we wait in trust,
For the Resurrection Day

Father in Thy gracious keeping
Leave we now Thy servant sleeping.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Jan. 6 (CP) — Joseph Nevin, 17, was sentenced to 18 months in prison today for possession of an Irish Republican army pamphlet, "Prison Bars." Stockholm, Jan. 6—(CP-Havas) —Although today is a holiday in Sweden, 100,000 Swedish workers went to their jobs this morning. They will contribute wages earned to Finnish relief organizations. It is estimated that 2,000,000 kroner ($476,600) will be contributed by the workers.

A checkup by police last night resulted in finding numerous commercial buildings where lights had been left burning with no one in attendance. Included in the number were a Nova Scotia Liquor Commission store and a military garage.

The marked uptrend that characterized business and industry in the weeks previous to the Christmas holidays, apparently affected other spheres of activity in the city. A member of a prominent city insurance firm told the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday that the business conducted by his firm during the month of December, was the best experienced in a number of years.

Newspaper States Steelmaster Charles Schwab Died 'Poor Man'

Pittsburgh, Jan. 6—(AP)—Steelmaster Charles M. Schwab, a multi-millionaire for forty years, is said by the Post-Gazette to have died "a poor man".

"His wealth had withered away", reported the newspaper. "Former business associates of Mr. Schwab, young members of the group that Andrew Carnegie gathered about him, have discussed for weeks the disappearance of the once vast Schwab fortune."

No accounts have been filed by executors of Schwab's will, probated in New York where he died on Sept. 18.

Attorney General To Appeal Sentences

Lindsay, Ont., Jan. 6 (CP)—The Ontario Attorney-General's Department has announced it will appeal the sentences imposed on three Orono men found guilty of armed robbery by Magistrate E. A. Gee of Lindsay on Friday, Dec. 27. The three men, George Gault, 31, Sydney York, 18, and Ernest Allen, 20, were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary in the case of Gault, nine months determinate and nine months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory for York and six months for Allen.

At their trial, Gault pleaded guilty to three charges of armed robbery and one of breaking and entering. York pleaded guilty to the same charges and Allen pleaded guilty to one charge of armed robbery.

The trio was arrested by Constable John Nesbitt and ex-Constable John Simnett of Lindsay a few hours after Daniel Berry of Omemee was held up and robbed by three men on No. 7 highway near here on Dec. 20.

Grounds on which the appeal will be made are that the sentences are inadequate to the charge of armed robbery.

SECOND EXPLOSION CAUSES DAMAGE

Hamilton, Jan. 6 —(CP)— Police and Fire Department officials ordered King Street West barricaded and the area closed off to the public at noon today when a second explosion ripped out a manhole and disrupted power supplies to the centre of the city.

The blast followed the series which shook the whole western part of the city last night and sent six manhole covers flying into the air. The explosion at noon today was far less violent, but it played havoc with power services.

JEALOUSY AND BOASTING BAD FOR ADULTS

AFTER LAST PAYMENT

Dallas, Jan. 6 (AP).—Policeman J. M. Ferguson handed motorist Lloyd George a summons for failure to stop at a boulevard.

Noting the signature on the ticket George commented:

"I'm on my way to your house to get that last payment on those books you bought."

Police Blotter

Several minor motor accidents were reported to police yesterday, all being directly attributed to the slippery condition of the city streets, despite the efforts of the Public Works Department in sanding city hills. Yesterday's snowfall covered many icy spots, which motorists could not see resulting in the majority of these minor accidents. Several such accidents found fender damage only resulting and mutual agreement of settlement being agreed between the parties concerned.

Early last evening at the intersection of Queen St. and Bleecker Ave. a more serious accident occured, but fortunately no personal injuries were sustained. Everett Hodgen, Plainfield, was driving easterly on Queen St. when his motor car was in collision with a south bound automobile, driven on Bleecker Ave. by Robert R Hinchey, 128 Dufferin Ave. The two vehicles nosed together as the drivers swerved to avoid a more serious collision. Mr. Hodgen's car crashed into a nearby hydro pole. Considerable damage resulted to the radiators and fenders of the vehicles. Detective Fred Isard investigated the matter.

Two transients, who were extending the spirit of New Years, were arrested yesterday by P.C. Taylor. On the person of one of the men was found a portion of a bottle of native wine. The men were remanded in custody for trial on charges preferred under the L.C.A.

Pearce, D Shannon, J. Murray, C. Lummiss, Jesse Barlow and T. R. Warren.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. R. Heron. Her husband was burned so severely he was not expected to live. Both were deaf and apparently did not hear the warning cries of other tenants.

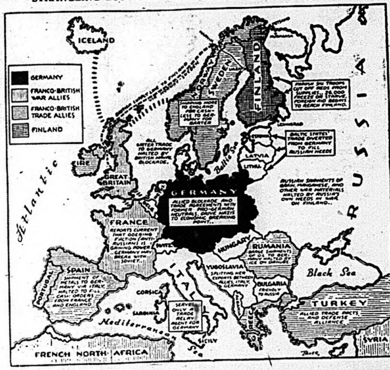
To Soften Blackout

In the early weeks of the war, more casualties were suffered in England as the result of blackout accidents than in the front lines. To partially relieve the situation these lights have been devised. They are planned for use with low-intensity street lighting, and direct their beams directly downward—not upward or outward where they might give a clue to raiding aircraft. This particular model is designed to fit on London's gas lamp standards.

Finnish Sharpshooters Inflict Heavy Toll on Red Invaders

Wearing the now-familiar white hood and shroud-like garment over his uniform to make him a more difficult target against the snow, this Finnish sharpshooter is awaiting a favorable opportunity to put in a telling shot. He is at his post in front of the Mannerheim line on the Karelian Isthmus. Finnish riflemen like this man, have taken a terrible toll of charging Russians in the main attacks that have broken against the Mannerheim fortifications.

STRANGLING ECONOMIC ROPE TIGHTENING ON GERMANY



Here is a map-digest of the current situation in Europe, showing how the British-French blockade is slowly, but surely, drawing a strangling economic rope around the throat of Germany. Gradually the Allies are either buying up materials which would normally be exported to Germany, or they are making the blockade so tight that the exports could not get through, anyway. Since Russia has more trouble with Finland than she has any use for, Moscow is not being the "great help" to Germany that Germany expected when that famous pact was signed.

Sadly in need of a shave, Lieutenant Commander G. C. Phillips skipper of the tiny coastal submarine Ursula, is shown as he returned to a British port after his daring raid on a German naval stronghold in the mouth of the Elbe river. The commander reported he had sunk a German cruiser of the Koln class, after penetrating a mine field and a destroyer screen.

URSULA'S CREW DECORATE THEMSELVES

Quite obviously the crew of the British submarine, Ursula, knew it had performed valiantly when it sunk one of Germany's Koln class cruisers at the mouth of the River Elbe, and so, rather than wait for decorations from official sources, the sub crew decided to decorate itself with "iron crosses," such as Chancellor Hitler presents to his submarine crews after a victorious voyage.

ITALO-HUNGARIAN MILITARY ALLIANCE REPORTED

Still More Shifting Of High Offices Is Foreshadowed

Vice-Admiral C. V. Usborne Resigns as Director of Censorship Division of Press Bureau—Will Enter New Work

COMMENT BITTER

Hore-Belisha May Have Quarrelled With Churchill Over Announcement of Arrival of Canadian Troops Says Daily Express

London, Jan. 8—(CP)—A more liberal news censorship policy was foreshadowed today by the resignation of Vice-Admiral C. V. Usborne as Director of the Censorship Division of the Press and Censorship Bureau.

Admiral Usborne's departure followed Friday's cabinet reorganization in which Sir John Reith replaced Lord MacMillan as Minister of Information and Leslie Hore-Belisha resigned his place in the war cabinet.

A storm continued to revolve about the circumstances of Mr. Hore-Belisha's resignation as Secretary for War and opposition leaders, not expecting a full account from Prime Minister Chamberlain in a speech at the Mansion House tomorrow night, were reported ready to press for a meeting of Parliament before the regular reconvening set for Jan. 16.

Enters New Work

The Home Office announced that Admiral Usborne, a developer of the paravane to protect ships against mines, would enter new work of national importance in connection with specialized naval construction. (Modern paravanes are blade-like devices to cut mines from their cables.)

Sir Walter Monckton, Director General of the Bureau, who had offered his own resignation because of difficulties obstructing fuller war news reports, assumed personal charge of news censorship with Admiral Usborne's assistant, Vice-Admiral George Thompson, remaining as his aide.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Winter fogs! Fogs, like clouds, are the result of the condensation of the invisible water vapor which forms a part of the air. Winter fogs are formed by warm, humid air blowing over colder surfaces, be they land or water. The winter fogs on the east coast of England and over the Atlantic Ocean are of this type. On land they form when a warm humid south wind blows over cold snow or soil surfaces. The warm air loses its heat by duction and radiation to the cool surfaces, and this results in sufficient cooling to condense the water vapor into fog.

MAYOR THOMPSON, COUNCIL MEMBERS ARE INSTALLED

Bishop Marshall Invokes Divine Blessing on Deliberation of Body in Coming Year

CHAIRMEN APPOINTED

Council Adjourns to Conduct Business Session This Evening

Mayor Glencoe Thompson and members of the City Council were installed in office at an impressive ceremony in the Council Chamber this morning but no business excepting the appointing of chairmen to the various committees and the passing of several by-laws was transacted as adjournment was moved until seven-thirty o'clock this evening, when several delegations will address the council.

The newly elected Mayor was escorted to the dias by two newly elected members of the council after which Bishop George Marshall delivered the invocation the members and guests joining in the Lord's Prayer. The Mayor then read his address to the citizens, which will be found in another column of this issue. Mayor Thompson stated his pleasure at being elected to the highest office in the gift of the ratepayers and hoped for a continuation of lowering of taxes that has been instituted by previous councils. He stated the financial position of Belleville was sound and in a healthy condition but that more attention must be paid to relief and that the council would try very hard to provide a job for every

Overseas Squadron Spends Plenty of Time In Co-operation Work

Ottawa, Jan. 8 (CP) — Gull-like Westland-Lysander planes drone up and down the Ottawa Valley these days and over the Gatineau ski hills as an army co-operation squadron trains for service overseas with the first division of the Canadian Active Service Force.

The pilot of No. 110 A.C. Squadron of Toronto, chosen as the first Royal Canadian Air Force unit to be sent abroad, are spending plenty of time in the air with their gunners, theoretically spotting gun emplacements along the Aylmer road or scouting troop movements in the snow-clad hills.

The sub-zero Ottawa weather and the snow on Rockcliffe Airport are not slowing up training. The Lysanders sweep into the blue from the rolled, snow-packed runways and nearly every daylight hour Ottawans can hear at least one of these planes in the air.

The pilots in the squadron, augmented by airmen from Winnipeg and Ottawa, are all specialists in army co-operation which requires detailed knowledge of infantry tactics and ground manoeuvres as well as flying and technical ability.

Two advisors from the army are on hond to guide the airmen in their training and assist in co-operating with the ground units.

Burnett Will Head R. A. A. F., Sweeping Charges Are Forecast

By J. S. Holdsworth (Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 8.—(CP-Cable) —Decision of the Australian War Cabinet to place Sir Charles Burnett, inspector general of The Royal Air Force, at the head of the Royal Australian Air Force is expected to be a prelude to sweeping changes in the Air Force administration. Sir Charles replaces Air Vice-Marshal Stanley Goble who resigned last week as acting chief of staff of the R.A.A.F.

In addition to Sir Charles, who has been concentrating on the training and maintenance of units in the United Kingdom, other British officers will be imported shortly to assist in the gigantic task of organizing Australia's participation in the Empire Air scheme. Under that plan at least a five-fold increase in present strength and facilities will be made.

These imported officers probably will be directed in this work by Air Vice-Marshal Richard Williams, former chief of staff of the R.A.A.F. who has been air officer in charge of administration, the United Kingdom coastal command. He has been recalled to Australia.

The reason for Goble's resignation is unknown although it is considered by competent observers to be due to his concern over the Australian identity of air strength under the Empire scheme. He declined to discuss the question of his future plans, but it is reported there is a possibility he will go to England or Canada for further service in some air capacity.

44TH DIVISION OF RED ARMY IS DESTROYED

Thousands Are Killed and More Than 1000 Russians Taken Prisoners

42 TANKS TAKEN

Second Great Victory for Finns Within Few Days is Reported Today

Helsingfors, Jan. 8—(AP) — Finnish forces destroyed the 44th Russian division, killing thousands and taking more than 1,000 prisoners, near Suomussalmi, a special army communique reported today.

It was in the northern part of the Suomussalmi region, at the narrow "waistline" of central Finland, that the Finns, a week ago, reported wiping out the invaders' 163rd division.

In the new victory the communique said large quantities of arms and material, including 42 tanks, were captured.

Heavy fighting has been reported in the Suomussalmi sector for days but today's communique was the first mention made of Russia's 44th division.

(Neutral military experts have estimated there are from 15,000 to 17,000 men in a Russian division.)

RECRUITS LINEUP BEFORE DAYLIGHT TO JOIN COLORS

Fight for Position in Line at Depot of 48th Highlanders

OVER 1,000 OFFER

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP)—Men fought in line for position as more than 1000 flocked to join the colors at University avenue Armouries at 9 a.m., today when the two recruiting depots, the 48th Highlanders and the District Depot opened.

Before daylight the first recruits were in line. As the lines grew, officers decided to let the men in out of the cold, but the file two and three deep extended so far around the armouries that it blocked the doorway and those who arrived after 9.30 were cent upstairs to wait in the gallery. It will probably be two days before they reach the head of the line.

Candidates came from near and far. Wearing identical windbreakers were the Brown brothers, John and Archibald of Peterboro.

The big demand was for cooks, clerks and typists, fitters, expert machinists and mechanics, artificers. Many of these are needed at once, and officers went along the lines picking out men with the necessary training and experience.

In the file was one man who had come from Prince Albert to join the army. "The name's MacPherson," he burred at the sergeant-major of the 48th. "Hoo's my chances?" "Good," chuckled the sergeant-major.

Mayor's Address

The address of Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson as read to members of the City Council and citizens today at the inaugural meeting is as follows:—

Mayor's Address MOV-1

Belleville, Ontario,
January 8th., 1940.

I desire to first express my appreciation to my fellow citizens for the honour they have conferred upon me in choosing me as Mayor of this City for the year 1940. It has been my pleasure and privilege to have served the Municipality for the past five years as a member of the Council and in accepting the heavy responsibilities of the Office of Mayor I shall endeavour to serve you, as in the past, to the best of my ability. It is essential that I have the cooperation of the members of the Council in following a policy of strict economy. All capital expenditures, except those absolutely necessary in the proper management of the Corporation's business, should be eliminated. If this policy is carried out and no unforeseen contingencies arise, I feel confident that this year will see a reduction in taxes.

Unemployment and Unemployment Relief

As we all know, one of our greatest problems since 1930 has been that of unemployment and unemployment relief. It will be our duty to attempt to ensure that the administration of unemployment relief, which is the responsibility of the Municipality, is carried out in a fair and just manner. In this connection I feel that those taxpayers who have relief recipients as tenants should receive their rents as and when due, in accordance with government regulations.

City Property

It is my conviction that the City, in so far as it is possible, should not compete with the property owners in the real estate business. As a result of following this policy in the past and disposing of city property as advantageously and quickly as possible, there is an increase in the assessment this year of between $75,000 and $100,000 which in some measure helps to relieve the taxpayers' burden generally.

City Lighting

I am in accord with the policy carried out during the past few years of gradually improving our street lighting as our finances warrant and intend to continue this policy, bearing in mind that our primary responsibility, as I see it, is tax reduction.

Tourist and Publicity

In the year 1939 the tourist traffic throughout Ontario increased substantially and as a result of this and the efficient administration of our Tourist Camp this phase of the city work was operated at a profit and from present indications it appears that the year 1940 will show still greater increase in the tourist traffic.

Industry

Industry plays an important part in the life of any municipality. We have splendid industries here. I feel that all city departments endeavouring to obtain new industries should receive the Council's closest attention and supervision. Some of us have felt that during the latter part of 1939 industrial activity should have been greater in this Municipality. I trust that this activity will be seen during the coming year and that every employable person who is willing to work will be given the opportunity of obtaining gainful employment. You may rest assured that the members of this year's Council will do everything in their power to obtain these results.

Public Utilities Commission

I desire to take this opportunity of complimenting the Utilities Commission and its efficient manager, Mr. O. H. Scott, on the capable manner in which our Utilities have been and are being operated and I look forward with pleasure to acting on the Commission this year.

I also wish to compliment the Women's Christian Association on their splendid work in connection with the administration of the Belleville General Hospital and their initiative in adding a modern wing to the present hospital. It is a great asset to this Municipality and the surrounding communities.

The City of Belleville is the centre of one of the finest farming, fruit growing and dairying communities in the Province of Ontario and owes much of its prosperity to our rural friends and neighbours and I wish to take this opportunity of expressing to them this Municipality's appreciation of their past support and good will and assuring them that it is our sincere desire to cooperate with them in every way in the best interests of our respective communities.

We find our Empire now at War! The first duty of everyone in this and every other municipality is to give our very best efforts to prosecute this war to a complete and successful conclusion as quickly as possible and I am confident that every person in this city will unite with his or her fellow citizens to carry on the splendid tradition of this old loyalist City of Belleville.

In conclusion, may I, on behalf of the members of the City Council, solicit the support of all the citizens of Belleville in our efforts during the coming year in transacting the City's business and extend to all our sincere wishes for a successful and Happy New Year.

SENIOR OFFICERS VISIT CONNAUGHT

Former Governor - General of Canada Quite Interested in Welfare of Troops

(By Gillis Purcell Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Aldershot, England, Jan. 8 (CP) —The Duke of Connaught, 89-year-old former Governor-General of Canada, gave evidence Sunday of his continuing interest in the Dominion and the Canadian Active Service Corps.

At his nearby home at Bagshot Park, Surrey, he was host at luncheon to Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, and two senior Brigadiers, Brigadier R. Pearkes of the Second Infantry Brigade, and Brigadier James Stewart, Commander of the Royal Artillery.

Discussion centred on the care and entertainment of the Canadian troops and the progress of their training. The Duke expressed an active interest based not only on his knowledge of Canadians but on intimate association with their quarters in Aldershot. He was closely associated with Aldershot when it was laid out more than half a century ago.

General McNaughton was able to say that the utmost has been done by the British authorities to make the Canadians comfortable and to assist in their training.

Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, asked about the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry Unit in the First Canadian Division. She said, in fact that she would like to see them on parade sometime soon, and this was regarded as in indication that an early visit from her at Aldershot is in prospect.

3 SHIPS SUNK OVER WEEKEND

One of Quietest Weeks in Sea Warfare Since the Struggle Began

London, Jan. 8 (CP)—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, was in France Sunday to look over the Royal Air Force and the army. His arrival in the British zone on the Western Front coincided with renewal of shipping losses after one of the quietest weeks in sea warfare since the sinking of the Athenia last September started Germany's merciless U-boat and mine attacks against Allied and neutral ships.

The British steamship Towneley, 2,888 tons, sank off the southeast coast of England after striking a mine. Her crew was saved.

From Gibraltar came reports that the entire crew of seventeen men on the 440-ton trawler Kingston Cornelian was lost Jan. 5 when she collided with the 8,920-ton French liner Chella in Gibraltar Strait. The Chella, which was damaged, lowered boats but failed to find survivors.

The 3,317-ton British passenger liner City of Marseilles was towed into port yesterday after striking a mine off the East Scottish Coast. One Lacsar seaman was killed and thirteen injured. The ship was badly holed amidships.

Sinking of a British trawler by a mine was disclosed Saturday with the landing of an East Coast port of six survivors, rescued by a sister ship. The name of the trawler was sa'd to be the Eta.

The war in the air was marked by little activity during the weekend. The Royal Air Force was reported authoritatively to have carried out reconnaissance flights over Northwestern Germany in addition to the usual security patrols maintained over German seaplane bases 1 nthe vicinity of the Frisian Islands, to prevent the Nazi planes from laying mines.

BRITAIN'S DRIVE TO WREST MARTS IS ACCELERATED

Negotiate New Trade Treaties With Germany's Customers to Step Up Blockade

SIGN WITH TURKEY

Britain and France Holding Trade Talks With All European Countries

London, Jan. 8—(CP) — Great Britain's drive to corner Germany's world markets by negotiating new trade treaties with German customers was accelerated today.

Objective of the tightened economic warfare, supplementing the Allies' two-way sea blockade of German commerce, was described as twofold:

1. To assure maintenance, as far as possible, or normal peacetime trade relations with neutrals and expand British export trade to provide foreign exchange for buying war materials.

2. To assure that not more than normal peacetime trade goes on between Germany and the neutrals with whom she can deal overland and, where possible, to cut down Germany's European import-export business and deprive her both of supplies and foreign exchange for buying them.

Apparently linked with the trade drive was the return here of a Netherlands commercial delegation and the arrival of Paul Van Zeeland, former Belgian Premier, on an undisclosed mission.

In the drive to wrest markets from Germany, reports from Istanbul said Britain and France are trying to absorb most Turkish products which, before the war, were sold mostly in Germany. The Allies are expected to sign agreements with Turkey shortly. France concluded a trade exchange agreement with Greece over the week-end.

Germany's Trade Dries Up.

Authoritative sources said Britain had held or is holding trade talks with "virtually all European neutrals", as well as campaigning for all possible American and Asiatic markets. German overseas trade has been tied up largely by the British naval blockade.

Trade agreements with Italy and Sweden already have been completed. Britain is negotiating now with Spain, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Rumania and the Balkan countries, among others.

Trade talks with Soviet Russia apparently have been stalled since the invasion of Finland.

Rationing of some commodities became effective in Britain today.

After 128 days of war, housewives for the first time took ration books to market today to buy butter, bacon, ham and sugar. Next Monday, they will need their books for other meats.

Also on the economic front were reports the government is considering a contraband control station in North America, possibly in Canadian waters, as a reply to the United States' protests over diversion of ships to British ports for examination.

"MEANEST THIEF" IS BACK

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (AP)— The "meanest thief" is back.

Mrs. Manuela Gaut, 32, was knocked down by a hit-run motorist. While witnesses carried her to shelter, the "meanest man" drove up, jumped from his car and seized her purse, then sped away.

Improvements in Airplane, Engine Design to Greatly Increase Speed

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—Aeronautical engineers forecast today airplanes capable of flying to Europe with a full load of bombs, or passengers and cargo, and returning non-stop if necessary.

This probability, expected to become a reality in the next year or 18 months, grew out of two technical reports to the United States Congress by the National Advisory Committee for aeronautics.

Two apparently simple changes in wing design, and the "finning" of airplane engine cylinders promise to increase vastly the range, speed, payload and efficiency of airplanes which already are being designed.

The present military and civil aircraft, which have brought Europe and Hawaii within a day's flying time of North America are regarded by Langley Field engineers as lumbering trucks compared with the planes which will be "coming out of the jigs" in a year or so.

450 to 500 M.P.H. Predicted

The new streamlined wing will cut through the air with only one-third the resistance, or "drag," of present wing designs, permitting speeds of 450 to 500 miles an hour. It still is a closely-guarded military secret.

The new cylinder "finning" based on the principle that the faster heat is carried away the more efficient an engine becomes, will increase the speed and efficiency of an engine by about 300 per cent. This principle is the one which every automobile driver knows—that an over-heated engine lacks power in climbing a hill.

The aeronautics expert said that airplanes superior to any now in use would be produced by combining these developments with other advances in propellor design, "safety fuels" which explode only in an engine cylinder, a new device for synchronizing two or more engines to keep them in step, a new type of cowling and better radio facilities.

Hungary Assured Of Italy's Aid Against Invasion

Budapest Story Says Support Will be Given Against Any Invasion by Russia or Germany

MEETING IN VENICE

Virginio Gayda Denies Any Agreements Made by Foreign Ministers of Italy and Hungary, But High Fascists Say Italy Will Support Hungary's Ambitions Territorially in Return for Aid in Checking Russia

By ROBERT PARKER A. P. STAFF WRITER

Budapest, Jan. 8—(AP)—A high authority today reported the Foreign Minister of Hungary and Italy had agreed on a military alliance assuring Hungary of Italian support against any invasion by Germany or Russia.

The agreement was said to have been reached by the two Foreign Ministers, Count Stephen Csaky of Hungary and Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy, in Venice where they have been conferring over the week end.

This authority said Count Csaky was expected to arrive in Budapest tomorrow to submit the text of the agreement to the Hungarian Crown Council. If the Council approves he then will return to Rome for formal signature of the pact.

Gayda Denies Pacts Made

(In Rome the authoritative Fascist writer Virginio Gayda denied any formal agreements had been reached in the Venice talks, but high Fascists said Italy would support Hungarian territorial ambitions in return for aid in checking Russia in the Balkans).

Yugoslavia, lying between Italy and Hungary, was understood to be unwilling to join any outright alliance with her two neighbors. It was reported, however, that she would join in a triple friendship pact which presumably would permit Italy to move troops through her territory in going to Hungary's aid if that became necessary.

Rumanian Situation

Count Ciano was said to have urged Hungary to seek at least a temporary agreement with Rumania over the Magyar minorities in Transylvania, territory which Rumania won in the break-up of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire after the first Great War.

Dispatches from Bucharest said Rumania's Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, was planning to visit Count Ciano in connection with Italy's efforts to settle Rumanian-Hungarian problems peacefully.

The reported decision of the Hungarian and Italian Foreign Ministers to recommend an alliance to their governments was said to have been reached not only because of fear that Russia might strike against a southeastern neighbor but also because of disturbing advices from Germany.

There reports which high sources said played an important role in the Venice talks, were that diplomats was a warning to every-manian refusal to send greater food supplies to Germany, were strongly considering marching Nazi leaders, disgruntled with Ru- through Hungary to Rumania.

Another reason for such a move was said to be Germany's fear that Great Britain, France and Turkey were planning to create an eastern front and that Germany must find good defensive frontiers deep in the Balkans quickly.

These reports were without confirmation.

Virgino Gayda, writing for his newspaper, Il Giornale d' Italia, from Venice, said the meeting of body that "Hungary is at the side of Italian policy in the general lines which it is tracing and in the tracing and in the methods which it intends to follow for its development, just as Italy stands beside Hungary in the particular problems which she has raised and which form the substance of her foreign policy."

To Keep War from Balkans

Nothing was disclosed of the methods Italy intends to follow to keep war out of the Balkans. Gayda said that Hungary "intends to insist on peaceful methods" for the settlement of her territorial claims, particularly those against Rumania for Transylvania, a district transferred from Hungary to Rumania at the end of the first Great War.

Gayda warner, however, that such an attitude must not serve as a prefense for other countries to try to dodge "a realistic plan of frank study and reasonable solution of pending problems."

The editor then reviewed the Italian viewpoint that it would be "a fatal error" to delay settlement of problems which could be solved peacefully considering the incertainty of European events.

Fascist commentators suggested that Hungary give Rumania time to modify her uncompromising stand against a revision on the Rumanian frontier in Hungary's favor.

Jumps 14 Feet From Theatre Balcony

Toronto, Jan. 8 —(CP)— A man jumped 14 feet from the balcony to the stage in a downtown theatre Saturday.

He was a 50-year-old resident of Brooklin, Ont.

BROTHER ONE OF CREW OF SUNKEN TRAWLER

Reports that the British trawler "Kingston Cornelian" sunk with her entire crew of seventeen men after being in collision with the French liner "Chella" in the Strait of Gibraltar on Jan. 5th, brought sadness today to the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lancaster, 300 Foster Avenue.

For on the crew roster of the stricken trawler was A. E. Norman, brother of Mrs. Lancaster, a naval reservist who had been called to the colors, and who was a gun-layer on the ship at the time of the collision.

The report states that following the collision, the "Chella" lowered boats, but failed to find any survivors.

However, Mrs. Lancaster has not given up hope, and believes there is a possibility of some survivors making their way to shore.

NO CHIMNEY FIRES DESPITE COLD SNAP

Although the sudden cold snap of the week-end sent residents of the city cellarwards in an orgy of stoking, there were no chimney disturbances, according to Fire Department officials. Curling smoke that spiralled into the blue of an early morning sky denoted more or less firing activities on the part of householders awakened to frigid temperatures.

Garages today reported a number of frozen radiators while in various parts of the city frozen water-pipes were an aftermath of the severe cold that descended upon the city with little or no warning.

SKATERS WARNED

Despite the fact that the broader stretches of the Bay of Quinte in this vicinity are frozen solidly, there are a few open spots that constitute dangerous hazards to skaters and pedestrians. Beneath the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge near Victoria Park there is a large stretch of open water caused by swiftly moving currents flowing down the Moira River.

Eastern Star Lodge Instals New Officers

In their Chapter Room in the Oddfellows' Temple, Front Street, on Friday evening, January 5th, the officers of Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star, for the year 1940, were installed with this characteristically beautiful ceremony of the order being in charge of Mrs. Essie Nayler, Past District Deputy Grand Matron as Installing Matron.

The dignity and beauty of this ceremony were greatly enhanced by the decorations and flowers, which made the Chapter Room a bower of beauty and with the lovely gowns of the members present and of the installing and installed officers, made the occasion one to be remembered for a long time.

Those acting as officers for the installing ceremony were: Mrs. Essie Nayler, P.D.D.G.M., as Installing Matron; Mr. Frank Wessel, P.P., as Installing Patson; Mrs. Lillie Law, I.P.M., as Installing Marshal; Mrs. Ethel Adams, P.M., as Installing Chaplain; Miss Phyllis May as Installing Organist; Mrs. Susie Chesher, P.M., Mrs. Flossie Smith, P.M., Mrs. Grace McEwan, P.M., Miss Irene Hallam, P.M. and Mrs. Ada Thompson as Hon. The arrangement of the installation ceremony was very unique and was known as "The Garden of Prayer", with each of the Star Points and the new Worthy Matron using white satin covered Bibles with which they had been presented by the Hon. Star Points and the Marshal. This was very beautiful and impressive, with an appropriate address being given as each Bible was presented, the address of the Installing Marshal as seh presented that of the Worthy Matron, being particularly good. During the ceremony Miss Ann Brown rendered appropriate solos in a manner that left nothing to be desired.

Mrs. Essie Nayler is to be congratulated on her arrangement of this interesting and impressive annual ceremony.

At the conclusion of the installation, Mrs. Anna Boyd, Past Grand Matron, presented a Past Matron's Jewel to the retiring Matron, Mrs. Lillie Law, and Mr. Chas. Brown, Past Patron, presented a Past Patron's Jewel to the retiring Patron, Mr. Clinton MacDonald. Both made suitable replies.

Gifts Presented

In addition to this many beautiful gifts were presented to both the retiring and the newly installed Matrons and Patrons and to the Installing Board, particular mention being merited for the gift of beautiful roses to the newly installed Worthy Matron, Mrs. Maud Elliott, from her family, the presentation being made by her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Green. Also the fine telephone table and bench to the retiring Worthy Matron, Mrs. Lillie Law, from her officers, and a fine electric waffle iron presented to Mrs. Essie Nayler by the Chapter.

After the close of the Chapter, delicious refreshments were served by the Refreshments Committee, under the capable leadership of Mrs. Bella Mills, after which dancing was enjoyed by everyone until the early hours of the morning, with the music being furnished by the Austin orchestra

Chief Constable's Annual Report is Submitted to the Belleville Police Commission

Only One Fatal Motor Accident in 85 Motor Accidents probed by City Police During the Year 1939

DETAILED REPORT

A total of 892 cases were heard before police court in Belleville during the year 1939, Chief Constable Alexander Kidd today revealed in his annual report that was submitted to the Belleville Board of Police Commissioners. Of this number, however, 199 were for infraction of the city's one hour parking by-law, a rather minor offence of which the majority were not asked to appear before the Magistrate as admissions of guilt were accepted in writing.

With one exception Belleville's streets were free from fatal motor accidents, the lone fatal motor accident being accidental. Otherwise four other fatal accidents were included in Chief Kidd's report.

Another year passed without the owners of motor cars losing their vehicles through theft and which were not recovered. Every automobile stolen in Belleville last year was recovered through the efforts of the Belleville Police Department. TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE F. HOUSTON

Dr. James Semple Refers to Life and Good Works of Chairman of Board of Stewards

The necessity of cultivating the pause in modern life was stressed by Dr. James Semple in his morning sermon at Bridge Street United Church yesterday. In pursuit of the "cheap prizes of life," and from fear and discontent, many people had quickened the pace of living to the point where they had no time for the vital things. The fact that in one year in the United States some four million pounds of aspirin was consumed, Dr. Semple quoted as an evidence of the great national headache from fast living. Even monkeys in zoos had been known to go crazy from watching the antics of human beings outside the cages.

The greatest works of art, poetry and science had been achieved by men who knew how to pause and contemplate upon their spiritual needs, asserted the minister in quoting from the prophet, Samuel, who said: "Stand thou still awhile that I may show thee the word of God."

Feeling tribute was paid by Dr. Semple to the life and good works of the late Mr. Fred Houston, who was chairman of the board of stewards of Bridge Street Church; and to the late Miss Ruth Shore, whose death occurred under mystifying circumstances. A beautiful basket of flowers stood before the altar as a tribute of the Rotary Club of Belleville to the memory of Mr. Houston.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Stratton was christened with impressive ceremony.

PURSE IS STOLEN FROM LAWYER'S OFFICE

After stealing a purse from the outer office of R. A. Pringle's law offices on Bridge St., the thieves boldly walked to the rear of the premises, removed the cash and a set of keys from the purse and then tossed the pocketbook into an exception of the set of keys and erty of Miss M. G. Moffatt, Mr. Pringle's private secretary, and had been left in its accustomed position in the outer hall near the firm's hall-tree. The purse was found in the rear alleyway with the contents strewn about, with the eception of the set of keys and the money, which were missing.

QUESS WHO?

If you guessed Neville Chamberlain you are wrong. This is Cyril Herbison, of London, who has often been mistaken for the British prime minister. He was interned in Germany during the last war and is thankful to be in England during this one. "I wouldn't stand much of a chance with the Nazis with a face like mine," he told photographers.

44TH DIVISION

On Finnish "Waist-line."

The communique said: "The main object of fighting in the south part of the Suomussalmi sector in the direction of Raate during the last few days has been the defeat of the 44th enemy division.

"This object has been achieved.

"The enemy forces in the main were destroyed.

"The war booty was large including 102 different guns, 43 tanks, 12 armored cars, one airplane, 20 tractors, 278 different cars, among them 16 anti-aircraft cars, with four anti-aircraft guns each, 75 automatic rifles, a number of other arms, 1,170 horses, 47 field kitchens, et cetera.

"Clearing up operations and the collection of spoils continues. On other fronts, except for the customary skirmishes and artillery exchanges, it was a fairly quiet day. Our patrols have been active and destroyed during the course of the day numerous enemy patrols."

The most severe January cold in years—temperatures ranging 15 to 40 degrees below zero fahrenheit—has combined with stubborn Finnish defence and counterattacks to halt the Red invasion, with 5,000 square miles, 1-48th of Finland, in Russian hands after 40 days of fighting.

The Russian command, emulating ski patrol tactics which the outnumbered Finns have used with success, was said by the Finnish high command to have lost the outstanding engagement in the guerrilla fighting that persisted over the weekend.

Russian Ski Attempt Fails

The high command communique reviewing Saturday's operations said that in the Salla sector of the central eastern front "an attempt by an enemy ski detachment to outflank our troops was defeated.

"The bodies of more than 300 enemy dead remained on the field, together with 14 machine-guns and other material."

(Dispatches reaching Stockholm from the Salla sector highlighted the rigors of warfare there in the icy wilderness just above the Arctic circle.

Patrol of 150 Russians Frozen to Death

(A Finnish patrol was reported to have come upon a Russian outpost protected by barbed-wire in the drifted snow. The Finns were amazed at the silence of their enemy's guns as the patrol inched closer. The Finns, it was said, finally closed in on the silent outpost and found the entire force, 150 men, frozen to death.)

Military experts expressed belief the Finns had forced the Russian command to revamp its winter campaign plan. The Finnish communique said that in the main theatre of the war, the Karelian Isthmus, "the enemy has begun digging in and setting up barbed wire entanglements to strengthen its positions."

Military observers were divided, however, as to whether the digging-in on the Isthmus front meant the Russians intended to sit the winter out there without a general offensive.

Some felt the stalemate in the far north and on the middle eastern front might impel the Russians toward a face-saving smash on the Isthmus, original point of Russian penetration or, north of Lake Ladoga.

Thieves Steal Sunday Morning Collection From Church Vestry

Sneak thieves entered the vestry at Christ Church sometime yesterday and stole the morning collection from the strong box in which it was locked, city police were informed by Rev. G. G. Wright last night.

P. C. Arnott investigated the theft, which was doubtless perpetrated by persons acquainted with the activities of Christ Church and the manner in which the Sunday collections are handled.

Rev. Wright revealed that the morning collection at Christ Church, which amounted to approximately $25.00 in cash, had been locked in a metal strong box in the church vestry and the key of the box hidden in its customary place in the drawer of a table in another room.

Police are satisfied the robbers had knowledge of the keeping of the church collection in the strong box, which had apparently been unlocked, the money stolen and then the box was again secured and placed in its accustomed position. The key to the strong box was found in its usual position to add to the police contention.

The only period in which church officials were not on the premises yesterday was between the hours of 4.30 and 6.00 p.m., Rev. Wright assured Constable Arnott. The robbery was discovered at the conclusion of the evening service last night, when the strong box was opened to receive the evening collection.

Sergt. H. Thompson Slightly Injured When Cars Collide

Sergeant H. E. Thompson of the Provincial Police at Belleville, narrowly escaped serious injury on Saturday when the automobile in which he was driving was in collision with a motor car driven by Miss Eleanor Partridge, Warkworth. Sergeant Thompson's motor car was badly damaged, necessitating the employment of a tow truck to bring the vehicle to Belleville as the entire front and under-carriage were wrecked.

Sergeant Thompson was proceeding towards Belleville on the Campbellford Highway when Miss Partridge approached the main highway from a side road and is alleged not to have stopped upon entering the highway. Sergeant Thompson swerved his car in order to avoid a collision but was unable to avoid it and the officer's car careened into the ditch. Sergeant Thompson sustained minor chest and leg injuries. Charges will be preferred against Miss Partridge, other police officials revealed today.

SEA POWER KEY

Lord Lothian, British Ambassador to the U. S. in a straightforward speech at Chicago declared that sea power is the key to victory and that the real prize of the war is not territory but power on the sea. He expects a terrific drive by the Hitler forces on land, sea and air on France and the bases of British naval and aerial power.

He painted a picture of what would happen if Germany should triumph over British sea power and he says most of the nations would hasten to get on Germany's "bandwagon" and she would be able to dictate the basis on which world politics would be conducted.

But if Germany fails in her thrust as he believes, it is only a question of time before the blockade will wear down Germany and Hitlerism will collapse. Democracies will then determine the world we are to live in.

Britain has been the greatest sea power of all history and thereby she has been enabled to develop and her Dominions and Colonies to grow under the light of liberty.

British naval strength in the last war and the sea-borne trade played a great part in overthrowing Germany. In this war the Hitlerites have gone to their extreme efforts to challenge the naval supremacy in the air and in the sea.

Everyone who has studied the war has realized how speedily in spite of the so-called peculiarity of this war, it moved to the naval and air stage. That was a lesson learned from the first war.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER

In Belleville this week the week of prayer will be observed and it is hoped that it will have the attention of a large number of the people of Belleville and the district about the city. Annually this week has been set aside for prayer observance throughout the world as a special occasion when the new year begins. For some years in Belleville it has been observed and at times there has been marked interest and at other times the attendance has not been so large and the interest so keen as had been expected.

But the year 1940 has brought special problems for mankind. No one can escape them for they demand solution. Accordingly this time there is more than ever reason why such services should find many attending. Besides the problems of the individual, the community and society there are also the issues of the war which have come to the people freighted with vast importance to the life of the individual and the world. At any time there is need of meditation and of prayer for guidance and direction but this year with the multitude of problems added to the social, economic and individual problems finds the need that much greater.

It is said that more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Today men and women may prove the truth of this statement for prayer, faith and hope are the chief factors in the life of man.

'HE LIVETH BEST WHO LOVETH BEST ALL THINGS . . .'

Alice Brady who made a name for herself on the screen and on the stage leaves other memories. "Our Animals," the organ of the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals speaks of her as one of Hollywood's kindliest hearts. She was known far and wide as a great lover of animals, and endeared herself to thousands of people all over the United States. She had once chased a driver who had struck a dog and failed to stop, forcing him to the curb and then making him take the animal to the hospital. Other tales are told of her great kindness.

Those who love humans and pets are benediction to life. They do a great service in life, their influence is never lost down the ages. They are the spirit of goodness and kindliness.

INLAND VOYAGES

It's strange, observes a man who is building a boat in Concord, Massachusetts, how many people assume he has overlooked the fact that the ocean is a long way from there. He knows how far it is to Gloucester, where he plans to launch it, and he intends to haul it over the road on a trailer, Quite plainly, this boat builder has not overlooked pertinent facts but has considered a greater number of them than his amateur critics have.

Not so many years ago another man in Concord set many of his friends wondering about his ways. This man, like the boat builder, was considered something of a hermit, and again like the boat builder was intimate with the moods and secrets of Walden Pond. That man's name was Thoreau, of course. And many people wondered about the ideas with which he was building, and whoever with common sense would take much notice of them. He, too, was doing his work a long way from the likely places, from homes and halls where someday his books would be cherished and read, and re-read for generations. Probably both Thoreau and the modern "hermit" of Walden had time to reflect on Noah, who also built a boat where people asked skeptical questions.

Let us take note of men and women who go quietly about their business of doing honest things without regard to the audiences who gather to smile. We shall learn not that they have overlooked something but that they have seen more than most of us see, because they don't confine their vision to their eyes.—Christian Science Monitor.

A Dime Novelist

Luis Philip Senarens, who died Tuesday at the age of 76, was one of the old race of dime novelists. The term is more comprehensive than exact, for the "nickel libraries" were famous. The Tip Top Weekly, Old Sleuth, Diamond Dick had a wide circulation. Five cents used to be a good deal of money to juvenile economists. Frank Reade and Frank Reade, Jr., geniuses of invention, were Mr. Senaren's prime characters, and Frank Reade's Weekly was an organ of their romantic marriage. Beginning when only a boy himself and quitting work at 60, Mr. Senarens is said to have written 40,000,000 words. Like many others in his profession, he took the cash and let the credit go, cloaking himself in many pseudonyms.

Among the witnesses examined by the late Edmund Pearson in his "Dime Novels" was Mr. Marc Connelly. Looking back on his youth he testified:

Frank Reade, jr., that Jules Verne of the nickel novels, was my writer of writers. I can still see this young inventor taking across the African Desert that marvellous electric wagon. When savages got inside the wagon the explorers simply stood on glass chairs and pulled electrocuting switches. He also found a continent up behind the North Pole that sent me into my teens with a terrifying thrill.

Old Cap Collier, Calamity Jane, Deadwood Dick are names that sink into the memory. Frank Reade, jr, is as commonplace an entry as one could find by long examination of the telephone book. Yet in Mr. Connelly's mind it has nestled affectionately and permanently. Those of us who were brought up on the dime and nickel novelists know how sterling and manly their work was, stilted and even ludicrous as much of the language now seems. They were honest craftsmen and more than earned the money they got.—New York Times.

The New U. S. Envoy

James H. R. Cromwell, who has been nominated by President Roosevelt as the new U. S. Minister to Canada, is assured of a very hearty welcome when he arrives at Ottawa. He is not a career man, but the President has a happy knack of picking his diplomatic representatives in an unconventional way with regard solely for their qualifications, and we may take it for granted that he has satisfield himself that in Mr. Cromwell he has the right man, and the best man, available for a position which is becoming of increasing importance.

Our relations with the United States are necessarily both extensive and intimate, and the need at both Ottawa and Washington of diplomatic representatives who are thoroughly competent to interpret the sentiments of each nation to the other and to approach the many problems—happily none of them of a nature likely to affect in any way our firm friendship—that arise from time to time with understanding, is obvious.

Mr. Cromwell comes to us with a reputation that is well calculated to ensure for him a prominent place in the social life of the Capital. He is a sportsman of repute; he is widely travelled; he is a generous-hearted philanthropist; he has made quite a name for himself as a writer on economic themes; he served as a captain in the U. S. Marine Corps during the last war; and he is popular with a wide circle of friends in different social strata. His wife, who will be with him as chatelaine at the impressive new U. S. Legation in Ottawa, is a young woman who has remained unspoiled by great wealth and who shares his philanthropic and democratic ideals. Canada looks forward to their coming with pleasurable anticipation.—Montreal Star.

Germany Changes Tune Re Former Aid to Finns

London.—It is now formally established by the Foreign Office that the Nazis are doing everything they can to prevent supplies from reaching Finland from her friends. In their zeal to see another small country crushed, they are actually holding up orders placed in neutral countries before the war began. After momentary hesitation at the beginning of the Soviet onslaught, when they were inclined to be sarcastic about the "glorious" attack of the Russian navy on an evacuated island in the Gulf of Finland, they have come out openly on the side of the aggressor. Yet it was only last year that Germany was insisting rather truculently to the whole world upon her achievement in liberating Finland from the Soviet yoke. The Times in particular was criticized because it was (wrongly) alleged to have paid insufficient tribute to the part played in 1918 by Gen. von der Goltz and the German navy. The former chief of staff of the naval forces, Leisler Kiep, wrote a long letter to this journal in which he claimed that Germany had been one of the first countries to recognize Finland as a sovereign state, and that the defeat of the bolshevists had been brought about by Von der Goltz and Admiral Meurer (Field-Marshal Mannerheim being barely mentioned). Graf Goltz had "annihilated" the Red army at Ruhimaki. The comradeship between the Finns and German soldiers and sailors was "excellent"; and after their common victory they had all joined in singing the Te Deum "in the beautiful white cathedral that dominates Helsingfors."

Unfortunately for the idyllic side of this Germano-Finnish crusade Von der Goltz himself explains quite frankly in his own memoirs that his object was to form "the corner-stone of German command of the sea in the Baltic." "The German troops and ships," he writes, "would threaten Leningrad, and flank the Murmansk railway, the entente's road of entry into Russia." So, whether acting as liberators from the Reds or in collusion with the Reds, the Germans were and are little concerned with the welfare of the Finns. The present policy of Ribbentrop is certainly viewed with abhorrence by the many German naval and military leaders who would like, with Von der Goltz, to have a corner-stone of the command of the sea in the Baltic. But in his desperate shifts of last July and August Ribbentrop has bartered away Greman influence in that region—and bartered it away, as Lord Halifax said the other day, at the expense of the rights of others. The Ribbentrop-Molotov deal has already handed over to the formerly odious Reds all the vantage points of the eastern Baltic up to the southern shore of the Gulf of Finland; and the latest information makes it practically certain that the final abandonment of liberated Finland by Germany was another article in this compact of thieves. It only remains to be seen what is the answer to the question asked by Punch under its excellent cartoon recently: "How do we stand when we get it? Do we share—or do we fight?"

According to Ribbentrop, who has just written a most disingenuous introduction to a German Collection of documents on the outbreak of the present war, the "unlimited and gracious patience" of the Fuehrer has been entirely devoted to freeing Germany from the chains of Versailles, and it is simply the fault of the British that this other liberating process met with the desperate opposition of Poland. It is perhaps idle at this stage to recall that the last war began with invasions of small countries in the east and in the west by Germanic powers, that the Treaty of Versaillies was mildness itself compared with the Treaties of Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk, and that even so successive British governments were ready to see it modified and took no action against Hitler's successive coups, however violent, when they might, on a charitable view, be classed as removals of grievances. But the rape of Czechoslovakia, the savage onslaught upon Poland, were pure acts of barbaric conquest. Nor, as it is now clear, were they isolated outbursts of fury but part of a deliberate policy. Since their conquest the Poles have been moved about like cattle, put to forced labour, officially classed as a second-rate people, flung into internment camps for the crime of complaining, and shot for an impulse of resistance. Against the terms of The Hague Convention, signed by Germany, and against every usage of civilized countries, many prisoners of war have been incorporated in the Germany army. Their capital is in ruins and their food supplies have been carried off into the reich. But Ribbentrop, in the truest sentence of his political tract, openly announces that the aim of the Nazis is the military annihilation of their enemies, and the safeguarding of the living-space that belongs to the German people. To adapt the famous epigram of Tacitus, they make a desert and they call it Lebensraum.—London Times.

Few Smiles

It is 5 o'clock tea time, so the string orchestra is playing in the thickly carpeted salon of the Hotel Bristol, which would correspond to the Plaza in New York, but which physically resembles the old Baltimore in Kansas City.

All the tables are full and at many of them are young German officers with their girls, or often with their parents and sisters. You remember our cartoons of the German officer during the war—a rat-face with monocle and cigarette under a high flaring cap, tall, with huge epaulets on a tightly tailored wasp-waisted overcoat, and high black boots? Well, the uniform has changed hardly at all.

But these boys, by their faces, might be Dartmouth or Yale seniors. For the most part they are young lieutenants, a little uncertain in their new finery, and so their scrubbed pink young faces are stiff and sober. Most of them are probably on week-end leave from the Westwall. Their girls, all of whom are wearing dowdy German hats, try to ease things with a gay chatter, but Germans have little gift for small talk. Just opposite is a family party—the old father, his red cheeks laced with dueling scars, close-cropped white hair, wing collar and in sober Sunday black. The dowdy, plump mother, a sister and a couple of younger brothers, also pink, combed, scrubbed and in black, who can't take their eyes off the gleaming epaulets.

At this table they all have tea, and now the pastry wagon rolls by, over the thick carpet. With a gesture, the proud old father halts it. A gorgeous array of cakes and pastries, meringues, white, pink and chocolate icings, cream and custard fillings, rare now in Germany, but still in costly abundance at big hotels like the Bristol.

For the young lieutenant who must go back to the Westwall, a huge piece of cake with chocolate icing. Yes the old man insists he must take it. For the two younger brothers, whose eyes glitter at the tray, a single eclair to be divided between them, for the mother, the sister, the old father, nothing. Maybe they aren't hungry. But they proudly watch the young lieutenant eat.

The music stops, and there is a sudden hush in the undertone of talk as the big radio loudspeaker is switched on. The very, very confident voice of the Nazi announcer. First some news. An air dog-fight over England—of course a German victory. And Germany now has absolute control of the North Sea. Then away from the news, into a confident account of the power and the spirit of 90,000,000 German people.

These prosperous upper-class Berliners listen gravely and with anxious expressions to the clear, confident Nazi voice. But their faces do not light up when he talks of German victories. There is little smiling today in Berlin, in the brooding shadow of the Westwall, although news announcers are clear and confident and string orchestras pluck out pretty little tea-time tunes in the big hotels and the girls or wives of the young officers do their best to break up those long silences. — New York Post.

Truth, Not Propaganda

No British Ambassador ever spoke more frankly to an American audience than Lord Lothian did in his speech in Chicago last night. Certainly he went far beyond the "few meaningless diplomatic commonplaces" which he disclaimed in his opening sentences. We do not belittle the memory of British statesmen who addressed us two decades and more ago when we say that the speech represents a striking democratization and humanization of British policy. It harmonizes when it touches American affairs with the policy enunciated by President Roosevelt on Tuesday.

The tone of the speech is far different from that of the heavy brasses of Berlin. Lord Lothian did not have to build up a case for the racial or governmental infallibility of Britain and France. He could grant that "having won the greatest victory for freedom and democracy of which history has record the Allied Powers threw away their chance, both by faults of omission and commission." He could describe the League Covenant as "too rigid" because it "had no effective machinery for making changes peaceably."

He could appeal for American sympathy on a statement of war aims more explicit than any yet made in Parliament, yet which we have no reason to doubt. Specifically he underlined the necessity for "a form of international organization which will prevent resort to violence, provide pacific methods for the just settlement of international disputes, and establish a true reign of law among the nations." Just as specifically he declared that in the future policing of the seas "Britain neither can nor ought to play by herself the dominant role she played in the last century."

In the light of this speech Britain is, in fact, ready to abdicate empire in the interests of world-wide security for the democratic civilizations. She is not, Lord Lothian assured his audience, "trying to drag you into this war." Yet it is clear that Lothian, like President Roosevelt, saw no hope of a lasting settlement without participation in the peace. In that assumption there is no pro-British propaganda. There is, perhaps, pro-American and pro-humanity propaganda.

—New York Times.

The Value of Tourist Trade

Reports of Nazi agents in the United States attempting by false propaganda to ruin Canada's tourist trade by circulation of various rumors calculated to keep our American cousins from visiting us in 1940, reminds one of the value of this huge "invinsible export trade."

These wild stories range all the way from suggestions that American automobiles coming into Canada are liable to seizure for military purposes, to immediate conscription of the tourists themselves in Canada's army. D. Leo Dolan, chief of the Canadian Tourist Bureau at Ottawa, states these rumors have come from widely separated points in the United States. He adds: "We have caught up with them by circularizing all travel agencies in the States. Now with first rate snow conditions in the Laurentians indications are that the winter trade among sports enthusiasts will be larger than ever."

War is apt to distract our minds from some other essentials, but we should not overlook the value of our tourist trade. In 1938 Ontario was host to 9,650,000 U. S. A. tourists who spent an estimated $116,000,000 in this province. Figures for the first 10 months of 1939 indicate that 8,760,00 American tourists visited us in Ontario.

The Monetary Times, reviewing Canada's tourist trade, says: "War will consume every dollar of available revenue the minister of finance can conceivably obtain through taxation and loans. Yet the provision of funds to insure a continuance of tourist trade and possible extension of it, are also war estimates. The business turnover that results from tourist expenditures can only provide greater tax revenues. The purchase of all kinds that tourists make in Canada, are, in effect, exports which afford foreign exchange. That will be sorely needed to cover our debt, services and to provide cash for our war purchases in the United States. The tourist trade is thus a prime factor in the success of the war effort."

Two factors exist just now which make Canada particularly attractive to the American tourist. One is that his dollar is now worth $1.10 in Canadian funds. The other is that Europe is closed to him by the war. C. J. Foster, director of the Ontario Travel and Publicity Bureau, estimates that in 1938 American tourists spent $200,000,000 in Europe. Much of that should come to Canada in 1940.

Canadians are thus reminded of the value of this tourist trade in helping us to pay our way in this war. By giving every American tourist in 1940 his full 10 per cent, premium on his dollar, Canadians will be lifting themselves by their bootstraps. Any attempt to short change our visitors will be a poor and unpatriotic policy. People will spend five and ten dollars quite freely but will certainly resent being cheated of ten cents. Every American tourist in Canada in 1940 is a friendly visitor helping us to win this war. Help him along and help yourself at the same time. —London Free Press.

Protected German Minds

Mr. Enderis's dispatch from Berlin a few days ago showed the restraints and prohibitions laid upon communication during the war. The German Government is the sole authorized source of information and misinformation. The press and the radio are its obedient agents. To listen to a foreign broadcast, even if it comes from a neutral country, is a criminal offense for which the offender is jailed. In the matter of foreign newspapers it has been thought necessary to shut the gates early. But forbidding the circulation of a Swiss journal in German, friendly to the Nazis and widely read in Germany, looks queer.

Perhaps it is caused by the fear that even in a friendly foreign organ there may be discrepancies in accounts of the war between exterior and official Government reports. But no special theory is required. It is for the rulers of the state to rule the state of the public mind. Slaves of the state must do, think and believe what they are told. Their eyes, ears and minds must be protected from the infection of impure anti- and non-German speeches and writings. 'Facts' may be passed over in silence, colored, made to order, according to the convenience of the Government. By radio and newspaper the people get such a ration of news as it is pleased to allow them. This curtailment, concealment and adulteration of the news is only another of the "sacrifices" the Germans have to make.— New York Times.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Backache Due to Large Intestine

When a pain occurs in the small of the back, many believe they have kidney trouble. They forget that the kidneys are situated fairly high in the back (about at the end of the elbow).

Most cases of pain in the back are due to infection, injury, or sitting too long in one position exposed to a draught. Infection in most cases is due to teeth or tonsils, and the injury to some sudden lift.

However, Drs. M. Brule and H. Garban, in the Medical Press, Paris, direct attention to the great number of cases which complain of pain in their kidneys who have really disorders of the large intestine. The pain is in the small of the back, extending from the last rib to top of hip bone and in the upper part of the big muscles on which we sit. Pain may come from the back around in front and down into the groin as is the case with kidney stones. It may also go down outside of thigh to knee and down the leg to the great toe.

Walking is painful because of the tightening or rigidity of the muscles in small of back and the heaviness of the lower limbs. The pains are increased by movement and lessened by rest and warmth.

"The pains are influenced directly by changes in the intestinal condition—they are aggravated by increased constipation or a mistake in diet, and become less or pass away with the correction of any trouble or disturbance in the large intestine."

The most painful points are in lowest part of back (upper part of muscles on which we sit) and outer and front parts of the thighs. There is no neuralgia in the region of the sciatic nerve, situated lower and to middle line of body. If the usual test is made for sciatica—lying down and raising the leg or legs, knees straight—no pain occurs, whereas if the leg is extended backward there may be an increase in the pain at points above mentioned.

In regard to treatment, Drs. Brule and Garban suggest that instead of trying to ease the pain, the condition in the large intestine causing the pain—constipation in most cases—should be corrected. Other conditions such as a low lying intestine might also be a cause.

The fact then that the large bowel may be causing this special type of backache should be remembered.

Rumania's determination to defend the province of Bessarabia against a possible Russian attack makes the situation in the Balkan states a little clearer. This province was part of Imperial Russia before the First Great War and Soviet Russia has never recognized Rumania's right to it. It has long been regarded as the jumping off point for combined Russo-German operations in south eastern Europe.

Saturday, however, in an unusually frank speech, King Carol declared Bessarabia would always remain Rumanian by the force of "our arms". As if to forestall any Russian claim that the people of Bessarabia wished to return to Russian rule or that minorities were ill-treated the King visited the capital of the province, only 12 miles from the border and publicly received the allegiance of Russian, Ukrainian and German minority leaders.

Only the King and his advisors know to what extent the failure of the Red army to conquer Finland prompted this bold gesture, or what other factors, such as assurances of help from Italy, Great Britain or France, may have contributed to the decision.

The King's declaration should stiffen the determination of other smaller states in the Balkan area to defend their territory and their independence. Long-standing grievances between the Balkan countries offer opportunities to the aggressor powers.

Since the start of the Second Great War the influence of Italy has been steadily exerted to minimize these grievances. The weekend conference between the Hungarian and Italian foreign ministers is believed to have had this as one of its purposes for Hungary has a claim against Rumania for territory annexed after the last war.

ALL IS BRIGHT

CHAPTER XIV

Star saw Gloria, leaning heavily on Barton Underwood, get off the boat. She still wore her martyred expression. It made Star feel guilty just to look at her. Probably Gloria was still feeling ill. Oh, why had she agreed to Kent's plan? She was the one who ought to be walking along the pier. Gloria should be the one standing here on deck waiting for Kent.

She saw Coates quicken his step, saw Gloria turn toward him; she could almost feel her roommate's satisfaction in walking down the sun-drenched stretch with two attentive men.

"Ready?"

Kent's question was like an invitation to adventure—to strange forbidden joys this little island had once known.

"I'm going to make this real," she whispered to herself. Then aloud to Kent, "Wait until I reach the pier."

He stood watching her as she ran down the ladder. She turned and signalled to him just before she stepped off the boat. Then she disappeared into the shadowy waiting room. He leaped down the shaky stairs, a nameless fear that she was slipping away sending him bursting through the door. She was going out the other side. He raced after her.

Out of the corner of her eye Star saw him approaching. Elaborately she took out her handkerchief, patted her nose and dropped it so suddenly he almost stepped on it. He bent down and picked it up. His hat came off—the sun found unexepected lights in the crisp waves.

"Pardon me, Miss." He bowed deeply, his eyes twinkling. "Your handkerchiek, I think?"

"Why so it is! Did I drop it?"

"You practically threw it away."

"Sir!"

"I beg your pardon." His grin was infectious. "I was forgetting. Is it too soon to ask, 'Haven't we met before'?"

"It is a little late," Star said reprovingly. "You're not very good at this, are you?"

"I'm sorry. Shall we start over?"

Star sighed. "No, we'll just skip it."

He had not returned her handkerchief. It was tucked into his breast pocket and the flap securely rebuttoned.

The afternoon was perfect, golden, like a single gem dropped into empty hands. Star and Kent held it carefully, finding laughter in little things. A sudden shower that caught them as they reached the botanical garden, not the big garden where the rest of the passengers had gone, but a small one with a black guide who persisted in following them around. He talked on and on in a blurred Oxford accent, reciting long lists of flower names in Latin and English. They scarcely heard him.

"Look—Mrs. Jenkins!" Kent pointed to a lazy turtle swimming the green water. The turtle looked at them unblinkingly through the thick glass. The resmblance was startingly, and Star laughed in spite of herself.

"You're insulting one of them—I don't know which."

"The rain makes your eyelashes stick together."

"Things you shouldn't say to a girl you've just just met."

"Things I never wanted to say to any girl before."

They were shut in a world of green lights with the heavy fragrance of flowers all about them. The rain drummed heavily on the glass roof. Star could see it in a silver sheet outside the door. Then, unbelievably, the sun was shining. The transition was as sudden as if an unseen hand had turned off a spigot.

"Would you like to have tea?" Kent asked.

"I was forgetting. We're on English soil, aren't we? By all means, tea."

He took her to a great white hotel set in rolling green countryside, apart from everything. It was odd to find it, complete and sophisticated, in the midst of the lonely hills. They had tea on a flagged loggia looking out at the deserted tables in the garden. The waiters almost fought for the privilege of bringing thin cups and tiny cakes.

Afterward Star wanted to swim in the pool, but Kent insisted on returning to town. There was another swimming pool, he told her, on the edge of the sea.

"I'm no champion swimmer," Star warned him. "Milford isn't exactly the town to develop a mermaid."

"I'll hold you up," he offered.

"I thought sailors couldn't swim."

"I can do lots of things you wouldn't suspect."

"I'm a suspicious person."

"Did you suspect I was falling in love with you?" he inquired suddenly.

Kent watched her eyes widen, her hands clasp tightly together as if to keep from crying out. She was so beautiful! Each moment of that afternoon he had thought she looked lovelier than the one before, and each moment he found fresh charm in her face. He leaned forward, but she was already on her feet walking toward the door.

They went back to town—back to the Myrtle Bank Hotel.

"Why do they call it the Myrtle Bank?" Star asked.

Instead of answering he took her through the cool lobby, out to where the formal paths ran between grass plots that were almost miraculously green. He made her bend down. It was not grass, but a tiny myrtle vine like millions of clovers covering the ground. The palm trees rustled their branches at them. Ahead stretched the sea, completely blue, at one with the blue sky.

"Got your bathing suit?"

"Yes."

A few minutes later they were in the pool splashing idly around in the sun. His wet arm touched hers as he somersaulted in the water and shot up. She darted away swiftly, and he followed. They touched the rim of the tile together. She drew herself up on it.

"You run away from me, don't you?"

"Yes," she admitted.

"You couldn't try running toward me for a change?"

"No."

He shrugged; the interest and joy died out of his face leaving it blank and hard. "I'm not marrying Gloria," he announced.

Her heart gave a leap, the silly color flooded her face. She turned away and looked out toward the sea.

"Doesn't it make any difference?" he persisted.

She shook her head miserably.

"Why not?"

"You ought to know why not," she said angrily. His eyes widened, but he did not acknowledge the thrust any other way.

"Can't blame a guy for trying, can you?"

With a sudden splash he sent her sprawling into the water to come up sputtering and grabbing for his legs. He laughed at her furious concentration in getting even. They were both startled to hear Coates' bored drawling tones from the edge of the pool:

"Dr. Barrett. If I may trouble you......" They looked up.

Star thought dully: It's all over. We only had a few hours and they're gone now.

"Gloria had another heart attack while shopping," Coates was saying. "We've been waiting over an hour for you. The stewardess can't seem to help."

"I'll be right there." Kent climbed quickly out of the water. Coates held out his hand to Star.

"I'm terribly sorry about Gloria!" she exclaimed. "We'll go to her right away."

"No hurry—for us, I mean. I think Gloria just wants her doctor. She's probably hurt to find that he prefers taking care of the passengers who are well."

x x x

It was impossible to go back to the old attitude of disapproval toward Kent. Now that they were on the Caribbean again, the sun warm on the top deck and everyone lazily at ease, Star could not recapture that righteousness of purpose that had actually been her inspiration for the cruise.

When he came toward her along the deck she smiled at him a little timidly, but with no trace of her former hostile manner.

"How's Gloria?" she asked.

"All right. Never was anything the matter, really. Just a fager, that's all. She wanted some attention."

His thoughts went back bitterly to that scene in the cabin.

Gloria in a pale pink chiffon negligee rising in anger as he told her brusquely that she ought to stop this childish play-acting for the benefit of the other passengers.

Gloria's voice harsh and strident as she shouted at him, "You're not going to make a fool of me, Kent. Perhaps I won't marry you. But no wide-eyed innocent is going to take you away. Otherwise you may be leaving the ship and starting a land practice sooner than you think. I imagine they don't want gossip about their officers in your company, do they?"

He felt trapped, beaten, ashamed that he had ever held this cruel scheming creature in his arms. He knew Captain Porter well enough to realize that a scene staged by Gloria would spell the end of his career. And he was also sure that he wouldn't marry Gloria Churchill now if she were the last woman in the world.

CHAPTER XV

Kent couldn't drag Star into the mess with Gloria, of course. He would have to stand by without explanation and let her go out of his life.

"By the way," he turned to Star abruptly, "I want you to be careful of Jack Coates. I happen to know that he needs money for this museum project of his and I don't doubt he's got his eye on you to supply the ready cash."

Star stared out at the water stretching away in deep waves toward some unseen shore.

"Look here, didn't he ask you to go aboard that schooner of his in Kingston Harbor?"

Star was amazed. How did Kent know that Coates had asked her to do that just as they were returning to the ship? Coates had begged her, in fact, to come with him. He was supposed to be leaving the Cartagena at this port.

When she had refused definitely and shown that she was a little annoyed at his persistence, he had seemed heartbroken. Then he had asked if she would visit the schooner when the Cartagena reached Kingston a second time. Half grudgingly she had promised that she would. It seemed a long time before they would be in this port again.

Coates had been unexpectedly jubilant at her words. And after they had sailed that night, to Kent's obvious displeasure, he had appeared at dinner. He announced gayly that he had decided to continue the cruise with them and get off when the ship touched Kingston on the return trip. His attentive manner made it apparent to everyone that this was especially for Star's benefit.

Now she said coolly, deliberately ignoring Kent's question: "I didn't know that the Caribbean was a rough ocean. I thought it was so calm and smooth—"

"Listen—you don't have to snub me. I just want you to watch your step, that's all."

Star's eyes came back to him speculatively, but she said, "Just think of it, in another week it will be Christmas! Is there a Christmas tree on board? Do we have a party and give each other presents?"

A faint smile crossed Kent's lips. Christmas! It was to have been his wedding day. And he had actually looked forward to it. He shrugged and got to his feet slowly.

"Yes," he answered with a studied nonchalance, "we have a tree and presents. We even have a Santa Claus. I guess you're the type of person who still believes that there's a saint who takes care of good little girls and keeps them from getting involved with slickers like Coates. But—" he yawned elaborately—"I've done my good deed for today. So long!"

When Star returned to the cabin Gloria was awake and seemed to have recovered from her huff. Indeed, she was in the highest spirits. Star was grateful that the trouble between them was over. She had expected Gloria to make a scene because she had spent the day at Jamaica with Kent, but roommate did not even mention the subject and Star found herself forgetting that there had been any constraint between them. Gloria could be entertaining when it suited her purpose.

But Gloria was lost to sight all afternoon, playing bridge. Star wandered around restlessly, unable to concentrate on anything. She went down to the lower deck for tea. She found many others before her. Mrs. Jenkins was deeply engrossed in a game of shuffleboard. Nearby Stuart and his father were listlessly playing deck tennis. As Star settled back into a chair Stuart aimed the ring over his father's head. Star put up her hand and caught it.

"If you do that again—" Barton said threateningly. Then he turned and saw Star smiling at him, holding out the ring.

"Let's call it a day, son," he said over his shoulder. "I could do with a bit of iced tea myself." He sank into the chair next to Star, mopping the perspiration from his forehead.

As always, Stuart looked mutinous. He had not wanted to play deck tennis, but now that his father was quitting, it suddenly became a most desirable game. He glanced over at his father talking eagerly to Star. She was smiling. He picked up one of the hard rope rings used in the game. No one was watching him. Quickly he sent it sailing along the deck.

It caught Mrs. Jenkins just as she was shoving the puck into position. Startled, she turned and bore down on Stuart who ran over to Star and stood defiantly beside her.

"My land!" Mrs. Jenkins towered above Star and Barton, quivering with indignation. "If I couldn't train a child better than that I wouldn't let him get near folks. Do you know that ring hurts?"

Barton was instantly on his feet, distraught and apologetic. "I'm so terribly sorry. I'm sure it wasn't intentional, Mrs. Jenkins. Won't you take my seat? Steward! Steward—another glass of tea, please!"

Star grasped Stuart firmly by the shoulder saying, "If you want to play deck tennis we'll play together. But no nonsense, Stuart."

He nodded eagerly and gathered up the scattered rings. The next minute they were playing fast and furiously, Star seeming chagrined at her inability to make any points. Stuart's eyes danced with joy as she ran desperately from one side to the other, often hurling her best shots straight into the centre of the net.

"She is a charming girl," commented Mrs. Jenkins.

Barton stared, aware that he had utterly neglected his companion in watching his son and Star playing together.

"Yes, she is," he agreed weakly.

"The child is a smart-looking youngster too," Mrs. Jenkins conceded, "but of course a boy that age needs a mother. Have you ever thought of marrying again?" she demanded.

"Well, no—not exactly," Barton stammered. He flushed to the roots of his hair.

"You ought to think of it." Mrs. Jenkins leaned back in her chair, smiling fatuously. "The boy needs a mother and you need a wife. I wouldn't tell everyone, Mr. Underwood, but it might help you to know that when Mr. Jenkins proposed I wasn't the least bit in love with him. I told him so too. But he only said, 'Never mind, Myra, that will come later.' And it all worked out fine. Of course Mr. Jenkins didn't have any children. But still, you're a fine-looking man and......"

Barton was acutely self-conscious. He was deeply grateful when the unloved Mr. Jenkins made his appearance and the couple went off for their much publicized "forty winks" before dinner. But as he lit his pipe and peace once more enveloped the ship he began to think less harshly of Mrs. Jenkins and her advice. The old girl might be right, after all. Certainly Stuart was a changed child whenever Star was around. And, he thought, his eyes kindling, she was the kind of a girl any man could love and respect. A girl any man would be proud to call his wife.

x x x

Star scarcely dared to breathe late that night as she stared at the radiance of the moon and enjoyed the deep silence all about her. The ship moved gently, hemmed in by the waves and under the tremendous arch of sky overhead. The stars were spilled carelessly over that domed darkness; the moon was silver white, disturbingly bright and clear.

Star had no idea how long she stood there. She knew suddenly another presence. Someone was standing just behind her. Kent still in uniform was looking, not at the moon, but her. The light drained all color from his face, he looked tired.

He moved so that he stood beside her and turned his face, as she did, toward the moon. "Beautiful, isn't it? I've seen it a thousand times and on each occasion it seems just as wonderful."

"I can't get the Christmas Carol out of my mind," Star said dreamily. Softly, so that only he could hear, she hummed:

Silent night—Holy night—
All is clear;
All is bright.

Her voice was light as the breeze that bore it away. As she finished she turned to him and his arms went out toward her. She held up her lips to his. It seemed to both of them as natural and inevitable as the moon upon the water or the gentle throbbing of the boat beneath them.

Their lips clung together even after Star had realized that it was wrong. For a brief moment she was passive, held gently but securely in the circle of his arms experiencing in spite of herself the joy of a moment too precious and perfect to last.

Star was breathing hard when Kent let her go. "Why did you do that?" she demanded.

He did not answer immediately. Then he said, "I did it because I care for you deeply. And because I hoped for a little while that you cared for me." Without another word he turned and walked away.

She shivered and drew the beach robe more tightly about her. The moon had become cold and unfriendly—remote from the distressing problems of a lonely girl far below.

CHAPTER XVI

The Cartagena had slipped ladder was already in place and noiselessly into the harbor. The the passengers were descending, ready for the shore trip to Barranquilla. Star was startled at her emotions during this brief time of waiting. Perhaps it was because she had lain awake such a long time last night after she had returned from the top deck. Now she was paying for that restless night.

"Do you think she's sleepwalker?"

Barton Underwood's voice roused her with a start. He and Elise were standing quite close, laughing at her absorption. Stuart's hand tugged at hers.

"Come on. Nearly everybody's off."

They left the ship, Elise walking slowly with Barton's hand under her arm. The steel pier was the only modern structure as far as their eyes could see. Indeed it was almost the only structure of any kind except the openfaced sheds that held a conglomeration of bowls and hats and baskets.

"I'm going to buy out this place" Elise announced joyously. "After all, this is the first real port I've seen."

"Better wait till we're coming back", Barton said cautiously. "It's amazing how bulky these things are. They haven't been corrupted by the fever for packaging down here."

Stuart was unexpectedly quiet. His hot little hand clung tenaciously to Star's and his round eyes roamed ceaselessly from one thing to another.

"Don't you like this place?" Star asked as they stood on the small bridge waiting for the trolley that would take them to the mainland.

"Yes," Stuart agreed gravely, "but there's too much wind — it hurts my ears."

Star and Barton smiled at each other. But Elise unfastened the white chiffon handkerchief at her throat and knelt before Stuart. "If I tie this over your ears," she explained, "the wind can't get in." He nodded and stood quietly while the handkerchief was knotted, peasant fashion, under his chin. "That better?"

"That's fine!" said Stuart happily, sniffing at one corner to get the full benefit of the delicate scent. "You're nice, too. You smell nice."

His tribute was so sincere and unprompted that Elise's eyes were misty as she stood up again. Star mentally promised Stuart an extra-long story for giving Elise what she needed now above everything else—unquestioning friendliness.

The "Toonerville Trolley" rattled along and stopped abruptly in front of them. Hilariously Star and Elise managed the high steps, finding that their skirts needed only this slight elevation to send them billowing upward. The ride seemed all too short. They were sorry when they had to take an ordinary touring car for the ride further into the hills.

They flew past houses painted in what Elise called "ice cream" colors. Lovely, beautifully kept homes that they knew even before the guide told them had been built by Americans.

Coastal Command Combine of Bloodhound And Shepherd Dog

London, Jan. 8 (CP)—The Royal Air Force Coastal Command is a combination bloodhound and shepherd dog. Fliers bomb German mine laying seaplanes in their bases and guard ships against sea perils.

The resource and initiative shown by the crew of one R.A.F. coastal command aircraft on patrol duty over the North Sea saved several inward-bound merchant vessels from possible damage by German mines.

Just before dusk while the plane was on patrol the front gunner observed two black specks in the water. Coming down low in the poor light, the pilot recognized them as mines and they were in a shipping lane used daily by scores of vessels passing to and from English ports.

A few minutes earlier the plane saw a number of merchant ships that soon would be traversing the lane in the darkness so the problem was to destroy the mines. The pilot spent some minutes circling the area while the crew prepared to machine-gun them but he found that visibility was so poor he would have to fly low to accomplish the purpose and this involved risk to the plane from exploding mines.

The pilot set off for mine sweepers he had seen in the vicinity, called them with lamp signals and guided them to the spot where he saw the mines. Darkness had fallen just as the second mine was destroyed and an hour later the first of the incoming merchantmen passed oer the spot.

I'm not sure if I'm going to be aloud to keep my new dog Misty an account of him making a nuisance of himself keeping people awake at night by barking at sounds that are none of his business, and last night after supper he was scratching behind one ear and bumping on the floor with his elbow at the same time, and ma said, Now really, I mean really, I cant listen to that dog scratching any longer, you'll have to give him a bath.

Well heck, ma, G winnickers, I just gave him one the day before yestidday, I said. That's work, I said, and ma said, Suppose I said that every time this room needs dusting, it would soon be a desert.

Well jimminy, ma, he cant have fleas so soon after a bath, I said, and ma said, He proberly has chronic fleas and there's nothing to do but call up the Four Footed Haven and have them come and take him away.

No mam, ma, I mean he's not scratching for fleas at all, I said. Holey smokes, ma, you're always telling me not to scratch and you never accuse me of having fleas, I said, and she said, Well I hope you're a little diffrent from a dog for land sakes.

Sure, but G, ma, we're both human, aren't we? I said. I just scratch out of harmless habit and so does Misty, I said, and ma said, Now when a dog scratches it has fleas, that's proverbial, and he's no different from any other dog.

Sure he is, ma, what other dog did you ever see wink one eye? I said, and ma said, He has an affliction of that eye and there's no use trying to make it rebound to his credit.

Well if I teach him to wink with the other eye too will you admit he's different, ma? I said.

Ma not admitting whether she would or not, and I took Misty up to my room for safety first,

Picton Council Discusses By-Law On Wednesday Half-Holidays

Picton—Officers called for active service this week in this district were: Captain Geo. Wallace, Wellington and Major Jas. Inrig; Lieut. E. Wright; Lieut. C. Colliver; Lieut. Wm. McLean; Lieut. Brock Hudgin of Picton.

At the first meeting of the new town council on Tuesday evening Mr. Hedley Ostrander was appointed town foreman, Wm. Crawford tax collector and Frank Morden, assessor.

A proposed by law making Wednesday afternoon a half holiday for the stores during the whole year, except during the month of December, called for heated argument and was laid over for amendment. The councillors who represent the canning factory industry, with Reeve H. S. Colliver as their spokesman, argued heatedly against the proposed bylaw saying there were already too many holidays. Major Nesbitt McKibbon occupied the chair, with all council members present except councillor Geo. Owens who is ill at his home with pneumonia.

Mr. Patterson Dever is confined to his home suffering from broken ribs and bruises, as the result of a collision with a car, as he crossed the road near his home on Monday.

An unusually large gathering attended the meeting of the H. and S. Club in the Kindergarten of Mary St. School on Wednesday evening. The President, Mrs. F. Webster occupied the chair and introduced het speaker of the evening Miss Edna Moore, provincial school nurse, whose address proved most interesting. The local H. and S. Club are working towards the objective of securing a school nurse for Picton, and members of the town council, the school board and Dr. T. S. Philp, M.O.H. were present. Christmas music by children of the different grades was enjoyed following the address. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by the President and the committee.

The funeral of Irvine Miller was largely attended at his home on Down's Ave., on Tuesday afternoon. Death occurred on Sunday in P. E. Co. Hospital following an illness of three weeks with pneumonia. The deceased was in his 81st year and had spent most of his life in this county. For many years he resided at Cressey. After some years spent in the West he made his home in Picton, where he had many friends. He is survived by his wife, a daughter Vera at home and a son Harold. The deceased was a member of the Anglican Church and the funeral service was conducted by Rev. J. B. Creegan. The pall bearers were Jno. Dayton, George Dayton, Fred Fournia, Jno. Carson, Jas. McLellan and H. Cunningham. Interment was made in Waupoos cemetery.

Following a long illness, Irvine Hicks, passed away at his home at South Bay on Wednesday, Jan. 3rd. The deceased was in his 80th year and is survived by his wife who was formerly Miss Edith Loney of South Bay. He had resided all his life in this locality where he was well and favorably known. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. W. R. Russell, Reg. N., whose mother, Mrs. Rolston, an elderly resident of Picton, passed away on Sunday at the family home, Ontario Street. The funeral service was conducted at the home on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. Mr. Tranter and interment made in Glenwood Cemetery.

Negotiations are underway with Canadian manufacturers for construction of 1,282 training planes which will be built in this country except for the engines, the minister stated last night over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The broadcast was one of a series by cabinet ministers outlining the war effort.

There are 870 complete aircraft on order in England and will be assembled in Canada and 593 planes are being manufactured in the United States. In addition, 1,622 aircraft, without wings, are on order in England and will be assembled here with the wings manufactured by Canadian companies.

Deliveries In May.

Mr. Howe said that aircraft deliveries from abroad are expected to start next May.

The War Supply Board is organizing the Canadian aircraft industry for maintenance and overhaul of the training aircraft and is establishing necessary depots for overhauling the aircraft engines. When the training program is at its peak, the minister said, it is expected that between 3,000 and 4,000 airplane engines must be overhauled every year and will take a staff of 10,000 workmen.

Outlining other aspects of the work of the War Supply Board, Mr. Howe said that tenders have been asked for some 72 boats, ranging from 18-foot dinghies to steel ships of the British whalecatcher design, involving an expenditure of $17,000,000. "Our shipbuilding industry will have its hands full in meeting the required delivery dates. Both the Canadian and British governments will share in this program."

Tempo of War Not Rapid

The minister said that the large British orders anticipated by Canadian manufacturers have not appeared as yet "for the obvious reason that the tempo of war activity has not been as rapid as had been anticipated.

"I think that none of us should feel badly that this is so. Large munition orders for Canada may well reflect long casualty lists at the front. We can well afford to lose the orders, if we can be spared the casualties.

"Great Britain has had a large and distinguished group of purchasing experts in Canada since the outbreak of war, who have been studying our productive capacity and who are prepared to place orders when the time of need comes. Canada has already been organized as a second source of supply for British munitions and there is little doubt that our full productive capacity will be needed before the struggle ends."

Buying Difficult Task

Mr. Howe said that war buying is a difficult task and every war in history has had its series of scandals connected with the purchase of war supplies and food stuffs. "In this war, Canada is making every effort to prevent dihonesty, inefficiency and profiteering. I feel that our war purchasing machinery will prove itself capable of doing a job that will win the approval of the Canadian people." Profiteering will be very difficult during the war, the minister continued. "I sincerely hope that it can be prevented altogether. Certainly the spirit of industrialists and workers at the moment is to perform their functions efficiently and without inflation of costs. There exists every patriotic motive likely to ensure that this spirit will continue."

Fight on Two Fronts

Orders placed by the War Supply Board amount to about $65,000,000, exclusive of $25,000,000 for railway equipment. In this war, Canada must fight on two fronts—first on the overseas front with Canadian troops fighting with the British and French, and second on the home front where the citizens must carry on with equal enthusiasm.

"I can offer you no message that will find a quicker response in your hearts than the promise that I and all those associated with me in the activities of the War Supply Board will spare neither personal effort nor any resource at our command, to see to it, without equivocation, without consideration personal or political, that the armed forces of the Dominion are the best fed, the best clothed and the best equipped in the world."

CHIN UP REVUE

When "Red" Newman steps out nightly in Chin Up with uncanny Chamberlain make-up to introduce "We've Rolled Up the Old Umbrella," he does so with the blessing of the man he is impersonating; how vividly true is his characterization will be seen by theatre-goers here when Chin Up, first of the elaborate wartime revues comes to the Capitol Theatre for one night only, commencing this Thursday.

"We've Rolled Up the Old Umbrella" is by T. Reginald Sloan, a young Hamilton lawyer who makes a hobby of writing successful songs on the side. His "Lady, Go Lightly" is well up in the current hit parade; his "That Please-be-mineable Feeling" was first introduced by Rudy Vallee, while his "Old Pals" dedicated to the famous 13th Regt. of Hamilton, is not infrequently played by both the United States Navy Band and the U.S. Marine Band.

On his "Umbrella" epic however Sloan took the precaution of submitting both music and lyrics to Britain's Prime Minister. Back on "10 Downing St." stationery came the Chamberlain endorsement of "hearty accord with the sentiments expressed."

This is only one of the 20 hit songs in Chin Up. "Red" sings several, Ross Hamilton (Marjorie) has his (should we say "her" quota); beautiful La'Nor Triller, Chanteuse Francaise, Alex Morgan, handsome tenor; add their bit, while Pat Rafferty, as hilarious as ever, brings down the house nightly with a few more. The dancing by Marquette and Linda is a feature too in this 25 scene revue, bringing 45 star artists to town this Thursday.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Fortune-Telling on the Wane

Were you ever in love? And were you tortured by the fear that the youth you adored didn't love you as much as you loved him? And did you know of no other way to settle the matter than to go, secretly, of course, to a fortune-teller?

This everybody knows, is the way that all women are thought to settle their heart-problems. In fact, women have always been held to be believers in the unbelievable. They are, or so people will tell you, seers of ghosts, consulters of the stars, probers into the occult and patrons of all those murky arts that are based on tea-leaves, cards and lines in the palm.

Now it appears that they are nothing of the sort. Or if they ever were, they seem mostly to have outgrown it. This doesn't mean that no love-stricken girl, facing a romantic crisis, ever sneaks out to have her life-story foretold, in the good old-fashioned way. But it must mean that girls are more capable of managing their love-affairs than they used to be, or, that having learned to face facts more closely, they are less and less inclined to put their faith either in distant stars or in damp tea-leaves. So that the dark, complexioned, ample-bosomed matrons, sitting behind small tables in thickly-curtained rooms, dispensing good and bad luck to scared, love-stick visitors, don't do anything like the business that they used to do.

How do we know that women have changed their ways? Because they themselves have said so. The thirty-seven million women who were canvassed recently by one of the women's magazines have individually answered the very definite questions put to them in regard to this whole subject. Now they're on record as a pretty hard-headed sex.

What future is there going to be for fortune-telling when four out of every five women in this country say that they think there's nothing in it and deny that they spend their pin-money in any such form of dissipation? One wonders, by the way, if universal patronage of the movies has anything to do with this. Does every romantic movie have an answer, if only an indirect one, for hearts that are honestly troubled and lives that for the moment seem askew?

As to palm-reading, this fared a shade better among the women who were interviewed. And it's true that there's something convincing about those lines on the palm. It's easy to believe they mean something. Only, who knows what it is? Ten per cent of the women came out squarely and said they believed in palm-reading. For my part, I hope they're right.

It's a jump, of course, from palmistry to spirit messages—communication with the dead. But somehow I should have supposed that a good many women believed, in a quiet way, in spirit communication. The truth is that only seven per cent. of all American women entertain any such belief. It's rather impressive, isn't it, when a good, strong 93 per cent comes out with a mighty No?

Oddly enough, it's the country women living on lonely farms who are the least scary about this matter of ghosts,—ghosts that you can see or ghosts that merely talk to you through raps or pencilled messages. Three per cent of such women believe you can communicate with the dead. All the rest are skeptical. In cities, on the other hand, there are three times as many women who say they believe in spirit messages. Which isn't easy to account for.

The world is fuller of wonders than it used to be. The radio supplies a continuous miracle. Television is here, with a long list of other marvels. Perhaps, to the wonder-loving, all these things have taken the place of ghosts and crystal-gazing and star-reading.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Be Agreeable if it Kills You"

"Be pretty if you can; be witty if you must; but be agreeable if it kills you".

All of us treasure, in our hearts and memories, wise words of advice from our mothers. The words I have quoted above are the counsel that Elsie de Wolfe (now Lady Mendl) cherishes from her mother, obviously a woman of nimble wit and common sense.

Only a woman who knew the social world could have said these words, for they have the wit of which she speaks and it has worldy wisdom.

P.S.—It's easy to memorize!

Word Usage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have a mannerism which is a personal like of mine. When I introduce, I say, "Meet the husband" or "May I present the daughter". "In the home, so and so".

I like it and say it with a feeling of praise to those I love and I fully expect the one I address to understand it is "my" husband "my" daughter and "my" home.

Am I awfully incorrect?

M.

There is a difference between being original and being provincial, and we must consider this when we use words or expressions in a way different from their accepted use. Your use of the word "the" instead of "my" or "our" is not according to accepted usage, and may as you admit, be misunderstood.

Reply to Toast

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1—When a lady is in the company of a gentleman, and he proposes a toast, say, to the "most beautiful girl in the world", how should she accept this toast? Should she thank him for it and drink with him or should she wait until he first takes a drink from his glass?

2—If the lady orders Scotch and soda, and it is brought to her in two separate glasses, should she, her escort, or the waiter pour the contents of the small glass into the glass containing the soda?

D.

1—The most gracious and the most sensible way for a woman to receive a compliment or to reply to a toast that is a complimentary comment, is for her to take the pleasant comment with the natural give-and-take spirit of today's world. That is, she should receive the compliment graciously, with a friendly smile, and a "Thank you" or "How very kind of you".

I hasten to add, however, that this is advice for the usual compliment. If the ardent beau proposes a toast to "The most beautiful girl in the world", her reply to this world-beating enthusiasm would test the wisdom of Helen of Troy! If the young lady can be casual about this compliment, she has my compliments. Since there isn't very much to say in answer to this perhaps overcharged compliment, she might say just that . . . "You leave me speechless, sir!" And she shouldn't drink the toast with the gallant gentleman!

2—Customarily the waiter inquires if the person wishes to have him pour the drink. If he doesn't do this, the escort may ask, or the woman may pour her own.

Courtesy Tip

Haven't you noticed that some people who give large tips and give them ostentatiously are the very ones who don't say "Thank you?" Apparently they assume that the large tip and the flourish are ample reward for one who serves them.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, January 9

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY of strange adventures and memorable experience is the augury based on the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. An element of the startling, unforeseen and dramatic determines events, which probably involve radical upheavals, new objectives and plans, with a complete change of scene as well as associates. This combination, while drastic and far-reaching in consequence, is likely to bring much unlooked-for happiness and benefit, if mangaed with calmness and discretion. Elderly opposition must be placated. Romance seems to fill the air with glamor.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a "devastating" year, with swift and dramatic events moving to the fore. These may disrupt old obligations, objectives and ties for new, thrilling and breath-taking experiences of the utmost significance in shaping the future fortune and destiny. Romance or some other high adventure is on the tapis, calling for extreme prudence, wisdom and compromise, with forces set to resist such glamorous programs. The climax of personal happiness is imminent.

A child born on this day may be unusually talented, progressive, ambitious, original and independent, probably attaining conspicuous position or renown in the realm of romance and adventure, science or invention.

Keeping Spruced Up

By ELEANOR ROSS

IT'S EASY to spruce up your winter ensemble with a touch of spring — snowy white neckwear, colorful scarves, smart gloves. And it's easier still to keep spruced up by the frequent use of soap and water for these pretty accessories. An inch of detachable banding or a snowy vestee or lingerie collar and cuffs will tone up a dark dress and the spirits of the wearer at the same time!

The wise gal stocks up with at least three sets of white neckwear. Because it is important to keep these accessories dainty, they will need to be washed after the second wearing, sometimes even after the first. With one set ready for a suds bath, the second can be basted right onto the dress, leaving the third for second choice or for emergency use.

Speed in washing neckwear is recommended. Laces, rayons, satins and silks should not spend more time in the water than is absolutely necessary for the dirt to be expelled. Soaking, therefore, is taboo and to make up for it an abundance of heavy soapsuds should be used. They will extract more dirt in less time than any amount of soaking.

Linen or cotton neckwear responds to hot, sudsy water, and for white things use a bit of bluing in the last rinse.

Measured Before

Squeezing large handfuls of lukewarm suds gently through woollen gloves, and scarves, rinsing them in tepid water, with a teaspoon of glycerine in the last rinse to bring back the wool's soft fuzziness, will make you fall in love with your colorful woollen accessories all over again. Gloves should be measured before washing so that they can be pulled to their proper shape before drying. Or better still, use a wire glove frame.

Don't be afraid to massage suede or kid or fabric gloves right on your hand with plentiful, thick suds. Because the seams of chamois and doeskin are apt to weaken and split when wet, it is best to wash them off the hands. Be gentle when turning them inside out to wash the inner surface. The first rinse should be slightly soapy, the three succeeding rinses clear, lukewarm water. Before gloves are completely dry, work them a little with your fingers to limber them up. Don't let gloves get very dirty. The amount of rubbing necessary to lighten them will tend to destroy the leather and seam threads.

AT THE BELLE

"THE GREAT VICTOR HERBERT"

The spirit of the gay, romantic, colorful era when Victor Herbert ruled the show world and his melodies were on everyone's lips has been completely captured by the first motion picture based on the personality of the great Irish-American composer. The film, "The Great Victor Herbert," which is now on the Belle screen is a spectacular tribute to a man who has a place in every American heart.

Victor Herbert himself — who knew how to pick many a star in his day—could not have chosen a cast better suited to bring his story to the screen than the one Paramount present in "The Great Victor Herbert." The performances of Allan Jones, Mary Martin and Walter Connolly, in the leading roles, are as noteworthy as the immortal songs that pace the performance.

The picture is a dramatic tale of a young actor and actress who rise to fame in Herbert's operettas and whose lasting friendship with the great song-writer is made possible.

Miss Martin, whose previous experience in the theatre has been chiefly on the frivolous side—singing the sensational "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in "Leave It To Me" — is uncommonly pretty, charged with energy and enthusiasm and has a voice "made" to sing Herbert's immortal songs. As her romantic partner, Jones combines the acting ability with the talent for song that has made him so popular. As for Connolly, he fits easily into the character of the late composer, whom he remarkably resembles in appearance and personality.

The importance of background in a picture of this kind has not been over-looked by the producer-director, Andrew Stone, who has created a lavish, gaudy and colorful New York, against which the turn-of-the-century romance takes place. But first and foremost, music's the thing that counts in dealing with Victor Herbert, and the picture presents no less than two score of the composer's best-loved songs. There are such outstanding favorites as "Kiss Me Again," "I'm Falling in Love With Someone", "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life", and "A Kiss in the Dark."

The popular Belle Overseas and Canadian News. "Aqua Rhythm", a smart-paced Mermaid Revue, and an interesting Paramount Pictorial concludes a splendid program of screen entertainment.

Columbia River Highway

By TEMPLE MANNING

ONE OF THE finest ways to enliven dull winter days is to collect literature and maps of various vacation areas, and have family get-togethers, with everyone contributing remarks on the fascinating subject. With conditions as they are, there are many who this summer will see America first at last, and enjoy their vacation at home. Maybe some of them will be amazed at what their country has to offer. We admit that a vacation trip to Europe, during one of its peace terms, is a delightful, thrilling and interesting travel experience. But for the sheer marvels of nature for varied scenery, for travel thrills, give us the glowing, vibrant United States of America.

For majesty and beauty, the Pacific northwest lords it over the whole country. One of our favorite vacation spots is the state of Oregon. An ocean shoreline of 400 miles; forests too large to visualize except in comparatively small section; countless brooks and tumbling mountain creeks; hundreds of lakes; mountain peaks crowned with eternal snows, and, for good measure, the Columbia River Highway, with its lordly sentinel, Mt. Hood—Oregon has all these.

U. S. Highway 30 is a grand holiday remembrance. It serpentines and tunnels its way mile after mile around and through solid basalt to join that part of the highway known as the Old Oregon Trail. Sylvan settings of ferns, flowers and trees surround tumbling cascades, such as Multnomah, which tumbles down 620 feet like a lacy white ribbon over brown cliffs.

Beautiful Drive

Corniche, the road that skirts the Mediterranean along the Riviera coast, to our mind, is nothing compared to the 400 marvelous miles from the California line to Astoria, along the Pacific. We call to mind the Bandon region, with arches and caves lining the white beach like a ghost city. Then there is beautiful Coos Bay, where the forest-covered hills slope down to the blue sea. North of Marshfield one travels past a chain of narrow lakes that are really old rivers which have been damned by migratings and dunes that are covered with forest. Near Heceta is a series of remarkable caverns, hundreds of feet long. Every mile of the highway is filled with wonders, so many that they become common-place.

Crater Lake, Oregon.

On the crest of the Cascades of eastern Oregon is Crater Lake, the gem of Crater Lake National Park. At an altitude of 6,161 feet this blue gem of the Pacific northwest is guarded by a nearly circular rim, varying from 500 feet to 2,000 feet in height. The marvelous colorings of the crater walls are reflected in the blue lake, the rim of which is dotted with fragrant hemlock trees.

Refills for the Cookie Jar

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

TIME TO fill up that old cookie jar! If you want to add some new friends to the old favorites, use the recipes given here for cookies that went over well during the recent holidays.

Caraway cookies, good and spicy, are made with two lightly-beaten eggs, one cup sugar, one cup thick cream, three teaspoons baking powder, three cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half tablespoons whole caraway seeds. Add sugar gradually to beaten eggs, add cream and mix all together. Add flour mixed with the baking powder, salt and caraway seeds. Chill the dough, roll on floured board and cut into desired shapes. Bake in moderate oven on greased cookie sheet.

Fruit cookies make an appetizing snack when served with hot coffee, cocoa or afternoon tea. Make with one cup shortening, one and one-half cups granulated sugar, one egg, three tablespoons molasses, one-half cup sour milk, four cups flour, teaspoon each cloves and cinnamon, one-half teaspoon each nutmeg and salt, two teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon soda, one-half cup chopped raisins, two tablespoons grated orange or lemon rind, one-half cup chopped dates and one cup chopped nuts. Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg, molasses, sour milk. Sift together flour, spices, salt, baking powder and soda, and add dredged fruit and nutmeats. Blend with first mixture. Roll on lightly floured board, cut and bake in a 375 degrees F. oven for 15-20 minutes.

Tidbit Balls

Tidbit Balls are made with one cup each seeded raisins and pitted dates, teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon vanilla, melted dipping chocolate and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Put raisins and dates through food chopper. Add cinnamon, vanilla and salt. Mix thoroughly. Roll into three-fourths inch balls and dip in melted chocolate. If preferred, the dipping in chocolate may be eliminated, and the tidbits rolled in powdered sugar or shredded cocoanut.

To make a healthsome, delicious morsel, mix one cup honey, one cup sugar, one cup melted shortening and one egg. Add one cup chopped pecans or walnuts meats, one cup flour sifted with tablespoon ginger, and two teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and add enough sifted flour to make of a consistency to drop from spoon onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderately warm oven, about 375 degrees F.

Caroline Chatfield Says Today

Man Should Beware of a Gal That Runs in a Family Covey. If He Marries Her He'll Get the Covey

Every now and then you hear about a long-suffering husband who has spent the days of his years being pleasant with his wife's family when in fact he wishes the last one of them was drowned in the depths of the sea. While one of the clan is installed in his guest room another runs in before breakfast, chats with him while he shaves, sits by him while he drinks his coffee, follows him out to the car as he goes to the office and is back again before he returns for the evening meal.

He's the fellow who knows what it means to toss on the living room sofa while some dear relative sleeps sweetly in his bed. He's the boob who carves the goose and takes a wing because there isn't any more. He has in-laws in his hair under his feet and under his skin. They are like a scourge which he can't get rid of no matter which remedy he applies. And he can't stop scratching. Is he a hero or a scapegoat?

"Dear Miss Chatfield

Ten years ago I married the girl I loved. I didn't like her family but she did. Anyhow I married her and thought we would have a private home. I got the family in the bargain with a boarding house thrown in for good measure. The first year my wife took her midday meal with her mother where they had a big dinner. Of course she wasn't hungry in the evening and we had a snack.

"After she learned about keeping house the baby was on the way and the family began to get it back on her. She couldn't go to them but they could come to her. And how! We had one of them every day and on holidays we had 'em all. I'm of a hospitable nature and enjoy having people in my home but enough is enough and I have had it. If you have any practical suggestions for a thorough housecleaning pass them over to a man who would like to sit down to his dinner table occasionally without an in-law."

No suggestions, brother and little consolation. When you marry a girl that runs with the family covey, you join the covey. You can't separate her from it.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Can We Improve Child's I. Q.?

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

PARENTS have been writing to ask me to name ways by which they can raise the I.Q. of their child. By I.Q. they mean intelligence quotient, the child's basic mental ability or aptitude—in other words, his "brains". I must confess I am not sure it can be done.

Obviously these parents have been reading of the widely-publicized studies made by Dr. Beth Wellman and interpreted in numerous popular and semi-popular articles and addresses by Dr. George Stoddard, both of whom are professors at Iowa University.

Some popular writers in newspapers and magazines, who exercise more imagination and less care than these two Iowa psychologists, have in writing about these studies, given the average reader the impression that any child can be trained to possess the quality of mind you want him to possess; that you can give him any kind of "brains" you wish; that, for example, the child very dull at four might become very bright at 14 or 40. Naturally, most parents are eager to believe this.

Average to Genius

Professor Wellman wrote in Childhood Education (November, 1936):

"We have examples of children entering pre-school with average intelligence who, under especially favorable circumstances, have later tested at 'genius levels'."

In Social Frontier (February, 1939), under the names of Wellman and Stoddard, appeared the following:

"The new studies reveal large changes in I.Q. in both upward and downward directions. They reveal that, under favorable circumstances, children actually move from average to so-called 'genius' levels or, under very unfavorable circumstances, from average intelligence to feeble-mindedness". .

"Some geniuses are made . . . Some children are made feeble-minded."

Not All Accept Theory

But not nearly all psychologists accept the conclusions of Wellman and Stoddard. Some even question the reliability of the techniques in the investigation. For example, Dr. Benjamin R. Simpson, of Western Reserve University, one of the pioneers of the world in mental testing, has written two vigorous criticisms, holding that the mental tests used on the young children did not test what they were supposed to test; that significant variables were not sufficiently controlled, and that the statistical treatment "won't hold water".

I certainly would agree with Dr. Simpson when he urges parents not to expect educators to perform miracles on their children.

While my fellow psychologists fight among themselves over whether a child's I.Q. can be raised you and I might as well go on using the best common sense we have, recognizing that children differ widely in their ability to learn, assuming that everyone of them can improve in mental performance to a much higher degree than most of them do, and doing all we can to help each child, without exciting him unduly, to realize as fully as possible his capacities, whatever they may be.

Real Dangers When Child Sucks Thumb

Are there any real dangers from thumb-sucking in children?

Yes. Orthodontists learned by experience that living bone must be looked on as soft and the bones of the jaw, especially in children, are no exception to this. Not only thumb-sucking, but a great many other apparently innocent habits may cause deformity of the jaw and teeth.

I have seen a case of a child who slept with the thumb pressed against the upper jaw inside the mouth, with the result that the upper front teeth were pulled forward and the lower front teeth were pushed backward—a bad case of malocclusion.

Sleeping habits may change the contour of the jaw in childhood. Habitually sleeping on the stomach, or worse, with the hand, fist, wrist or arm under the jaw, is enough to produce a dental or facial deformity.

In later life not only the teeth but the wide, stubby thumb, totally unlike its mate, may betray the former thumb-sucker. The habit should certainly be broken, although exactly how depends on the child's disposition and other factors. Each case is individual.

Why Prunes Are So Popular.

What are the nutritional advantages of prunes and what makes them so popular?

This question would indicate that we have passed Christmas and New Year's—that we are beyond the holiday period of luxurious eating and are preparing to return to normalcy. Prunes may not be universally popular, but they are valuable dietary items.

Dried fruits are preserved fruits that have fully ripened on the tree or vine; only the water is removed in drying and their food value is concentrated in proportion to the moisture evaporated. A pound of dried fruits equals several pounds of fresh fruit, both in bulk and food value. Prunes, therefore, have good roughage value. They contain vitamins A, B and G. They also have essential minerals, such as calcium, potassium, phosphorous, iron, magnesium, copper and sulphur. They have, of course, nutritional value. Two prunes and two tablespoonfuls of juice constitute 100 calories.

All these qualities suffice to explain why they are popular with the housewife. Besides which they are among the most economical of all breakfast fruits.

Hazards of Low Blood Pressure

What are the dangers of low blood pressure and what should be done about it?

Low blood pressure is not nearly so serious as high blood pressure. Insurance statistics indicate that low blood pressure adds materially to one's expectation of life after the age of 25, but it is likely to take a good deal of the joy out of life, the most prominent symptom being weakness. A period of low blood pressure frequently follows after an infectious disease. After the influenza epidemic of 1918 insurance examiners found an increasing numbers of applicants with low blood pressure.

The best treatment is to increase the weight and general nutrition.

Are lie detectors recognized as infallible?

To me the name "lie detector" is a purely imaginative and fictional term. I do not believe that any court has yet judged a criminal case solely on the evidence of a lie detector. In my opinion, courts are certainly not justified in accepting such evidence.

Translation of emotional reactions into physiological terms is by no means standardized. A number of polygraphs and psychographs and photopolygraphs are on the market but no agreement exists as to their reliability.

Those interested should refer to a book called Lying and Its Detection, published by the University of Chicago Press, and written by John A. Larson. The latest publication is by William Marston, called The Lie Detector Test, published by Richard R. Smith, 1938.

700 SKATERS ENJOY OPEN-AIR RINK

Upwards of 700 skaters enjoyed the open-air skating on the Belleville Yacht Club rink, situated on the Belleville harbor, yesterday. A splendid open-air rink has again this year been constructed on the harbour by the Belleville Yacht Club adjacent to their clubhouse. Warm comfortable dressing rooms are provided the skating public in the clubhouse gratis and judging from the increased number of skaters enjoying open-air skating the efforts of the local Yacht Club are being highly appreciated by adult and juvenile skaters alike. A goodly number of mature aged skaters were seen enjoying a week-end of recreation on the splendid Yacht Club rink.

More About Osteomyelitis

Yesterday we spoke of osteomyelitis in its violent form. Not all cases are so acute. Sometimes the affliction will appear very slowly and the progress is slow too. In such cases, an operation may be avoided if the disease is recognized in time and proper treatment given. Various types of poultices or other applications can be used to draw off the pus. I have seen cases of the disease clear up with only this treatment.

The big obstacle to treatment in time to avoid an operation is that its symptoms are so much like those of other diseases, causing precious time to be wasted treating the child for arthritis or rheumatism or something else. Often, if local symptoms aren't very noticeable, the case history of fever, chills, rapid pulse, will point to typhoid.

Sometimes the adult patient will think he just has a touch of rheumatism and will put off seeing the doctor until the disease has progressed to a stage where only an operation can save his life.

I remember well the first case I met after beginning my practise in Callander over thirty years ago. A man came to my office to tell me his little boy was ill with a sore leg. The parents thought he had rheumatism and had kept him in bed for several weeks hoping that would cure him. Now he has become delirious. He gave me more details as we drove twenty miles out to the home where the boy lay, and I was baffled by the man's description of what was wrong with his boy.

But even though I had never handled a case before, and never seen one outside of medical school, the moment I looked at the boy's leg, I knew what it was. He was about twelve and had been sick for a couple of months. He was wasted and pale—all but his left leg which was swollen and red and hot to touch. In a couple of places pus was leaking through. It was plainly osteomyelitis. Unfortunately, parents often are as blind to advancing symptoms of serious diseases as that.

If I were confronted with such a case today, I would take the child straight to the hospital. It is the place for such serious diseases. But in those days there was no hospital near, road were bad and transportation slow.

What I had to do, I realized with sinking heart, was operate right there and then, if the boy was to be saved. I explained to the parents what had happened and what had to be done, and they helped all they could. But I had to anesthecize the patient with chloroform with one hand while operating with the other, on an improved operating table in a poorly lit room. I cut a slit about six inches long down the leg, and the moment my lancet struck the bone I knew by the feel of it that the bone was dead, and that it would have to come out, though not necessarily at this time.

I kept the leg drained for a month, and then I was able to take out a dead bone splinter about six inches long and varying from a half to an inch and a half in width. As I remember it was another month before I was sure I had removed all the dead bone, and all this while the poor kid had to be kept in splints to keep his leg bone straight.

I guess it was a year before the bone was completely healed and it must have been two years before he was all better and able to walk around without a limp.

What brought the subject of osteomyletis to my mind was that I saw the chap the other day. He walked without difficulty into my office with his ten-year-old boy to have me see him.

Fashion Flashes

DON'T MIND the rain when wearing a cheerful and pretty rain coat. What about a coat of rubberized white rayon satin with full folds and a nice hood to save hat or curls? Swell for day or evening.

BE PRETTY at night too. Wear a pretty nighties of ciclamen silk jersey striped in white, cut on Empire lines with little puffed sleeves and shirred bustline.

LITTLE TRIFLES do much to point up a simple black evening frock or one no longer new. A good choice would be long black suede gloves embroidered all the way up with pink roses, accompanied by a black beaded bag with matching embroidery.

ROLL UP a record for smart evening and dinner clothes with the aid of long skirts and separate blouses. A grand dinner blouse is of black faille lavishly embroidered all-over with gold metal scrollwork. Collarless neckline, wide shoulders and elbow length sleeves.

SUNSHINE is the word for the southern fashions. Nice for Florida is a daytime frock of white sharkskin embroidered with tiny red wool flowers. A long scarf of red jersey is attached to the matching hat which has an upturned and stitched brim.

A scene from "Winter Carnival," which co-stars Ann Sheridan and Richard Carlson and now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Rita Hayworth and Charles Quigley head an excellent cast in the second feature, "The Game That Kills," an exciting and fast hockey story.

The Right Touches

By ALICE ALDEN

PROBABLY it will always take a Paris designer to drop a bombshell bag into our midst, this accessory being included in a recent mid-season showing. But Americans are clever, giving us the amusing and unusual, if not startling, highlights to our costumes. For instance, the old-fashioned-looking, black silk-satin ribbon loop bag, to use with either formal afternoon or diner clothes. Gloves are a speciality in America, none being gayer than the velvets shown, with star-studded fingers. These come in black with gold and red or blue with silver decor. Brilliant, reversible velvet mittens are another choice in handwear, as are quilted velveteen mittens in pastels.

Tips for the Finger-Tips

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONCE a week finger-nails should have a thorough overhauling and a fresh polish. Every night they should be given a little attention, the pink shells frictioned, the flesh about the nails lubricated with an oil or cuticle cream.

A professional manicure, accomplished with delicacy and skill, is a joy. It gives the beauty customer a clean, well set-up feeling. A hurried, careless treatment is a menace; an operator who has not had proper training can do harm.

Watch and see that the instruments are sterilized. If there is discomfort, if there is the sligtest wound, wend your way to another beauty bazaar where operators are not only capable but conscientious. The cuticle at the base of the nail must not be cut; cutting causes it to thicken and harden and to cling to the nail fabric. Filing too far down at the sides will result in deformed nails and soreness.

If it is necessary to give oneself a quick clean up, remove the polish use the flexible steel file, run the orange wood stick under the nail eave, put on a finished edge with the beveling file. The next step is a soaking in warm soap suds. Rinse and dry, apply olive oil, work up the cuticle with the stick, snip away hang nails. Remove every particle of the oil before putting on the glimmering shine with the little brush.

Extra mindful of profile and face contour must be the woman with heavy jaw lines, especially when selecting a hat. For her to top her thought-roof with a pill-box hat and a whisp of tulle or a perky feather is to make the lower portion of the face appear wider and heavier.

Her best bet is the brimmed hat with a medium-sized crown. The more width the hat has, the less width will her face seem to carry.

Wise women follow fashion just so far and no farther. They keep on seeking frocks and chapeaux until they find models that are flattering. If hat or frock isn't flattering, it is a fizzle, and nothing can be done about it.

ROAST BEEF — Roast beef should be cooked at a low temperature. This is very important if you desire a roast which is tender and juicy and evenly done throughout. When a low temperature is used, there is less shrinkage, the roast makes a better appearance because the outside is nicely browned and not charred, and the roast will be evenly done throughout, rare, medim or well-done, as desired, with exception of the outside slices. A temperature of 300 F. has been found to give excellent results. To cook, place the roast, fat side up, in an open roasting pan.

Cranberry Nut Bread—Ingredients: one cup cranberries, one cup sugar, three cups flour, four teaspoon baking powder, one teanut meats, grated rind one orange, one egg, one cup milk, two tablespoons melted butter or margarine. Wash cranberries and drain. Force through a food chopper. Add one-fourth cup sugar to them. Sift remaining sugar with flour, baking powder and salt. Mix in nut meats and grated orange rind. Beat egg, add milk and melted fat. Add dry ingredients all at once and stir until well blended. Do not overstir. Turn into a well-greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 F., one hour.

Smart bolero dress

By VERA WINSTON

LITTLE BOLERO dresses, to be worn under fur coats now and to blossom out with furs later, are now being featured by many shops. Here is a smart model of this type. It is of brown sheer woolen combined with gold-colored satin. The top of the dress is of satin, joined above the waist with a scalloped line. It has a high, round band neck and tiny self-buttons on the bodice. Skirt is gored into fulness. a scalloped border and lining of the Bolero has long, tight sleeves, and satin. It's charming, too, without the bolero.

Why Use A "Sissy" Laxative?

Chronic constipation has to do with the colon or large intestine. Unless the large bowel is thoroughly emptied from time to time you become a victim of chronic constipation and poisoning of the system which results in colitis or other serious diseases.

Mild or "sissy" laxatives merely cause a movement of the bowels without effecting a thorough cleaning out of the colon or large bowel. For this reason you are misled into thinking that you are doing all you can to overcome a constipated and poisoned condition of the system.

Those who know Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills appreciate the value of a real medicine which not only effects a thorough cleansing of the colon or large bowel but also arouses the liver and kidneys to activity in filtering poisons from the blood.

Once you have proven the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you will never return to the use of "sissy" laxatives. Used regularly once a week this medicine ensures pure blood and freedom from constipation and the pains, aches and serious diseases which accompany it.

Leafs Win From Canadiens But Lose Drillon for 2 Weeks; Rangers 1 Game From Record

Detroit in Last Place Tie With Amerks in Defeat by Boston Bruins 6-2

DRILLON CUT FOOT

Canadiens Break Losing Streak by Defeating Hawks on Sunday 2-1

(By Jack Calder, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto Maple Leafs counted heads today and dug in for the grimmest struggle of the National Hockey League schedule.

The Maple Leafs stayed up with the leaders Saturday night by defeating Montreal Canadiens 3-1 at Toronto but they lost the league's scoring leader, Gordon Drillon, for two weeks or more. Drillon, who suffered a deep foot cut, went to the shelf with his great playmaking teammate, Syl Apps, who has a broken collarbone.

The absence of both members of the game's greatest scoring combination couldn't have come at a more unfortunate time, despite the fact the Leafs are better equipped with reserves than any other team in the league. After playing the Americans at New York tomorrow they meet Boston Bruins at Toronto Thursday and the leading New York Rangers at Toronto Saturday.

Lex Chisholm in Tough Spot

Coach Dick Irvin moaned: "We farmed Don Metz and Hank Goldup to Pittsburgh too soon." But Manager Conny Smythe, philosophizing that "it might have been worse," said Lex Chisholm would go to bat for Drillon and make good.

So on the square-jawed Chisholm just recovering from two successive injuries, fell the mantle of the National League's scoring leader. It may not fit him too badly at that, for Chisholm led the Ontario Hockey Association senior series in scoring before turning professional last season.

Drillon's injury came in the first period while he and Captain Walter Buswell of the Canadiens were chasing a loose puck. Buswell's right skate cut into Drillon's right foot for a gash that required two stitches.

That took the sting from the Leaf attack for a while and the crowd of 9,678 had to be content with hard checking and swift skating until Reg Hamilton found the range in the fifth minute of the third period. He sped away from a four-man Montreal attack and used the lone defenceman, Cliff Goupille, as a shield for the 20-foot shot that gave Toronto a 1-0 lead.

Metz Makes Victory Sure

After Goalie Claude Bourque had fought them off gallantly for nine more minutes, the Leafs struck again through Robert (Red) Heron, who punched in Gus Marker's rebound on a play started by Bucko McDonald. Toe Blake reduced the margin to 2-1 on a rink-long dash with Louis Trudel at 17:02, but Nick Metz made victory sure just 44 seconds later.

It was the ninth successive defeat for the Canadiens, but they came back last night in Chicago to break the string by whipping the Black Hawks 2-1 before 12,606 spectators. George Mantha gave the habitants a lead in the first period and then potted the winning goal in the third after Cully Dahlstrom had scored for Chicago in the second.

One Game Off Record

By defeating Detroit Red Wings 3-0 at New York last night, the Rangers advanced to within a game of tying the league record of 18 straight games without defeat. Kilby Macdonald scored in the second period and Babe Pratt and Bryan Hextall in the third, while Dave Kerr registered another superlative shutout in goal.

Defeat left Detroit in a last-place tie with the Americans, as the Bruins licked the Americans 6-2 at Boston. The Bruins' kraut line from Kitchener, Ont., featured the attack, Bobby Bauer scoring twice and Milt Schmidt once, while Woody Dumart supplied three assists.

QUEBEC ACES BLANKED

Ottawa, Jan. 8—(CP)— Ottawa Senators, with Trevor Higginbottom's goal-tending and the defensive work of Stan Pratt and Johnny Wilkinson featuring their play, blanked Quebec Aces 3-0 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League game here Saturday night.

Earl Nicholson started the scoring on a play with Don Grant and Vince Godin, and Joe Shack and Steve Latoski added two more before the session ended. Shack scored on a solo rush while Nicholson and Jack Brunning aided on aLtoski's counter.

SCORES SECOND SHUTOUT

Quebec, Jan. 8—(CP)— Goalie Trevor Higginbottom scored his second consecutive shutout and his third of the season Sunday when Ottawa Senators blanked Quebec Aces 4-0 in a Quebec Senior Hockey League game. Higginbottom, the league's shutout king, helped his mates whitewash Aces 3-0 in Ottawa Saturday night.

The loss, Aces fourth in a row, marred a comeback attempt of veteran Alex Bolduc who replaced Jimmy Foster in the nets as Aces tried to strengthen their forces. Shack, Wilkinson, Nicholson and Latoski were Ottawa's scorers.

NATIONAL LOOP LOOKS FORWARD TO GOOD SEASON

President Frick Says Teams Are Well-Matched and Ready for Opening

BASEBALL HEALTHY

Last Year's Race One of the Best Enjoyed in League in Some Years

By FORD C. FRICK
President National Baseball League

New York, Jan. 8—(AP)— One very inspiring outgrowth of the centennial celebration is the forward-looking attitude and activity of the baseball worlds which has manifested itself this winter in the form of ideas for further development of the national game. Regardless of whether or not the suggested rules—changes, etc. are put into effect, this widespread spirit of advancement proves that baseball is really young, vigorous and forward-looking.

The National League's centennial year pennant race was again true to our tradition—a hard-fought campaign decided in the last throes of the September drive. There is every indication that our spring tradition will hold true again in 1940—an even chance for every contender. Our picture portrays an array of good, fast, well-matched ball clubs launching into competition in which the question of eventual supremacy will be fought out on the playing-fields with the favorite pennant contenders emerging out of the vicissitudes of keen conflict.

I look forward to the coming season with the same keen anticipation as do the followers of our respective National League clubs. Each National League fan knows his club has a fair chance to figure in the pennant at the start and a fighting chance to be in the race right down to the finish.

N.H.L. STARS

By the Canadian Press

Dave Kerr, Rangers, marked up his third shutout of the season as the New Yorkers won 3-0 over Detroit Red Wings for their 17th straight game without defeat.

Babe Pratt, Rangers, found the net for a goal and helped in another in victory over Red Wings.

Art Jackson, Boston, scored twice and had an assist as the Bruins trounced Americans 6-2.

George Mantha, Canadiens, gave his team victory after nine straight losses by scoring twice in a 2-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

CONTRACT TIME IS HERE AGAIN

Cincinnati Reds Have Already Fourteen Men Under Contract

New York, Jan. 8 (AP)—Like a siren of spring, Dizzy Dean's hold-out squawk over the week-end aroused slumbering baseball fans to the fact that contract time is here again.

In the next week or two the documents with the dotted lines will have been mailed to just about every eligible major leaguer, but the chant of "Old Diz" isn't likely to get much of a chorus.

Championship clubs are popularly supposed to face the most trouble rounding their players into line, but the Cincinnati Reds at this early date have fourteen under contract for 1940 and the New York Yankees, who won't put their papers into the mail till nevt week aren't expecting much fuss. That world series bonus every year seems to keep the Bronx bombers happy.

The first of the Reds to sign was third baseman Bill Werber, who has a pretty practical opinion of his own value, and one of the first was Paul Derringer, the big pitcher who used to be quarrelsome about his figures.

Pitcher Bucky Walters, the National League's most valuable player, and first baseman Frank McCormick slapped their names on two-year contracts without hesitation.

The Detroit Tigers already have Charley Gehringer and the New York Giants Carl Hubbell. The Chicago Cubs have most of their stars and other clubs have numerous lesser known players in line.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Jan. 8—(AP)—News and views: Red Dutton, coach of New York Americans, calls the rival New York Rangers the greatest hockey team he ever saw in action....If Joey Archibald and Jimmy Perrin are signed for a featherweight title bout in New Orleans, the N.B.A. will not recognize the match as such.

Selected shorts: Jack Kearns wants to have Burman vs. Pastor shifted from Miami to Detroit where he would use his old tie-up with Jack Dempsey for publicity purposes....When Jimmy Londos appeared in Boston recently, Promoter Paul Bowser was mean enough to advertise Jimmy's age as 48, which ain't fair if it is almost right.

Personals: Larry MacPhail of the Dodgers will be chief speaker at the annual dinner of the Boston baseball writers....Hank Soar, the nifty New York giant backfielder, wants to be a big league umpire... Master Mickey Rooney was a bit burned up when he was denied admission to Tropical Park because he is a minor....The gent you see reading books between rounds at the Garden fights is John Kieran, the "information please" know-it-all, catching up on his home work.

WINNING STREAK ENDED

Boston, Jan. 8—(CP)— Lachine Rapides ended Boston Olympics 11-game unbeaten streak Saturday, scoring a 3-1 victory over the Provincial Senior Hockey League leaders before 15,206 fans.

Fernand Majeau, Tag Millar and Paul Pidcock tallied for the winners who scored a goal in each period. Stubbs got the Boston goal in the middle session.

CLEVELAND NOW IN LAST POSITION OF W. DIVISION

Champions of Last Year Sixteen Points Away From Top Rung

LEADERS WIN

Indianapolis and New Haven Triumph During the Weekend

(By the Canadian Press)

The ways of the champion are hard as Cleveland Barons of the International - American Hockey League can vouch for today.

Champions of the circuit last season, the Barons are in last position in the western division, 16 points out of first place. True, they finished third in their section last spring just catching the last playoff position, but it still is quite a comedown from the championship to the cellar.

Two losses during the week-end dropped Cleveland to the bottom, one point behind Pittsburgh and Syracuse who are tied. In both games the victories went to the league leaders, Indianapolis, winning 3-2 Saturday and New Haven marking up a 4-2 triumph last night.

In other games Saturday Pittsburgh beat the Ramblers 3-1, Syracuse won 8-4 from Springfield and Hershey stopped Providence 3-1. Syracuse and Pittsburgh played a 2-2 tie last night while Providence beat Hershey 4-1 and Philadelphia and Indianapolis tied 2-2.

New Forward Line Clicks

New Haven's newly formed line of Marcel Trembley, Polly Drouin and Glen Brydson accounted for two of the goals against the Barons last night, Trembley and Brydson doing the scoring with other members of the line drawing assists.

Cleveland's game Saturday went into overtime with Rookie Sany Ross and Bill Thompson scoring for Indianapolis and Lorne Duguid counting for the Barons in the extra session. Buck Jones scored both Indianapolis' goals against Philadelphia last night. Lloyd Ailsby and Germann tallied for the Ramblers.

Providence and Hershey almost had the fans joining in the fray as they battled tooth and nail Saturday. The game was halted while spectators showered the ice with debris in the third period after Captain Wally Kilrea of the Bears had been banished. Later in the period Shill and Starr of Providence and Bruce and Roulston of Hershey were sent off for their part in a free-for-all.

PORKY DUMART

Boston Bruins.

Porky Dumart

When you speak of Woodrow (Porky) or (Woody) Dumart, you almost have to mention three people at once — he, plus, Milt Schmidt plus Bommy Bauer. Together this trio makes up the famous Boston Bruin "Kraut line", one of the most effective attacking units in the N.H.L. Not only do they play on the same line, but they come from the same town (Kitchener), and just about play, sleep, eat and drink together. Porky is the biggest member of the triumvirate, nature having spread better than 200 pounds over his six-foot frame. He is also the least penalized and lowest scoring of the three, although in all departments only a few points separate them. He first played for the Bruins in 1936-37, spending part of that season in the N.H.L. and part in the Canadian-American League. He was up long enough to score four goals, to which he added 13 the next season and 14 last year, his statistical totals up till the start of the current campaign reading: 31 goals, 33 assists for 64 points, plus 10 minutes spent serving penalties. Celebrated his 23rd birthday two days before Christmas. Moved straight from Stratford juniors to pro company. Packs a heavy shot. Scored N.H.L.'s only successful penalty shot last season, got another this year.

McGILL REDMEN ONE GAME AHEAD IN COLLEGE LOOP

U.S. College Teams Not in Same Class as Teams From Canada

QUEEN'S WINS

Kingston College Plasters 10-3 Defeat on Princeton University

United States college hockey apparently still has quite a way to go before it catches up with the game played by Canadian University teams.

The three Canadian teams in the International Intercollegiate League visited three of the United States' representatives in the league Saturday and the gross result in goals was Canadians 25, United States 5.

Broken down these goals represented a 10-3 victory for Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., over Princeton, University of Toronto's 8-2 triumph against Yale and McGill's 7-0 win over Harvard. Toronto, who previously had beaten Princeton, took over first place in the standing, two points ahead of the other Canadian teams.

McGill Redmen, still a strong team although they have lost most of last year's senior, gave evidence they will be hard to dethrone from the championship seat they have held since the league was inaugurated.

Jack Perrin and Tim Dunn scored two goals apiece for the Redmen who counted twice in the first and second periods and three times in the third. Grant Morrison, Cam Dickison and Howie Walker got the others.

Yale's injury-weakened team was no match for the powerful Toronto blues and their ability to hold the Varsity team to eight goals, although missing six players through illness or injury, showed they will be heard from before the season is over.

Dunbar, MacIlquham and Maynard scored two goals apiece for Toronto with Quigley and MacLachlan netting the others. Paul Gillespie counted both bulldog goals unassisted.

Bob Neilson set the pace for the Queen's sharpshooters with three goals and an assist. Princeton held the tricolor to a 3-2 count in the first period but the Canadian attack brought four goals in the second session and three more in the third.

Lane, Hood and N. Williamson scored two goals apiece for Queen's while Mable got the other counter. Wyer, Young and MacCoy scored for Princeton.

Penalty leader in the National league when the last official figures were issued was Wilbert (Dutch) Hiller, ABOVE, small but speedy left wing with New York Rangers. Dutch hardly rates "bad man" classification, but got into a few flare-ups in strenuous games with Canadiens and Americans and accumulated a fair total of 44 minutes in minors, majors and misconducts.

Not a Florida resort publicity beauty and not queen at a skiing carnival, but serving as a reminder that Canadian, American and North American speed-skating championships are just around the corner, is Miss Virginia Jahn, who hails from quaintly-named Teaneck, New Jersey. She is seen after winning the 440-yard event at the Middle Atlantic meet recently.

The good will of local business men towards the Belleville Redmen was well expressed by their practical support with advertising in the new orange-covered souvenir program booklet at Friday night's game. Nearly two hundred advertisers (including a few from Trenton) said with their dollars: "Boys, we are with you."

But there is one angle of this program business that is hard to understand—the printing job was done somewhere far removed from Belleville, or Trenton. Here we have local business men supporting a local hockey team, and the local paper devoting columns to boosting the team and reporting games. But the advertisers' dollars are sent out of town to a printer who probably doesn't care a hoot what happens to the Redmen.

We understand the program was printed on a contract with an outsider who undertook to solicit the advertising. Which would be O.K. if the contract specified that the printing was to be done in Belleville.

The Redmen have a program, but the money which made it possible has ceased to circuate in the territory in which they expect to derive support.

Interscholastic sports in the Bay of Quinte area will strike a new low level this year, there not being a single case of secondary school hockey or basketball competition along the shores of the Bay of Quinte for 1940. The district group of the C.O.S.S.A. met at the Belleville Collegiate on Friday night and we sat in with the various school athletic directors to hear their side of the story. Pete Beach entered a senior Interscholastic boys' hockey team and Napanee Collegiate girls' basketball teams, but no other secondary schools in the district seemed willing to enter Interscholastic sports. Mr. Laughlin, of the B.C.I. & V.S., stated his school pucksters were all playing hockey in the City Juvenile League and he did not feel the individual player could justify himself by playing with two clubs in one season. Out in the Trent Valley district Tweed, Marmora and Stirling will compete in a senior Interscholastic hockey schedule, however.

Practically all of the mentors of Interscholastic sports from the smaller centres, such as Trenton and Picton, were non-committal during the meeting, which prompted us to feel that these smaller schools feel they cannot expect to cope with the larger educational institutions in competitive sports, which doubtless may have its merits. Commenting upon the matter Coach Beach of Albert College said — "Perhaps we have arrived at the time where we should sponsor junior school sports only, that is to say boys under 17 years of age. By doing so it may just happen that the smaller schools in our district could muster sufficient strength among the student body of this group." In many secondary schools today inter-form sports are being sponsored, which naturally gives more children the opportunity of participation. Frankly it seems too bad to see competitive school sports dropped because it is in the schools that the boys learn the fundamental principles of sports to prepare them for competition in the higher brackets.

Apparently Coach Ross Burtt, of the Trenton juniors, has mustered together a strong team of junior pucksters for his 1940 squad. Last season the Trenton kids proved strong opposition for the local "Quintes", but lost several of their stars such as Inglis, Johnson and Orser, but Coach Burtt's rejuvenated charges beat Picton 3-1 last Friday and the best "Toots" Holway's kids could do was eke out a 4-2 win over the Prince Edward County kids. Tonight at the Hume Arena, however, the true test will be made when the Trenton kids make their initial appearance of the season versus the Belleville "Quintes." The winner of tonight's tussle will assume complete command of the group leadership and knowing the old Trenton-Belleville hockey rivalry it would be folly to pass up tonight's junior game.

Do you remember when—Frank Chance signed a $25,000 three-year contract to manage New York Americans now the Yankees, 27 years ago today. Member of the still - famous Tinker-to-Evans-to-Chance Chicago Cubs combination, Chance piloted the Yankees in 1913-14, and was succeeded by Bill Donovan.

Did you know that—War clauses are entering the baseball picture. The contract between the Cedar Rapids club of the Three-I-League and the Board of Education, which owns Hill Park, for the lease of the field, provides that in case of war involving the United States, the agreement can be voided.

A local hockey fan approached us at the Hume Arena on Friday night with the following blast— "You are blasting the public because they don't attend and encourage the City Juvenile Hockey League games, but what about the parents and relatives of the boys participating? If they all attended and took an interest in their off-springs there'd be enough people in the rink to give encouragement." To which we must add an "amen."

Sport Spice — The R.C.A. "Gunners," who played earlier this season in the Van Horne Memorial, are playing two games of hockey in England this week ....Queen's beat the St. Nicholas H.C. in New York City over the week end by a 8-1 score...... The "Tri-Color" had beaten Princeton the previous night....Don White, Simcoe centrefielder, will get a trial wit hthe Rochester Red Wings trial with the Rochester Red Wings Think nothing of the present cold snap, for remember the major leaguers will be treking southward in another month....The Rangers continue to lead the N.H.L., even if the Leafs did win Saturday.... The Bruins are now tied with the Leafs for first place, having beat the Amerks 6-2 last night.... If the Napanee entry is accepted into the O.H.A. in place of the Signallers, the Gibbardville boys will meet the Air Force "Bees" Wednesday here.

BREAKIN ON PREMISES OF SOFT DRINK FIRM

Robbers entered the premises of the Foy and Irwin Bottling Company, Pinnacle St., over the week-end and after ransacking the office, apparently seeking cash, escaped, taking with them a small quantity of Excise stamps.

The breakin was discovered by P. C. Ellis while patrolling his beat. Mr. Bruce Bottum, proprietor of the establishment, was notified and upon further investigation it was disclosed that entrance was made by means of prying open a side door. The cash drawer and office furnishings were all ransacked indicating that cash was the object of the breakin. All cash had been removed from the premises upon closing, Mr. Bottum told the constable.

NEW YORK PAPERS ON BRITISH SHAKE-UP

New York, Jan. 8 (CP)—The New York Herald Tribune discussing editorially the resignation of Leslie HoreBelisha as British Secretary for War, says today the shock Prime Minister Chamberlain "has managed to administer to his people" has given rise "to a maximum of dramatic suspicion."

'Is there a controversy between the army and the airforce?" asked the newspaper. "Have the 'colonel blimps' arisen in revolt to destroy Mr. Hore-Belisha because of his Jewish ancestry, his socially undistinglished antecedents, his assaults upon the 'old school tie' and the comfortable inefficiences of the caste system it symbolizes?

"Are the soldiers sabotaging civilian control? Are they thristing for the glory (and the bloodshed) of 'big offensives' from which Mr. Hore-Belisha, known to have been deeply imbued with the theories of the Liddell-Hart 'defensive' school, would save the rank and file?

"Such public questioning are no help in war time, and one cannot help feeling that the manner of the war minister's departure is another example of that curious ineptitude which seems fated to dog the Chamberlain statesmanship and which may yet hasten Mr. Chamberlain's own departure.

The Times confined itself to discussing the appointment of Sir John Reith, Chairman of British Overseas Airways, as Minister of information succeeding Lord MacMillan.

"The Ministry of Information was misconceived, misshapen and mishandled; it will be his job to make it work," said the newspaper. ". . . Sir John is not the man to cringe before an Admiral or a General. He should be able to argue on even terms with the most formidable of the brass hats.

"The results are unpredictable, but one can be fairly sure of this: the fur will fly before long."

Prime Minister Chamberlain made a sensational and unexpected change in his cabinet as he relieved Leslie Hore-Belisha of his portfolio of war minister and appointed Oliver Stanley to fill this important post. Mr. Hore-Belisha was offered the post of president of the board of trade but refused to accept it. At the same time Lord MacMillan was replaced as minister of information by Sir John Reith, formerly director-general of the British Broadcasting Company. Sir Andrew Duncan was appointed to fill the post of president of the board of trade.

COMMANDER OF CANADIAN FORCES IN ENGLAND

Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian forces in England, was in rare good humor when this excellent photograph was taken in England as he talked with other officers at the military depot where the Dominion's expeditionary forces are undergoing further training. The officer at the right is Lieutenant J. N. S. Buchan, son of Lord Tweedsmuir.

CANADIAN AIRCRAFT FACTORIES SPEEDING PRODUCTION TO MEET INCREASED DEMAND

While the Royal Air Force continues to prove its superiority in battle against the air force of rotund Herman Goering, Canadian aircraft factories are working at top speed to produce the many airplanes needed for the army of aviators to be trained in Canada under the empire air training scheme. These scenes, taken at one of the DeHaviland aircraft manufacturing company's plants, are typical scenes in a score of other aircraft factories across the Dominion. These men and women are busily engaged in turning out Tiger Moths for training purposes. In the near future a new ship will roll out of this factory each day.

STILL MORE

Censorship Criticized

News censorship has been criticised widely since the outbreak of the war, when Admiral Usborne assumed his post. Although he had a distinguished naval record Admiral Usborne was believed to have proved too deeply trained in the navy's traditional silence to administer a liberal censorship.

Sir Walter, noted barrister and friend and adviser of the Duke of Windsor, is known, on the other hand, to hold the view that censorship is necessary only for the most urgent security reasons.

There was general agreement that the real reasons for the unexpected resignation Friday of the War Secretary who had extensively remodelled the British army would be aired in Parliament, with a statement by Mr. Hore-Belisha and a reply by the Prime Minister.

Resignation Still Mystery

With all its unanswered questions —about prejudice, intrigue and army caste—the resignation remained the centre of a political tempest. Some members of parliament talked of a secret session to discuss the matter.

Arranged for Good-byes

Mr. Hore-Belisha arranged for last good-byes today to the office he had occupied since 1937. This is the first working day for the new ministers named in the shake-up: War Secretary Oliver Stanley, former president of the Board of Trade; his successor, Sir Andrew Rae Duncan and Sir John Reith, who replaced Lord MacMillan, Minister of Information.

Newest theory concerning the resignation of the war secretary was advanced by the Daily Express which said he may have quarrelled with Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, over announcement of the arrival of Canadian troops in England.

The Express political commentator, Guy Eden, reminded his readers that Mr. Churchill made known the arrival of the First Canadian contingent during a broadcast, and said he may have done so before the war office wished it announced.

Scheduled 24 Hours Later

Announcement of the news had been scheduled for 24 hours after Mr. Churchill made his broadcast.

The memory of Sir Arthur Currie Commander of the Canadian forces in the first Great War, as a civilian who succeeded where conventional brass hats had failed, was evoked by The Daily Herald.

Hauen Swaffer, political commentator of the Herald, criticized Prime Minister Chamberlain for what he claimed was bowing to pressure of the generals against Mr. Hore-Belisha.

Soldiers from the Dominion found to their disgust that the old gang is on top again, Swaffer said.

He went on: "Canadians remember how in the last do their Chief General, Sir Arthur Currie, who had been a mere real estate agent, had succeeded where conventional brass hats had failed."

Must Give Frank Explanation

The press association declared the government must give "a frank explanation" to "allay an unpleasant feeling that something unusual has happened in British politics."

The agceny said that in a final interview between the Prime Minister and the former War Secretary, Mr. Chamberlain offered him the Presidency of the Board of Trade "and could not understand why he declined."

Mr. Chamberlain, it said, praised Mr. Hore-Belisha and told him "he could have no word of criticism against him, but said 'there is prejudice.'"

Calling the resignation "the first really serious mistake this country has made in the war," the News Chronicle added:—

"It is disturbing enough that the army chiefs and their associates should have been able to exercise such power. It is even more disturbing that they should have deemed it proper to do so at a time when their country is fighting for its life. The fact that the Prime Minister should have given way to pressure of a clique is additional cause for justifiable resentment."

Whale of a Row

The News Chronicle's political writer, A. J. Cummings, wrote that "there is going to be a whale of a row over this unsavory business. The part Mr. Chamberlain played in the intrigue against the War Minister reflects no credit on his high office."

The Daily Mirror attacked the government "dope press" for what it saw as attempts to smooth over the situation and demanded answers to a dozen questions on the resignation. It concluded:—

"Failing an explanation we repeat that the government has dealt itself a staggering blow. It has relapsed with a thud lower into the morass of its mediocrity."

The Times, however, rejected any notion that Mr. Hore-Belisha's retirement was the result of fraction between him and army officers.

Engaged in Struggle

"It would be unfortunate, apart from being manifestly wide of the facts if the facts of Mr. Hore-Belisha's resignation were really to become stereotyped as the outcome of a quarrel between the civilian head of the War Office and 'the Generals'," the paper said.

"To a far greater extent than in 1914 the whole population is engaged in a titanic military struggle. There is no question of a clean-cut division between soldiers and civilians. Nor is there any longer the slightest doubt about the quarter in which the ultimate responsibility for great decisions must lie."

Recalling that the former Secretary himself promoted Viscount Gort to be his first chief of the General Staff, transferred him later to the command of the British Expeditionary Force and named Sir Edmund Ironside to succeed him, The Times declares: "It is absurd to suppose that the army as a whole is not profoundly grateful to Mr. Hore-Belisha for clearing the channels, absurd to suppose that the men who profited by the clearance bear him any personal gridge, most absurd of all to suppose that there is anything but warm approval for what is called democratization of the fighting forces in the sense of quicker and more extensive recognition of qualities of leadership in the rank and file.

Cumulative Series

"Not a word of doubt on this point has been heard in any single quarter, civilian or military. A far simpler and more natural explanation, particularly to those who have been brought into daily contact with the late War Secretary's expansive nature, is that a cumulative series of minor personal frictions—one of them, as we are assured on both sides, in any way connected with the policy of conducting the war—had gradually driven the Prime Minister to the conclusion that a change at home would make for smoother working both in the department and the cabinet.

TWO TORPEDOES FIRED AT VESSEL

Passengers Tell of Two-Hour Battle With German Submarine

Rio De Janeiro, Jan. 8 —(AP)— A gun fight between the 14,172-ton British liner Highland Patriot and a German submarine off the Canary Islands on Dec. 29 was disclosed today with the Royal Mail liner's arrival here.

Officers and passengers agreed that the Highland Patriot was not hit and that the submarine, although probably also not hit, fled after a two-hour scrap.

Passengers asserted that one passenger died from injuries received in a crush aboard ship during the fight but official British sources denied there had been any death.

Passengers said the submarine fired two torpedoes at the liner, missing her.

Only Used Deck Gun

Officers however, said the submarine only used a deck gun. They said it would have been impossible for the U-boat to fire any torpedoes because she was astern, but that she did fire a gun—a three or four-incher—at the liner.

The liner's guns, described as "defensive armament" and consisting of one six-incher mounted astern and an anti-aircraft gun, were manned by the crew as soon as the submarine appeared.

After the fight the submarine submerged and disappeared.

The Highland Patriot runs regularly between Liverpool and Buenos Aires. The fight occurred shortly after she sailed from Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

POLICE COURT

William McVeigh, a transient, who was arrested near the Canadian National Railways and found in possession of a bottle of native wine last week, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K. C., in today's city police court charged with the illegal consuming of spirits in a public place, contrary to the L.C.A. McVeigh pleaded guilty as charged and was given a 14-day jail term in default of the payment of a fine levied.

"I have prospects of a job in Campbellford, you see I'm a weaver by trade," stated McVeigh and he asked to have his sentence date from the time of his arrest. "That's queer, when you were arrested you told me you were a painter by trade," interrupted Chief Kidd. His Worship dated the sentence back to the time of arrest.

"This charge of vagrancy against John Townsend, transient, will have to be dismissed as this man was found to be mentally ill," explained Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K. C., when the former failed to answer to his name.

Roy Thompson, who was convicted of shoplifting in a previous court, was allowed his continued liberty on probation, despite the fact the accused was not present. "Notify his parents this lad is on probation," order His Worship.

Two other persons appeared on charges of violations of the L.C.A. and were dealt with accordingly.

Egg Prices Firmer, Butter Down

Toronto, Jan. 8—Eggs were slightly firmer on the Toronto open produce market Saturday. With trading almost at a standstill, butter eased slightly.

Receipts of eggs were light and cleared easily. Improved inquiry gave the market a steadier undertone, and A-large eggs in the graded section firmed to 23c doz. Other egg prices stayed steady.

There was hardly enough trading in butter to establish actual prices. With buyers showing little interest in offerings, only a few odd lots were sold. First-grade Ontario creamery solids were traded at 27 3-4c, but most brokers were asking 28c at closing time. Receipts were light, and there was no real pressure on holders to sell.

Preliminary stock figures for the nine principal cities in Canada, issued Wednesday afternoon, were partly responsible for the decline. According to the report stocks in the nine cities at Jan. 1 this year totalled 29,746,874 pounds, almost unchanged from last year when 29,971,243 pounds were in storage in these cities. It is feared that the statistical position will get worse rather than improve over the next few months, for last year during the first three months, exports averaged about 2 million pounds a month, while this year, few shipments are anticipated. Many in the trade, however, disregard the statistical position and feel that the war situation is bound to take care of any apparent surplus.

ONTARIO

Pursuant to the provisions of the Mining Tax Act (Chap. 28, R.S.O. 1937), the following list is published of mining locations, mining claims, and mining rights, in respect of which taxes imposed by the said Act are more than two years in default, and notice is hereby given that unless the amount due as shown on the said list shall have been paid on or before June 30th, 1940, the property in respect of which the taxes so remain unpaid shall on the day following the above date become forfeited to and revested in the Crown.

In the arrangement of the list, lands are given in the judicial district in which they are situated, commencing from the west, and in each district the lots in townships are placed first and in alphabetical order, according to the townships; then follow the locations or claims not originally in surveyed territory, also alphabetically arranged and in sequence. Owners of property thus advertised are advised that extra costs are incurred if payment is delayed beyond February 29th, 1940, as the Act requires an additional notice to owners of claims on which the taxes have not been paid by this time for which there is a statutory charge.

Communications regarding this matter should be addressed to A. C. Young, Mine Assessor, Department of Mines, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

RICHARD CASEY GOES TO U.S.

Australia's Minister of Supply Appointed as Minister to U.S.

Washington, Jan. 8 —(AP)—Two governments with active interests in the Pacific—the United States and Australia—drew closer together today by establishing diplomatic relations.

Australia, hitherto represented in Washington by the British ambassador, announced that its first minister to this country would be Richard G. Casey, Australia's present minister of supply.

President Roosevelt nominated Clarence E. Gauss of Connecticut today to be the first United States minister to Australia.

In turn, the United States will send a minister to Canberra. His selection has not been announced, but officials expect he will be a career diplomat.

The step leaves New Zealand the only British Dominion without its own representation in the United States.

ADVISES SKIING FOR RUSSIANS

'Red Sport' of Moscow Refers to Its Military Importance

Moscow, Jan. 8 —(AP)— Russian youths were urged by the newspaper "Red Sport" today to take up skiing because of its military importance.

(Finnish military dispatches have reported continued successes by ski troops against the Red army since the war started. A Finnish communique yesterday reported 300 Russian ski soldiers were killed when they attempted to emulate Finnish ski operations.)

A Red army communique last night claimed the Russians routed a Finnish detachment in the Petrozavodsk sector, just north of Lake Ladoga, but outside of some patrol and artillery operations on the Karelian Isthmus nothing else "of importance took place at the front."

A leading editorial in Pravda, Communist party organ, today declared: "The Red army and Baltic navy are fighting to safeguard Leningrad and relieve the oppressed Finnish peoples."

The editorial bitterly criticized France and Great Britain asserting the Allies "have not abandoned the hope of breaking the power of our country—but they will never be successful."

In another article, the paper assailed "dirty manoeuvres" by France and Britain at Geneva in obtaining Russia's expulsion from the League of Nations."

GODBOUT ASKS YOUNG FARMERS BE KEPT ON LAND

Gravity of Unemployment Problem in Quebec Makes Necessary the Request He Says

SUSPEND RECRUITING

Montreal, Jan. 8—(CP)—Premier Godbout said today he has asked Dominion authorities to suspend any recruiting campaigns in Quebec rural districts because of the necessity of keeping the province's young farmers on their lands.

The Quebec Premier explained at a press conference that the gravity of province's unemployment problem and the urgency of maintaining agricultural development had prompted his request.

He said young farmers might become soldiers or enlist for other service when they could better help their country by farming. Farmers who did enlist might find themselves at the end of the war without permanent employment and a public burden, he added.

PROPERTY DESTROYED AT SCHOOLHOUSE

Maliciously destroying property, marauders entered the Massassaga school house over the week-end and literally strew text books, ink wells and other articles the length and breadth of the room. The disrupted school room with all its destroyed property was discovered by Mr. Roy Dulmage, teacher, at the Massassaga school section, when he opened the school today.

Provincial Constable W. E. Smith is investigating the break-in and destruction of property today. The school room was completely wrecked, chairs and tables being toppled over, books being thrown at random about the room, while cupboards were broken and smashed beyond repair. There was no money in the class room and authorities are firmly convinced that the destruction was purely of a malicious nature. Today Constable Smith questioned the students of the school, but later stated he was confident, that the scholars had no knowledge of the destruction of the school property. Entrance was made by forcing open the school room door.

MAY EXTEND SYSTEM

London, Jan. 8.—(CP) — Informed source said the rationing system which started for butter, bacon, ham and sugar today may be utimately extended to include clothing and similar articles to conserve raw materials. The conservation would be coupled with a big effort to increase shipbuilding and shipping resources.

Swift Explanation Asked By British Editors on Shake-up

Evening Standard Says Premier's Statement Must be Full, Frank and Open

FOR NATION'S CAUSE

London, Jan. 8 (CP-Cable).—Reports of suspicion and rumor throughout the country over resignation of Leslie Hore-Belisha from the war cabinet crowded the columns of the afternoon press today. Editorial writers demanded that Prime Minister Chamberlain make a swift explanation to satisfy public opinion at home and remove misgivings abroad.

The Evening Standard drew a point parallel with the Biblical story of Mordecai the Jew who refused to raise his hand to Haman outside the gates of the palace of Shushan and was reduced in favor.

'Obeisance to Army Disciple'.

"We are informed that Mr. Chamberlain may tell the House of Commons that Mr. Hore-Belisha refused to make proper obeisance before the traditions of army discipline," the Evening Standard added. "The prime minister's account must be full, frank and open, for only by such means can damage to the nations cause be avoided.

The Star said the most disquieting feature of the resignation was the widespread report that it was due to the pressure of social circles.

Rumor Blames Social Aides.

"We wonder if those 'social circles' that engaged in the whispering campaign overlap those circles that feted von Ribbentrop (Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Secretary and former Ambassador to Great Britain) and gave him so false an idea of British life.

"We are struggling to protect our standards and create out of the present chaos a nobler world. In such a crisis the pressure of social influences is at best frivolous and irrelevant.

Express Says Public Wants Proof.

The Daily Express said the public would "not be satisfied" with anything less than proof from Mr. Churchill that the war secretary's "dismissal" meant the war would be conducted with greater efficiency and bring victory closer.

The paper said support for Mr. Hore-Belisha was general and asked, "If the minister must go, do all other members of the government desire to stay "

In its news columns the Daily Express said the Trades Union Congress will withdraw its cooperation with the government unless Mr. Chamberlain assures the country that the appointment of Oliver Stanley to succeed the resigned minister means there is to be no cessation in Mr. Hore-Belisha's program of reform for the army.

The paper also reported that 32 National Liberal Members of Parliament will ask their leader, Sir John Simon, to obtain a promise from Mr. Chamberlain that their proportion of ministerial posts will be restored at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Hore-Belisha was a National Liberal.

COL. FRASER HUNTER REJOINS THE ARMY

Season's Lowest Temperature Recorded on Sunday Morning

Mercury Drops to 22.5 Degrees Below Zero—26 Below at C.N.R. Station

MILDER LAST NIGHT

Jack Frost's sudden sortie from the icy regions of the north sent thermometers plummeting downwards to a new seasonal low on Sunday morning and kept residents of the city and district close to furnace and stove, in a temperature that was anything but reminiscent of balmy summer weather.

First intimation of the brief cold snap came early Saturday evening when the mercury suddenly shifted downward to eight degrees below zero. It continued to fall, until at six o'clock Sunday morning it stood at 22.5 below the zero mark, according to City Fitration Plant officials.

Shortly after Old Sol thrust a pink tip over the eastern horizon, temperatures started to rise and at one o'clock yesterday afternoon the mercury stood at one above zero. Last night temperatures dropped somewhat but during the early hours of the morning the severe cold began to disappear and thermometers registered 4.3 above zero on Filtration Plant thermometers.

Canadian National Railway officials stated today that thermometers at the station registered 26 degrees below zero yesterday morning.

REINFORCEMENTS ARE SOUGHT FOR DEPOT UNITS

First of Three Initial Training Schools Under Empire Plan is Being Prepared

SCHOOL AT TORONTO

Ottawa, Jan. 8.— (CP) —Doors of recruiting officers swing open again today and the first of thousands of young Canadians who will don the King's uniform in 1940 will be enrolled.

Over the week-end the National Defence department announced recruiting of reinforcements for units in the Canadian Active Service force would start Monday and that the first of three initial training schools under the British Commonwealth Air Training plan is being prepared for occupancy at Toronto.

As the C.A.S.F. is based on the non-permanent active militia and the units mobilized for it from the militia are to retain their identity, recruiting of reinforcements will be done through the depots left behind by each of the units now overseas.

Some units in the Second Division which remains in Canada had not received full war strength when the order to stop recruiting was issued in November. These may now be brought up to strength. Other units in the Second Division, however, are somewhat over strength.

Initial Air Training Schools

In the three initial Air Training Schools close attention will be paid to the adaptabilities of the men in training for at the end of the four-weeks' course a selection must be made. Some may be directed into non-flying branches of the Air force.

Some will be chosen to proceed to the Air Observer Schools for training, others will be sent to bombing and gunners schools for instruction while those likely to make good pilots will proceed to the elementary flying schools to learn to fly.

The opening of the Toronto School, for which no date has been yet announced will set the commonwealth training plan in movement.

HARDY CAPTAIN MAY SURVIVE

George Skinner, Victim of Shipwreck and Exposure, Has Chance of Recovery

Vancouver, Jan. 8.—(CP)—Captain George Skinner, hardy middle-aged veteran of the Canadian Pacific Coast fishing fleet, was given a chance of recovery today after passing through a shipwreck and three weeks of starvation and exposure.

Captain Skinner, whose fish-packer Great Northern No. 5 was driven ashore on an isolated stretch of Vancouver Island in a pre-Christmas gale, now is in hospital at Port Alice, pulp mill settlement at the head of Quatsino Sound.

His physician said that "with rest, nursing and proper food, he has a chance for recovery".

Captain Skinner and his two-man crew—his son, Hugh, and Engineer Ted Barnard—were given up for lost when they failed to report after their craft encountered a heavy blow in stormy Quatsino Sound, on the north end of Vancouver Island.

Barnard was swept overboard and drowned. His son Hugh was sighted by searching airplane as he trudged along the rocky shore in quest of help. Hugh was brought to Vancouver two weeks ago and has been in the hospital since. Two of his toes have been amputated.

POPE SEES PEACE 'FORLORN, SOLITARY'

Vatican City, Jan. 8 (CP-Havas) —Pope Pius, addressing members of the Vatican nobility and patriarchate today, pictured peace as a figure wandering "forlornly and solitary" in "dark and deserted paths."

The Pontiff said "men of the new and old worlds seek her, anxious to bring her back among men by fair, solid and durable means and to prepare, in a fraternal and understanding effort, for the arduous task of reconstruction."

'Guy', 'Guess', 'Gee' and 'Swell' Canadian Soldiers' Staple Words

English Writers List Most Used Words of C.A.S.F. —R.A.F. Also Have Fine Line of Slang

LIKE TO USE FRENCH

London, Jan. 8 (CP Cable)—"Guy," "guess," "gee," and "swell" are staple words in the conversation of the Canadian soldier, it would seem from a survey of interviews with members of the Canadian Active Service Force in some British newspapers.

Writers here are taking a friendly poke in reply to those trans-Atlantic cracks at the Englishmans alleged partiality for "cheerio" and "oh really."

A press Association story featured today shows the Canucks impressed not so much by the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey—"they merely look like they do in the movies"—as by Londoners' good manners. One Canadian was reported as saying:

"Gee, guess I never had so many 'I'm so sorrys' in my life."

'Wizard' Overworked Word

(By GODFREY ANDERSON)

With the R.A.F. in France, Jan. 7 (AP)—The R.A.F. in France has its own language. Each squadron, in fact, constantly produces new words of local origin in addition to the more general service slang. And French words are creeping in.

The most overworked word of all is "wizard." Anything or any piece of work can be "wizard" or "wizardly" and the opposite of that is "punk."

If you hear one pilot tell another: "You've put up a fine black, you'd better get cracking or you'll be brassed off," it simply means: "You've made a fine mess of things, you'd better run along before you get told off by the commanding officer."

Good flying; indeed, good work of any kind, is always a "damned fine show." That is, of course, when it isn't "wizard."

"What's the latest gen on when the balloon goes up?" is in B.B.C. English, "What's the latest news on when the war will start?"

Low flying or stunting near the rooftops is called "shooting up houses," while planes which drop pamphlets over Germany carry "confetti."

Here is how the French influence grows among the squadrons:

An officer will telephone his chief and begin the conversation with great fluency, but some slight inaccuracies of accent: "Bon jour, mon Capitaine. Comment allez vous?"

The senior officer will reply in French until his limited vocabulary is exhausted, then cut things short with a curt:

"Termine. Fini. Hell, can't you see I'm busy?"

One mess has tried valiantly to cut short the inflow of French words by instituting a "wincing school." Any one who fails to wince when phrases like "en principe" or "amour propre" are slipped into the conversation has to pay a franc fine, which goes into a special fund to provide extra drinks for the mess on Saturday nights.

One last peculiarity of the R.A.F. language is that, like the army, it makes great use of initials.

A.O.C. stands for Air Officer Commanding, A.P.M. for Assistant Provost Marshal, P.M.O. for Principal Medical Officer, P.A. for personal assistant (or A.D.C.) and so on.

They tell a story out here of a certain Flight Lieutenant with a rather grand manner.

Lifting the phone for the one hundredth time in his office one day he announced pompously:

"This is Flight Lieutenant Blank, D.F.C., P.A. to the A.O.S., speaking. Who is that?"

Came a still small voice in reply: "Oh, I'm sorry. I'm simply the A.O.C."

In R.A.F. language the Flight Lieutenant was "pancaked."

CHURCHILL VISITS WESTERN FRONT

Meets Commanding Officers of British and French Armies

(By Bernard Lacoste, Havas Staff Writer)

At B.E.F. Headquarters, "Somewhere in France," Jan. 8—(CP-Havas) — Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, arrived here today and met commanding officers of the British and French armies.

Mr. Churchill was accompanied by General Sir Edmund Ironside, Chief of the Imperial General staff. Viscount Gort, Commander of the Expeditionary Force, welcomed them to G.H.Q.

To luncheon came General Gamelin, the Allied commander-in-chief, and General Alphonse Georges, Commander of the French Armies in the Field.

General Gamelin conferred upon Lord Gort and General Ironside the insignia of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor. Military honors were paid by a detachment of Zouaves and a British Guard Regiment.

The First Lord of the Admiralty yesterday visited R.A.F. headquarters in France.

'Mountie' Finds His 'Missing' Car In Local Garage

Constable Edward C. Sennema, of the local detachment of the R.C.M.P. was quite certain yesterday that his automobile had been stolen. The officer parked his motor car on Market St., adjacent to the local R.C.M.P. headquarters, late last week, but the vehicle was found to be missing yesterday.

Constable Sennema immediately notified city police officials, who in turn merely informed the "Mountie" that his car had been removed from the market square by market officials on Saturday as it was parked in a market restricted area. Constable Sennema, who recently came to Belleville from Brockville was confronted with a garage towing bill before he could get his motor car from a nearby garage, to where it had been towed.

FRENCH DEPUTIES MEET TUESDAY

Will Hold General Discussion on Conduct of Conflict

Paris, Jan. 8—(CP)—The French Parliament was summoned today to meet tomorrow in its first ordinary session of the war for a general debate on Premier Daladier's conduct of the conflict.

Daladier called the cabinet for a session tomorrow morning preceding Parliament's opening in the afternoon.

Parliament held two extraordinary sessions in 1939 to adopt special war measures and the 1940 budget, but discussion of general policies awaited the first ordinary session.

Mobilized deputies were granted leave to attend.

Eduoard Herriot and Jules Jeanneney were uncontested candidates for re-election as presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, respectively, at the opening session.

Debate will start Thursday with the Socialist group proposing a secret session for dicussion of military affair.

Patrol Activity West of Vosges

This morning's official communique on activities at the front reported the night had been "calm as a whole," except for "patrol activity in the region west of the Vosges."

A heavy blanket of fog yesterday practically barred air operations, although a lone German plane was sent out over eastern France on reconnaissance.

Land operations were featured by the attempt of two German patrols to surprise French outposts in the wooded zone to the west of the Vosges foothills. The attackers used hand grenades, but were easily turned back.

Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, toured Royal Air Force bases in France yesterday and visited the British sector of the front today.

CZECH DOCTOR IS NOW CARPENTER

And Ex-Economic Professor at Prague Becomes Tractor Operator in West

Calgary, Jan. 8—(CP)—A former economics professor at Prague University has become an expert tractor operator and a doctor who graduated from the same college has become a splendid carpenter, Fraser McConnell, supervisor in charge of the sudetin settlement at Tupper, B.C., said here during the week-end in describing ways in which more than 500 Czecho-Slovakian refugees had adapted themselves to their new Canadian homes.

On 20,000 acres of land purchased at request of the Federal Government, these people are finding freedom and happiness as farmers and dairymen, he said.

"The things they like best about Canada are the friendliness of neighboring settlers and the fact that they don't have to report to police for every action," said Mr. McConnell, who is visiting Calgary. Among the colonists are Czechs, Slovaks and Ukrainians.

Among those coming to the settlement last April were the doctor, the professor, glass workers, a violin maker leather workers and cabinet makers. There is a former member of a grand opera troupe from Vienna; an expert ski instructor who owned a large chalet; an ex-member of the German Reichstag whose two daughters were educated in England, a typewriter salesman and a horticulturist from the royal botanical gardens in Vienna.

4 CAR THEFTS YET UNSOLVED

Mysterious Man Dressed in Khaki Believed to Have Mania for Joy-Riding

London, Ont., Jan. 8—(CP)—With four car thefts chalked against him in as many nights, London's khaki-clad phantom was still at large today, in spite of the increased vigilance on the part of police scout car crews.

All the thefts have occurred in east London, the latest on Saturday night opposite the gate of Queen's Park military camp. The auto was recovered several blocks away Sunday morning.

On three occasions the man in uniform has been seen driving away a stolen car, and police now have a good description of him.

All thefts have been successful probably on account of their daring, police point out. The soldier watches for motorists who drive up to stores for purchases. Giving the car owner time to get inside the store door, he steps into the machine and speeds off.

Police can ascribe no other reason for the series of thefts other than that the man in khaki has a mania for joy-riding.

San Quentin, Calif., Jan. 8 (AP)—Gilbert Beesmemyer, 54, who plundered the Guaranty Building and Loan Association of Hollywood of an alleged $8,000,000 and was sentenced to 40 years' imprisonment, goes free on parole today after serving nine years, barring a last-minute hitch.

Prosecutors at Beesmemyer's trial accused him of leaving a trail of want and suicide among the thousands of investors caught in the firm's collapse.

CONELL TREATMENT ONLY ONE PICKED FOR FURTHER PROBE

Toronto, Jan. 8. — (CP) —The Toronto Star said in a newspage story today that the principal recommendation of the Commission appointed to investigate cancer treatments was that the province look further in the treatment discovered and developed by Dr. H. C. Connell, Kingston. The report asks that the legislature set aside funds for the purpose, the Star says.

Of all the so-called "cancer cures" investigated by the Commission, the Connell treatment is the only one picked out by the Commission for further study at the present time, the paper added. The Commission spent two days at the Clinic of Nurse Renee Caissee at Bracebridge, and it also investigated Dr. J. E. Hett's treatment at Kitchener.

Until the session opens the report is surrounded with secrecy. Chairman of the Commission was Mr. Justice Gillanders and the other members are—Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's; Dr. R. E. Valin, of Ottawa; Dr. W. J. Deadman of Hamilton, and Dr. Callahan and Dr. George S. Young, of Toronto.

Joke Backfires on Author When His Friends Leave Him to Walk Home

The story of how a joke "boomeranged" on its author is told by the Peterboro Examiner.

It seems that a party of Otonabee hunters discovered their nimrodic abilities were being checked by the fact that everywhere they searched for fame haunts, they were confronted by "No Hunting" signs.

One of the party, however, had a brilliant idea. Unknown to his fellow hunters, he looked up a farmer friend and secured permission to hunt on his "forbidden" property There was a condition however. The farmer, it appears, had an aged horse, that had to be destroyed. Not having the "heart," to do it himself, he requested his friend, in return for the favor of allowing him to hunt on his property, to despatch Dobbin. The friend consented and hurried away to notify his companions of the available hunting ground, but refrained from mentioning the bargain he had concluded.

For upwards of three hours the hunters roamed the property but nary a sign of animal did they see.

Disgusted, the hunters returned to their car. Then the hunter who had made the bargain with the farmer spying a horse in a nearby field, declared to his friends and the world in general that he was "not going home without a shot at something" suddenly raised his rifle, fired, and Dobbin crumpled to the ground a lifeless heap.

And right here the joke backfired. His friends horrified at what he had done, suddenly ran for the car, jumped in and drove away, leaving the jokester alone with his "kill" and the prospect of walking many weary miles homeward.

SLEDGE-HAMMER GANG IS BLAMED

Third Theft of Safe Brings Loot Above $2,000 in 3 Weeks at Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 8 (CP)—Police today blamed the "sledge hammer gang" of safe cracksmen for the theft of a safe containing $800 last night, bringing their total loot since they started operations in Windsor about three weeks ago to more than $2,000.

The Drouillard Provision Company store here was the latest to suffer at the hands of the gang. Officials of the company said that the 300-pound safe was removed from the living quarters of Mike Staruck, the proprietor, at the rear of the store while he was out during the night.

The strong box has not yet been recovered. The rear door was jimmied and the safe carried out through that entrance. Tracks in the newly-fallen snow revealed to police that the marauders had a car waiting for them in an alley at the rear of the building.

The theft last night was the fifth time the "sledge hammer gang" had struck successfully, breaking open or carrying off safes on previous occasions. On two other attempts during the last three weeks, their efforts were in vain.

STEPS ARE TAKEN TO AVOID SABOTAGE AT BOULDER DAM

Washington, Jan. 8—(AP)—The United States Justice Department said today it had recommended that steps be taken to "avoid sabotage" at the giant Boulder Dam near Las Vegas, Nev.

The recommendation, it said, followed a survey by the Federal Bureau of Investigation "sometime ago," in which "no evidence of sabotage" was found. Recently the Reclamation Bureau placed restrictions on travel near the dam.

A state department official said meanwhile that his agency had passed on to the F.B.I. last month a rumor that a plot had been organized to blow up the huge federal project.

Citizens of an unnamed foreign country were rumored to have been involved.

URGES BAN ON SALE OF AMMUNITION TO TEEN-AGE YOUNGSTERS

Toronto, Jan. 8—(CP) — Chief Constable Robert Alexander will be requested by Silverthorn residents today to ban township storekeepers from selling ammunition to teen-aged youngsters.

This action followed the accidental shooting of 17-year-old Sam Gray yesterday in the Black Creek Valley. The lad is in hospital with a wound in his hip.

Within the last few years several children have been accidentally shot with ammunition bought by juveniles in stores in Toronto and York Township.

MUNICIPAL LOAD REDUCED, SAYS PREMIER HEPBURN

Answers W. E. N. Sinclair's Charge Municipalities Being 'Fettered'

2-YEAR TERM

Toronto, Jan. 8 (CP) — The old feud between Premier Mitchell Hepburn and W. E. N. Sinclair, one-time Ontario Liberal leader, has been freshened up a little as a result of Mr. Sinclair's charge last week that the province was "fettering" municipalities.

"I had kind of forgotten that man," the premier remarked today. "I don't like to speak disrespectfully of the politically dead but if ever municipalities have been relieved this government has done it by subsidies and assuming the cost of social services. For the first time in many years there has been a sharp decrease in municipal debt and a corresponding reduction in municipal taxation."

And with respect to Mr. Sinclair's criticism of the two year council term proposal the premier said, "whatever may be said against it is a fact that the two year term would save a half million dollars in election costs every two years."

POLICE PROBE IS BROADCAST

Four Windsor Men Arrested Early Sunday in Vicinity of Theatre

Windsor, Ont., Jan. 8.— (CP)—Police investigation broadened today in the case of four Windsor men arrested early Sunday morning in the vicinity of a theatre as the discovery was made that one of the revolvers in their possession was stolen from the Provincial Bank of Canada branch at Stoney point.

The revolver was taken when the bank branch was held up by four armed men last August. Shotgun pellets found in the heads of two of the men arrested during the week-end also reopened another investigation into the gang of safecrackers who escaped through a hail of shot fired by Police Chief Cecil Babcock of Kingsville. Babcock surprised a gang at the Conklin Planing Mill and they fled in a running gunfight during which the Police Chief said about 25 shots were fired.

Chief Babcock was confident he had wounded at least one member of the gang. A hat riddled with shot holes and soaked in blood support- e dhisohptocpsapd ed his contention. One of the four men arrested here was found to be wearing a new hat, and his initials are the same as those in the hat found by the Kingsville Chief.

Violation of Scandinavian Neutrality Would Mean War

Press Replies to German Allegation Allies Using Aid to Finns as Excuse to Gain Foothold to Attack Germany

STRICT NEUTRALITY

Copenhagen, Jan. 8 (AP).—Sections of the Scandinavian press declared today at any attempt to violate the neutrality of Sweden, Denmark and Norway would mean a fight.

This was the newspapers' response to German press allegations that Great Britain and France are using aid to Finland as an excuse to gain a Scandinavian foothold for an attack on Germany—allegations which neutral observers saw as a move to intimate the Scandinavian neutrals against helping their invaded neighbor.

The Berlin papers also had cautioned northern neutrals against providing transport facilities for allied war materials consigned to Finland. Through Scandinavia passes the main line for shipment of war materials to Finland.

Finland's success in holding off the Soviet Russian invasion has heightened the anxiety of Scandinavians, because with the lengthening of the conflict, pressure for outside aid has been increasing. German hostility toward Scandinavian participation in League of Nations collaboration on assistance to the Finns has added fresh fears.

No Bases For Foreign Troops.

The Norwegian newspaper Aftenposten declared it "obvious that Sweden and Norway by no means intend to hand over bases to foreign troops. Any attempts in this direction would be repulsed — if necessary, with arms."

The Swedish stand is that the desire to help the Finns necessitates strictest technical neutrality, because if Sweden were dragged into the continental conflict, she would have to concentrate entirely on her own defence—not Finland's.

The Copenhagen newspaper Politiken which often expresses the views of the Danish foreign minister, Peter Munch, asserted the only way a western power might get Scandinavian military bases would be by "violence".

Politiken when added such violence is not a likely choice for nations whose declared aim is to end violence and threats of violence and, on the other hand, "there are no reasonable grounds for believing Germany wants to drag Scandinavia into the war."

Says Campaign Is "Smoke Screen".

London, Jan. 8 (CP).—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Express reported today that the Scandinavian countries have received "definite, unofficial" assurances from Berlin that the bitter Nazi press campaign against them merely is a blind to camouflage aims in other directions.

"Adolf Hitler's press campaign against Scandinavia has reached such a violent pitch that political circles here are beginning to regard it as a smoke screen put out by the German government to hide their real intentions," the dispatch said.

Effects of the "smoke screen" would be to cover up secret German aid for Finland while convincing Russia that Germany is supporting her war against Finland; to prevent news of inteernal disputes from leaking out, and to cover up Hitler's preparations for German action in the west or in the Balkans, against Rumania particularly, the paper said.

BRITISH AID TO FINLAND NO MERE FORMALITY

Likely to Extend Rationing System To Other Products

Wool and Cotton Will be Rationed Eventually to Release Shipping for War Essentials

ACCELERATES PROGRAM

New Ministry of Imperial Defence May be Created With Churchill as Coordinator of Army, Navy and Air Force

London, Jan. 9 (CP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain prepared to go before the microphone today to impress upon the public the need for continued war sacrifices.

The prime minister's broadcast, first in a series by cabinet members, came as the public adjusted itself to the first rationing of commodities since the war started.

Although only butter, bacon, ham and sugar came under the rationing system yesterday, its extension to other products was expected to follow. Wool and cotton probably will be rationed eventually to release shipping for war essentials.

Newspapers carried government advertisements on the theme:

"Every crate of unnecessary things imported means fewer ships to carry food and war supplies—and more money spent abroad."

Accelerates Building Program.

The government already has accelerated the country's ship building program in order to provide more carriers for her overseas trade. There was some talk that Canadian shipyards will get contracts from the London government.

Meanwhile, the public still was puzzled over the resignation of Leslie Hore-Belisha as War Secretary and appointment of Oliver Stanley to that post. However, they had the official assurances that army reorganization effected by Mr. Hore-Belisha will not be impaired.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Window shades and cold weather! Doctor Wells, in his famous essay on dew formation, remarks how he smiled at the gardener's practise of protecting plants from cold by covering them with rather flimsy materials. However, after he had thoroughly investigated how dew is formed and perceived how bodies became colder than the air by simply radiating away their heat, he realized how efficient was the gardener's practise. So it is with window shades. Much interior heat of our houses is lost by radiation through window glass, which may in part be prevented by pulling down the shades. This practise was very general a few years ago.

Earl of Athlone May be Named Governor General

London, Jan. 9—(CP Cable) — The writer of the "talk of the town", a column of gossip in The Daily Sketch, today spoke of the possibility of a member of the Royal Family being appointed Governor General of Canada to succeed Lord Tweedsmuir.

The Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary and a former Governor General of South Africa, was mentioned as a possible choice.

Lord Athlone was appointed Governor General of Canada in 1914, a few weeks before the outbreak of the first Great War. The appointment was cancelled on the outbreak of hostilities to allow the Earl to undertake active service.

Over 3,000 Men Offer to Enlist

Toronto, Jan. 8—(CP)—Enthusiastic recruiting scenes that have not been duplicated since 1914 were witnessed at local armories today as more than 3,000 men answered the call "for a limited number of men."

Recruiting opened again throughout the Dominion yesterday for men to bolster the units already in training and an officer of the 48th Highlanders said that yesterday "we could have recruited a battalion — 800 men — with ease."

This officer said that he was at the recruiting depot in the first two years of the First Great War "and I have seen nothing like yesterday's demonstration since the early months of the Great War."

Leslie Hore-Belisha Surrenders Keys Of Office to King

London, Jan. 9 (CP)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, who resigned Friday as Secretary of State for War, surrendered his seals of office to the King in an audience at Buckingham Palace today.

Stumped only a minute, Arndt loaded the man into a wheelbarrow and trundled him to the jailhouse.

COUNCIL TO ACT ON PETITION TO REDUCE MEMBERS

Committee Meeting Will be Held on Thursday to Discuss Question

NOTICES GIVEN

Ald. Haig Moves That Tax Collector be Appointed for Corporation

Belleville City Council will act on the petition presented by Ex-Ald. Thomas Marshall at the adjourned meeting of council last night in which it was requested, that the council carry out the wishes of the people as expressed in 1937 in having the membership of the council reduced to six which would make for greater efficiency and less expense. A meeting of the council will be held on Thursday night to freely discuss this question and if a decision is arrived at to get the wishes of the ratepayers ratified, a Private Bill will be presented to the Ontario Legislature at the coming session of that body. The majority of the members are in sympathy with the scheme but believe a reduction to six is too big a reduction at the first attempt.

Ex-Ald. Marshall appeared alone before the council and stated that matter. He stated he had sat for seven years in the Belleville Council and knew from experience that the council membership was too large. He told the council that the question referred to the ratepayers for decision at the municipal elections of 1937 was carried by a substantial majority and that a private bill was prepared at some expense to carry out the wishes of the ratepayers but that the Ontario Legislature committee at that time turned down the proposal. He told the members that he had been in correspondence with Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare for Ontario and had been advised to take up a petition to get the matter before the attention of the council

COMMITTEE TO BE REPRESENTATIVE

Personnel of National War Loan Committee Announced by Finance Minister

Ottawa, Jan. 9 —(CP)— More than 225 representative Canadians will act on the National War Loan Committee to sponsor Canada's first war loan of the present conflict, Finance Minister Ralston said today in announcing the committee personnel.

The national unity behind the country's first major war effort on the economic front is symbolized by the wide representation on the Loan Committee, the announcement said.

In addition to Col. Ralston, who will act as Chairman, the committee includes the five former Finance Ministers now living, all nine Provincial treasurers and citizens from all walks of life.

Hon. Charles Dunning, former Finance Minister, will act on the committee and also serve as Chairman of the national Subscription Committee.

Professor Figures Out Beginning Of the Egyptian Solar Calendar

Pittsburgh, Jan. 9 (AP)—A young University of Pittsburgh Professor today claimed a solution to a mystery of Egyptian history.

Dr. Jothan Johnson announced he had figured out the date of the beginning of the Egyptian Solar Calendar at June 18, 3251, B.C. He said this also sets a probable date for the beginning of a written language in Egypt.

For years scientists have tried with archaeological research and astronomical calculations to fit together the pieces of this ancient puzzle. Some insisted the date was 2773 B.C. and another group claimed it was 4229 B.C.

Eight years ago Dr. Johnson went to work to prove both were wrong. Completing pencil and paper calculations, the young professor turned his figures over to officials of the newly installed Buhl Planetarium for a check. The stars were turned back 5,000 years in a 20-hour experiment.

Dr. Johnson had a crushing feeling of disappointment when he first glance at the stars as they were on the date he had fixed. He knew the Egyptian calendar began on a morning when Sirius the Dog Star, then as now the brightest in the sky, appeared over the eastern horizon just before the sun came up. He also knew that on that night, if his calculations were correct, there was a new moon.

Suddenly he realized the Planetarium calculated time according to to the Gregorian Calendar. He used the Julian system. Quickly the professor figured his time was a month off and in less than a second the sky above him was corrected. Then he saw Sirius just above the sun and a thin sliver of a new moon, faintly visible in the western sky.

New Threat of Invasion Of Holland Within 3 Weeks is Predicted

London, Jan. 9 (CP)—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Telegraph predicted today that within the next two or three weeks Holland will be seriously threatened by German invasion as it was last November.

The correspondent said he learned from "a reliable source" that a new German army headquarters had been established at Becklinghausen, about 40 miles from the Dutch frontier.

"Heavy artillery positions have been prepared near the Dutch frontier, particularly in the wedge of German territory which protrudes into Holland in the Kleve district. This artillery is of sufficiently heavy calibre to bombard the city of Utrecht

"New military air fields have been prepared during the last few weeks at various points along the whole Dutch frontier, from Emden to Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle).

"Although it is a serious statement to make, there is every reason to believe that the Germans count, in the event of an attack, on the cooperation of members of the Dutch Nazi party. It is to be hoped they are mistaken."

NATIONAL INCOME OF FINLAND SINKS RAPIDLY

Country Must Have Foreign Credits to Finance Her Defence

QUIET ON FRONT

Helsingfors, Jan. 9 (AP).—Finlond's national income is "sinking rapidly", in the words of Prime Minister Risto Ryti, and she must have foreign credits to finance her defence against Soviet Russia.

Ryti's statement picturing the war time crippling of Finnish export trade was issued last night.

"As a peace-loving nation, we previously have paid little attention to the munitions industry," the prime minister said.

"As a result of this, now that we have been attacked, we must procure arms and munitions on a large scale from abroad. Our exports are sufficient to pay only a part of the expenditure."

With national income "sinking rapidly", the statement went on, "the time has come when foreign credit is essential to us." It added that Finland would meet any new obligations "as faithfully as we have done up to now."

There were scant reports on warfare along the snowbound frontiers with Russia to add to word yesterday that thousands of Russians had been killed and 1,000 captured in destruction of a Russian division, identified as the 44th.

It was the second Red division reported shattered by the Finns within ten days on the central eastern front. Neutral military experts estimate the Russian division at 15,000 to 17,000 men.

A Russian communique told only of scouting activities, artillery duels and sporadic rifle and machine-gun fire after saying, "on Jan. 8, nothing important took place at the front."

WILL NOT APPEAL SENTENCE GIVEN

Attorney General Conant Says Term of 12 Years for Forgery Justified

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant said today there would be no appeal instituted by his department against the 12-year prison term for forgery imposed on Emmanuel Wheatman of St. Catharines.

The apparent severity of the sentence on two forgery charges, concerning $15 cheques, caused Mr. Conant to make an inquiry. Today in a statement announcing his belief the sentence was justified, Mr. Conant said:

"The conduct of the accused was most despicable. He invigled a young man with no previous record into committing crime. He has proven himself to be a menace to society and I think the learned judge was quite right in imposing the sentence he did."

Airdale Lives 24 Days Without Food

Lynbrook, N.Y. Jan. 9.—(AP)—Rusty, an Airdale, lived twenty-four days without food or water.

Inadvertantly locked in the home of the late Arthur Erickson, a bachelor, when Surrogate's representatives searched the place December 13 for a will, it survived with the help of newspapers—for a mass of chewed fragments littered the floor when it was found.

A passerby Leslie Ott, peered through a window and saw the dog stretched on a bed. Police broke in and found the dog had lost about 20 of its 30 pounds.

After breaking the dog's fast, they said Rusty soon would be able to chase cats.

TERRIFIED 'REDS' BY THOUSANDS ROAM WASTES

Rout of Russia's 44th Division Complete in Central Finland

MOPPING UP BEGINS

Cutting of Supply Lines of Russians and Destruction of Kitchens, Factors in Defeat

Copenhagen, Denmark, Jan. 9 (AP).—Dispatches from Finland today declared thousands of terrified Russians, facing death or capture, were aimlessly roaming the bleak region east of Suomussalmi, central Finland, as a result of the Finns' destruction of the Red army's 44th division.

Finnish ski scouts were said to be rounding up the fleeing Russians or annihilating them as the rout continued.

Great numbers were doomed to death in the intense cold, reports said, while others were dying of starvation. Remnants of the Russian 163rd division, which the Finns reported cut to pieces late in December, as well as the 44th were reported being mopped up.

The Finnish victory over the 44th division was attributed in Helsingfors to Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim's instructions for winter fighting in the north country to "hit the Russians in the stomach".

As a result, the Finns were said to have concentrated their attention on disorganizing Russian supply lines and destroying field kitchens. Even the hardiest Russians found their morale slipping as they were forced to fight day after day without warm food, these reports said.

BLAME NO ONE IN RAIL DEATH

Driver of Car and Train Crew Exonerated in Death of Mrs. Feeley

Marmora, Jan. 9 —(Special)— A coroner's jury Monday exonerated both the driver of the car and the train crew in the death of Mrs. Kathleen Feeley of Peterborough, who was instantly killed when the car in which she was a passenger collided with a northbound Canadian National Railways freight train one mile east of Marmora on Highway 7 on Jan. 1.

Mrs. Feeley was travelling to Tweed to attend a New Year's celebration with other members of her family when the accident ocurred. Three others in the car escaped death in the accident, but were confined to the Peterborough General Hospital.

According to the testimony of the driver, Geoffrey Feeley, 271 Romain Avenue, Peterborough, he did not notice the crossing until he was almost on top of it. In an effort to avoid collision Mr. Feeley applied the brakes, but due to the icy condition of the road the car slid on to the tracks in front of the train.

The train crew testified the bell was ringing and the whistle was being blown immediately before approaching the crossing.

Anonymous Advertising Campaign Demands Return of Hore-Belisha

By FRED BACKHOUSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 9—(CP Cable) — Anonymous, expensive press advertisements demanding the return of Leslie Hore-Belisha to the War Cabinet and the revelation that the War Office is investigating the origin of a letter written on official note-paper attacking the former War Secretary intrigued Londoners today.

It was learned that large-scale pro-Belisha advertisements were submitted to a number of national newspapers last night but were rejected because the advertising agency refused to divulge the name of the sponsor.

However, a half-page advertisement printed by The Evening Standard was headed: "We must have Hore-Belisha." The resigned Minister's services to the state were enumerated in the advertisement.

"You cannot reform and reinvigorate the entire tradition of an army without treading on some people's corns," it added.

Meanwhile War Office officials examined an unsigned letter headed "Call to all loyal Englishmen." It contained a violent attack on Mr. Hore-Belisha and on the Jews.

It was written on War Office note-paper, presumably stolen, and had been widely circulated through the mails. Copies of the letter, which alleges the army, navy and air force are under control of Jews and aliens, are said to have reached army officers.

1940 FATEFUL YEAR

London, Jan. 9 —(CP)— Prime Minister Chamberlain in a militant address to the Empire today declared Britain's aid to Finland "will be no mere formality," and said that events in the war with Germany thus far were "merely preliminary" to the main struggle to come.

"It is only on the sea," he said, "that the war may be said to be in full operation."

The Prime Minister declared that the British-French alliance should become permanent in the interests of "peaceful reconstruction" after the war is over.

1940 Fateful Year

For 55 minutes, he reviewed the progress of the hostilities to date in an address at a Lord Mayor's luncheon at the Mansion House.

It was Mr. Chamberlain's first public appearance of the new year, a year which he said would be a fateful one in the history of the world.

He said the "unbelievable" quiet of the first months of the war could only be interpreted as "the quiet of the calm before the storm."

Speaking of Finland, Mr. Chamberlain said:—

"And now it is the turn of Finland to be attacked by the power (Soviet Russia) with whom Germany made an unholy pact and for whom she sets the example of aggression. Finland is fighting against the forces of unscrupulous violence just as we are ourselves. She is fighting for the same thing, for liberty and for justice.

Aid to Finland Not Merely Formal.

"That valiant people can rest assured that our response to that resolution (for aid to Finland) which has passed so recently at a meeting of the League in Geneva will be no mere formality."

Mr. Chamberlain said bitterly that the leaders of Germany would like

FIRST RECRUITS OF AIR SCHEME TO NUMBER 500

First Training School Will be Opened at Eglington Hunt Club at Toronto

PLAN WORKED OUT

Ottawa, Jan. 9—(CP)—The first batch of Canadian recruits for the British Commonwealth air training plan will number approximately 500. The first initial training school on the property of the former Eglinton Hunt Club, at Toronto will accommodate about that number.

Preparations are going forward for setting the plan in operations and technicians from the Royal and a large group of instructors Air Force will leave for Canada shortly to aid in training pilots, air gunners and observers at the rate of 20,000 to 30,000 a year.

The Department of National Defence is expected to announce further details of the program shortly, including the time schedule for the start of operations at the 67 different schools now being developed.

The plan is arranged to come into operation by stages so that neither weather nor delays in the construction of new flying fields due to a late spring can interfere with the schedule.

The arrival of Australian, New Zealand and British students for service flying training in Canada will be timed to coincide with the availability of training facilities here.

Four Weeks Period

As the initial training period is four weeks and the Toronto school will be the first of three, facilities for elementary flying training, training on observation and air gunnery will be ready to accommodate the first 500 candidates four weeks after they enter that school.

Later as the other two initial training schools open more advanced schools will be ready to carry on the training of the men who complete their initial training in those institutions.

From the initial training schools the men will pass into elementary flying schools, air gunnery schools and observer schools according to their own wishes and their adaptability as shown in the first four weeks of ground training.

For the elementary flying stage to which prospective pilots will pass, arrangements are being made to use some of the facilities of the civilian flying clubs now used for elementary flying training of members of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

There might be an acute shortage of water in the nearby rural districts, but there is a plentitude of weighty cotton-tail rabbits, according to Connie Harris and Arthur Newman, two winter-time nimrods who report exceptionally good luck in this particular sphere of the hunt.

Yesterday, near Jones Creek after an hour's trek through the woods they returned with ten fine specimens of this kind of rabbit. Other journeys to various parts of the district have also resulted in satisfactory bags, the hunters said.

No Blame Attached To Driver of Car

Seven-year-old George "Buddy" Stratton, 120 Dundas St., narrowly escaped what might have been fatal injuries when he ran in front of a motor car while crossing Dundas St. last evening. The lad was knocked unconscious and taken to the Belleville General Hospital where he was attended by Dr. G. H. Stoble. Fortunately no serious injuries resulted, however, and satisfactory improvement in his condition was announced by hospital officials today.

The Stratton lad was attempting to cross Dundas St. to return home when he ran into the path of a motor car driven by Ivan Blackburn, North Park St. Mr. Blackburn tried in vain to avoid the accident and later took the unconscious boy to the hospital. The boy is the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Stratton, 120 Dundas St. Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard investigated the accident and today revealed no charges were deemed necessary as the incident was purely accidental.

Break in Cold Wave Expected by Wednesday

Fluctuating thermometers again dropped to points well below zero last night as Jack Frost renewed his cold wave sorties on the city and district. The mercury registered sixteen degrees below zero at six-thirty o'clock this morning but rose to a point of thirteen below by eight o'clock.

Towards noon, however, temperatures rose to a point well above this figure.

Frigid Temperatures General

Toronto, Jan. 9—(CP)—A cold wave sweeping Ontario will be tempered by tonight, according to the weather forecast which promised milder weather with scattered snowflurries.

The mercury was well below zero in many parts of the province during the night, reaching 13 below at Ottawa and 12 below at London. Some thermometers in the district around Stratford showed 18 below at times and at St. Mary's the unofficial reading was 25 degrees below zero.

'Our Inheritance' is Subject Of Meditation and Intercession

First Service of Week of Prayer Held on Monday Evening

Universal week of prayer, was ushered in on Monday evening at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church by an impressive service of praise, meditation and intercession. Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, conducted the meditations and intercessions and the Rev. W. J. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's, was in charge of the service. There was quite a large attendance. Interest in the services is expected to grow nightly.

The subject of the meditation was "Our Inheritance" and man's responsibility of proving worthy of the inheritance.

In some lands, said Rev. Mr. Payne such privilege as worship is denied and Christianity and the church are not admitted. "We live in the present through the efforts made in times past by men of vision. We may boast of our freedom but we have obtained that through the sacrifices of the past. We must measure up to the duty resting upon us to preserve and enrich with our own experience and sacrifice this heritage and hand it on to those who come after. It is so easy to take things for granted. Sometimes even the Christian religion must be made easy for us in these days.

"The progress of Christianity and of civilization have gone hand in hand. Those who brought the Gospel to our land were men of faith and it has been deeply planted in this day and generation. We must build on the same foundation."

Rev. Mr. Payne referred to the first centuries of the Church of England which have laid the foundations of the present.

"I wonder what this world of ours would be like if we were not indebted to the Church of God", Mr. Payne remarked. "How did our justice and liberty become what they are? Do you know the first parliament was the action of a gathering of men of God? Age by age has been built up Christian civilization. We thank God for these men. National freedom has been won and guarded through the centuries These are the things for which we must be thankful to God.

Solid Foundation

"Let us remember this. There was a time in the history of the Motherland when she was just as old as we are today. There was laid out a great task to be performed and that task was performed.

"We shall think of the long past, the relationship of the present to that past and we must look forward beyond our day to our responsibility to those who come after us."

Mr. Payne then conducted the first intercession of thanksgiving "for the coming of the Gospel to our land, for the faithful disciples in time past and for all who have died in the faith of Christ".

In the second meditation, Rev. Mr. Payne said that "Our Blessed Saviour gave the world the only perfect socialism. If the world would only believe it and live it!

"We find the world is suffering from the very antithesis of what Christ sought, selfishness is at the root of so many ills after two thousand years. What contribution are we making to the kingdom of God, what examples are we showing of loyalty to Him and labor for Him?"

The intercession was that men might be worthy of the inheritance they enjoy.

The choirs of St. Andrew's and St. Thomas' led in the music.

The services in Belleville this week are under the auspices of the Belleville Ministerial Association.

1940 COUNCIL, CITY OFFICIALS ROTARY GUESTS

President Howard Clarke Extends Welcome to Civic Dignitaries

MAYOR FOR ECONOMY

Assurances that city finances are in sound condition and that in all probability the tax rate will be reduced this year were given by Mayor Glencoe Thompson at the Rotary Club luncheon meeting yesterday. The Mayor, members of the 1940 Council and many of the permanent city officials were guests of the club, in accordance with annual custom.

President Howard J. Clarke extended a welcome to the civic dignitaries and told them that their work during the ensuing year would be followed with deep interest by every member of Rotary. Mayor Thompson in reply, paid tribute to the splendid work of his predecessor, Jamieson Bone. He had not always agreed with the proposals of the former mayor, but he knew that such opinions were honestly held and presented.

"During my five years in council I have stood always for sane economy," His Worship declared, "and I am of the opinion that such a stand is more than ever necessary now, on account of the demands created by war conditions."

The Mayor then introduced the members of the City Council and each spoke briefly. Highlights of their remarks follow:

Ald. Harold Armstrong: "We must regard the prosecution of the war as our first duty; meanwhile carefully guarding municipal funds."

Ald. H. J. Clarke: "I have just been retired after 32 years as a public servant of the Province, and I will endeavour to bring to my duties in council the same sense of loyalty"

Ald. Robert Graham: "As 'minister of labor' I expect to be kept busy."

Ald. Bob Pringle: "I'm in favor of democracy and economy."

Ald. Jack Allin: "As chairman of light I won't make light of my job."

Ald. E. O. Butler: "I hope we will work with the same harmony as last year's council." (Cries of "What! No Better than that!")

Ald. Bill Harvey: "I have been twenty-five years in public life and still enjoy it."

Ald. A. M. Kennedy: "I will do my best for the taxpayers."

Ald. Eddie Logan: "We didn't get any new industries last year, but at least we held our own, for we didn't lose any."

Ald. Harry Rollins: "I hope Jimmie Bone is headed for the right place."

Ald. McLean Haig: "The surplus in the sinking fund should be returned to the taxpayers in the form of lower taxes; tax instalments should be increased from two to four per year."

Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone: "We have an excellent staff of hard-working permanent city officials. I am not offended that some of the aldermen did not always agree with me—sometimes I didn't agree with myself."

The ex-mayor was greeted with the chorus: "The Old Grey Mare (Mayor) She Ain't What She Used to Be."

Rotarian L. L. Hicks, chairman of Christmas Cheer and Welfare, reported that 25 well-filled baskets had been distributed to deserving families for Christmas. Rotarian C. J. Symons, chairman of Crippled Children committee, reported that 29 crippled children and adults had been made happy at Christmas. At present the club had two children in the Sick Children's Hospital. During the year one wheel-chair had been provided.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Receive Instructions

Motorcycle patrolmen from all sections of Provincial District No. 8, with headquarters at Belleville, met in the local Provincial Police headquarters detachment here yesterday pursuant to the recent absorption of the Motorcycle Patrol by the O.P.P. The meeting was called by Inspector Gardner, who assumed supervision of the highway patrol following the announcement of the amalgamation by Attorney General Gordon Conant last week.

The local district of motorcycle patrol under Inspector Gardner, includes the counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Peterborough, Haliburton and Victoria. Nine highway patrolmen attended yesterday's conference here to receive new instructions and regulations pertaining to the new system now in vogue. Inspector S. Hunter, who was previously in charge of the Highway Patrol and stationed at Brockville, is now connected with the Belleville headquarters of the O.P.P. under Inspector Gardner.

Employment Officials Believe There May be Shortage of Farm Labor

Despite the fact that over eight hundred employable persons, five hundred of which are men, are registered at the local branch of the Employment Service of Canada, officials today foresaw a serious shortage of farm labor in the Spring.

Governmental announcement that better markets for farm produce would be apparent this year will result in increased production on the part of the farmer, which necessitates extra help it was felt.

Recruiting in the various overseas regiments of the district has depleted farm labor to some extent in the district, and with the possibility that further recruiting would cause another drain on available manpower, officials feel that farmers would be well advised to make an effort to secure whatever help they require before the Spring work starts.

MEMORIAL CHAIR IS DEDICATED AT S. A. CITADEL

Oak Chair With Brass Plate Recalls Death of Two Boys by Drowning Dec. 19th., 1925

BRIG. BYERS OFFICIATES

Memories of a double drowning tragedy that rocked the city and district in 1925 were revived here last night when a handsome oak chair was dedicated in the new Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle street, to the memory of the late Eugene Ellsworth, 10, and Bernard Brown, 9, who lost their lives on Dec. 19 of that year while playing on the ice of the Moira River near the Canadian Pacific Railway Bridge.

The chair was the gift of Brigadier and Mrs. Ellsworth, former heads of the local corps of the Salvation Army, now of Montreal, and parents of Eugene Ellsworth, one of the drowning victims. Bernard Brown was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Brown, formerly of Belleville.

The brief dedicatory service was impressive in its very simplicity. Brigadier W. H. Byers, Toronto Salvationist, conducted the ceremony, and paid tribute to the youths who lost their lives in an unforgettable saga of the Moira River.

For a period of four months the river held its secret. The dead youths remained locked in the ice of the river despite efforts of relatives, city officials and residents of the city to discover the whereabouts of the bodies.

It was on a brilliant December day, just six days previous to Christmas that the two boys took themselves to Victoria Park with toy guns in a spirit of adventure that is known to boys of their age alone. They walked across the railway bridge and climbed down to the ice in the river, an eye-witness of the tragedy told the Ontario Intelligencer last night. Little did they know that the surface of the river at that point was a mass of treacherous anchor ice. They ventured near on open stretch of water along which small pieces of ice were flowing. They aimed their toy guns at the small targets that from time to time presented themselves.

Little did the boys realize their danger as they crept closer to the channel of dark water. Suddenly without warning, young Ellsworth slipped into the stream. A look of horror swept over Brown's face that instantaneously changed into a look of despair as the treacherous ice gave way beneath his feet and both youths were swept into the swiftly flowing water to be carried beneath the ice. Not until April 24, 1926, four months later, did the river give up its dead.

Inscription On Plaque.

On the face of the back part of the chair is a handsome brass plaque bearing the inscription: 'Eugene Ellsworth - Bernard Brown. Suddenly called to Jesus, December 19th, 1925. Presented by Brigadier and Mrs. Ellsworth."

Brigadier Byers gave a highly informative and educational address, following the dedication, on a subject that was a novel departure from the usual sermon. His was the proud boast, he said, that he had not suffered with a cold for the past five years. The remedy was simple, he pointed out, nothing more than good care of the body and the steady administration of daily doses of vaseline.

"I take a spoonful every day of my life," he said, "and I have yet to have an ache or pain or the symptom of a cold."

Germs are in the air everywhere, the speaker pointed out, and if people would not suffer from the ordinary cold they should take the proper steps to see that these germs or microbes did not germinate.

"If you feel a chill coming on," he said, "take a hot bath and stay in it for thirty minutes, then take a cold plunge in order to close the pores of the body."

Brigadier Byers, who is 72 years of age told his congregation that he had not suffered a cold in years. "Look at me," he said, "I feel like a young boy, and all because I take care of my body."

Five Fliers Land Disabled Plane on Atoll Near Nassau

Nassau, Bahamas, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Five Youngstown, O., fliers used a tiny atoll in the Atlantic ocean, 150 miles off the Miami, Fla., coast, for a landing place when their plane became disabled high over the water yesterday.

The airmen, Robert Myers, Hartford Arkwright, Ralph Seidner, James Tobin and John Bloom, were picked up uninjured by a rescue amphibian plane and brought here.

Plans were made today to recover the disabled craft with a barge from the thick underbrush of the small island, about fifty miles west of Nassau.

The fliers were participating in the Miami-to-Nassau pleasure fight to mark the opening of Nassau's first landing field. The landing field was established by Sir Harry Oakes, wealthy mine owner formerly of Toronto.

COUNTY HOCKEY LOOP FORMED

Gerald Gibson Elected Head of Wellington and District League

Picton, January 9.—The annual meeting of Wellington and district hockey league was held in the Wellington library and much enthusiasm was in evidence as a large number of teams wished to play hockey this season. The annual reports were read and adopted. The following officers were elected for the year—President, Gerald Gibson; Vice President, Ralph MacDonald; Secretary-Treasurer, J. N. Sword.

Additional members of the executive consist of Carmen Welbanks, representing the Picton team, Herb Channell representing Cloverdale team and Jerry Smith representing Wellington team.

Picton, Cloverdale and Wellington were represented and intimated their intention to enter teams in A group.

Picton, Bloomfield and Wellington are each playing Juvenile Hockey under the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association.

Owing to the lateness of the season it was moved, seconded and carried that Article 4, Clause D. of the constitution be altered for this year to read—That each team file a list of players playing in first game, before the commencement of first game, each player taking part in first game, or any succeeding game, to be considered a regular player. Team managers to be allowed to file a total of fourteen players, not later than February first, 1940. List of players playing in each game to be filed with the referee before the commencement of each game.

Where A and B groups play on the same night, the first game shall be started at 7.30 p.m. sharp and B group play the first game.

The church league, referred to as B Group, have intimated that they wished to have six teams play in their group this year, consisting of West Lake, Mountain View, Consecon, Allisonville, Rednersville and Wellington. At this late date it is doubtful if Wellington Arena can take care of so many games as this would mean. Until something more definite can be worked out the drawing up of a complete schedule cannot be worked out. Games to be played will be announced from time to time until a complete schedule is arranged.

At the annual meeting of the Wellington hockey club, Jerry Smith was elected president; Ralph MacDonald, vice president and J. N. Sword, secretary-treasurer. Reeve J. H. Rutter and J. H. Stinson are on the executive. The Club agreed to sponsor a team in the church league, such team to be entirely under the management of their own executive and officials.

COUNCIL TO ACT

and had acted on that advise and herewith presented the document with 297 names attached.

Comparisons Made

The spokesman showed that Niagara Falls with a population of 19,000 had only seven Aldermen and a Mayor, while Chatham about the size of Belleville had seven and Windsor with a population of 105,000 nine Aldermen, a Board of Control and a Mayor. Mr. Marshall told his listeners that he could have got 98 percent of the voters in the city to sign the petition and that he had had only two refusals to sign the document. Mayor Thompson stated he was in council at the time the vote was taken and he thought the council had done everything in its power at that time to implement the wishes of the people but that the Legislature had turned the proposition down.

Alderman Haig maintained he had always been in favor of a smaller council but thought that a reduction to six would be too great for the first reduction. "I think the matter should be considered in the light of this petition but it must be dealt with immediately as the Legislature meets in the early part of this month and the bill will have to be prepared to present to the Private Bills Committee", said Ald. Haig.

Ald. Rollins: "I have discussed the matter with Ex-Ald. Marshall and our local member R. D. Arnott K.C., and I learn the time for presenting the bill is passed but the member has promised that he will try to have the bill presented. I do not favor a reduction to six members but would favor a reduction to eight. The big reduction would be defeating the purpose of the wishes of the ratepayers."

To Meet Thursday

At this point the discussion was closed and a committee meeting will be held on Thursday and if agreement is reached on the matter the Private Bill will be prepared and presented to the Private Bills committee of the Ontario Legislature at this session. Maurice Callaghan, president of the Belleville Yacht and Athletic Club appeared before the council asking for some aid in respect to the maintaining of this fine sporting organization. The spokesman explained in detail the founding of the club and produced an agreement passed in the 1936 council in which the directors were to pay $50 a year rental, the same to be used as taxes. Mr. Callaghan explained that the taxes in 1937 were $74.85 in 1938 $69.75 and in 1939 $67.00 and with the $50 paid each year the balance owing to the city is now $153.50 including the penalties. It was explained to the council that a free rink is maintained for the younger element of the city, dockage is provided free for cruisers entering the harbor and other advantages given and Mr. Callaghan asked that a grant be given to wipe off the indebtedness now owing and the council promised the fullest co-operation in the matter.

Notice of Motion Given

Ald. Eddie Logan gave notice of motion that he would at the next meeting move that the Fire Committee now composed of three members be increased to six. A motion was presented by Ald. Butler, "that the chairman of Market and City Property and the Comptroller be a committee to confer with the leasee of the Market to discuss any apparent discrepancies in the present leasing agreement and report back." This was carried.

Another motion, "that a committee composed of His Worship the Mayor, Aldermen Armstrong, Butler, Pringle, Rollins and the City Comptroller be appointed to consider the report of Alderman Butler relative to the Welfare Department, dated December 21st, 1939 and all matters pertaining to the administration of Relief and the Welfare Department and report back to council before January 31st, 1940" was also carried without discussion or dissension. Alderman Haig, chairman of the executive also gave notice of motion which stated: "Whereas the charter of the Corporation of the City of Belleville provides for an official known as a tax collector.

And whereas at the present time the office of Tax Collector is combined with that of the Treasurer.

And whereas it is expedient that the treasurer be relieved of the responsibility for the collection of taxes, and a separate official appointed whose duty it will be to collect taxes, licences and other charges owing to the Corporation.

Now therefore:

That the Comptroller be instructed to ask for the applications for the office of Collector of Taxes and other income by placing two advertisements in the Ontario Intelligencer, and that all applications must be in the hands of the Comptroller not later than twelve o'clock noon, Thursday, February 1st, 1940."

Notice Explained

Alderman Haig in explaining this notice of motion stated:

"In moving for the appointment of a Tax Collector, I am conscious of the fact that it will constitute an addition to the City's pay roll. I am, however, firmly of the opinion that the City of Belleville should have a separate official for that purpose, and the proper person would save his salary several times.

"For some time past the duties of the tax collector have been combined with the duties of one of our other officials. At the present time they are in the hands of the Treasurer. The very nature of the Treasurer's responsibilities to the City require his presence in the City Hall. It is a position of great trust and not one which would permit him to go out to interview and investigate tax delinquents as a real collector of taxes should properly do.

"I believe that a collector of taxes should interview property owners as soon as taxes become in arrears and make arrangements for their payment in a way convenient to the owners. The Corporation should not wait three years and then just place the property on the tax sale list. A municipal corporation owes it to the property owners to see to it that taxes are paid before it becomes necessary to sell the property. The tax arrears of Belleville are among the highest of comparable Ontario cities. I believe that these could be materially reduced by an improved system of tax collection.

"There are additional duties which this proposed official should assume. We have in mind—recommending to Council in due course, that all taxes, licences, charges of various kinds, should be collected through one office. At the present time, dog licences are collected at the police office. Work done by the Public Works Department is charged by that department but no proper system is established for the collection of these charges. It is my intention that the proposed Tax Collector or Collector of Revenue, I would prefer to have him called, shall be charged with the responsibility of seeing that all taxes, licences, fees, charges of all kinds owing to the Corporation shall be collected."

There being no further business the council adjourned.

NINE PERSONS HURT IN CRASH

Colonial Coach Line Bus Struck by C.P.R. Freight Train Near Ottawa

Ottawa, Jan. 9—(CP)—Nine persons were in hospital here today following a level crossing accident on the southern outskirts of the city last night when a freight train hit the rear of a bus carrying 25 passengers.

The Colonial Coach Lines bus was nearing the end of its trip from Kingston, Ont., when it skidded along the ice-covered highway on to the railway tracks after the driver, Paul Duhamel of Ottawa, had attempted to stop at the crossing.

The Canadian Pacific Railway train, travelling about five miles an hour, banged into the bus and carried it along the tracks for 50 feet but the vehicle did not turn over.

The injured were taken to hospital all suffering severe bruises and minor cuts. They are:—

Stanley Rendall, Toronto, Fred Robinson, Kemptville, Ont., George Lewis, Mrs. Mabel Albert, Mrs. Douglas Currie, Miss L. Miller, Miss Sadie Patterson, Miss Mary O'Neill, and Miss J. McFarlane, all of Ottawa.

JAPANESE CABINET IN BAD STRAITS

May Not Last Out the Week According to Informed Circles

Tokyo, Jan. 9 (CP-Havas).—The cabinet of Premier Noboyuki Abe is not expected to last out the next week, informed political sources said today.

The Kokumin Shimbun, army mouthpiece, indicated that it expected a decisive turn in the cabinet situation within the next few days. The Ahasi Shimbun, a more conservative newspaper, said the issue might be prolonged to the middle of the month, but not longer.

For the first time since the cabinet appeared to be in danger, the name of a successor has come forward. General Kazushige Ugaki, former foreign minister, now is mentioned as a candidate likely to enjoy strong arm support. General Ugaki arrived from the provinces this morning and entered into a series of conferences.

SHIPWRECK ON CHEW STREET

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Chew Street, which has no water in it, had a shipwreck. James Wambole, 21, and a mate were taking a rowboat to drydock on a two-wheel dolly when an auto rammed the craft amidships, sending it 50 feet down the street—and Skipper Wambole to a hospital.

QUESTIONED LEFT UNANSWERED BY THE PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Gives No Hints as to His Plans of Running for Third Term

SPEAKS AT DINNER

Washington, Jan. 9 —(AP) — President Roosevelt's Jackson Day address, lauding independent political thinking and joshing everyone from Republicans to himself, brought cheers and laughter—but left unanswered today the question of his future plans.

Democratic leaders who heard Mr. Roosevelt make a jovial and philosophical talk at last night's $100-a-plate Democratic Party fund-raising celebration interpreted his remarks variously as an indirect bid for a third term as President, as a valedictory, or merely as a studied effort to "keep 'em guessing."

Most party leaders laughingly agreed with Mr. Roosevelt's own comment, however, that he was a "self-made riddle" and predicted that the riddle would go unsolved for weeks or months.

Secretary Outspoken

Even though the President failed to allude to the third term issue, Agriculture Secretary Harry Wallace, speaking in Des Moines, said flatly that he hoped the "nominee in 1940 would be President Roosevelt." And at Cleveland Robert Jackson, newly appointed Attorney General, came almost as close to advocating a third term.

Taking as his theme "by their motvies may ye know them," Mr. Roosevelt told his hearers in Washington and at 44 other party dinners in other cities that it was not so much the party to which a leader belonged, but the deeds he performed in the interest of the general welfare that counted.

Putting "motives" above political ties, the President said Alexander Hamilton, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, and Andrew Jackson were all heroes to him because they "did a pob which had to be done."

Motive is What Counts

"Motive in the long run is what counts—motive accompanied by good manners," he said. "If leaders have good motives and good manners and, at the same time, knowledge of the different parts of the country and plenty of experience, you can be fairly safe in assuming they won't wreck your government."

All speakers, including the President, expressed good-natured wonderment as to why Senators Charles McNary and Warren Austin and representative Joseph Martin, Republican leaders, had not accepted free invitations to the dinner.

"Why didn't our guests come?" Mr. Roosevelt asked solemnly. "I guess the real reason is that, like the small boy, they didn't want to go to heaven with this bunch."

The President received his greatest applause when he declared:

"Most of those who complain now were the shouting optimists of 1929.

"I do not believe that the American people who swallowed that canned optimism in 1929 will swallow canned pessimism in 1940 — particularly out of the same can."

CANADIAN TROOPS RECEIVE PARCELS

Rushing of Replies to Friends and Relatives for Beautiful Christmas Presents

(By Edwin Johnson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aldershot, Jan. 9—(CP-Cable)—Officers and men of the Canadian Active Service Force were afflicted with writer's cramp today as they rushed off replies to stacks of mail which have just reached here from home—the first mail since embarkation.

In every encampment housing the Canadians the busiest men were those distributing letters and Christmas packages. More than 1,000 bundles were distributed last night, but the real flood descended today.

Smiles wreathed the faces of the troops as a battalion of postmen tossed bulky bundles on billet beds, and the walls and fireplace mantels quickly blossomed out with colorful Christmas cards.

An epidemic of colds, which afflicted the troops shortly after their arrival, gradually is abating. Men located in the spider huts were less afflicted as they enjoyed comparative comfort in the central heating, shower baths and other modern features unknown to the soldiers of the last war.

As elected officers and men left for numerous special training courses, a number of seasoned imperial instructors arrived in camp to help the Canadian N.C.O.'s put the troops through the paces.

DRY STATE OF LAND MAY LESSEN DANGER OF SPRING FLOODS

Minimization of flood danger was seen today by a prominent city official in the acute water shortage that is apparent in the rural communities of the district.

Dry condition of the land will absorb Spring freshets and rains unless they come in a quantity much heavier than usual, was his opinion.

Swamp-bottoms, marshes and creeks of the district are practically dry, as are many wells of the outlying districts. Tributary branches of the Moira River are the lowest in years, and will in the officials opinion, be in condition to absorb any overflow of water without rising to flood levels.

1939 RECORD A GOOD ONE

Belleville police department has a record for recovery of stolen motorcars of which it must be proud. Every car stolen last year was recovered and not for last year only but for many years. In fact in twenty years only one motorcar has been stolen here which was not recovered. That car was never heard of again and no clues were left. Probably no city police department can equal this record. The only possibility of upsetting the record would be a perfect recovery of all cars.

Belleville's record for law observance is well substantiated by the 1939 report of Chief Constable Kidd. Such offences as are mentioned are such as occur in cities where there is a population of some proportion.

One of the items for which one looks in these days in police reports is the total of motor vehicle accidents. There were 85 of these last year and but unfortunately one of these was a fatality. Belleville has for years had a fine record for the safety of travel on the streets and it is hoped that this will always be maintained. The ideal city of course would be a city whose streets were without accidents but Belleville's record is still good. Some minor accidents appear inevitable in the volume of traffic which passes through the business sections at some periods for a period of six years there was not a fatal motor accident on the city streets.

Citizens of Belleville should read the report which appeared in yesterday's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer and there learn something of the task which falls to the police and of the successful manner in which the work of the department is carried out to the satisfaction of the people.

The police are the guardians of the lives and bodies of the citizens and of the visitors to the city.

The report for 1939 is a gratifying one in the lack of serious crime, in the evidence it shows of the loyalty of the citizens to their city so that there are few infractions of bylaws which are for the good of all the people, and in the painstaking work of the members of the police force under Chief Constable Kidd.

WHAT DOES HITLER THINK OF RUSSIA?

What does Hitler think of the Russia with whom he allied himself and with which alliance he made forever clear the ruthlessness of both Nazism and Bolshevism and the real sympathy of these ideologies?

Hitler may have expected some sort of experience with Russia as the Finns have had for it is an axiom of wise dictators never to enter an alliance with one stronger than themselves. But surely he did not expect such a demonstration of "Red" weakness. Hitler needed Russia badly to save his eastern front and as he hoped to prevent war on two sides, but he also counted on his own assurance of ability to "lick" the Russians if and when he (Hitler) had triumphed over the democracies. Hitler's gift of half of Poland to Russia was no deal by a fair man, he just offered it as a bribe, until the time when he could settle accounts with Russia. And Joseph Stalin thinking he was stronger, expected in linking with Hitler, ultimate glory for Russian Bolshevism and for Stalinism with Germany and the Allied world weak from loss of blood and of supplies of food and materials. But both have already proved they were ill-founded in their hopes—both have deceived themselves. Hitler has a grim war on his hands in the west. Stalin is fighting two enemies in the north who dared to be "aggressors" against Russia, the Finns and also the winter. It looks like bungling in Russia. The Slav has shown characteristic lack of co-operation and inefficiency and the Teuton has shown himself a bad guesser.

Efficient Hitler looking at the sad mess Russia has made of its campaign must feel disgusted with his ally who shows so little proof of knowledge and skill in modern warfare as the German Nazi fights it.

If Hitler is proud as Germans are supposed to be of their judgment and the friends they consort with, he must feel a tinge of disgust at the result of the Soviet's colossal bungling of the whole Finnish campaign. It is an easy guess that Hitler if he had not bigger issues on his hand feels he could step in and show this Stalin how to run a campaign. But Russia cannot do it and Hitler dare not do it.

Hitler no doubt looks with envy on France and Britain which are two steadfast Allies, who trust one another while he and Stalin have no mutual confidences. What would he not give for an ally with something of the reliability of the Allies?

Hitler must blush to think of what the world thinks of his partner as a world conqueror.

VOICE THAT IS "STILL" LIVES IN RECORD

The voice of Alfred Lord Tennyson, recorded in 1889 by engineers sent by Thomas Alva Edihon, inventor of the talking machine, was heard recently in England when the Maharajah of Baroda invited an audience and recited some of the poet's works before friends of the poet who died in 1892. The gathering was in the old house where Tennyson died and the 'intonations and cadences of Tennyson's fine voice" again rang through the room.

Tennyson was one of the poets of the modern age who was a sort of seer. He foresaw developments of science and most of all he possessed the prophetic fire and the soul of beauty. His work is matchless in its perfection. It may be less rugged than Browning's but its beauty still enthralls. Tennyson came in the wake of the great line of poets, Wordsworth, the seer of nature, Scott, the romancer, Shelley, the lyric voice of the world at the beginning of the nineteenth century, and above all John Keats, who stood unrivalled in the Greek perfection of his verse.

Tennyson has lines which live on and will live on for all time, because they touch the foundation stones of life, the bedrock of human experience.

It must have been a thrilling moment when from the early record of the late eighties men heard the voice of Tennyson.

This makes one wonder what the world would not give for the record of the voices of the great men of all ages, Homer, Virgil, Plato, Aristophanes, the comic writer of old Athens, great religious leaders of the world, the early leaders of the church, and the kings, diplomats and generals of other days?

But the world is unconsciously recording at least in radio broadcasts records of leaders in this day in many fields.

So this story of Tennyson enriches life to know that his voice which is "still" and has been these forty-seven years is again heard, mechanically of course, but with something of the inspiration of the voice when the poet was alive.

What a library can be stored away in the modern method of the combination of picture and sound on films and on metal which will resist the enroachments of rust and decay?

A ROUND BALLOT OR AN UN-ALPHABETICAL BALLOT

The idea has been suggested to the St. Catharines Standard of having circular ballots for the sake of candidates whose names appear near the bottom of a long line of names. The Standard says that the idea was suggested by a prominent business man, who points out that in the recent election no candidate was elected whose name was below that of John Smith. "Here's a thought for some keen inventor," comments the Standard.

It has been the contention everywhere of men whose names are down among the W's, Y's and Z's that they have not a chance of election that men whose names begin with A, B. C. and so on downward have.

The first names on the list probably do pick up quite a few stray votes. Those at the end of the list are not so likely to annex such support. Some may vote for the full number of candidates allowed and find no vote left for one or more they wished to support. Then some may get tired marking the ballot before they complete the number and nothing but the King's horses and the King's men can get them to vote for the maximum and the man at the bottom may suffer.

But after all it is doubtful if a round ballot will come. It would be hard on the deputy returning officers to count round ballots.

Then would the elector stand in the polling booth before the puzzle trying to find the A's to start with and after loss of time do just what the purpose of the round ballot would be intended to eliminate.

Perhaps a shuffling or drawing by lot of the names before they were put in the ballot might be suggested. It would substitute the element of chance for the certainty the A's and B's and others had of heading the ballot.

Then the voter might have to spend too long a time looking for Smith's name or Jones' name if it did not appear in an alphabetical list. This would take a great deal of time.

Today under the alphabetical system one can soon see whose names are on the ballot.

So there is little hope for the Z's and the Y's and W's but to take their chance at the bottom of the list.

As the Standard hints there is room for some keen inventor to satisfy the needs of the names at the bottom of the lists.

Gives Graphic Description of Experience When Torpedoed

(From Time Magazine.)

Sirs:—Here is a most interesting war letter from a friend of mine, a young officer in the British Army and a nephew of Lady Diana Duff Cooper. His father was killed in the last war and, as you will see, he came very close to being killed in this one.

RUDOLF KOMMER.

New York City.

Dear Rudolf:

Seamen are traditionally suspicious folk, and so I was not unduly disturbed by Dickson's pessimistic face, as we sailed out of Algeciras Bay on Friday, the 13th October. Dickson was a cabin steward aboard S. S. Yorkshire, and I was a passenger.

"Never mind", said Dickson, "Bibby never lost a ship in the last war".

"Don't talk too soon", said I.

"Oh well, if we goes down we goes down, and if we stays up we stays up."

"What It Would Be Like?"

Much comforted by this profound and philosophical reflection, Dickson withdrew and left me a little thoughtful. It sounded so easy, "if we goes down—." I wondered what it would be like to be torpedoed . . . .

Most of us on board were invalids, or personnel of the R. A. M. C., returning home from the East. We had on board a magnificent variety of interesting diseases, and were usually talked about as if we were the diseases, instead of the unfortunate individuals suffering from them . . . .

I was "the Rheumatism". I had been in bed for eight weeks, and although much better was still unable to walk, as my feet were affected; I had in fact only twice put them to the ground during my illness.

Dawn on the 17th October found us about 200 miles from land in the Atlantic with our head for home ....

After lunch I played a game of chess with the ship's doctor, an old Scotsman of about 70 . . . . . . It must have been just 25 minutes after three that the Doctor was faced with the loss of his castle. I remember he sat studying the board for two or three minutes, then—

"Aye, y've got ma rook", and he advanced a pawn.

"We Had Been Torpedoed."

I leant forward to take the piece but my hand never reached it, for there was a sudden crash and the chessmen went flying across the deck . We had been torpedoed; the impossible had happened.

I found myself on my feet for the first time in eight weeks, and they gave beneath me and I fell flat on my face, half in and half out of the saloon. My life belt was under my chair and I put it on from ground level. As I did so I looked back over my shoulder and saw a great red sheet of flame with smoky edges hanging in the sky above our stern. I once more struggled to my feet, just in time to be thrown over by the second torpedo which hit us amidships . . . . Somebody said "put your arm around my neck", and we all trooped off.

My boat station was Starboard 5 . . . Near this boat station there was a companionway which leads over No. 3 hatch, and it was here that the second torpedo had struck us. The boards covering this hatch had been blown off by the force of the explosion, and there was a deep yawning hole.

Hanging by one hand to the corner of a tarpaulin and swinging over this abyss with kicking legs was a little girl. She and two others had been playing on top of the hatch—the other two had been killed. I saw a soldier pull her to safety, and she was eventually saved.

By this time our boat's complement had collected, and we waited anxiously for its appearance. I sat on the bottom of the steps.

Gave Vent to Feelings.

A great fat woman came down the steps screaming with all her might for her baby: as she went by I remember thumping her on the back as hard as I could, and yelling at the top of my voice that everything was going to be all right. I noticed that when anyone did anything, whether it was lowering a boat or just speaking, they did it with all their force. The one unendurable thing was to do nothing. I derived great comfort from expending energy on this poor woman.

I had told her that all would be well, and it was not until I had done so that I first asked myself whether indeed all would be well.

The Yorkshire was list'ng to starboard and something seemed to be wrong with the life boat, as it did not appear . . .

And then, at last, our boat came down. God, but we were pleased to see it! Some women started to get in and I waited on the steps wishing desperately that I could do something: it was wretched just sitting on those steps — no good to anyone and not much good to myself.

The waves seemed to me to be nearer the deck, and in truth they were, for suddenly the sea seemed to gather itself together and come aboard us in a rush; a great green, smooth-backed wave surged over the side.

Those standing around the boats were either swept overboard or trapped between the two decks; those of us who were still on our feet struggled up the companionway and down on to the port deck....

I staggered to the side on watery legs, straddled the taffrail, and looked down. There was a boat in the water and several ropes leading down into it. These were the life liners and were fastened above to the boat deck. Halfway down one of these ropes was a woman in yellow, clinging to it like a monkey to a stick. A man with a red face was in the boat trying to help her in; he looked up; his mouth was open and his eyes looked like saucers.

Lands in Lifeboat

The woman got off the rope and I slid down it. It must have been a 12-foot drop and the lifeboat was jumping to the swell. But my arms felt strong and I landed right in the middle and scrambled to the side.

Several more people came down. Then somebody shouted: "Trim the boat." We all echoed his words but nobody did anything. And then in a desperate voice the same person shouted: "Cast off, for God's sake, she's going."

Dickson was in the bows and managed to free the falls from that end, but before the stern falls could be cut off or cast off, the Yorkshire reared her bows into the air and slid backwards to the bottom.

And we were still tied to her....

Cast Into Sea

I remember being pinned between the gunwale of the lifeboat and a rope which was held taut across my chest. The davits were within a few feet. Beneath me was a tangled mass of ropes, oars, iron and foaming water. I saw the red-faced man disappear into this turmoil, and then I was in it myself. There was a roar of rushing water, which almost but not quite obliterated the noise of screaming....

The water brought me back, if not to earth, at any rate to a realization of the imminence of death, and I started to struggle for life.

I did not go deep: it never became dark, but was always frothy. Hard things swept by me. I groped upwards with my hands, and kicked with my feet. I remember thinking rather mumbly: "I suppose they will see it in The Times." And then to my intense surprise I was on the surface, spluttering but otherwise feeling remarkably well.

Grabs Life Raft

The first thing that struck me was that the sun was shining, and that the great ship had completely disappeared....I came up within a foot of a life raft (one of those yard-square contraptions which are festooned with rope and wooden handgrips) and caught hold of it. Somebody was close to me in the water. Looking back, I am more and more amazed by the unreality of the whole affair. I remember being seriously worried as to the propriety of scrambling on top of this raft. I was not au fait with ocean etiquette. For all I know, good Riflemen ought to hang on to the side. However my scruples cannot have been very serious, for the next moment I was established on top.

Then somebody with a dead white face and a bleeding forehead came up beside me. I helped him on to the raft and he was horribly sick. His trousers had been sucked off. He said he was a cabin steward.

I know one is supposed to feel pretty grim perched precariously on a raft in the middle of the Atlantic, but I didn't. I have seldom felt better. I suppose the realization that one wasn't dead was such an inexpressible relief that anything else seemed trivial by comparison. I felt rather like one does on coming to after laughing gas; I had the giggles.

There were two other rafts, each with two men on them, quite close; otherwise we could see nothing except the other ships of the convoy making off as hard as they could. It was only then that I remembered that they were forbidden to pick us up. We should have to wait until warships arrived— perhaps for many hours.

I stopped giggling.

And then a lifeboat appeared. It was in charge of Nelson, who shouted at me something about chess, and asked whether we were all right on the raft, as the boat was full.

I said I supposed we were — it looked pretty cozy inside that lifeboat.

Towed by Lifeboat

Nelson threw us a rope and we made fast. We were then towed about for two hours. They tried first to salvage an empty lifeboat but the bottom had been stove in. They then picked up one poor woman who was clinging to a piece of wood, and an unconscious man who was starfished on a hatch board. He was covered with engine oil and had a great bloody eye. It was my friend and cabin steward, Dickson....

At length we were joined by four other lifeboats which were towed by a small motorboat. Somebody shouted at me from one of these boats: "Have you seen my wife?" And then, and not till then, so selfish is man, did I realize how lucky I was to have no one to ask after, and what this ghastly business would mean to some.

Brady and I were taken aboard a comparatively empty lifeboat which even so, was overladen. I didn't realize how cold I was until I tried to talk and found that my jaws were stiff. There were a number of Lascar seamen on board; they crouched on the bottom of the boat paralyzed with cold and fear. Poor devils, they longed for the sun of Bengal; it wasn't their war anyway....

Optimism Wanes in Dark

It soon got dark, and our optimism waned with the light. The sea looked cruel as death, and the swell seemed more formidable, the wind increased a little and began to break the tops of the swell. All the boats were shipping a certain amount of water, and we had to bale continuously. The Lascars were worse than useless: they were too paralyzed even to bale. I had quite a struggle to keep hold of a blanket I had been given, so anxious were they to hide their heads beneath it. It was pretty cold by this time, and my wretched pyjamas were not much protection against the wind.

Almost everybody was seasick. Their moans of misery made a fitting background to the scene. Some of us sang. Speed Bonny Boat and Loch Lomond were inevitable if inappropriate choices, and they must have sounded dismal, but they warmed us up.

And then we saw a light — only a pinpoint — but definitey a light. It was a long way away, but by God, it looked good! We had some flares and these we lit....

We strained our eyes and tried to think that the light was coming nearer, and the seasick stopped maning, and we all felt vastly better.

But it came no nearer .... We watched it for an hour or more, and then it faded out of sight.

It is extraordinary how much that feeble light had meant to us. While it was there we had forgotten the intense discomfort. But as soon as it disappeared the world suddenly became a darker and a colder place, and I, for one, felt for the first time the vastness of the ocean. How could any ship hope to find us? It seemed impossible.

Everybody got sick again.

I was next to a kind steward, who rubbed my back and was wonderfully sympathetic. I was feeling by this time that I really didn't mind terribly if I was drowned, if only the damned boat would stop bucking about for half a minute.

Daylight Brings Ship

Then I think I must have slept (I remember using two Lascars for a pillow, and thinking them an extremely good one), for when I looked up again there was the light, but this time it was bigger and closer. And then I saw that there were two lights. By God, that was a good sight. It was a ship, and coming towards us.

Not a moan from anyone now. In a minute we were all cracking jokes and shaking hands. The steward and I thumped each other on the backs, and when the next flare went up I saw that his face was wreathed in smiles.

Soon we could see the navigation lights, and in another minute a signal ordering us to come to the starboard side.

Quite soon we were alongside and it is impossible to describe the wonderful feeling that that ship gave us. She was an American freighter, the Independence Hall, and I have never heard anything so sweet as the sound of those American voices, as the crew leaned over the side and hailed us:

"How y're making out, you fellas?"

The Independence Hall was three days out of Bordeaux, bound for New York. She had, by the grace of God, 80 beds in the hold.... There were over 300 of us in that hold, for besides the survivors from the Yorkshire, the crew of the City of Mandalay, another torpedoed ship, had already been picked up.

Hear of Victims

The Independence Hall had picked us up some 200 miles west of Cape Finisterre, and she took three days to return to Bordeaux with her catch. We learned that the Yorkshire had taken only eight and a half minutes to sink, and that three lifeboats had been smashed by the explosion. We learned, too, of the particularly tragic fate of one boatload. It was No. 5 boat, the one in which I should have been. Several women and children had been put in before the sea had come aboard the promenade deck, and afterwards a few more had managed to get in from the boat deck. The lifeboat itself was eventually freed from the ship and stood a good chance of safety. But as the Yorkshire sank she listed heavily to starboard and this lifeboat was capsized by the funnel, and we believe that the occupants were drawn down it by the inrush of water.

What Are Dreams of Power To Russians Dying of Cold

In places like Northern Maine, Minnesota and Alaska outdoor men may know from experience what the armies are facing in Finland. Naturally, the cold grows greater as one advances toward the Pole from the comparatively mild climate of the Aland Islands and Helsinki. On the Petsamo front, 250 miles north of the Arctic Circle, James Aldridge writes in the Times of "the cold killing as many Russians in the terrible night as the Finn patrols kill in the daytime". He writes of cold so intense that the breath freezes, there is ice in the nostrils, hands are numb under the thickest mittens, feet are like frozen blocks, and men dare not go outside until they have encased themselves in layer after layer of wool, topped by a bearskin "peaky".

If reports are true, some one in Moscow blundered. The Russians were not ready for such cold. It numbs men's minds as well as bodies. Forget for a moment the emotionless sweep of power diplomacy, the hammering of abstract ideas. Here are men, peasants and workers under the hammer-and-sickle banner.

The day is only a brief glimmer in the south. The stars blaze like luminescent steel — Stalin is the Russian word for steel. The Northern Lights dance like an unattainable dream of brotherhood, freedom and peace. The stunted birches cast faint shadows. Who is the enemy — the men in white, slipping silently around the low hills, among the trees, along the borders of frozen lakes, or the drifts, no whiter, into which a man sinks and dies? Or is the enemy something else, a man, a system, remorseless and colder still?

"The silence here," writes Mr. Aldridge, "is tremendous." Rifle fire, breaking out on a near-by hill, is like artillery. Wounded men freeze in the contortions of their last agonies. For Marx's dream, for Lenin's, for Stalin's—does it matter to a dying man? Does he think of 1917, when the soldiers of the old empire thronged homeward, shouting with joy of a peace regained? An American, pondering these things, may recall the lines of Robert Frost:

> Some say the world will end in > fire,
> Some say in ice....
> I think I know enough of hate
> To say that for destruction ice
> Is also great.
> And would suffice.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Rumania's determination to defend the province of Bessarabia against any Russian attack is one of the important factors in the diplomatic war now proceeding in the Balkan states. On the outcome of this diplomatic conflict, the exact lines of which remain somewhat obscure, may depend the military conflicts of 1940.

The importance of Bessarabia lies not alone in its economic resources — it is a big grain-growing area — but in the field of transport.

This province dominates the mouth of the Danube river, the principal means of transporting the products of the Caucasus, including oil and manganese, to central Europe.

It contains the Black Sea treminus of one of the most direct railway lines linking the Russian port of Odessa with German-occupied Galicie. Just over the border in Russian territory runs another important railway linking southern Russia with Germany.

So it is that whoever controls Bessarabia is in a position to influence Russo-German relations, to help or impede the delivery of Russian supplies to Germany, to bar the way to German-Russian military collaboration in the direction of Iraq, Afghanistan or India.

Nazi Germany would be unlikely to raise any serious objection to Russian designs on Bessarabia as huge supplies of Russian materials will be needed if Germany is to wage a long war. The difficulty for Germany would be to localize the affair so that neither Turkey nor the western Allies would intervene and so create a new war front.

If Russia approaches Rumania on the issue of Bessarabia it will probably follow the same procedure used in connection with the Baltic states. Demands will be made for bases at the mouth of the Danube as essential to Russia's safety and a special status for Bessarabia will be demanded because of its large Slav population.

ALL IS BRIGHT

By Eleanor Browne

When they finally reached Barranquilla it was lunch time. They drove up to a hotel dropped as if by genii in the midst of an otherwise barren land. Star caught herself hurrying toward the dining room and deliberately slowed her steps. But she could not help glancing quickly around at the tables as they came in. One glance was enough to tell her—Gloria and Kent were not there. As if their absence had released a hidden spring in her mind Star began for the first time to enjoy the day.

Elise Cattrell was as delighted as a child with the lovely bougainvillea blossoms that were scattered over their table. She gathered up a handful of them and sniffed expectantly, only to put them down in disappointment. "They might be made of paper!"

"Lavender tissue paper," agreed Star. "What a pity they have no scent."

"Women always want everything," Barton said, with such a pained expression Elise and Star laughed at him.

They stayed a long time, wandering through the cool tiled terrace that was open on one side in tall archways wreathed in Poinsettia. But they left early enough to avoid tiring Elise and because Stuart in spite of his protests was almost asleep. All the way back to the ship he lay in Star's arms, his short lashes curled up. He had chosen that position himself as they got into the car and Barton obligingly rode with the driver.

Before they began the return trip Star glanced up and discovered Gloria and Kent just driving in. Kent's expression was thoughtful as he saw her holding the child, but he only bowed quietly to them and turned with Gloria toward the hotel. Star heard her roommate's light voice and saw her smiling brilliantly. But she did not hear Kent respond. In spite of herself she could not help contrasting his gloomy expression with his gay laughter during that day at Kingston when they had been together.

The ship was moving now, drawing away from the pier so gently it had the effect of a slow-motion picture. Purple mountains melted into a sky of lavender-blue still starless Yellow lights along the shore glowed like round balls of gold, but shed no radiance. Their own ship lights shivered on the water beyond the railing.

Star, her lavender net dress blowing softly in the breeze, could hardly speak for the lump in her throat. She did not want to talk. She wanted only to remember this moment—all shadows and soft lights, with everyone dancing on deck as the boat glided away from the shore.

"You really like it down here, don't you?" Voates asked curiously as they danced across the deck.

"It's like a dream. I can't believe it's real."

Later when she was dancing with Barton Underwood and Barranquilla was only a deeper darkness in the shadows on the sea she was surprised to have him ask the same question .

"You really love this part of the world, don't you? Would you like to stay?"

"Now that you ask me I don't know," Star answered honestly. "I've found it beautiful to be here. But do you think it's because I know we'll leave within a few hours and be off to a different port?"

"I think it's because you like the people you're with."

"That's true," Star smiled at him. "I find myself looking forward to the bedtime story almost as much as Stuart."

"Is it only Stuart who makes the trip a success for you?"

Star could scarcely repress her astonishment. She said carefully, "Of course not. You and Elise and Gloria and—and everyone."

Barton led her toward the front of the boat and stood leaning against the rail, watching the way the wind blew her hair and tiny shoulder cape out behind her so that to him she seemed like some goddess of the sea calling to her mermaids.

"I should like to think," he said slowly, "that you found Stuart's father more than likable. I want you to stay with Stuart and with me—always."

The suddenness of it took away Star's breath. She understood all at once why Barton had looked at her so strangely that afternoon as she held Stuart in her arms. She knew now why he had been making excuses to linger in the cabin so that he would be there as she told Stuart his daily story.

"It's been a long time since I've thought of asking ·ny woman to be my wife," Barton was saying. "When Stuart's mother died I felt that was all over for me. But then I hadn't met you." The compliment was given with one of his rare smiles. Instantly he was serious again.

"I've been terribly lonely at times. Lately I've tried to overcome the feeling. It seemed, in a way, disloyal. But watching Stuart with you I knew that it would be more disloyal to deprive him of love and tenderness. I—I'm not very romantic," he added apologetically, "but being practical has its advantages too. You could live here, if you liked, or at least we could come here often. I'd like to show you parts of Europe too. Some of it is very beautiful."

She glanced at his face only dimly seen in the reflection from the lights amidship and found she knew every line of his strong square chin, the odd droop of his eyes at the corners. He was clean and good and fine, she knew that.

"I don't know what to say," she stammered at last. "I—I hadn't thought—"

His hand closed over hers. "Please don't answer now." His voice had a boyish unsteadiness that she found very appealing. "Let me hope for a few days more, anyway. But please remember, my dear, you can make both Stuart and me very happy, if you will.

CHAPTER XVII

Kent watched Star returning with Underwood to the brightly lit deck. He had tried all evening to corral his courage to ask her for a dance. He had watched her talking and laughing with Coates and had seen her walk away with Stuart's father. He envied the casual way both men managed to put one arm around her, to look down at her and talk.

He could scarcely even watch her without becoming tongue-tied and shaky. But he had to dance with her. He must try to make her understand that last night had not been a romantic impulse. That when he was free to speak he would tell her frankly just what she meant to him.

"Dance?"

He appeared before her suddenly as she looked up. And with a nod to Underwood she floated off in his arms. He glanced down at the crisp dark hair, the oval of her face. "Quite the belle of the ball, aren't you?" His voice sounded hard and unfriendly even to his own ears .

"You're not feeling romantic tonight!" she said mockingly. "She smiled over his shoulder at Mrs. Jenkins. Kent felt enraged and at the same time helpless. He made another desperate attempt to straighten out the situation.

"About last night—I'm afraid I—I frightened you." He kicked himself mentally. That was not what he had meant to say at all. The music stopped and Star drew away from him. "I didn't mean to do that," he floundered. "What I meant—"

Star interrupted tartly. "Please don't bother. I haven't even thought about it since."

Kent stared down at her angrily. The exquisite joy of that moment he had held her in his arms had been with him ever since. And she could stand there calmly and tell him she didn't think it worth while to "bother" about!

"If you're afraid I'll tell Gloria" Star continued in the same brittle tone, "let me put your fears at rest."

"Gloria!" He was taken off guard by the mention of Gloria's name He was only thinking intently of the girl before him. Star's face lighted up with a radiant smile.

"Yes, Gloria. You know, the girl you're engaged to marry. Remember?"

Still smiling she walked off and left him standing by the rail.

They stood watching Cartagena come closer to them—a golden city, floating like a mirage on top of the blue water. Neither Elise nor Barton was saying a word. Star felt that the whole trip would have been worth this moment. Around them the morning was a haze of pastel, shades; blue and pink and gold and white. The ship held an early morning hush. Few of the other passengers were up.

The massive wall and high towers of the city seemed like an old painting. It was hard to realize that it was medieval—that the very wall standing there now—wide enough for six horsemen to gallop along abreast—had once defied the bold Sir Francis Drake.

Later, after Barton Underwood had asked her to go ashore with him alone, Star had that same feeling of unreality. Barton had arranged for Stuart and Elise to do the town together; Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins had promised to look after the boy, too.

Star and Barton found the sleepy sunny white streets a revelation in old-world charm. They stopped for a minute in the Cathedral and gazed in awe at the mummified saint enclosed in the altar behind glass.

They visited the old monastery where Pedro de Claver had lived. They looked out through long shutters onto the Bay and heard of how he watched slave ships so that he could give some word of kindness or minister to some physical need of those poor lost souls.

Time seemed to have stopped within these walls. Whether it was the monks in their brown robes or the huge old palm trees that leaned against the windows, or the darkened wooden prie-dieu. Star and Barton Underwood did not know. But after they came into the sunlight they tried to accustom themselves to the thought that most of Cartagena's history was written almost four hundred years ago.

They hired a guide and were admitted to the old fortress. They sat for a time on the crumbling steps of the wall and looked out over the blue water. They went on to a high-ceilinged restaurant where a Spanish orchestra played in a strange rhythm which seemed perfectly suited to the place.

"It's such a lovely city," Elise Cattrell was saying as she greeted Star and Barton upon their return to the ship. "Stuart and I had a grand time. I was sorry I had to return so early. But I'm sure Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins took him around to all the things we missed.

Barton looked vaguely uneasy. "I wish they'd get back," he murmured, and went away.

Star looked at the pier below and suddenly saw Mrs. Jenkins' ample figure approaching. She was talking excitedly to her husband. Mr. Jenkins was almost lost under an odd assortment of bundles of every size and shape. Evidently his wife had been seized with a shopping mania.

Star caught her breath as she realized that the two were alone.

"My land!" Mrs. Jenkins puffed as she stepped on the ship. "I'm about to fall apart, I'm so tired. I've never seen so many churches and so many forts all in one city—what's the matter, Mr. Underwood?"

"Stuart!" Star managed. "Where is Stuart?"

"Why, he came back with Miss Cattrell," Mr. Jenkins began.

"No—no!" Elise said wildly. "Don't you remember? I told you I was coming back and asked you to take him through the Palace."

"I thought that's what she said, Willie." Mrs. Jenkins nodded her head vigorously. "But when we got inside he wasn't with us, so we decided you hadn't said that after all."

Star signalled to Kent Barrett as he passed them. He came over hesitantly and looked around at the tense group.

"Stuart is lost," Barton said in an unnatural voice. "We'll have to start looking for him at once."

Color of Snowbird's Plumage and Presence of Horned-Larks Indicate Early Spring Says Wallace H. Robb

What he termed to be definite indications of an early Spring, in the form of large flocks of snowbirds, among which were the rare horned-larks and a brace of Lapland Longspurs, were noticed by Wallace Havelock Robb, creator of "Abbey Dawn" naturalist and author of many prominent poetic works, yesterday while travelling from Kingston to Belleville.

The flocks, three in all, aggregated approximately fifteen hundred of the beautiful black and white birds, Mr. Robb said. "We stopped the car and watched them circle over our heads, flying in no definite direction. We noticed definitely two specimens of the horned lark, one of the first birds to put in an appearance in the Spring. They generally appear here during the latter part of February, and their presence at this time of the year, is a definite sign that Spring is not too far away."

Snowbirds, Mr. Robb said, usually were of a black and white coloring, but in the late Autumn a brownish suffusion is noticed on the feather-tips. This gradually disappears until the birds become pure black and white. "The birds we saw yesterday" he added, "were well advanced, and this again is a sign of an early Spring."

The Lapland Longspur is a rare bird in this part of the world, Mr. Robb said. "It has a long spur similar to those worn by gamecocks. They are the universal bird of the countries of the north where snow abounds, and spend their summers in the far northern regions. At present, these are the same species of birds that are viewing the battle now raging between the Russians and the Finns."

Due to their mode of flying in which they flutter in the air and apparently seem headed for nowhere in particular, the Russians term them the "Butterflies." Mr. Robb said.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was getting ready to go out and there was a knocking sound under her bed, proving my new dog Misty was scratching again, and ma said, I'll have to call up the Four Footed Haven to come and get that dog, there are no other 2 ways about it.

Well aw G, ma, you wouldn't say things like that if you only knew how crazy he is about you, I said. He wags his tale every time I even mention your name to him, I said, and ma said, He spends his life wagging his tale regardless of the subject.

Wich he does, proving his perfect disposition, and I had an idea, and ma kept on getting ready and when she went downstairs with her hat on I went down after her carrying Misty, saying, Hay, ma, if you dont believe it I'll prove it to you, now look, ma.

And I left go of Misty saying, Say good bye to ma, Misty, say good bye to ma, and what did Misty do but run all his might and jump against ma barking and waggin' and not stopping, and ma said, Well I declare of all things, he never did that before, he really seemed to know what you said.

Sure he did, ma, he's crazy about you, I said, and ma said, Well I could stand a little less of his affection, he seems to be trying to knock me down for land sakes.

And she put her bag down on the hallrack to fix her hat again and Misty started to jump up at her bag, me saying, See ma, he likes everything about you, even your bag.

I believe the animal is crazy, ma said.

And she went out without knowing the real reason yet, the real reason being because I had wrapped up a hunk of meat saniterry in a piece of paper and put it in her bag, leaving Misty see me do it.

WAR BRIEFS

Stockholm, Jan. 9—(CP Havas)—Richard Sandler, former Swedish Foreign Minister, is in Northern Finland organizing aid for Finnish children, it was learned. Some 10,000 Swedish families have already signified willingness to take child refugees into their homes.

Hong Kong, Jan. 9—(AP)—Japanese airmen blasted anew yesterday at one of China's supply lines, the French-owned Haiphong-Kunming railway connecting French Indo-China and the sea.

Repeated air raids on the railway were regarded by observers as evidence the Japanese were consolidating to hold the Nanning area intact for use as a base for aerial operations against China's vital supply routes.

Calgary, Jan. 9—(CP)—The infantry training centre which will be established in Calgary to train reinforcements for Alberta and British Columbia infantry units of the Canadian active service force, will probably open in 10 days, it is learned here. Initial strength will be 200 all ranks, although the centre eventually will be recruited to strength of 1,000.

Berlin, Jan. 9—(AP)— Public funds are being raised for construction of a new warship to be called the Admiral Graf Spee, it became known here. The original Admiral Graf Spee, one of three 10,000-ton pocket battleships built by Germany to meet naval restrictions after the first Great War, was destroyed in Montevido harbor Dec. 17 after a battle with British fighting craft.

Oslo, Jan. 9—(CP-Havas) — The 5,062-ton German steamship Frankenwald sank Saturday after a collision near Steinsund on the west coast of Norway, it was learned today. The crew of 48 and two Norwegian pilots aboard were rescued by a Norwegian destroyer and were taken to Bergen.

Berlin, Jan. 9—(AP)—Authorized Nazi sources have confirmed reports that Germany had refused to permit Italian planes destined for Finland to pass through the Reich. They asserted Germany deemed it expedient to refuse such transit as a means of preventing extension of the war area.

London, Jan. 9— (CP Cable) — The enterprising Daily Mail is making a bid for circulation among thousands of Canadian troops by advertising a daily feature "Home town news from Canada."

The first budget includes items from Halifax, Montreal, Winnipeg and Ottawa, separated by Maple leaves.

Germany Holds The Upper-Hand In Pact With Russia

Montreal, Jan. 9—(CP)—Germany holds the upper-hand in the Russian-German pact which will prove to be the beginning of the end for both totalitarian regimes, Alexander Kerensky, head of Russia's Provisional Government in 1917, said here last night.

Kerensky, an opponent of the Russian Government and now a United States resident, told the Montreal People's Forum that Hitler, at the start of the present war, had not expected either military assistance from Stalin or appreciable quantities of raw materials or supplies.

"Germany, and particularly her general staff, knew very well the internal conditions in Russia and the fighting capacity of the Red army," he said. "What Hitler needed was not the aid of the Red army but the assurance that he would have a free hand on the eastern frontiers of Germany and that the German people would not have to fight a war on two fronts."

AT THE BELLE

Robert Taylor in "Remember."

Greer Garson, whose memorable performance as Kathie opposite Robert Donat in "Goodbye Mr. Chips" made her the most talked of screen newcomer of the year, is starred with Robert Taylor in her first American film, "Remember", romantic comedy of modern married life, with Lew Ayres as the third member of a romantic triangle. The picture opens next for a three day engagement at the Belle Theatre.

Taylor and Miss Garson have been ideally teamed in "Remember?" with roles perfectly suited to their talents for fast-moving comedy. As Jeff Holland, Taylor plays an ambitious young advertising executive who falls in love with beautiful Linda Bronson "at sight" but becomes too wrapped up in his job after their whirlwind marriage to take her on a honeymoon.

Miss Garson plays Linda, a vivacious, fun-loving girl of today, the type of action comedy part that made her a favorite on the London stage in such plays as "Accent On Youth", "Mademoiselle" and "Old Music". Linda is a role to further display the versatility of the red-headed, green-eyed Irish actress who is equally at home in drama or comedy.

Third member of a gay romantic threesome is Lew Ayres as Sky Ames who has Linda stolen from him by his old college pal, Jeff, and then comes to the rescue when they get into a matrimonial muddle.

The story has a warmly human and serious theme running through it, offering proof that no matter how many difficulties marriage may entail two people really in love would go right back and do it all over again if they had the chance. By an exciting and unusual inter-weaving of plot Jeff and Linda get this chance and make the most of it.

Corey Ford, national magazine writer, humorist and scenarist, wrote the original story in collaboration with Director Norman McLeod. They laid their scene in New York, with the swank Colony Restaurant, a fox hunt, the World's Fair and palatial country estates among the varied and interesting backgrounds. Miss Garson wears seventeen ultra-modern gowns, suits and dresses as charmingly as she did her period wardrobe in "Chips".

Billie Burke heads a notable supporting cast which also features Reginald Owen, George Barbier, Henry Travers, Laura Hope Crews, Richard Carle, Sara Haden, Sig Rumann, Halliwell Hobbs and Paul Hurst. Milton Bren brought the film to the screen with McLeod directing, the producer-director team that made the merry "Topper" pictures.

Rogers Claims New Hit.

Charles R. Rogers, producer responsible for a long line of hit pictures—his most recent was "The Star Maker" starring Bing Crosby—believes that he has a new one in "Our Neighbors—the Carters". A drama of family life in a small town, it features Fay Bainter, Frank Craven, Edmund Lowe and Genevieve Tobin, and is announced as the added feature attraction at the Belle Theatre. Not just another "family" picture, it is a tender and searching study of the Carters and their five children, of their joys and sorrows.

The popular Belle News of the Day will be exhibited on the same program.

"The Great Victor Herbert."

"The Great Victor Herbert," 1940's glorious musical romance, featuring Allan Jones, Mary Martin, Walter Connolly and the sensational singing discovery, Susanna Foster, will be presented at the Belle tonight for the last times. A rare treat is in store for music lovers as Victor Herbert's songs are introduced during the action of the story.. Three entertaining short treats precede the feature attraction.

It's Melvyn Douglas, as "The Amazing Mr. Williams," and Joan Blondell, as his dumb-as-a-fox fiancee, in the hectic, hilarious new comedy coming to the McCarthy Theatre next. "The Amazing Mr. Williams" was directed by Alexander Hall, who also wielded the megaphone on the co-stars' previous Columbia hits, "There's Always a Woman" and "Good Girls Go to Paris." The cast includes Ruth Donnelly, Edward Brophy, Clarence Kolb, John Wray, Donald MacBride, Don Beddoe, Barbara Pepper, Luis Alberni and a score of others!

The program in addition to "The Amazing Mr. Williams" includes the three stooges, Larry, Curly and Moe in their latest all-fun slapstick comedy "Oily to Bed and Oily to Rise" and an excellent technicolor cartoon "Graduation Exercises."

Benefits of Your "Put-up Jobs,,

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

YOUR "put-up jobs" will come in handy now! You store jams and jellies and preserves for winter; well, it's winter now so off the shelf with 'em! "Put-ups" have uses besides covering a slice of bread. They will go into a cake or frosting, lend flavor and color to frozen desserts, perk up puddings, and they figure in these recipes.

Orange Marmalade Squares are made with two tablespoons shortening, two-thirds cup sugar, two eggs, two-thirds cup orange marmalade, two-thirds cup bran, two-thirds cup flour, teaspoon baking powder, teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup chopped, salted almonds. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Add marmalade and bran. Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture with nutmeats, and mix well. Bake in square pan with waxed paper in bottom, in 375 degrees F. oven for about 25 minutes. While warm, cut into squares and roll in powdered sugar, if desired. Yield: two dozen one and one-half-inch squares.

Spiced Jelly Sauce will add kitchen oomph to puddings, fritters and such served hot, or served cold with blanc mange and ice cream. Combine in top of double boiler the following items: three-fourths cup currant jelly, one-fourth cup water, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon grated orange rind, one-eighth teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg and a dash of allspice. Cook mixture over boiling water two minutes, beating constantly. Yield: one cup.

New Nut Salad

Banana Jam Nut Salad is made with one ripe banana, jam, mayonnaise, chopped nuts and salad greens. Peel and cut lengthwise a ripe banana, and place, cut sides up, on salad plate. Spread jam on banana and top with mayonnaise or cream dressing. Sprinkle with chopped nuts and garnish with greens. One or two servings.

Brazil Nut Blackberry Jam Cake is a noble accompaniment to hot coffee when something more than just plain cake cookies is indicated. Make it with three cups sifted flour, two teaspoons phosphate type baking powder, teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, teaspoon cinnamon, one cup sour milk (or buttermilk) one cup chopped Brazil nuts, teaspoon cloves, two-thirds cup shortening, one and one-half cups sugar, three well-beaten eggs, one cup blackberry jam (strained of all seeds). Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt, soda and spices. Cream shortening until soft and smooth, gradually adding sugar. Mix thoroughly. Beat in eggs and strained jam. Add flour alternately with milk (about one-third at a time), beating smooth after each addition. Turn into three eight-inch layer pans, greased and lined with waxed paper. Bake in 350 degrees F. for about 30 minutes. Put layers together and spread top with blackberry frosting.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, January 10

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

GENERALLY propitious and progressive configurations contribute to make this a pleasant, profitable and satisfactory day, despite some trivial delays or obstacles, which might be due to a depressed physical condition. It is a particularly favorable time for dealing with large corporations, big business, political, diplomatic or fraternal organizations, regarding promotion or financial support in putting over new projects of importance. Move toward high goals with assurance and initiative.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a generally progressive and fortunate year, with much success in dealing with those in influential positions whose cooperation may be desired for developing new projects of major importance. Government, political or secret bodies may be approached for favors with confidence. There may be interference with such ambitious plans by a depressed physical or mental condition unless these be safeguarded.

A child born on this day may be ambitious and capable, with splendid creative and executive ability, which may attract the support and friendly co-operation of those in influence and standing.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She is Quick-Tempered

Dear Miss Fairfax

My girl friend is rather quick-tempered and consequently, now and then, says things that she really doesn't mean, and for which she is sorry afterwards. Do you think I show a weak character and no backbone by not getting sore and staying away for a few days? I try to tell her in a nice way to have better control of herself and am patient with her. She's a very intelligent girl in all respects but for this temper. Do you suppose this will make her gradually drift away from me, and be the cause of our breaking up?

Dave

It seems to me that it would take quite a bit of courage and plenty of backbone to be able to quietly stand your ground and tell a girl who is indulging in a fit of temper to try and have better control of herself. No weakness in character could be attributed to you, so far as I can see. In fact, I believe it would do her good if you stay away from her for a week or so, and let her see the harm she is doing both of you.

A Great Talker in Company, But Quiet at Home

Dear Miss Fairfax

I'm married to a man who must find me very dull. He never discusses any subject with me; hardly ever talks at home. He never tells me a thing he has done all day in business. If he happens to see anyone we know he never mentions it. He seems to have an idea he cannot take me into his confidence, and I can't understand that. I'm not a great talker myself, and never discuss private affairs with outsiders. He's a great talker in company.

I'm considered an intelligent person; have had a couple of years at college, and am a fair conversationalist. Can you figure out my problem?

G.

Perhaps your husband is worried about business or isn't feeling well, and wants to be quiet when he comes home from the office. He may confide in you later. In the meantime, try not to worry about it. Don't ask any questions, but show your devotion by having everything fresh and attractive at home, and by giving him well-balanced but economical meals. There are many little ways to flatter a man, and it is surprising how quickly they respond to this treatment.

The Other Girls Talk Behind Her Back

Dear Miss Fairfax

I'm working in a small restaurant where the other girls are very jolly and always have an answer ready for anything that is said. I'm rather quiet, but they're all noisy. I think I'm self-conscious, but I'm honest, fair and neat, while the other girls are rather messy in appearance, but they're good talkers, which seems to get them places. They talk behind my back, which makes me so mad sometimes I could just scream.

Around my own kind of people, I feel more like myself, and am jolly but at my work I seem to be lifeless. Tell me how I could get along better. I wouldn't have time to go to school, and if I read, I couldn't even understand what I'm reading.

Marca

The loud-talking girls, who are inclined to be messy probably resent your good breeding, and they may think you're a trifle high-hat. Don't let their treatment of you get you down. If you force yourself to be pleasant to them, they'll probably come 'round and see how silly is their one-sided warfare.

Here's a true story about your type of girl. The situation was identical with yours. Among the young men, who used to go to a certain restaurant when the great Northwest was opening up many years ago, was one who became famous as a railroad king, and made millions. The loud-talking girls chattered, joked and were quite lively with him. But he married the quiet girl. And in the words of the old fairy story, "they lived happily ever after". Any old railroad man will give you the name of this railroad king, who died only a few years ago.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Eating Chicken

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

A group of us recently had a discussion as to whether chicken should be picked up in the fingers or eaten with a fork. We would also like to know if what the hostess did would be the determining factor as to whether the guests followed her example? Even if what she did was not correct?

Please put us straight on this.

Readers

If you are eating with people who are careful about their table manners and who appreciate carefulness in the table manners of those with whom they are eating, you will, if you wish to be considered a "careful eater," eat chicken with your fork and knife.

If you eat chicken (or chops) with your fingers, it's inevitable that your fingers will be messy, that your lips will be smeared, and that your table napkin will be messy. Now this is all an ugly sight, and therefore not good table manners!

If your hostess suggests, "Let's take the chicken bones in our fingers", and you may or may not follow her suggestion. I've heard a great many hostesses suggest this, and I've seen a great many people go right on eating the chicken with their knives and forks.

Who Calls First?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

An old friend of mine was married about a month ago. She had a quiet wedding, no one attending except her family and a few friends. I gave her a very nice wedding gift, also shower gifts. We entertained my friend and her fiance several times at dinner at home before their marriage.

The point is, we have been told that it is our duty to invite them to dinner at our home again before they invite us to their home. I was under the impression that they should invite us first.

Althea

The relatives and friends of the bride and groom go to call on the bride after they are settled in their new home, or after the date mentioned in the At Home cards, if these cards have been sent out. But there is no rule that the friends of the couple should invite them to dine.

Usually there have been so many parties given for the couple before their marriage that, after the wedding, they are happy at the opportunity of returning this hospitality. And so they are the ones who plan dinners and so forth in their new home for their friends.

You and your husband were so generous in hospitality and gifts to these friends before their marriage, that I am sure they will very soon invite you to share their hospitality in their new home.

What to Say at Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

At a shower given for me by my friends and relatives, what would be the proper thing to say when thanking them all, after the gifts have been opened?

Dorothy

Far the better and more gracious plan is for you to thank each giver individually, as you open each gift. This personalizes your thanks, makes them more timely.

That is, as you open a gift, thank the giver for her thoughtfulness, and then chat about the gift enthusiastically.

Then, a day or two after the shower, you should write a note of thanks to each giver.

Despite Years, Mrs. Morrow Active Red Cross Worker

In Last War Knit 100 Pairs of Socks and Expects to Equal Record in This One

83 YEARS OLD

Stirling, Jan. 9—(Special)—During the European war of 1914-18 one of the most enthusiastic patriots on the home front was Mrs. Mary Morrow, well-known Stirling resident, who provided no less than a hundred pairs of socks for the Canadian troops in France. At that time she worked in conjunction with the River Valley Branch of the Ontario Women's Institute and her flying needles gained little rest until the hundred pair mark was reached, a service worthy women many years her junior.

Today, at the age of eighty-three her patriotism still flames forth and anxious to serve in the best way she could) she offered her services to the Stirling Branch of the Red Cross for knitting socks for the soldiers. Twenty five years after establishing her enviable record of 100 pair she has set-to with an eagerness that will bring forth more results. Already four pair have been completed, tied together and pressed and are waiting to be picked up by the officers in charge of such collection.

Needles are laid aside only when friends call to visit or other work demands her attention. Asked if it bothered her eyes to do so much Mrs. Morrow said she could knit in the dark and often does so listening to the radio and knitting socks for the boys over there is her favorite pastime in these cold winter days and evenings.

This very alert and charming lady came to Stirling district in 1878 after her marriage to Chas. Morrow who passed away several years ago. Her life has been a busy one but she has travelled to many parts of the continent broadening her knowledge of human nature, places and modern trends. "I have travelled in many parts of western Canada and as far west in the United States as Seattle Washington and I never looked upon any community I liked better than River Valley where I spent the greater part of my life."

Gave Community its Name

Incidentally it was Mrs. Morrow and her late husband that gave River Valley it's present name. Her husband for many years was a member of the School Board of that section and many years ago, when the old log school house was replaced with a modern brick structure Mr. and Mrs. Morrow thought it's name should be changed. Today a large stone over the front entrance gives the school section number and the name River Valley School House which for many years was known as Sagar's School House A thriving community spirit is now centered about the name River Valley. Truly no more appropriate name could have been selected for the community is settled in the Trent River valley. There now is River Valley Study Group and River Valley has become a district well known for it's special functions.

Faithful in Church Work

Since 1878 the Morrows have been among the most faithful members of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling and there is never a Sunday passes but at least some of the members are in their place of worship.

Turning back to the subject of knitting socks for soldiers, Mrs. Morrow said that the new regulations requiring a fifteen inch leg was the only change since the old days. Also since the last war an easier method of turning the heel had come into being. She then displayed the four pair already completed and visitors surveyed the faultless work in wonder.

Mrs. Morrow and her late husband left the farm several years ago to live in Stirling and the work for which they laid the foundation is now being carried on by their sons Messrs Earl and Edgar Morrow, well known Sidney farmers and their grandsons. River Valley and Stirling are indeed proud to acknowledge the war efforts of this staunch English-Canadian patriot. Mrs. Morrow was born at Bath, Ontario, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Goodhew, who came to that locality from England.

WINTER BRINGS HEALTH HAZARDS

By McKEOWN'S Drug Store

At the season of the year when children need all their energy, good spirits and intelligence, to employ in school and the business of acquiring an education, there is a constant menace to their health.

Moving continually from warm rooms at home and at school into the uncertain temperatures of Winter days, they are more open to hazards of health than at any other time.

A doctor's examination should be a matter of course. Perhaps your children can stand the ravages of Winter days and constant change in temperatures. If so, it will relieve your mind to know that fact. If they cannot, you should know that too.

Check frequently with the doctor. Follow his advice in the matter of habits and health. Take all prescriptions to a good druggist.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Overweight and Blood Pressure

Many smile as they speak of a friend as acquiring, or having acquired a "middle-aged spread" although he is in his early thirties. As a matter of fact, this individual is or has aged himself by a number of years. So true is this that when the overweight individual of 35 who has the shape and excess weight of a man of 40, applies for life insurance, his premium costs him exactly as much as a man of 40 or normal weight.

Aside from the natural disadvantages of overweight which slow up the individual's physical activities, one of the more serious results is the increase in blood pressure. It has long been said that a man is as old as his arteries, meaning that as the arteries (bloodvessels) lose some of their elastic tissue, the loss is made up by hard or non-elastic tissue. As blood cannot be pumped into a hard resisting tube as easily as into one that is soft and elastic, the heart has to use that much more pressure to push blood onward. This means more wear and tear on the heart.

Even when the bloodvessels have not lost their elastic tissue, excess weight makes it necessary for the heart to push more blood through the bloodvessels and the pressure must needs be higher.

In Proceedings of Life Extension Examinations, Dr. H. A. Ley says: "As age increases and its accompanying changes take place in the body, it is well known that an increase in weight will usually be related to an increase in tension of the bloodvessels— increased blood pressure. After a reduction in weight of five per cent or more, the blood pressures of a group of 3516 applicants for life insurance were reduced despite the fact that the applicants were then five years older. Increases in weight showed greater increases in blood pressure than might be attributed to advancing age. Loss of weight in people of normal weight produced greater reductions than did similar losses in the overweight. Gain in weight among the normal-weight persons showed less increase in blood pressure than similar gains among the overweight".

In every way, then, and particularly in blood pressure, the advantage from health and length of life standpoint is always with one of normal weight.

Sir Frederick Banting To be in Charge of Research Laboratory

Toronto, Jan. 9 (CP).—Sir Frederick Banting, famous Canadian scientist and co-discoverer of insulin, will take charge of a research laboratory at a new military hospital to be erected and equipped by the Canadian Red Cross on the grounds of Lady Astor's estate at Taplow, England. Norman Somerville, chairman of the society, made an announcement to this effect last night.

The laboratory will be devoted to special research medicine as applied to military needs. Sir Frederick is already in England and is expected to supervise construction of the laboratory. The hospital, to be known as Number One Canadian Red Cross Base Hospital, will be built entirely with funds supplied by the Canadian Red Cross.

In the first Great War, Sir Frederick served in France as a lieutenant in the Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Bad Playmate Better Than None?

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

IF MY READERS were to share with me all the letters and verbal accounts I get from parents and youths about the sufferings from timidity and loneliness of those whose parents would not let them, especially in early childhood, play with other children, for fear these other children might contaminate their morals, practically none would arrive at the conclusion of the mother who wrote the following:

"Dear Dr. Myers,—Our only child is a girl of three and a half years. She has played alone perfectly, except for about one month last summer when I thought she might be weary playing alone. But that one trial convinced me that she was being shown anything but lady-like things from one or two other little girls her own age that I had previously thought to be very well behaved children.

Won't Let Her Mingle

"Since the depression our neighborhood has been anything but the best, although we are more or less compelled to stay, and since Baby gets on so well by herself at play, I do not let any other children come to play with her or let her play with them. Consequently, she is much older than three and a half; as a matter of fact, the questions she asks and the manner in which she answers show us clearly that she is very smart. . . .

"The point is, people are inclined to think I am making her snobbish. This is untrue, but I have taken care not to let her mingle with other children that are not absolutely clean and well-mannered. It would make me a nervous wreck watching to see that they did not get too close, etc. . . .

"Would you advise me to continue the way I have been doing or could you give me any suggestions?"

How I answered this mother:

"I can see how you have reasoned and how eager you are to protect your fine little girl. But you have overlooked the fact that your daughter will eventually go out into a real world and mingle with all sorts of people. Even after a few years you won't be able to shelter her nearly all the while, no matter how hard you try.

Personal Suffering

"You also have failed to realise the amount of personal suffering in terms of timidity and loneliness (feelings of inferiority) this child will experience as she grows older, if she continues to keep away from other children of her age. Perhaps the only way for a child to learn to be likable and to be happy and comfortable among others of his age, especially in the teens, is by mingling rather freely with numerous other children in the free-for-all, rough-and-tumble of the neighborhood.

"Let me entreat you to attract a few children her age to your home and have them play where you can see them; also to encourage your little daughter to play out-of-doors in safe places. You need not be much concerned about what she will hear since you have her complete confidence and answer all her questions. Your love and wise guidance can easily armour her against such hazards".

'CHIN UP' REVUE IS GRAND SHOW

Former Dumbell Stars Delight Crowded Audiences Everywhere

Well meriting the fine reception accorded performances, Chin Up, the first of Canada's modern wartime revues seems certain of playing to a capacity house this Thursday. Unsparing in his allotment of feature spots to the old favourites, Ross Hamilton, Red Newman and Pat Rafferty stars of the famous Dumbells the producer has lined up a high-class group of supporting performers.

His falsetto voice hardly as fresh as in former days when his appearances caused audiences to rave with delight, Ross Hamilton as Marjorie still effervesces a charm that wins instant approval. During the show "she" appears in five different costumes all of which have been specially designed.

Red Newman and Pat Rafferty are the team of old with many new songs and take-offs of current events. Just to prove that they had not forgotten the offerings which were hits during the first Great War and subsequently, the former gives a rendition of O It's a Lovely War while Pat carols his bridesmaid song in his own inimitable style.

Red was given a particularly warm reception when, with an impersonation of Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain he rendered We'll Roll Up the Old Umbrella, the recent popular hit composed by Reginald T. Sloan, Hamilton lawyer.

The chorus of dancing girls is just about tops while the male quartet gives much zest to the revue. Their Toast to The Navy proves exceptionally good. Ballet dancing of excellent taste and an acrobatic dance in which the female partner does all of the heavy work wins the approbation of all.

The management urges the patrons to buy early to avoid disappointment. Seats are now on sale from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The Crippled Child

Six of every thousand children in this world today are crippled, and it seems to me that a crippled child is more deserving of sympathy than almost any other human being. His affliction in nearly all cases is no fault of his. Yet he may have to suffer because of it all of his life. In childhood it may cause him the loss of most of the joys of others of his age, and perhaps a great deal of loneliness. Very often there is also recurring pain connected with his particular condition. As he grows up the injury or deformity may naturally affect every phase of his existence and it may warp his whole outlook on life until he is a bitter and frustrated person.

Fortunately, the problem of the crippled child is being given a lot of attention now. Prospects of all are far different from those a hundred years ago when the crippled child could expect little or no help from doctors. There was almost no orthopedic surgery in those days, for one thing. The cripple was usually deprived of an education, because of having to stay home, unless his family was one of the very few prosperous enough to afford a private tutor. Also many parents in those days were superstitious enough to believe that a crippled child was a "punishment", imposed on them for some offense, and they dared not attempt to alleviate its condition. Belief that the sins of the parents must be visited upon the children has resulted in many tragedies.

In this day and age, thankfully, there is more than a fair chance that a crippled child may be cured by surgery. Educational facilities are arranged for crippled children in most communities so that they receive the same advantages as their healthy friends. When they are able to leave him, special schools train them in vocations in which their disabilities will not be disad-their disabilities will not be disadhave become some of the greatest and happiest men and women of our time.

A century ago about one child in four was crippled, most of them born with some congenital defect. Spread of knowledge of proper pre-natal care and advances in surgical correction of defects at birth have been great factors in reducing the number to the present average of seven per thousand. Post-natal surgery is reducing the figure still more. A few decades ago children born with a club-foot were considered doomed to be cripples all their lives. This trouble can be corrected now without much difficulty.

In my own small practise at Callander, over a period of 30 years, I have seen a great many children born with physical defect that in any earlier day would have clung to them for life. Yet many are normal citizens today because of orthopedic surgery.

About 11 per cent of today's crippled children are crippled because of avoidable accidents. We all know what a toll traffic mishaps take amongst our young. In a great many of these cases the fault lies with the child, but how can we expect children to be careful unless we teach them to be as cautious on a road as around a hot stove?

I have often observed that couples, in choosing a site for a home, do not give enough thought to traffic conditions and dangers their children will be exposed to. I have known couples to devote a great deal of attention to the convenience of a home location for themselves, to the scenery around it, and to everything else except the fact that their children will have to cross six or seven busy streets to get to school.

FROZEN PLUMBING AND RADIATORS REPORTED

Frozen radiators and water-pipes were evidence again today of the below-zero weather of last night. Garages reported several luckless motorists who awakened to find cars frozen while plumbers of the city were called out several times to thaw out pipes that had suffered from the nocturnal visits of Jack Frost.

Carrots for Safer Night Driving

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Can you tell me why a friend of mine who has had several accidents driving at night was advised to eat carrots?

I presume his adviser thought your friend was suffering from night blindness. This is supposed to be due to a deficinecy of vitamin A. Vitamin A is contained in vegetables which have a yellowish color—carrots, corn, squash, pumpkin, etc. The chemical substance in these colored vegetables turns into vitamin A after being absorbed in the human body. It is called "carotene."

For those who really suffer from night blindness, carotene sharpens the vision and enables a person to see better in the dark. At any rate, the juice of the carrot can certainly be advised for the motorist at night over the juice of the grape.

Heparin, Aid to Coagulation

What is the nature and what are the uses of the new drug, heparin?

Heparin is a natural anti-coagulant. It increases the coagulation time of the blood up to 15 or 20 minutes and the exact time of coagulation can be controlled by giving proper amounts of the drug.

Its principal use so far has been for patients before or shortly after operation, in order to prevent post-operative accidents due to coagulation of the blood in the blood vessels (thrombosis).

In a selected series of cases requiring extensive and severe surgery, it was found that two and one-half per cent of the patients suffered from Thrombosis without the use of heparin, while a control series, in which heparin was given, showed an incidence of only a little less than one-half of one per cent.

It is also used in phlebitis, a condition in which a clot forms in the veins of the leg, and it has been found quite useful.

Sobriety Test For Motorists

What is the chemical reaction of the common sobriety test used by police to test motorists?

The question states that "A friend of mine recently was taken to a police station and required to undergo a sobriety test before he was released. He said that he had to breathe into a glass tube connected with a bottle filled with a colored fluid. His breath bubbled through the liquid. He understood that if the liquid changed color it would be a positive test and would indicate that he was under the influence of alcohol."

The test as described is a colorometric test to detec minute traces of alcohol. The colored fluid is potassium permanganate, and the test depends upon the principle of the reduction of alcohol by potassium permanganate in the presence of sulphuric acid. Alcohol would decolor the fluid. It is a relatively delicate test. Minute amounts of alcohol are present in the breath and are retained in the mouth when a person has been drinking. This trace appears in the breath.

Confidentially, however, the test is fairly easy to beat. Three or four deep breaths and four or five swallows or a drink of water will clear the breath and the mouth of all except the most minute traces of alcohol. If a suspected motorist is not alert enough to take this precaution, he deserves to flunk his sobriety test.

DO YOU serve liver often to your family? It contains many valuable food attributes, and aids in making good red blood and avoiding nutritional anemia. There are many ways besides the usual liver and bacon way of cooking liver, and you may like to try this casserole of liver.

Liver en Casserole—Ingredients: two pounds beef or pork liver, four slices of bacon, two teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons ketchup, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, one onion, sliced, salt and pepper. Have beef or pork liver left in a chunky piece. Place it in a greased baking dish. Lay bacon slices over the top. Slice onion over the meat, add Worcestershire sauce, ketchup, green pepper, salt and pepper, and enough hot water to almost cover. Put in a slow oven (300 F.) and cook until liver is done, about one and one-half hours. Remove the cover for the last 15 minutes of cooking to brown the bacon slices.

Pumpkin Chiffon Pie — Ingredients: one cooled, baked nine-inch pie shell, one tablespoon gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one cup brown sugar (packed in cup), one half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon allspice, one and one-third cups cooked and strained pumpkin (No. 1 can), three egg yolks, one-half cup milk. Soak gelatin in cold water, then mix brown sugar, salt and spices together in top of double boiler; stir in pumpkin. Beat egg yolks until light and blend in milk; add egg yolks and milk to pumpkin mixture and mix thoroughly. Place over boiling water and cook until mixture thickens and flavors are blended, about ten minutes. Remove from heat and beat in soaked gelatin, using rotary beater. Cool until it begins to set (15 to 20 minutes), then beat until fluffy with rotary egg beater. Make meringue by beating egg whites with one-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar and beating in gradually six tablespoons granulated sugar. Fold meringue into pumpkin mixture and pile lightly into pie shell. Chill until ready to serve.

Moonlight Sonata

By ALICE ALDEN

HERE IS the moonlight sonata in fashions. Fresh white ranunculi, instead of jewels, add beauty to the white chiffon of the Grecian-styled gown that is draped over the shoulders and banded below the bust. The flowers are used with dark green gardenia leaves, twined to outline the heart-shaped neckline of the dress. A few of the blossoms nestle in the hair but would be equally effective as a corsage on the wrist. All it takes to accent your costume with floral fragrance and color is a little time and ingenuity. It's sometimes impossible to find the right earrings or necklace in a hurry, but florists never fail the lady in distress, whether she visits the shop or asks wire service.

Pose Paws Prettily

By HELEN FOLLETT

LET A woman make fists of her hands, plank them on her hips and she looks bossy or shrewish. Let her place the backs of her hands on her hips, fingers pointed downward, and she becomes a pretty picture. By little things like that are we judged. The eye of the casual observer is keen; and it is critical.

Watch your feet as well as your hands. Pose them prettily. Don't place them very far apart when you walk, a habit assumed by some of the athletically-inclined youngsters. Hips sway and hip swinging just shouldn't be done. It makes one conspicuous.

When sitting, fold the hands in the lap or rest them gracefully on the chair arms. Hands planked on the knees looks yokelish. Cross your ankles, if you like, but not your knees. Maybe we sound old-fashioned, but manners are changing with changes in clothes, and being lady-like is an old idea that has been revived.

Restless girls sit on the edge of a chair as if they were about to leap in the air and run away, which does not make for a pretty attitude. Sit far back, keep the chest lifted, head balanced. Don't forget that you were given a spinal column for a purpose. Use it.

Be mindful of appearance, of which posture and grace are two important elements.

Under-nourishment brings along a trail of beauty griefs. The tissues of the face lose firmness, fibers go slack. Coloring is not good, being grey or sallow.

The health of the hair is likely to suffer, finger-nails may break easily, develop ridges. We are offering this information to the nibbler who never downs a woman's-sized meal. You can't run the human engine without fuel.

The most important factor in good looks and happiness of mind is the balanced diet, which consists of meat, fish, poultry, cereals, nuts, vegetables, fruit, cheese, milk.

Cleaning up the Holidays

By ELEANOR ROSS

IT'S A GENERAL thing, after the holidays, to find finger marks and grease spots on wallpaper. Then it behooves the good housewife to restore the wallpaper to its former unmarked beauty. Of course, if the paper is one that has been guaranteed as washable, then the task is not so onerous. Use a pure neutral soap, clean cloth or sponge, taking care to employ a circular motion and to use as little moisture as possible. Never let water seep into seams or backing.

But be sure that the paper is really washable before you endeavor to wash it. If there is a piece of a roll left over, try the washing method on it before attacking the paper on the wall.

Finger marks or small spots will often yield to kneaded rubber of the type used by artists. Shape the rubber to a pencil point with your fingers and touch the spot repeatedly but lightly until the mark disappears. Make and use a clean point as soon as the old one is a bit soiled; otherwise you'll work the mark further into the paper. Stale bread will sometimes do a good job on finger marks, but we have found the rubber better.

Removing Ink Spots

Ink spots will generally yield to a good ink eradicator, which can be obtained in hardware or office equipment shops. Use this carefully and sparingly. Apply with a fine water-color brush so that none of it drips down the wallpaper. Some colors in wallpaper designs are not fast, and they may come away with the ink stain. If this happens, or if the pattern is blurred, touch it up with water colors or soft crayons. A little care and a good eye for the pattern should result in a good touch-up job.

Oil and grease stains can generally be handled with a cleaner of the home-made variety. The tried and trusted favorite is a solution of Fuller's earth with a good dry cleaning fluid, worked until it becomes a smooth paste. This paste is spread over the soiled portion of the paper. When thoroughly dry, it is brushed off. The application should be repeated until the stain is removed; usually two or three applications will take care of even a bad job. If there is a ring after removing the Fuller's earth, an additional application of the paste will remove the ring. Never, never have an open light or a lighted cigarette near when working with this mixture, even if the cleaner is indicated as non-inflammable. Be careful, anyhow, for the friction may set up sparks that may ignite the cleaner. Work gently.

Keep radiators thoroughly clean. Their soil is carried up with the heat and in time leaves a grimy patch on the wall above. Dust and vacuum-clean thoroughly and then apply one of the commercial cleaners recommended by the wallpaper people. A call to any wallpaper house, with a description of the type of paper, will bring information concerning the best type of commercial cleaner. Follow directions.

Always give wallpaper constant attention, wiping it down with clean dusters and mops as often as possible. Loose dust and dirt won't have a chance to settle. Get after stains at once, too. The longer they remain, the more difficult it is to cope with them.

Three-Minute Journey to..

Salt Lake City

By TEMPLE MANNING

Imagine having mountains that seem to hover right over the town's principal thoroughfare, buildings that seem hewn out of the towering peaks, and views that are breathtaking in their beauty, plus a delightful climate and a refreshing mountain air. That's the description of Salt Lake City, to this traveler's mind one of the loveliest and most interesting cities in America.

Salt Lake City is 4,354 feet above sea level, nestling between the Watsash Mountains and Great Salt Lake. The metropolitan skyline, silhouetted against the gleaming waters of Great Salt Lake, is a memorable sight, one that can be duplicated nowhere else. But what we enjoy is to stand at a downtown corner and gaze through the wide, straight streets at the half-circling wall of mountains which seem so surprisingly near and surprisingly immense.

There are many views and vistas within the city, the prize one being the historic square that encloses the Mormon Temple, Tabernacle and Assembly Hall, buildings that are in marked contrast to the little house, the oldest in Utah, which is on display in Temple Square. In Temple Square, too, is the only monument to wild bird life in the world, a memorial to seagulls.

Pioneer Monument

At South Temple and Main Streets, the meridian of the city, is Pioneer Monument, with its bronze figure of Brigham Young. Eagle Gate, which spans State Street, was once the entrance to Young's estate. Not far off is the imposing edifice that houses the general offices of the Mormon church.

The beautiful capitol building, overlooking the entire city and valley, is a place of contrasts. In one section one finds the rare pioneer relics, which include the first spinning whel seen in Utah, and the first piano, hauled a thousand miles across the plains by oxcart. In another part is the ornate governor's reception room, with its gold-inlaid furniture, its almost pure silver and gold chandeliers, and its gold-trimmed draperies. It's like something out of the palaces of old Romanov Russia.

Nature, aided by man, has done a swell job of providing amusements areas for the good people of Salt Lake City. On a pier one mile out on the Great Salt Lake is Saltair Beach, a spot that's worth coming clear across the continent to see. The water, about 27 per cent salt, buoys up the swimmer. Gentle waves cradle him, even if he never swam a stroke before. Saltair, reacred via a paved speedway in 15 minutes, is a marvelous amusement spot. Then there's Lagoon Resort, with its dancing, boating, swimming, water tobogganning and various resort attractions. It is typical that when one writes of Salt Lake City, the resort spots loom so large in the picture.

Caroline Chatfield Says Today

Others' Feelings, First Lesson for Dealing with Public.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

For a year I've been trying to land in an exclusive shop and now that I am to go to work next week I'm terrified. I have never had to meet the public and am very shy with people I know well. I'm not only worried about being a good salesperson but worried about getting on with the other girls in the shop. They have the reputation of being holty-toity and you know how that would affect a girl with a bad inferiority complex. Please make some practical suggestions.

M.B.

Answer:

A New Year, a new job, a new ambition! You can't fail. Do your thinking about yourself and your personal problems after you turn out your light at night, and when you wake up in the morning do your thinking about the job, the shop, the people you are thrown with. That's the beginning. Nobody can read your mind. Everybody judges you by what you say and how you say it, by your manners and gestures, by your attitude to others and by your reaction to what others do and say. Nobody gives you credit for the struggle that goes on within. Everybody marks you up or down by what you show to the world.

I know one woman who goes through life making the path smooth and pleasant for other people. Each new acquaintance is a new friend if she ever sees her again. Recently I have had occasion to observe her at close range and this is what I have noted. She never omits any little courtesy, however infinitesimal it may seem at the moment and her courtesies are never obtrusive. Somehow she always goes out of the door last without apparent effort to let others pass first. In general conversation she waits until the others had their say before she comes up with hers and when she does it is never a dogmatic statement "beginning with I and ending with me" but rather a modest suggestion that what she has to offer may be acceptable.

When she is forced to express an opinion of a person that isn't complimentary it is done in such a way that if the person heard it, no offense could be taken. A French pig sniffing for truffles is no more expert than she is in discovering something commendable in the way her friends and associates have handled themselves in trying situations. She has mastered the art of dropping a word here and there that indicates her approval of something a friend or acquaintance has said or done. There's no hint of flattery in her comments but rather she leaves the impression that she is merely giving credit where credit is due. She has a lovely sense of humor with all the cruelty drained out of it. So she laughs at people without ridiculing them and laughs with them in good fellowship.

The secret of this woman's smooth and pleasant relationship with all sorts and conditions of people is that she thinks of others first and herself last. Consequently she doesn't tread on sore toes, doesn't ask embarrassing personal questions, doesn't take liberties with friends, doesn't throw out her opinions as a challenge to argument, doesn't make catty remarks nor interpret other people's catty remarks as directed at her. She doesn't get her feelings hurt because she assumes that the other fellow wants what she wants; to keep all relationships and all contacts pleasant and agreeable.

To make friends we have to forget ourselves. To save our lives, we have to lose them. First we must be convinced that this is true or we won't pay the price for friends or for full living.

Belleville Quinties Display Excellent Team Play, Speed In Defeating Trenton 12-1

First Two Periods Practically Sell Junior Hockey to the 500 Present

LEO GOYER STARS

Kicks in With 5 Goals and an Assist Closely Followed by Jack Bundy

"Toots" Holway's Belleville "Quintes" moved into the undisputed leading position of the Bay of Quinte Junior O.H.A. group with a 12 to 1 win over the now second-place Trenton kids at the Hume Arena here last evening when the Belleville teen-aged pucksters raced to well deserved victory over Rose Burtt's courageous kids.

Showing too much team-play and individual effort, the Belleville kids out-scored their Trenton rivals in every period; leading 2-1; 6-1 and finally 12-1 in one of the fastest and cleanest hockey games seen locally in years. The homesters were paced by Leo Goyer, the three-year veteran junior, who scored five goals and added to his prowess with a third-period assist. Following in line was Jack Bundy, Belleville's newly-acquired centre-player, who helped himself to three good counters and a timely assist, as Goyer and Bundy continued to make plays and pace the Holway-led sextette to victory.

Despite the rather one-sided score, the first two periods saw the fastest type of modern hockey seen in the Hume Arena in some considerable time, although some 500 faithful patrons witnessed the exhibition. The courageous Trenton sextette skated fast on a keen sheet of ice and at no time reverted to unsportsman-like effort, when defeat was inevitable.

Goalie Outstanding

Anderson, the Trenton goalie, was out standing as the individual player of the game as he literally kicked and booted the puck from his citadel in protection as the Holway-led kids swarmed around the Trenton goal. Following Anderson in fine performance were Burtt and Orser on the defence, McColl, Watson, Inglis and Weller. "Toots" Holway's homesters showed more actual team-play than has been disclosed in the past two seasons, with Storms, Clare, Gerow and Butler following the goal getters, as Kiniski returned to the fold with his speed, while Everett and Hook steadied the defence.

The shots on net by periods were:

Belleville .... 13.9.9.—31
Trenton .... 6.6.4.—16

The line ups:

Belleville—Goal, Cook; defence, Hook and Goyer; centre, Storms; wings, Ethier and Clare; subs, Everett, Bundy, Kiniski, Gerow and Gynn.

Tricolor Strong Contenders for Crown

By the Canadian Press

Judging from their play in their first two games, the Tricolor of Queen's University at Kingston, Ont., are going to be strong contenders this season for the International hockey crown.

Queen's, sharing the lead with University of Toronto, gained its second straight victory last night, trouncing Yale Bulldogs 11-3 in New Haven. That raised Queen's goal total for two games to 21, for on Saturday the Tricolor beat Princeton 10-3.

Norval and Mel Williamson led the Canadian team's attack, Norval scoring four times and Mel scoring twice and assisting in four other goals. R. Neilson had two goals for the Tricolor while Hood, Carter and Lane got singles.

Barnes, McLennan and Rodd scored the Yale goals.

Queen's took a 3-1 lead in the first period when Lane, Neilson and Norval Williamson scored for the Canadians and Rodd for the Bulldogs. In the second period the Tricolor outscored Yale 3-2 and in the third period ran riot with Norval Williamson counting three times and Mel Williamson and Carter once each.

Pro Puck Personalities

RAY GETLIFFE

Canadiens.

Ray Getliffe

Playing his first season with Pete Lepine's Canadiens is Ray Getliffe, who for the three seasons previous had been a regular at left wing with Boston Bruins. Last season was not so good for the blond sniper and on June 29 he was sold to the Flying Frenchmen in a straight cash deal. Ray was first the pro property of the Rangers, who signed him on the strength of his play with St. John Beavers during the 1934-35 season, but he was farmed to the London minor league club, there to be spotted by Bruin scouts. A deal was made and he finished that season (1935-36) as a member of the Bruin cast, seeing only occasional service. However, the next season, his first complete one in the major league, was the best he has yet enjoyed as he bagged 16 goals and was credited with 15 assists. Along with Bill Cowley and Charlie Sands (the latter also a Canadien now) he made up Boston's most effective forward line for a couple of seasons. Born in Galt 25 years ago. Played his first organized hockey with Stratford Midgets—then to St. John, then to the Bruins. In three seasons and a portion of a fourth (his first) he has counted 37 goals, 40 assists for a point total of 77 and has looked on from the penalty bench for 57 minutes.

SMOKIES SHOW HOCKEY FORM

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Jan. 9 (CP).—Perhaps it just needed Arctic blasts to start three former members of the Trail (B.C.) Smoke Eaters, now with Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, towards the hockey form they displayed with the Smokies last season.

Defenceman Mel Snowden and forwards Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak didn't perform as well as expected in the first few games this winter with the Devils, Ontario senior finalists last season. They came into their own last Saturday, however, when the Devils whipped McIntyre Mines 8-2 in 20-below-zero weather.

On lightning-fast ice, the former Smokies accounted for four points and played their best game of the season in the one-sided exhibition victory.

Co-Captain Snowden didn't tally any points but he played a strong game on defence beside Ray Milton, member last season of Port Arthur Bear Cats, Dominion senior titlists. McCreedy, slim winger who had a trial with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League two seasons ago, scored twice, while Kowcinak's heady playmaking earned him two assists.

It was a sad opening of an exhibition tour for the miners, who will play in all cities of the Eastern United States Amateur League during the 12-day trip.

ZEKE BONURA'S CONTRACT CALLS FOR $15,000

Zestful First-Baseman Has Giants on Spot Despite Terry's Prejudice

NOT FIGURED ON

Terry Does Not Plan to Play Bonura Regularly in 1940

New York, Jan. 9—(AP)—Among the 37 players to whom New York Giants announce they have mailed contracts for 1940 is Zeke Bonura, the zestful first-baseman of old New Orleans.

Now, the Giants have got themselves into something of a mess about Zeke. They bought him from Washington for $25,000 last winter and paid him the not unhandsome salary of $15,000 for his season's work.

Manager Bill Terry soured on Zeke about a month before the close of the race. He took Zeke off first and let him do only an occasional chore of pinch-hitting. Indications are that Bonura plays no part whatsoever in Terry's plans for 1940.

Yet the Giants, perforce, have written the big banana merchant out another contract calling for $15,000.

Bonura has the Giants in a spot. He put them there during the recent big league convention, when the Giants were on the verge of trading him to the Phillies. The Phillies, being gun-shy, obtained permission from Terry to call Zeke long-distance and see if he would be willing to play for them at a salary considerably less than $15,000.

Spokesman Just Gasped

Zeke, awakened from a sound sleep, said he would be delighted to play first-base for the Phillies. He said he would be reasonable about his salary, too. He said he thought $17,500 would be about right. The Phillies spokesman only gasped before he hung up.

The news got around, of course, and since then the Giants have been left quietly in possession of Bonura.

The Giants don't want Zeke to get mad at them and hold out, because then their chances of trading or selling him eventually would be materially reduced. He is, after all, a fairly valuable baseball property.

Possibly they will have to fall back on him as their regular first-baseman in the coming race. Babe Young, a former Fordham star, has the inside track on the job, with light-hitting Johnny McCarthy in reserve. Neither is a ball of fire.

Billy Conn Ready to Tackle Big Fellows Even Joe Louis

Pittsburgh Pretty Boy Makes Bow as Heavyweight in New York on Wednesday

SENSATIONAL CAREER

(By Sid Feder Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Jan. 9 (AP)—The big boys in the boxing business may be interested in learning that Billy Conn has it all figured out right now how he can be heavyweight champion of the world just as soon as Manager Johnny Ray "okays" a fight with Joe Louis.

The Pittsburg pretty boy, who makes his bow as a full-fledged heavyweight in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night against Henry Cooper, is so convinced of this that one fine afternoon within the next six months you're going to read where he has abdicated the light heavyweight championship to go against the big fellows exclusively.

"Those big guys are all the same" he said. "They tire easy. When you fight one of 'em, you just let him wear himself out in the first few rounds. Then you just lean one hand against the top of his head, cock the other—and wham!

Loves to Fight

"I love to fight those big clowns more than the guys my own size. A guy who can box around with you always gives trouble. But never those stuffed pillows. They're all the same to me."

This is undoubtedly a large order for the "fighting harp." Just one year ago yesterday, he showed up in New York for the first time, unknown and weighing a mere 168. Now he's king of the 150-pounders and, after his final workout for tomorrow's tussle he weighed an even 175, which probably means he'll go into the ring at 176 or 177.

Three Holes-in-One Within Fifteen Days

Chapel Hill, N.C., Jan. 9 (AP).—Three holes-in-one within fifteen days—such is the feat of Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, former United States Women's Golf champion.

The three aces were all scored on her own home course here—the first Dec. 22 last, the second Dec. 29, and the third last Saturday.

Since she took up golf seven years ago Mrs. Page has made a total of eight holes-in-one.

Revamped Cataracts Defeat Hamilton Dominions 13-3 in O.H.A. Fixture

GOODYEARS WIN

Tiremen Take Luckless Galt Squad 16-3 to Remain on Top Rung

(By the Canadian Press)

Those "down east" teams are not the only ones with a formula for livening up hockey games and opening up the sport. Niagara Falls Cataracts and Toronto Goodyears also have a knack of pumping goals behind rival netminders that leave goalies mumbling to themselves.

The revamped Cataracts, gunning for a play-off berth in the senior "A" section of the Ontario Hockey Association, entertained Hamilton Dominions last night and skated off with a 13-3 triumph. The Goodyears invaded Galt and handed the luckless Moosemen a 16-4 trimming.

Niagara Falls went all out in the first period in search of victory, rapping home five goals without reply. They picked up two more in the second and then collected six in the final.

Steak Morrison paced the Falls sniping brigade with four goals and one assist. Art Stuart grabbed three and Scotty Stirling two. Tony Pavone, Eddie McCracken, Sammy Phillips and Paul Allen each scored one.

Johnny Conick, Hamilton's leading scorer, Hughie Brunnell and Norman Walker, notched for the Dominions.

The Moosemen suffered their 17th consecutive loss in losing to Goodyears and still have to enter the league's win column. Johnny O'Flaherty and Eddie King led the scoring parade with four goals each. Punchy Imlach picked up three and Turney a pair. Jack Draper, Mundrick and Laurent got the others. Liscombe with two, Fox and Morrison scored for Galt.

LOU GEHRIG TAKES OVER NEW POST

This time last year, and for 14 years before that, Lou Gehrig had been awaiting the opening of a spring training session with New York Yankees, but 1940 saw him officially begin his new job as a parole commissioner in New York an appointment he received shortly after a form of infantile paralysis had forced him out of the line-up, ending his string of consecutive major league ball games at 2,130 last May.

NIGHT BASEBALL QUITE POPULAR SAYS HARRIDGE

Assisted American Loop in Attaining Attendance of Previous Year

REVIEWS CENTENNIAL

League Takes Satisfaction in Development of Number of High-Class Rookies

By WILLIAM HARRIDGE

President, American Baseball League.

Chicago, Jan. 9 (AP).—The season of 1939 brought considerable satisfaction to the American League and to me personally.

Thanks to the inauguration of night baseball in three of our cities—Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago—the attendance figures practically equalled those of 1938, despite the fact the pennant was decided early in the season.

There is no doubt of night baseball's popularity. We know what it did in the three cities named above. The fans enjoyed it immensely. I feel sure night baseball is here to stay when limited to seven games a season for each club.

Naturally the American League is happy because it won the all-star game and the world series. It also took great satisfaction in the development of such star youngsters as Outfielder Ted Williams and Third Baseman James Tabor of Boston, Pitcher Atley Donald and Outfielder Charles Keller of New York, Shortstop Louis Boudreau of Cleveland, Outfielder Barney McCosky of Detroit and Catcher Mike Tresh of Chicago.

The season of 1939 will go down in history as the one to which the most sentimentality was attached, because it was "baseball's centennial".

The observance of the centennial of baseball was purely sentimental. No effort was made to commercialize the event and I believe the public now knows that the owners of baseball clubs can be as imbued emotionally as deeply as any other class of business men.

LAWSON LITTLE SCORES UPSET

Cards Brilliant 65 in Last Round to Win Los Angeles Open

Los Angeles, Jan. 9—(AP)— It may take the staid old Los Angeles Country Club a year to recover from the beating it took from the rain, the trooping feet of thousands of golf addicts and Mr. W. Lawson Little in the 1940 Los Angeles Open.

A steady downpour had reduced the club's already tough north course to the status of a quagmire. And then came Lawson Little to hammer par into submission and wreck what had looked like a peaceful finish to the 15th annual Open and victory for a large young man from Linville, N. C., Clayton Heafner.

Little, hungry for laurels, he hadn't found in nearly five years of professional campaigning, finished with a 65 for the round, a 72-hole total of 282. He won a one stroke victory over Heafner, whose 71 for 283 was one too many.

Olin Dutra, Los Angeles, finished third with 285.

Stanley Horne, Montreal professional, was far back with 298. He carded a 78 in yesterday's round.

Suggestion Left Over To Another Season

Montreal, Jan. 9 (CP)—A suggestion that in future no scoring summaries be compiled or issued to newspapers was placed before a meeting of the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night.

President George Slater of the Q. S. H. L. made the suggestion after talking to several coaches who said they felt scoring statistics did not give a true picture of events. The coaches, he said, felt they would get more out of their players and that there would be a minimum of arguments.

This suggestion, and another that only one assist be given on a goal, was discussed but was left over until next season.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Elmer Bonter, our demon Trenton correspondent who keeps us abreast with the sporting activities in and around his favorite haunts, is going to out-smart Mike Jacobs, the well-known New York boxing promoter, we hear. There has been considerable controversy regarding the relative fighting ability of "Jiber" Ellis, the pride of Trenton, and "Hub" Smith, former Kingston pro., now with the Air Force, following what is said to have been a split decision, which was given to Ellis last month. Words have waxed long and loud from both camps, that is we've heard squawks from every person except those paramountly interested, namely Ellis and Smith themselves. At any rate Elmer has now entered the inner sanctum of boxing promotion from where he hopes to subsequently stage a return bout between Smith and Ellis in Trenton early next month. Frankly speaking a Smith-Ellis bout should click through the turnstiles and also prove a popular sports attraction. However, we'd suggest neutral officials, a referee and two of three judges, who know the difference between a rabbit punch and the one-two sock. Chairman Lionel Conacher, of the Ontario Athletic Commission, may be asked to appoint the officials, if Mr. Bonter's plans materialize.

Last week the R.C.A.F. "Bees" journeyed to Frankford where they engaged the Bata Shoe hockey team, of the Trent Valley League, in an exhibition hockey game prior to their launching upon an O.H.A. intermediate campaign, which opens at the Hume Arena versus Napanee Wednesday night. The Flyer "Bees" buzzed and zoomed around the shoemakers for a 5-3 win, which isn't so bad considering the Bata team is just about the top-flight squad in the Trent Valley loop. Incidentally the Bata team is coached by Bill Bryden, former Aurora defenceman, who also fills in at defence for the "leather-cutters." The Air Force "Bees" have Jack Lafferty and Don Crawford, former Kingston juniors, Driscoll, who had a trial with Les Canadiens, is in the nets. Lockyer, of Picton, Jamieson and several other newcomers are with the "Bees". Just what material Walter Gerow has for an intermediate team at Napanee we were unable to ascertain, but doubtless the Napanee team will include several Kingston players, as Kingston is not represented in the O.H.A. this season.

Do you remember when champion boxer of pro-depression days, Paul Berlenback, started a wrestling career six years ago today for milk and rent money? Booked in a preliminary, the former light-heavyweight champ got $150 for 11 minutes' wrestling. Berlenbach took the light-heavy title from Mike McTigue May 3, 1925 and lost it to Jack Delaney the following year. He retired in 1928, after earning more than $500,000 as a boxer.

Perhaps by spring the Van Horne Memorial Cup executive may terminate their league finals. Twice now the Van Horne finals have been postponed, the last two times to accommodate the Queens seniors, who are carrying on a little hockey sojourn, with considerable success, in the U.S.A. The finals were to have commenced in Kingston, between Queens and the Air Force last night, but as Queens were playing International Intercollegiate hockey with Yale last night, the Van Horne executive postponed the opening of their final series until tomorrow night, when the Presbyterians are expected home, following a successful tour of the Eastern States. The Van Horne finals should have been completed long ago, as games from now on will seriously conflict with the Intercollegiate and O.H.A. schedules.

Hockey — as you like it—was dished up at the Hume Arena last night despite the fact the Belleville kids trounced the Trenton Juniors 12-1. We've witnessed a few hockey games locally and elsewhere in the past few years, but that first 40 minutes last night was as keen a sports entertainment as we've seen here, there, or yonder, in many a moon. Unfortunately the score of the game was rather one-sided, but we must give Ross Burtt's Trenton kids much credit —in the face of ultimate defeat, they at no time reverted to unsportsman-like efforts.

Something we never knew before —"Bonnie" Gerow, that likely looking kid who's battling exceedingly well for a position with the "Quintes," wears practically a complete outfit given him by Johnnie Sorrell, of the Detroit Red Wings, and the kid is living well up to the confidence placed in him by Sorrell in his efforts to date with the "Quintes."

We have always contended that Leo Goyer was a two-way hockey player, if he so desired, and last night proved that Goyer can play the game going both ways. Leo helped himself to five of Belleville's 12 goals and added an assist. Frankly he might have added more assists simply because the kid was passing the rubber in a big league manner and we hope he continues to play hockey as he demonstrated, before he went on that scoring splurge in the last period. Goals mount up in a small grouping, but when the going becomes tough it is the player who can set up the plays who pays off and we're convinced that Goyer can set 'em up. In Goyer and Bundy, Coach Holway has two play-makers, something that is most vital to any winning team. We hope their present ability does not turn their heads.

SPORT SPICE — It is generally conceded that hockey is the hardest team game to film, but at the McCarthy Theatre tonight can be seen practically the impossible—ice hockey in its unadulterated stage. To add interest to a splendid sports program is a second picture showing the annual Dartmouth skiing carnival, which should be of paramount interest to local skiers..... Queens beat Yale 11 to 3 last night and immediately entrained for home and battle with the Flyers.. Slowly, but surely the major league ballsters are returning their signed contracts and it is generally conceded that few, if any, major holdouts will be seen in 1940.... The local basketeers are wondering if the R. C. "Signals" have withdrawn from basketball, as well as hockey....The Signals are slated to open the O.B.A. season here Wednesday.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.
